Drahyāyaṇa Śrautasūtram Patala 1 khanda 3 says इन्द्रागच्छ हरिव आगच्छ मेधातिथेर्मेषवृषणश्वस्य मेने गौरावास्कन्दिन्नहल्यायै जारकौशिकब्राह्मण गौतमब्रुवाणेति that is Indra comes to the Sacrifice of Medhatithi and Indra (Sun) is the destroyer of Ahilya (night)

In Nirukta 3.16, 3.3.4- सूर्य (Sun) is clearly called the जार (destroyer) of रात्रि (Night).

You might be wandering what is the meaning f गौतम (gautam) then? "उत्तमा गावो रश्मयो यस्य सः"

That which has Excellent rays is Gautam. Here "चंद्रमा (moon) is Gautama

And Gautama means चन्द्र i.e. kaanta of Ahilya रश्मी गै उच्यते, गौ with तम meaning who shines bright. here because of Surya from whom the moon shines, has been called गौ (Gautam) The meaning that has to be taken as "Sun(Indra) is the Jaar(destroyer) of the Ahilya (night) (The wife on Chandra) ie Gautama

(2) The word "Indra"—proceeding from the root 'Idi' which signifies great glory—would signify one possessed of a resplendent glory; and as such it is taken as another name of the Sun; and he is the 'jāra'—destroyer (jarati-nāçayati)—of 'Ahalyā'—(ahani līyate) that which disappears during the day, i.e., Night; as it is only when the Sun rises that the darkness of night is destroyed; and it is in this sense that we should take the sentence—"Indra' halyāyā jārah,"—which cannot be taken in its ordinary sense, of an illicit connection with a woman.

According to Ancient Acharya Kumarila Bhatta, in his commentary Tantravartika on the Mimamsa Darshan (page 189), writes that the name “Indra” refers to the Sun, and “Ahalya” refers to the night. When the Sun rises, the night is destroyed. This is why Indra is called the “Destroyer” (jar) of Ahalya. This does not mean that a deity named Indra had an illicit relationship with a woman named Ahalya. In Texts like Ramayana and Mahabharat this Scientific philosphy was adopted only in the form of a narrative and this is the real meaning of that Narrative and it should be understood within this context only resisted (the temptation of cohabiting with) a woman occupying the same bed, he conquered everything. He made convenient (i.e. easy) what was difficult to be accomplished by the wise, and by the celibate sages, and which was difficult for gods, demons and men. Which man, but Adrohaka, is capable of conquering the sexual desire, which is naturally difficult (to overcome)? 0 brahmana, he (i.e. Adrohaka) aloneis a man who has conquered everything. Suresa (i.e. Indra) had vaginal marks (on his body) because of having outraged Ahalyã only. Then again, due to the favour of Goddess (Indraks1), he, became well-known as Sahasraksa (one having a thousand eyes). This is known in the entire mobile and immobile world."

Rc Hazra in his book Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs page no 120 said that the chapters after chapter 43 in Shristi khanda (including chapter 54) are later interpolations into Padma Purana and was composed likely after the Satanic Islamic Muhammadans established their rule in India . So this chapter is a later interpolation and not part of Padma Purana originally

(5) SṚṢṬI-KHAṆḌA.[88]. This Khaṇḍa, which is assigned the fifth place in our edition, is really the first of the set. This position of the Khaṇḍa is betrayed by the mode of its beginning as well as by the sequence and contents of the five Parvans given in chap. 1.

This Khaṇḍa, as we have it now, can be rightly divided into two parts:

(1) chaps. 1-43 (verses 1-97)

and (2) chaps. 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end.

It will be seen hereinafter that the chapters of the second part were added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. Hence the chapters of the first part, which are of earlier date, are examined first.

[88] The Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa in Bengal Mss consists only of 46 (or according to Aufrecht, 45) chapters. The corresponding chapters in a Bengal Ms. (No. 1621, D. U. Mss Lib.) of this Khaṇḍa and the AnSS ed. are given below:

upon them, it is difficult to say anything about the lower limit. Chapters 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end, which, according to our division, form the second part of the work, are not found in the Bengal Mss. So their comparatively late date can be well understood. These chapters were written and added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. These foreigners have been called kings[93] and scornfully described more than once under the names 'Turuṣka', 'Mleccha' and 'Yavana'[94]. The descriptions are undoubtedly aimed at the Muhammadans who 'polluted' the society and the land of the Hindus by their contact and slaughter of cows. Hence the date of composition of this part of the Sṛṣṭi-kh. can by no means be placed earlier than 1000 A.D. Such a late date is supported by the contents also, which are replete with Tantric elements. The Āgamas have many times been mentioned as authorities along with the Vedas and the Purāṇas; the Tulasī plant has been glorified in highly extravagant language; and so on. As Hemādri quotes

📚Shiva Purana 5.4.18📚
Indra, the lord of the gods, became fascinated by Gautama's wife. That vicious one committed sin and so was cursed by the sage."

Refutation-

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhaumasaṃhitā,[391] also called Auma/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and manvantaras; etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[400] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as ṛgyajuḥsāmarūpin, who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahma; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Banaras, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A. D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[387] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions — which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śiva°	Class A Bombay 1884 Veṅkaṭ. 1895–96 Vaṅga.		Class B Veṅkaṭ. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya Tr. AITM
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara/	ch. 25
II. Raudra	Vidyeśvara	25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka		(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhauma/Auma	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyu/Vāyavīya		Umā/Auma	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	30	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya
IX. Koṭirudra	Dharma	65	pūrvabhāga	35
X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śiva° is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages;" it is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[388] Hazra, who did not include the Śiva° in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

मेरे पितामह अर्जुनने जो भगवान् वासुदेवकी सहायता पाकर उत्तम विजय प्राप्त कर ली, वह वहाँ उन्होंने कोई अद्भुत कार्य नहीं किया है ।। १९ ।। त्रिलोकीनाथ भगवान् कृष्ण ही जब उनके सहायक थे, तब उनके लिये तीनों लोकोंमें किसी वस्तुकी प्राप्ति असम्भव रही हो, यह मैं नहीं मानता ।। ब्रह्मन्! मेरे सभी पूर्वज धन्य थे, जिनका हित और कल्याण करनेके लिये साक्षात् जनार्दन तैयार रहते थे ।। लोकपूजित भगवान् नारायणका दर्शन तो तपस्यासे ही हो सकता है; किंतु मेरे पितामहोंने श्रीवत्सके चिह्नसे विभूषित उन भगवान्का साक्षात् दर्शन अनायास ही पा लिया था ।। २२ । उन सबसे भी अधिक धन्यवादके योग्य ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी हैं। मैं अविनाशी नारदजीको कम तेजस्वी ऋषि नहीं समझता, जिन्होंने श्वेतद्वीपमें पहुँचकर साक्षात् श्रीहरिका दर्शन प्राप्त कर लिया। उनका वह भगवद्-दर्शन स्पष्ट ही उन भगवान्की कृपाका फल है ।। मुने! नारदजीने उस समय श्वेतद्वीपमें जाकर जो अनिरुद्ध-विग्रहमें स्थित नारायणदेवका साक्षात्कार किया तथा पुनः नर-नारायणका दर्शन करनेके लिये जो बदरिकाश्रमको प्रस्थान किया, इसका क्या कारण है? ।। २५ ।। ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी श्वेतद्वीपसे लौटनेपर जब बदरिकाश्रममें पहुँचकर उन दोनों ऋषियोंसे मिले, तब वहाँ उन्होंने कितने समयतक निवास किया? और वहाँ उनसे किन-किन प्रश्नोंको एला? ।। वैशम्पायनजीने कहा- अमिततेजस्वी भगवान् व्यासको नमस्कार है, जिनके कृपाप्रसादसे मैं भगवान् नारायणकी यह कथा कह रहा हूँ ।। २९ ।। राजन्! श्वेतनामक महाद्वीपमें जाकर वहाँ अविनाशी श्रीहरिका दर्शन करके जब नारदजी लौटे, तब बड़े वेगसे मेरुपर्वतपर आ पहुँचे। परमात्मा श्रीहरिने उनसे जो कुछ कहा था, उस कार्यभारको वे हृदयसे ढो रहे थे ।। ३०-३१ ।। नरेश्वर! तत्पश्चात् उनके मनमें यह सोचकर बड़ा भारी विस्मय हुआ कि मैं इतनी दूरका मार्ग तै करके पुनः यहाँ सकुशल कैसे लौट आया? ।। ३२ ।। तदनन्तर वे मेरुसे गन्धमादन पर्वतकी ओर चले और बदरीविशालतीर्थके समीप तुरंत ही आकाशसे नीचे उतर पड़े ।। ३३ ।। वहाँ उन्होंने उन दोनों पुरातन देवता ऋषिश्रेष्ठ नर-नारायणका दर्शन किया, जो आत्मनिष्ठ हो महान् व्रत लेकर बड़ी भारी तपस्या कर रहे थे ।। ४ ।।वे दोनों सम्पूर्ण लोकोंको प्रकाशित करनेवाले सूर्यसे भी

अधिक तेजस्वी थे। उन पूज्य महात्माओंके वक्षःस्थलमें श्रीवत्सके चिह्न सुशोभित हो रहे थे और वे अपने मस्तकपर जटामण्डल धारण किये हुए थे ।। उनके हाथोंमें हंसका और चरणोंमें चक्रका चिह्न था। विशाल वक्षःस्थल, बड़ी-बड़ी भुजाएँ, अण्डकोशमें चार-चार बीज, मुखमें साठ दाँत और आठ दाढ़ें, मेघके समान गम्भीर स्वर, सुन्दर मुख, चौड़े ललाट, बाँकी भौंहें, सुन्दर ठोढ़ी और मनोहर नासिकासे उन दोनोंकी अपूर्व शोभा हो रही थी ।। ३६-३७ ।। उन दोनों देवताओंके मस्तक छत्रके समान प्रतीत होते थे। ऐसे शुभलक्षणोंसे सम्पन्न उन दोनों महापुरुषोंका दर्शन करके नारदजीको बड़ी प्रसन्नता हुई। भगवान् नर और नारायणने भी नारदजीका स्वागत-सत्कार करके उनका कुशल-समाचार पूछा ।। ३८-३९ । तदनन्तर नारदजीने उन दोनों पुरुषोत्तमोंकी ओर देखकर मन-ही-मन विचार किया, अहो ! मैंने श्वेतद्वीपमें भगवान्की सभाके भीतर जिन सर्वभूतवन्दित सदस्योंको देखा था, ये दोनों ऋषिश्रेष्ठ भी वैसे ही हैं ।। मन-ही-मन ऐसा सोचकर वे उन दोनोंकी प्रदक्षिणा करके एक सुन्दर कुशासनपर बैठ गये ।। ४१ ।। तदनन्तर तपस्या, यश और तेजके भी निवासस्थान वे शम-दमसम्पन्न दोनों ऋषि वार्ह्नकालका नित्य कर्म पूर्ण करके फिर शान्त-भावसे पाद्य और अर्घ्य आदि निवेदन करके नारदजीकी पूजा करने लगे ।। ४२-४३ ।। नरेश्वर ! अपने नित्यकर्म तथा नारदजीका आतिथ्य सत्कार करके वे दोनों ऋषि भी कुशासनपर बैठ गये। वहाँ उन तीनोंके बैठ जानेपर वह प्रदेश घीकी आहुतिसे प्रज्वलित विशाल लपटोंवाले तीन अग्नियोंसे प्रकाशित यज्ञमण्डपकी भाँति सुशोभित होने लगा ।। ४४ ।। इसके बाद वहाँ आतिथ्य ग्रहण करके सुखपूर्वक बैठकर विश्राम करते हुए नारदजीसे नारायणने इस प्रकार कहा ।। ४५ ।। नर-नारायण बोले- देवर्षे ! क्या तुमने इस समय श्वेतद्वीपमें जाकर हम दोनोंका परम

My grandsire Arjuna, having obtained the assistance of Lord Vāsudeva, achieved a glorious victory. In that, he did nothing that could be called extraordinary, for when the Lord of the three worlds, Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself, was His helper, I cannot believe that there was anything in all the three worlds which could have been unattainable for him.

O Brāhmaṇa, all my forefathers were indeed blessed, for the divine Janārdana Himself was ever ready to protect and bless them. The vision of Lord Nārāyaṇa—worshipped in all the worlds—can be obtained only through great austerities; yet my grandsire effortlessly obtained the direct sight of that Lord adorned with the Śrīvatsa mark upon His chest.

But more worthy of gratitude than all of them is Nārada, the son of Brahmā. I do not consider the immortal Nārada to be in any way less radiant than other sages, for he reached Śvetadvīpa and there obtained the direct vision of Śrī Hari Himself. Clearly, this divine vision was the fruit of the Lord's own grace. O Sage, why was it that, after beholding Lord Nārāyaṇa in His Aniruddha form in Śvetadvīpa, Nārada again set forth for Badarikāśrama to see Nara and Nārāyaṇa?

Vaiśampāyana said: I bow to the supremely radiant Lord Vyāsa, by whose grace I narrate this tale of Lord Nārāyaṇa.

When Nārada returned from the great continent of Śveta after beholding the immortal Śrī Hari, he swiftly reached Mount Meru. He carried in his heart the charge ntrusted to him by Lord Hari Himself.

Then a great wonder arose in his mind—"How was it that, after traversing such a far-off path, I have returned here safely?"

Thereafter, from Mount Meru he journeyed toward Mount Gandhamādana and descended from the sky near the great holy place of Badarī.

There he beheld the two ancient divine sages, Nara and Nārāyaṇa, absorbed in Self-realization, having undertaken mighty vows and performing great austerities.

They shone with brilliance surpassing even the sun that illumines all the worlds. The Śrīvatsa mark adorned their chests, and they wore matted locks upon their heads. In their hands was the mark of a swan, upon their feet the mark of a discus. They had broad chests, long arms, four seeds in their scrotum, sixty teeth and eight molars, deep voices like the sound of clouds, beautiful faces, wide foreheads, graceful eyebrows, lovely chins, and charming noses—altogether of wondrous beauty.

Their heads seemed as though covered by a crown-like canopy. Beholding those two great beings adorned with such auspicious marks, Nārada felt great joy. Lord Nara and Lord Nārāyaṇa welcomed and honored Nārada, inquiring after his welfare.

Then, gazing upon them, Nārada thought within himself: "Ah! These two great sages are exactly like the exalted members of the divine assembly whom I beheld in Śvetadvīpa." Thinking thus, he circumambulated them and sat upon a beautiful seat of kuśa grass.

Thereafter, those two sages—abodes of austerity, fame, and radiance, endowed with self-restraint and tranquility—completed their morning rites and, offering water for washing the feet and the ritual welcome, worshiped Nārada.

Having finished their daily duties and the honoring of their guest, they too sat upon seats of kuśa grass. As the three of them sat there, that place shone like a sacrificial pavilion illumined by the blazing flames of three ghee-fed fires.

After Nārada had partaken of hospitality, rested in comfort, and was seated at ease, Nārāyaṇa spoke to him thus:

Nara and Nārāyaṇa said: "O divine sage! Have you now gone to Śvetadvīpa and beheld the eternal Supreme Being, the original cause of both of us?"

Nārada said: "O Lord, I have indeed seen that eternal, radiant Supreme Person who is the form of the whole universe. The gods with the sages, and all the worlds, dwell within Him.

Even now, beholding you two eternal persons here, I seem to be looking upon that very Lord of Śvetadvīpa. The marks and attributes with which I saw the unmanifest Śrī Hari there are the same with which you two, in manifest form, are adorned here. Not only that—I saw you both even there, standing near the Supreme Lord; and it is by His command that I have come here today.

In all the three worlds, apart from you two great souls—the sons of Dharma—who else can equal that Supreme Lord in brilliance, glory, and majesty?

That Lord Śrī Hari explained to me the entirety of dharma, gave me the knowledge of the knower of the field (kṣetrajña), and described to me the future incarnations He will assume here.

There, the fair-complexioned men, shining like the moon, were entirely free of the five senses—that is, devoid of the five-elemental body—yet possessed of knowledge and devoted to the Supreme Person, Śrī Viṣṇu.

They ever worship that Lord Nārāyaṇa, and the Lord in turn ever plays with them joyfully. The Lord dearly loves His devotees, and He is especially fond of the brāhmaṇas.

That all-pervading Lord, preserver of the universe, is supremely devoted to His devotees. Pleased with His devotees' love, He ever remains delighted there, being Himself the doer, the cause, and the effect. His power and radiance are infinite. He is the great and glorious Lord, the source, the command, the ordinance, and the truth itself.

Devoting Himself to austerities, He resides beyond even Śvetadvīpa, known by His resplendent, self-luminous form, whose light shines by its own brilliance.

सौते सुमहदाख्यानं भवता परिकीर्तितम् ।
यच्छ्रुत्वा मुनयः सर्वे विस्मयं परमं गताः ॥ १ ॥

शौनकने कहा—सूतनन्दन! आपने यह बहुत बड़ा आख्यान सुनाया है। इसे सुनकर समस्त ऋषियोंको बड़ा आश्चर्य हुआ है ॥ १ ॥

सर्वाश्रमाभिगमनं सर्वतीर्थावगाहनम् ।
न तथा फलदं सौते नारायणकथा यथा ॥ २ ॥

सूतकुमार! सम्पूर्ण ऋषि-आश्रमोंकी यात्रा करना और समस्त तीर्थोंमें स्नान करना भी वैसा फलदायक नहीं है, जैसी कि भगवान् नारायणकी कथा है ॥ २ ॥

पाविताङ्गाः स्म संवृत्ताः श्रुत्वेमामादितः कथाम् ।

वासुदेवसहायो यः प्राप्तवाञ्जयमुत्तमम् ॥ १९ ॥

मेरे पितामह अर्जुनने जो भगवान् वासुदेवकी सहायता पाकर उत्तम विजय प्राप्त कर ली, वह वहाँ उन्होंने कोई अद्भुत कार्य नहीं किया है ॥ १९ ॥

न चास्य किंचिदप्राप्यं मन्ये लोकेष्वपि त्रिषु ।
त्रैलोक्यनाथो विष्णुः स यस्याऽऽसीत् साह्यकृत् स वै ॥ २० ॥

त्रिलोकीनाथ भगवान् कृष्ण ही जब उनके सहायक थे, तब उनके लिये तीनों लोकोंमें किसी वस्तुकी प्राप्ति असम्भव रही हो, यह मैं नहीं मानता ॥

धन्याश्च सर्व एवासन् ब्रह्मंस्ते मम पूर्वजाः ।
हिताय श्रेयसे चैव येषामासीज्जनार्दनः ॥ २१ ॥

ब्रह्मन्! मेरे सभी पूर्वज धन्य थे, जिनका हित और कल्याण करनेके लिये साक्षात् जनार्दन तैयार रहते थे ॥

यं दृष्टवन्तस्ते साक्षाच्छ्रीवत्साङ्कविभूषणम् ॥ २२ ॥

लोकपूजित भगवान् नारायणका दर्शन तो तपस्यासे ही हो सकता है; किंतु मेरे पितामहोंने श्रीवत्सके चिह्नसे विभूषित उन भगवान्‌का साक्षात् दर्शन अनायास ही पा लिया था ॥ २२ ॥

तेभ्यो धन्यतरश्चैव नारदः परमेष्ठिजः ।

श्वेतद्वीपं समासाद्य येन दृष्टः स्वयं हरिः ।
देवप्रसादानुगतं व्यक्तं तत् तस्य दर्शनम् ॥ २४ ॥

उन सबसे भी अधिक धन्यवादके योग्य ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी हैं। मैं अविनाशी नारदजीको कम तेजस्वी ऋषि नहीं समझता, जिन्होंने श्वेतद्वीपमें पहुँचकर साक्षात् श्रीहरिका दर्शन प्राप्त कर लिया। उनका वह भगवद्-दर्शन स्पष्ट ही उन भगवान्‌की कृपाका फल है ॥

यद् दृष्टवांस्तदा देवमनिरुद्धतनौ स्थितम् ।
बदरीमाश्रमं यत् तु नारदः प्राद्रवत् पुनः ॥ २५ ॥
नरनारायणौ द्रष्टुं किं तु तत् कारणं मुने ।

मुने! नारदजीने उस समय श्वेतद्वीपमें जाकर जो अनिरुद्ध-विग्रहमें स्थित नारायणदेवका साक्षात्कार किया तथा पुनः नर-नारायणका दर्शन करनेके लिये जो बदरिकाश्रमको प्रस्थान किया, इसका क्या कारण है? ॥ २५½ ॥

श्वेतद्वीपान्निवृत्तश्च नारदः परमेष्ठिजः ॥ २६ ॥
बदरीमाश्रमं प्राप्य समागम्य च तावृषी ।
कियन्तं कालमवसत् प्रश्नान् कान् पृष्टवांश्च ह ॥ २७ ॥

ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी श्वेतद्वीपसे लौटनेपर जब बदरिकाश्रममें पहुँचकर उन दोनों ऋषियोंसे मिले, तब वहाँ उन्होंने कितने समयतक निवास किया? और वहाँ उनसे किन-किन प्रश्नोंको पूछा? ॥ २६-२७ ॥

वैशम्पायनजीने कहा—अमिततेजस्वी भगवान् व्यासको नमस्कार है, जिनके कृपाप्रसादसे मैं भगवान् नारायणकी यह कथा कह रहा हूँ ॥ २९½ ॥

प्राप्य श्वेतं महाद्वीपं दृष्ट्वा च हरिमव्ययम् ॥ ३० ॥
निवृत्तो नारदो राजंस्तरसा मेरुमागमत् ।
हृदयेनोद्वहन् भारं यदुक्तं परमात्मना ॥ ३१ ॥

राजन्! श्वेतनामक महाद्वीपमें जाकर वहाँ अविनाशी श्रीहरिका दर्शन करके जब नारदजी लौटे, तब बड़े वेगसे मेरुपर्वतपर आ पहुँचे। परमात्मा श्रीहरिने उनसे जो कुछ कहा था, उस कार्यभारको वे हृदयसे ढो रहे थे ॥ ३०-३१ ॥

यद् गत्वा दूरमध्वानं क्षेमी पुनरिहागतः ॥ ३२ ॥

नरेश्वर! तत्पश्चात् उनके मनमें यह सोचकर बड़ा भारी विस्मय हुआ कि मैं इतनी दूरका मार्ग तै करके पुनः यहाँ सकुशल कैसे लौट आया? ॥ ३२ ॥

मेरोः प्रचक्राम ततः पर्वतं गन्धमादनम् ।
निपपात च खात् तूर्णं विशालां बदरीमनु ॥ ३३ ॥

तदनन्तर वे मेरुसे गन्धमादन पर्वतकी ओर चले और बदरीविशालतीर्थके समीप तुरंत ही आकाशसे नीचे उतर पड़े ॥ ३३ ॥

तपश्चरन्तौ सुमहदात्मनिष्ठौ महाव्रतौ ॥ ३४ ॥

वहाँ उन्होंने उन दोनों पुरातन देवता ऋषिश्रेष्ठ नर-नारायणका दर्शन किया, जो आत्मनिष्ठ हो महान् व्रत लेकर बड़ी भारी तपस्या कर रहे थे ॥ ३४ ॥

तेजसाभ्यधिकौ सूर्यात् सर्वलोकविरोचनात् ।
श्रीवत्सलक्षणौ पूज्यौ जटामण्डलधारिणौ ॥ ३५ ॥

वे दोनों सम्पूर्ण लोकोंको प्रकाशित करनेवाले सूर्यसे भी अधिक तेजस्वी थे। उन पूज्य महात्माओंके वक्षःस्थलमें श्रीवत्सके चिह्न सुशोभित हो रहे थे और वे अपने मस्तकपर जटामण्डल धारण किये हुए थे ॥

उनके हाथोंमें हंसका और चरणोंमें चक्रका चिह्न था। विशाल वक्षःस्थल, बड़ी-बड़ी भुजाएँ, अण्डकोशमें चार-चार बीज, मुखमें साठ दाँत और आठ दाढ़ें, मेघके समान गम्भीर स्वर, सुन्दर मुख, चौड़े ललाट, बाँकी भौंहें, सुन्दर ठोढ़ी और मनोहर नासिकासे उन दोनोंकी अपूर्व शोभा हो रही थी ॥ ३६-३७ ॥

तौ दृष्ट्वा नारदो हृष्टस्ताभ्यां च प्रतिपूजितः ।
स्वागतेनाभिभाष्याथ पृष्टश्चानामयं तथा ॥ ३९ ॥

श्वेतद्वीपे मया दृष्टास्तादृशावृषिसत्तमौ ।

तदनन्तर नारदजीने उन दोनों पुरुषोत्तमोंकी ओर देखकर मन-ही-मन विचार किया, अहो! मैंने श्वेतद्वीपमें भगवान्‌की सभाके भीतर जिन सर्वभूतवन्दित सदस्योंको देखा था, ये दोनों ऋषिश्रेष्ठ भी वैसे ही हैं ॥

इति संचिन्त्य मनसा कृत्वा चाभिप्रदक्षिणम् ॥ ४१ ॥

तेषु तत्रोपविष्टेषु स देशोऽभिव्यराजत ॥ ४४ ॥
आज्याहुतिमहाज्वालैर्यज्ञवाटोऽग्निभिर्यथा ।

नरेश्वर! अपने नित्यकर्म तथा नारदजीका आतिथ्य-सत्कार करके वे दोनों ऋषि भी कुशासनपर बैठ गये। वहाँ उन तीनोंके बैठ जानेपर वह प्रदेश घीकी आहुतिसे प्रज्वलित विशाल लपटोंवाले तीन अग्नियोंसे प्रकाशित यज्ञमण्डपकी भाँति सुशोभित होने लगा ॥ ४४½ ॥

अथ नारायणस्तत्र नारदं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४५ ॥
सुखोपविष्टं विश्रान्तं कृतातिथ्यं सुखस्थितम् ।

नरनारायणावूचतुः

अपीदानीं स भगवान् परमात्मा सनातनः ॥ ४६ ॥
श्वेतद्वीपे त्वया दृष्ट आवयोः प्रकृतिः परा ।

नारद उवाच

दृष्टो मे पुरुषः श्रीमान् विश्वरूपधरोऽव्ययः ॥ ४७ ॥
सर्वे लोका हि तत्रस्थास्तथा देवाः सहर्षिभिः ।

इहैव चागतोऽस्म्यद्य विसृष्टः परमात्मना ॥ ५० ॥

सदृशस्त्रिषु लोकेषु ऋते धर्मात्मजौ युवाम् ॥ ५१ ॥

तीनों लोकोंमें धर्मके पुत्र आप दोनों महापुरुषोंके सिवा दूसरा कौन है, जो तेज, यश और श्रीमें उन्हीं परमेश्वरके समान हो ॥ ५१ ॥

प्रादुर्भावाश्च कथिता भविष्या इह ये यथा ॥ ५२ ॥

उन भगवान् श्रीहरिने मुझसे सम्पूर्ण धर्मका वर्णन किया था। क्षेत्रज्ञका भी परिचय दिया था और यहाँ भविष्यमें उनके जो अवतार जैसे होनेवाले हैं, उन्हें भी बताया था ॥ ५२ ॥

तत्र ये पुरुषाः श्वेताः पञ्चेन्द्रियविवर्जिताः ।
प्रतिबुद्धाश्च ते सर्वे भक्ताश्च पुरुषोत्तमम् ॥ ५३ ॥

वहाँ जो चन्द्रमाके समान गौरवर्णके पुरुष थे, वे सब-के-सब पाँचों इन्द्रियोंसे रहित अर्थात् पाञ्च-भौतिक शरीरसे शून्य, ज्ञानवान् तथा पुरुषोत्तम श्रीविष्णुके भक्त थे ॥ ५३ ॥

तेऽर्चयन्ति सदा देवं तैः सार्धं रमते च सः ।
प्रियभक्तो हि भगवान् परमात्मा द्विजप्रियः ॥ ५४ ॥

वे सदा उन नारायणदेवकी पूजा-अर्चा करते रहते हैं और भगवान् भी सदा उनके साथ प्रसन्नतापूर्वक क्रीडा करते रहते हैं। भगवान्को अपने भक्त बहुत ही प्रिय हैं तथा वे परमात्मा श्रीहरि ब्राह्मणोंके भी प्रेमी हैं ॥ ५४ ॥

विश्वभुक् सर्वगो देवो माधवो भक्तवत्सलः ॥ ५५ ॥

वे विश्वका पालन करनेवाले सर्वव्यापी भगवान् बड़े भक्तवत्सल हैं। भागवद्भक्तोंके प्रेमी और प्रियतम श्रीहरि उनसे पूजित हो वहाँ सदा सुप्रसन्न रहते हैं ॥

स कर्ता कारणं चैव कार्यं चातिबलद्युतिः ।
हेतुश्चाज्ञा विधानं च तत्त्वं चैव महायशाः ॥ ५६ ॥

वे ही कर्ता, कारण और कार्य हैं। उनका बल और तेज अनन्त है। वे महायशस्वी भगवान् ही हेतु, आज्ञा, विधि और तत्त्वरूप हैं ॥ ५६ ॥

तेज इत्यभिविख्यातं स्वयंभासावभासितम् ॥ ५७ ॥

वे अपने आपको तपस्यामें लगाकर श्वेतद्वीपसे भी परे प्रकाशमान तेजोमय स्वरूपसे विख्यात हैं। उनका वह तेज अपने ही प्रकाशसे प्रकाशित है ॥ ५७ ॥

6. Indra (in the form of wind) blew up the garments of the bathing girls

📚Matsya Purana 27.3-5📚
Accepting the request of the Devas, the Maghavan, along with them, set out on his mission and, in the way, he came across a group of women in the forest. He saw those damsels bathing and enjoying themselves, as they do in they do in the pleasure-garden of Kuvera. Then Indra, in the form of a gust of wind, blew away and mixed up their garments. At that, all the maidens, hastily coming out of water, dressed themselves with the clothes as they found them."

Refutation-

Matsya Purana 27.3-5 does not say that Indra blew the garments of bathing girls for his fun but it says Indra blew and mixed the cloths of Devayani and Sharmistha to cause a fight between them .

In the Matsya Purana, Indra's act of blowing away and mixing up the garments of the bathing maidens was a deliberate strategy, not a mere prank. After Kacha returned with the knowledge of Sanjivani, the Devas were eager to weaken their Asura enemies. When Indra and the other Devas came across the Daitya maidens bathing in the forest, Indra used a gust of wind to scatter and mix up their clothes, knowing that this would lead to confusion and quarrels. This incident caused Sarmiṣṭhā, the daughter of the Daitya king Vṛṣaparvan, to accidentally put on the clothes of Devayānī, the daughter of Śukra, the preceptor of the Asuras. The mix-up quickly escalated into a heated dispute, leading Sarmiṣṭhā to insult and push Devayānī into a well. This act sowed discord between the two most important houses of the Asuras—the king and their guru—thereby fulfilling Indra's aim of weakening the unity of the Daityas through internal conflict.

Indra caused a rift between Sharmishtha and Devayani, killed Devayani and threw her into a well, and Shukra became angry with the demons.

Matsya Purana 27.3-5 hindi translation by Chaukhamba Publications

कर देवयानी का वस्त्र पहन लिया। राजेन्द्र ! जिससे उन दोनों में परस्पर विरोध उत्पन्न हो गया।।१-७।।

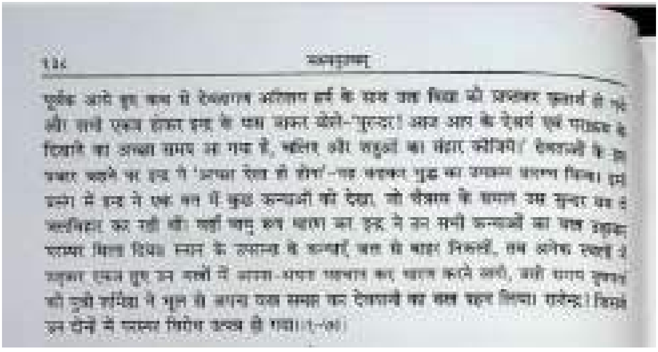
Having earlier returned with Kacha, the gods, overjoyed at having obtained that great knowledge, felt accomplished. All of them together went to Indra and said, “O Purandara! Today is a fine time to display your majesty and prowess — come, let us destroy the enemies.”

When the gods spoke thus, Indra replied, “Very well, so it shall be,” and began preparations for battle.

At that time, Indra happened to see some maidens in a forest, as beautiful as the celestial Chaitraratha grove, enjoying water-sports there. Assuming the form of the wind, Indra blew away the garments of all those maidens, causing them to become mixed together.

When, after bathing, the maidens came out of the water, they began to identify and put on their own clothes from among the many that had flown and become intermingled. At that moment, Sharmishtha, the daughter of Vṛṣaparvā, by mistake put on the garment of Devayānī, thinking it to be her own.

O King, from this incident arose mutual hostility between the two. (Verses 1–7)



Fight between Sharmistha and Devayani that eventually weakened the unity of the Daityas through internal conflict.

लेने वाले एक निर्धन की पुत्री हूँ तो शर्मिष्ठा को अपनी सेवा से प्रसन्न करूँगी-ऐसा मैंने भी उससे कहा है।।३१-३५।।

Devayānī said:
"O daughter of the Asura! Being my disciple, why have you worn my garment? You, who do not know proper decorum — your welfare will not be!" (8)

Śarmiṣṭhā said:
"O beggar-girl! While seated on a seat or lying upon a couch before my father, your father always stands humbly with folded hands, prays, and seeks permission. You are the daughter of a poor Brāhmaṇa who begs, petitions, and receives charity, whereas I am the daughter of a donor, the one to whom your father prays daily. I am not the daughter of one who receives alms like you. Being without any weapons or power yourself, why do you show your anger toward me, who am armed with many strengths? If you come across a quarrelsome person, you will get your proper reward — I do not consider you worth anything." (9–11)

Śaunaka said:
"O King! When Devayānī had made this humble request, King Yayāti, considering her a Brāhmaṇa woman — and above all, a woman — quickly took her right hand and lifted her out of the well. Having brought her out of the well, the king spoke a few words with that beautiful maiden and then departed toward his city.

After King Yayāti, the son of Nahusha, departed toward his city, Devayānī's maid arrived there. Seeing her, Devayānī — deeply distressed and humiliated by Śarmiṣṭhā — recounted the entire matter to her in great sorrow and said: (22–24)

Devayānī said:
"O maid! Go from here at once and tell my revered father this entire incident. As for me, I will never again set foot in the city of Vṛṣaparvā." (25)

Śaunaka said:
ↄ King! The maid immediately went to the city of the Asura-king Vṛṣaparvā, and there, trembling and greatly agitated as if senseless, she spoke to Śukra: 'O lord! O most fortunate one! Your greatly blessed daughter Devayānī has been struck down in the forest by Śarmiṣṭhā, daughter of the demon-king Vṛṣaparvā.'

Hearing that his daughter had been struck by Śarmiṣṭhā, the Bhṛgu sage Śukra became extremely sorrowful and at once ran toward the forest to search for her. There, in the hermitage, seeing his daughter Devayānī in such a state, Śukra became very distressed. Holding her in his arms, he said:

'My child, all people attain sorrow or happiness through their own faults or virtues. I understand that you too must have done something improper, and to be freed from that, you are now experiencing this result.'" (26–30)

Devayānī said:
"Father! Whether I am freed or not, listen carefully to the words that the daughter of Vṛṣaparvā, Śarmiṣṭhā, spoke to me. I speak the truth — she spoke words such as: 'I am the singer of the Daityas (one who earns her living by singing).' The daughter of Vṛṣaparvā spoke such insulting words to me, reddening her eyes with anger and speaking with extreme harshness, saying further: 'You are the daughter of a poor Brāhmaṇa who prays, begs, and accepts gifts; I am the daughter of a donor-king, one whom all praise. My father never takes charity from anyone.'

Father, I tell you truly, the daughter of Vṛṣaparvā, her eyes reddened with rage and filled with excessive pride, spoke to me with the utmost insult. If I am truly the daughter of a poor man who prays and receives charity, then I will serve Śarmiṣṭhā to please her — so I, too, said to her." (31–35)

7. Indra entered a horse in order to have intercourse with the Queen

A few days after Janamejaya duly undertook the celebration of a horse sacrifice accompanied with profuse presents. Having controlled herself according to the rites laid down in the scripture the worshipful lady Vapusthuma Kashya, went to the horse slain at Janamejaya's sacrifice, and sat down near it. Desiring for that perfectly beautiful lady Vasava entered into the body of the slain horse and knew her. Beholding that change Janamejaya said to the sacrificing priest, "This horse has not been slain: kill him at once." Coming to know of that endeavour of Indra's the wise priest communicated it to the royal saint Janamejaya and imprecated a curse on Indra."

Harivamsa Purana bhavishya parva chapter 5 Slokas 31-33 and Sloka 39 makes it clear that Indra entering the dead horse and copulating with Janamejaya wife was an Illusion created by Indra becuase Indra feared of the Ashwamedha Yagya so he created this illusion to destroy the merits of this yagya . In words of Sage Viswavasu to Janamajeya Indra Dev can never commit this heinous crime of Violating other men wife as Indra is rightous and controlled of senses he just created an Illusion to destroy the Yagya

How could that mighty and resplendent Indra, who desired victory, commit such a sinful deed that no one else had ever done? How could it be possible for him to violate the wife of his own grandson? (33)

Just as the highest intellect, supreme righteousness, excellent control over the senses, and great sovereignty are described in Harivāhana Indra, in the same way, all those qualities are present in you, O indomitable hero who has performed three hundred sacrifices. (34)

Therefore, do not see faults in Indra, in the guru and the family priest, in yourself, or in Queen Vapuṣṭamā, for Time is completely irresistible. (35)

Just as it is difficult to swim against the current of a river, in the same way, it is very hard to overcome a hostile deity. Your queen is innocent — she is a jewel among women. Enjoy her company without worry. (37)

3. Indra raped the wife of Brihaspati's brother
   Skanda Purana 2.7.23.9-20
   He went to the hermitage of (Brhaspati's brother) Utathya. There he saw his wife who was pregnant and hence could walk only very slowly. She was well adorned with a girdle tied to her tremulous hips. The sweet jingling sound of the bangles surpassed that of the inebriated bees and cuckoos. She had beautiful garments of various colours. The beautiful lad was sweet-voiced with beautiful smiles. Her pair of breasts resembled a pair of very fine pitchers. Her eyes were like blue lilies. When she laughed her face resembled a lotus. She appeared very charming with her pale cheeks resembling the interior of a Ketaki flower-bunch. On account of weariness she took deep breaths. Her eyes indicated her pitiable plight. She lay somewhere near the entrance to the hut. She was asleep on her bed. On seeing her, Indra became enamoured and raped her though she was pregnant? The foetus in the womb became miserable and feared that it might fall it out. Hence, it closed the vaginal passage by means > of its foot. Thereupon, the seminal fluid of the enemy of Bali became scattered on the ground. Therefore Lord Indra became furious with the foetus. With the edge of the eyes turned red like copper, he furiously cursed him: “O wicked one, become blind at the very birth, since you have insulted me by closing the vaginal passage.” Thereafter, the son named Dirghatapas was born. (Defective Text) Jalata (?) was born from the seminal fluid that was scattered (on the ground) by the foot. Afterwards Indra was afraid of the curse of the sage and he went away. All the religious students laughed on seeing Indra running. Thereupon he became ashamed and went to a splendid cave of Meru. Remaining concealed there, he performed a great and fierce penance

This Prakaran is Ved Virodh . Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7 and Chandogya Upanishad says that Indra Deva and other Devas are eternal Brahmachari and follow Brahmacharya and as part of their vow of Brahmacharya abstains from all Types of Illicit Sexual Intercourse and lustful activities and follow Strict Celibacy . Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of Allegations on Surya Deva

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of "Lust of Surya Deva ".

Allegations-

1. Surya Devta raped Kunti

📚Devi Bhagavatam 2.6.13-35
Sūta then said :– "O Dvija! While Sūrasena's daughter Kunti was a virgin girl, the king Kuntibhoja asked for Kunti that she might become her girl and Sūrasena gave her to the king Kuntibhoja who brought up this beautifully smiling girl. He put to her the service of Agni of Agnihotra. Once, on an occassion, Durvāsā Muni, engaged in the vow, lasting for four months, came there; Kunti served him during that period; the Muni became greatly pleased and gave her a very auspicious, mantra, by virtue of which any Deva, when called upon by that mantra will come to Kunti and satisfy her desires. When the Muni went away, Kunti, remaining in her house, wanted to test the accuracy of the mantra and asked within herself "What Devatā to call upon." Seeing the God Sūrya had arisen in the sky, Kunti uttered the Mantra and invoked him. The Sun, then, assuming an excellent human form, came down from the Heavens and appeared before Kunti in the same room. Seeing the Deva Sun, Kunti became greatly surprised and began to shudder and instantly became endowed with the inherent natural quality of passion (had menstruation). The beautiful-eyed Kunti, with folded palm; spoke to Sūrya Deva standing before :– "I am highly pleased to-day seeing Thy form; now go back to Thy sphere." Sūrya Deva said :– "O Kunti! What for you called me, by virtue of the Mantra? Calling me, why do you not worship me, standing before you? O beautiful blue one! Seeing you, I have become passionate; so come to me. By means of the mantra, you have made me your subservient so take me for intercourse." Hearing this, Kunti said :– "O Witness of all! O knower of Dharma! You know that I am a virgin girl. O Suvrata! I bow down to you; I am a family daughter; so do not speak ill to me." Sūrya then said :– "If I go awayin vain, I will be an object of great shame, and, no doubt, will be laughed amongst the gods; So, O Kunti! If you do not satisfy me, I will immediately curse you and the Brāhmin who has given you this mantra. O Beautiful one! If you satisfy me, your virginity will remain; no body will come to know and there will be born a son to you, exactly like me." Thus saying Sūrya Deva enjoyed the bashful Kunti, with her mind attracted towards him; He granted her the desired boons and went away. The beautiful Kunti became pregnant and began to remain in a house, under great secrecy. Only the dear nurse knew that; her mother or any other person was quite unaware of the fact. In time, a very beautiful son like the second Sun and Kārtikeya, decked with a lovely Kavaca coat of mail and two ear-rings, was born there. Then the nurse caught hold of the hand of the bashful Kunti and said :– "O Charming one! What care can you possibly have as long as I am living." Kunti then, placed the son in a box and said :– "O son! What shall I do? Being afraid of shame, I am leaving you, though you are dear to me as my life itself! I am exceedingly fortunate that I am casting aside this all auspicious son. May the attributeless Bhāgavatī Ambikā, the World Mother and the Lady of all, endowed with attributes, protect Thee! May Kātyāyani, the giver of all desires, feed you with Her milk! Alas! I am quitting you, born of Sūrya's semen in this solitary forest like a vitiated wanton woman. I do not know, when shall I see your lotus like beautiful face, dearest to me like my self. Alas! I never worshipped in my former birth Śivānī, the mother of the three worlds; I never meditated Her lotus like feet, the Giver of all happiness; hence I am so very unfortunate. O Dear son! I must perform great tapasyā to expiate for this terrible sin, that I knowingly commit in relinquishing you in the forest."

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 9.24.33-36📚
As soon as Kunti called for the demigod of the sun, he immediately appeared before her, and she was very much surprised. She told the sun-god, "I was simply examining the effectiveness of this mystic power. I am sorry I have called you unnecessarily. Please return and excuse me." The sun-god said: O beautiful Prtha, your meeting with the demigods cannot be fruitless. Therefore, let me place my seed in your womb so that you may bear a son. I shall arrange to keep your virginity intact, since you are still an unmarried girl. After saying this, the sun-god discharged his semen into the womb of Prthä and then returned to the celestial kingdom. Immediately thereafter, from Kunti a child was born, who was like a second sun- god. Because Kunti feared people's criticisms, with great difficulty she had to give up her affection for her child. Unwillingly, she packed the child in a basket and let it float down the waters of the river. O Maharaja Pariksit, your great- grandfather the pious and chivalrous Page King Pändu later married Kunti."

📚Brahma Purana 4.42-43📚
The lord assumed the form of a horse and approached her as she grazed about fearlessly in the form of a mare. It was in her mouth that he had his sexual intercourse, as she began fidgeting due to her suspicion that he might be a person other than her own husband. She let out the semen of Vivasvat through her nostrils."

एक अत्यन्त नाटा तथा काले वर्ण का पुरुष उत्पन्न हो गया तथा वह हाथ जोड़कर डरता हुआ वहीं खड़ा हो गया। हे द्विजसत्तमगण! उस विह्वल पुरुष को देख कर ऋषि अत्रि ने उससे कहा- “निषीद!” (अर्थात् बैठ जाओ)। अतः वह निषाद कहलाया तथा निषाद वंश का आदिपुरुष और वेण के पापों से जन्मे धीवरों का स्रष्टा भी कहलाया।।४२-४६।।

When the assembly of sages could not free King Veṇa from his attachment and such thoughts, all the great sages became extremely angry with him. They seized the mighty king and began churning his left thigh. From that churning of his left thigh, a very short man of dark complexion emerged, who stood there folding his hands in fear. O best of the twice-born! Seeing this distressed man, Sage Atri said to him: “Nishīd!” (meaning, “Sit down!”). Hence, he was called Nishad, and he became the progenitor of the Nishad lineage as well as the creator of the fishermen, born from the sins of Veṇa.

Shiva Purana, UmaSamhita 5.35.32-34 “He assumed the form of a horse and approached her for sexual indulgence with her who could not be overwhelmed by any living being due to her lustre and observance of restraint. O sage, in the course of the sexual activity she suspected him to be another man. Hence she received the semen through the mouth into the nostril. Thence were born the twin gods Asvins, the foremost among physicians.

Coming on to Shiva Purana, UmaSamhita 5.35.32-34 –

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhaumasaṃhitā,[391] also called Auma/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the develop-

saṃhitās which are absent from these Śiva° passages.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[400] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as ṛgyajuḥsāmarūpin, who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahma; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Banaras, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A. D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[387] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions – which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

The sun, after thus getting his power modified by Visvakarma, went out in the form of a horse and enjoyed himself in the company of Sanjna, who, not recognising him and taking him for another person, became terrified, but was helpless; she consequently ejected the semen virile through her nostrils, out of which Asvinikumaras, called otherwise Nasatyas and Dasras, were born. त्वष्टाद्वारा संज्ञाका पता बतला दिये जानेपर वे देवेश्वर भगवान् सूर्य भूलोकमें जा पहुँचे। वहाँ उनके द्वारा संज्ञासे अश्विनीकुमारोंकी उत्पत्ति हुई- यह एकदम तथ्य बात है। संज्ञाकी नासिकाके अग्रभागसे उत्पन्न होनेके कारण वे दोनों नासत्य और दस्त्र नामसे भी विख्यात हुए। कुछ दिनोंके पश्चात् अश्वरूपधारी सूर्यदेवको पहचानकर त्वाष्ट्री (संज्ञा) परम सन्तुष्ट हुई और हर्षपूर्ण चित्तसे पतिके साथ विमानपर बैठकर स्वर्गलोक (आकाश) को चली गयी। (छायाकी संतानोंमें) तपोधन सावर्णि मनु आज भी सुमेरुगिरिपर विराजमान हैं। शनिने अपनी तपस्याके प्रभावसे ग्रहोंकी समता प्राप्त की।

After Tvaṣṭṛ revealed the identity, the lord of the gods, Surya, reached the earthly realm. There, through her, the Ashvini Kumāras were born—this is an established fact. Since they emerged from the front part of her nose, they also became famous by the names Nāstya and Dāstra. After a few days, recognizing the horse-shaped Surya Deva, Tvaṣṭṛ's daughter (Sanjñā) was fully satisfied, and with a joyful heart, she boarded a celestial vehicle with her husband and went to Svarga-loka (heaven). Among the children of Chhāyā, Tapodhana Sāvarṇi Manu still reigns on Mount Sumeru. Shani attained equality among the planets through the influence of his penance.

Allegations-

📚Nirukta 12.10📚
With reference to this, they relate a legend, Saranyu daughter of Tvastr bore twins, Yama and Yaml, to Vivasvat the sun. She having substituted another lady of similar appearance, and having assumed the shape of a mare, ran away. He, Vivasvat, the sun, having also assumed the shape of a horse, pursued her, and joined her. Hence the Ashvins were born."

Refutation –

In Nirukta 12.10 (Hindi translation, Chaukhamba Publications), the birth of the Ashvinī Kumāras is described from the Ashva-rūpa Āditya (Sun) and Saraṇyū. The text itself defines Saraṇyū not as a mortal woman, but as a personification of a cosmic phenomenon—specifically, the shadow or night that follows when Prabhā (light) departs from the Earth. It states that the period of Saraṇyū lies between Vṛṣākapāyī and Uṣā, meaning after the evening twilight and before the morning twilight. Āditya here refers to the Sun, which is also a celestial deity, not a human being. This makes it absolutely clear that the account is symbolic and cosmological, involving deified natural forces—not a literal human relationship—thus the vulgar interpretations pushed by detractors are baseless distortions of Vedic metaphor.

Prabhā (light) departs from the Earth, the shadow or night that follows is referred to as Saraṇyū. The period of Saraṇyū comes after Vṛṣākapāyī and before Uṣā, meaning it refers to the time after the evening twilight (sāyaṁkālīn sandhyā) and before the morning twilight (prātaḥkālīn sandhyā) and Aditya is Sun here .

(क) नैरुक्तों के अनुसार–अमृताम् मरण धर्म से रहित (वृषाकपायी) को मर्त्येभ्यः मरणधर्मा मनुष्यों से अपागूहन् रश्मियों ने छिपा लिया और सवर्णाम् (सूर्य के समान कान्ति वाली (सरण्यू) को करके विवस्वते सूर्य के लिए अददुः दे दिया । और उस सरण्यू ने अश्विनौ दोनों अश्विनौ (अर्थात् तमोभाग और प्रकाशभाग को) अभरत् धारण कर लिया । यत्तद् आसीत् जो वह वृषाकपायी का रक्त रूप था उसे छोड़ दिया । सरण्यूः सरण्यू ने द्वा मिथुना दोनों युगल अर्थात् मध्यम तमोभाग और उसके अन्दर के माध्यमिक वाणी (निस्तब्धता) को अजहात् छोड़ दिया ।

(ख) ऐतिहासिकों के अनुसार–(सरण्यू त्वष्टा की पुत्री है) अमृताम् (दोनों ने) मरणधर्म से रहित उस सरण्यू को मर्त्येभ्यः मरणधर्मा मनुष्यों से अपागूहन् छिपा दिया सवर्णां कृत्वी उसी के समान रूप वाली बनाकर विवस्वते आदित्य के लिए अददुः दे दिया । उत तब उस सरण्यू ने यत्तत् आसीत् जो रूप था उसी से अश्विनौ अश्विनों को अभरत् जन्म दिया । फिर द्वा मिथुना (आदित्य के पास से) दो युगल बच्चों (यम और यमी) को अजहात् जन्म दिया ।

तत्र इस विषय में इतिहासम् आचक्षतेः ऐतिहासिक कहते हैं–त्वाष्ट्री सरण्यूः

I am Sorry

(१) सरण्यू-(क) जब प्रभा पृथिवी से चली जाती है तब उस छाया या रात्रि को सरण्यू कहा जाता है। सरण्यू का काल वृषाकपायी के बाद और उषा के पूर्व होता है अर्थात् सायंकालीन सन्ध्या के पश्चात् और प्रातःकालीन सन्ध्या के पूर्व तक के समय को सरण्यू कहा जाता है।

(ख) ऐतिहासिक लोग सरण्यू को त्वष्टा की पुत्री मानते हैं जिसने सूर्य के सम्पर्क से यम और यमी— इन जुड़वे भाई और भगिनी को पैदा किया है, पुनः घोड़ी का रूप बनाकर सूर्य से दूर भाग गयी। तब सूर्य ने अश्व का रूप बनाकर उसका पीछा किया जिससे दोनों अश्विनौ की उत्पत्ति हुई।

(ग) 'सरण्यूः सरणात्' सरण करने के कारण इसे सरण्यू कहा जाता है। यह शब्द सरणार्थक 'सृ' धातु से 'अन्युच्' प्रत्यय (उणादि ३.८१) करके बना है। निरुक्तकारों के अनुसार यह वृषाकपायी (सायंकालीन सन्ध्या से आगे का गया होता है, अतः सरण्यू कहलाती है।

(घ) ऐतिहासिकों के अनुसार यह यम-यमी को पैदा करने के बाद अपने प्रतिरूप अन्य को अपना प्रतिनिधि बनाकर और स्वयं घोड़ी का रूप धारण करके सूर्य से सरक गयी-दूर चली गयी, अतः सरण्यू कही जाती है।

(२) नैरुक्त 'द्वामिथुना' का अर्थ मध्यम (अन्धकार) तथा माध्यमिकावाक् (निस्तब्धता) करते हैं, किन्तु ऐतिहासिक इसका अर्थ यम-यमी करते हैं।

I am Sorry

Ācārya Skanda Svāmi in his Bhāṣya on Nirukta 12.10, explained that Saraṇyū is not a human woman nor an anthropomorphic figure, but the reddish sky at the junction of night and day. The Vedic statement that the rays of the Sun "hide" something means that they conceal the tender reddish glow of dawn (Vṛṣākapāyinī) from mortals, who cannot perceive that subtle stage. When the reddish orb (Aruṇa) rises, the rays reveal another form of the same hue—Saraṇyū—making the dawn-light more visible. The Aśvins are said to "carry" this light, not physically, but symbolically, as they represent the twofold state of darkness and brightness that mediates the transition from night into day. As this reddish form intensifies into daylight, it also embodies duality (Yama–Yamī), form, and speech.

In another symbolic verse, Tvaṣṭṛ is described as the "middle portion," and his daughter is Uṣas (the dawn). Her "union" with the Sun is nothing but the merging of dawn into the rising orb. Thus the imagery of "wife," "mother," or "marriage" is only metaphorical: dawn belongs to the Sun, accompanies him, dissolves into him, and inspires all beings to awaken and act in accordance with their natural duties. By divine law, night and dawn are spoken of as the Sun's companions and even "mother," not in a physical sense but in a cosmic one. Therefore this story is, in fact, a profound Vedic allegory of light, transition, and cosmic action, confirmed by the ancient commentary tradition.

The Vedic sages received divine knowledge. The rays of the sun are said to hide or take away something — what do they hide?
They hide the reddish light of dawn (called Vṛṣākapāyinī) — the early light seen at sunrise.

From whom is it hidden?
From humans — meaning, ordinary people can't see or grasp that divine light clearly.

Later, another form, similar in color and name, was made — called Saraṇyū.
When the reddish dawn (Aruṇa) appears, the light of Saraṇyū is given again by the sun's rays, making it more visible.

That light is then carried by the Ashvin twins, not in a physical way, but meaning they hold within themselves both darkness and light — they are a balance of night and day.

That reddish form of dawn gradually becomes more and more bright as the sun rises.

Now, the two twins (male and female — Yama and Yami) represent this dual nature, and even middle speech (the kind of speech that exists between thought and voice) is connected with this form. So, this reddish form includes three things: form, duality, and speech.

In this Vedic verse (ṛc), Tvaṣṭā is in the middle portion (madhyamastama-bhāgaḥ – middle-most part), and his daughter is Uṣas (the dawn).
Since she is born at sunrise, she is carried or enters (vahati) into the Sun (āditya) — thus the 'marriage' is symbolic of union.

The Sun (Tvaṣṭā or Vivasvat), by entering the night (his daughter in the form of darkness or Uṣas), 'performs the act' (karoti) — this represents the transition between night and day.

Therefore, this entire world (sarvaṁ bhūtajātaṁ) comes together (sameti) and unites with its respective actions (svaiḥ karmabhiḥ saṁbadhyate).
As the dawn rises, darkness fades; hence at sunrise (udite uṣasi), darkness (tam) disappears, and the Sun rises (udeti ādityaḥ).

This belief or metaphysical understanding leads all living beings (sarvaprāṇinaḥ) to begin performing their natural duties or actions (svakarmāṇi).
That is the meaning here: the cosmic process inspires action.

Thus, the Sun (Yama āditya) has his 'mother' in this symbolic relationship — either due to companionship (sāhacaryāt) or the act of essence transfer (rasa-haraṇa – absorption of essence).

She becomes his 'mother', but not only in that sense.

What more?
Because of shared union (abhigamana-sāmānyāt) with Vivasvat, she becomes his wife (jāyā) — and, as Viśvarūpā (universal form), she disappears (nanāśa), gets dissolved.
When the Sun rises, she merges into it — meaning she dissolves into that very form.

"Abhisamāgacchatīti svaiḥ karmabhiriti vākyasheṣaḥ" – She enters or unites, the sentence implies, with her own natural actions.

Also: "rātriḥ ādityasya" — the night is said to belong to the Sun, and by the term 'rātri' (night), since Uṣas (dawn) is a part of it (eka-deśa), she is being referred to here.
Owing to this relationship, she is called his mother by divine law (deva-dharma).

She is born… (ja—) but not to be given as a gift (na dāna-yena antar-dhīyata) – i.e., she is not transferred in the ordinary worldly sense, hence her transcendental or divine nature is established (iti siddham).

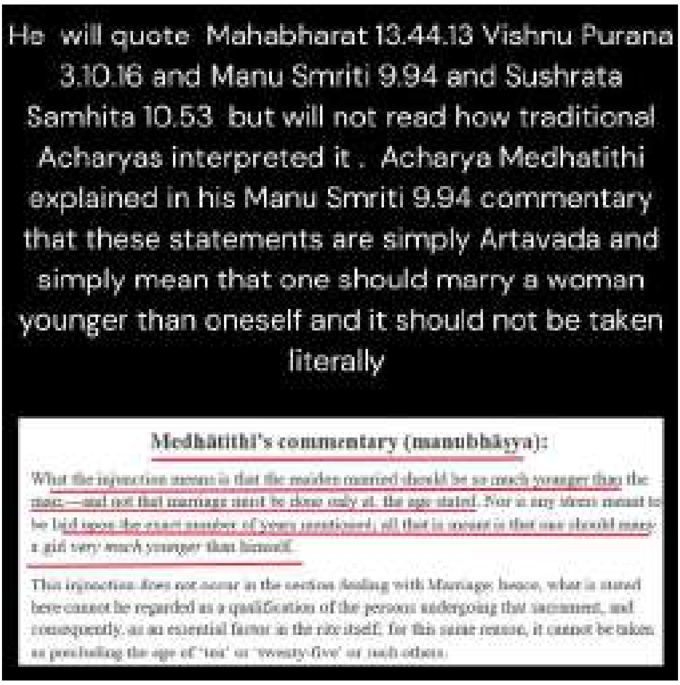
Sushruta Samhita 10.53

Refutation-

He will quote Mahabharat 13.44.13 Vishnu Purana 3.10.16 and Manu Smriti 9.94 and Sushrata Samhita 10.53 but will not read how traditional Acharyas interpreted it . Acharya Medhatithi explained in his Manu Smriti 9.94 commentary that these statements are simply Artavada and simply mean that one should marry a woman younger than oneself and it should not be taken literally

Medhātithi's commentary (manubhāṣya):
What the injunction means is that the maiden married should be so much younger than the man; and not that marriage must be done only at. the age stated. Nor is any stress meant to be laid upon the exact number of years mentioned; all that is meant is that one should many a girl very much younger than himself.



Allegations-

📚Baudhayana Dharmsutra 4.1.11📚
Let him give his daughter, while she still goes naked, to a man who has not broken the vow of chastity and who possesses good qualities, or even to one destitute of good qualities; let him not keep (the maiden) in (his house) after she has reached the age of puberty."

📚Vasishtha Dharmasutra 17.70📚
Out of fear of the appearance of the menses let the father marry his daughter while she still runs about naked. For if she stays (in the house) after the age of puberty, sin falls on the father.

📚Gautama Dharmasutra 18.21-23📚
A girl should be given in marriage before (she attains the age of) puberty. He who neglects it, commits sin. Some (declare, that a girl shall be given in marriage) before she wears clothes."

Refutation-

He has quoted various Kalpa Sutra verses . We will understand what Acharya Kumarilla Bhatt said about Kalpa Sutras

Acharya Kumarilla Bhatt said in his explanation on Tantra Varkita 1.31 that many things in Kalpa Sutras are Artavada

(2) In the case of the Kalpasūtras, we have explanations of the real purport of the Injunctions deducible from the rules that are found scatter-ed in the various branches of the Veda, intermixed with Arthavāda, &c.; and as such these explanations have their origin in these latter. In these we also meet with certain rules of conduct to be followed by the priests; and these are based upon considerations of their convenience; and as such have their origin in ordinary experience.

So a factor is stressed upon that woman to be married should be younger than the boy and the age specified (Married before Puberty and married at 30 years etc statements) should not be taken literally as evident from Acharya Medhatithi and Kumarilla Bhatta are Artavada to show that the girl married should be younger than the boy

📚Parashar Smriti 7.5-6📚
When the twelfth year is reached by the female child, if the guardian does not give her away in marriage, her forefathers drink, without interruption, during each succeeding month, whatever blood is passed in her courses. The mother, and the father, and likewise the eldest brother, all these three relatives will go to hell, if before menstruation they neglect to marry the girl

📚Yama Smriti Verse 22📚
The father, who does give away [in marriage] his maiden-daughter after she has attained the twelfth year, drinks her menstrual blood, month after month.

📚Samvarta Smriti Verse 66-68📚
A maiden eight years [old] becomes Gouri; one of nine years a Rohini; and of ten years, a Kanya (maiden); and after that, a Rajasvala (a woman in menses). By seeing a maiden in menses, her mother, father and eldest brother these three go to hell. Therefore one should espouse a maiden before she has menstruated; the marriage of an eight years old maiden is most preferrable

📚Manusmriti 9:88📚
One shall give his daughter in the proper form, even though she may not have attained (the age), to a bridegroom who is of exceptionally distinguished appearance, and her equal.

Refutation-

Is there child marriage in Vedas?

The core and supreme best scripture of Sanatan Vedic religion is Veda. Therefore, to understand every subject of Sanatan Dharma, the divine word Vedas are considered more authentic than other scriptures. Mimansa Sutra 1.3.3 says anything contradictory to Vedas is not accepted

विरोधे त्वनपेक्ष्यं स्यादसति ह्यनुमानम् ॥ १।३।३॥
विरोधे on contradiction; तु on the other hand; अनपेक्ष्यं not acceptable; स्यात् is; असति on absence; हि because; अनुमानं inference.

3. When there is contradiction it is not to be accepted; when there is none then there is the presumption.
   In the preceding adhikarana we have seen that our author says that the smritîs are authorities because they have the support of the Veda be-hind them. If we do not find the express Vedic textto support the smriti we must presume that there was a Vedic text in its support which is lost. Further question that naturally arises is "What are we to do when the smriti text is in contradiction with the express Vedic text"? The reply according to our author is that the smriti is to be rejected in such a case because the presumption as to its validity arises when there is no such contradiction.

The topic of marriage comes in the Vedas, especially in Rigveda (10/85) and Atharvaveda (14/1 and 14/2). Apart from this, brief description on the topics of marriage etc. is also found in other hymns of the Vedas. These include Brahmacharya as hymns of Atharvaveda etc. These descibe the physical and mental features of a bride who is going to be married. In Sanskrit the word Yosha itself means young woman. That is, a marriageable girl is a girl and not a child, this is proved from the Marriage Sukta of Atharvaveda. Atharva Veda 14/1/56

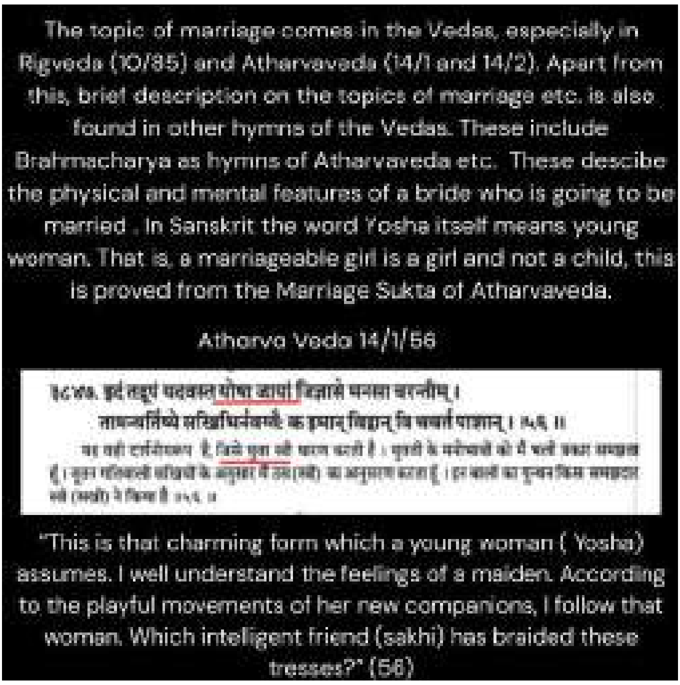
“This is that charming form which a young woman (Yosha) assumes. I well understand the feelings of a maiden. According to the playful movements of her new companions, I follow that woman. Which intelligent friend (sakhi) has braided these tresses?” (56)



Rig Veda 10/27/12
कियती योषा मर्यतो वधूयोः परिप्रीता पन्यसा वार्येण. भद्रा वधूर्भवति यत्सुपेशाः स्वयं सा मित्रं वनुते जने चित्.. (१२)
“ऐसी कितनी स्त्रियां हैं जो मानव जीवन के भोग प्रदान करने वाले एवं स्त्री के अभिलाषी पुरुष के प्रति धन अथवा प्रशंसा के कारण आसक्त हो जाती हैं. जो सुगठित शरीर वाली भली नारी होती है, वह बहुत से पुरुषों में से अपने मन के अनुकूल पति चुन लेती है.” (१२)
“How many women there are who become attached to a man -desirous of women and a provider of worldly enjoyments-out of wealth or praise. But a noble woman with a well-formed body chooses, from among many men, a husband suited to her own heart.” (12)
In Rig Veda (10.27.12), the text emphasizes that a woman, once she has become supaśāḥ (well-formed and beautiful), independently chooses her husband from among men. The attribute of beauty in this context necessarily presupposes physical maturity, which occurs only after the onset and completion of puberty. Consequently, the verse cannot be understood as applying to prepubescent girls, since a child prior to puberty cannot be described as supaśāḥ or beautiful in the Vedic sense.

It is also worth keeping in mind in this mantra (Rig Veda 10.27.12) the woman herself has been asked to choose her husband whereas a small girl cannot be mature enough to choose a good husband for herself. Only a physically and mentally mature girl can do this work.
Atharva Veda 2.36.8 says a woman should get a husband of her choice and its a well known fact that little girls cannot desire husband but well grown up girls can Physical maturity of women is described in Vedic Marriage Sukta: In the Vedas, there is also a description of a marriageable young woman being physically mature, which shows that no young girl can be eligible for marriage.

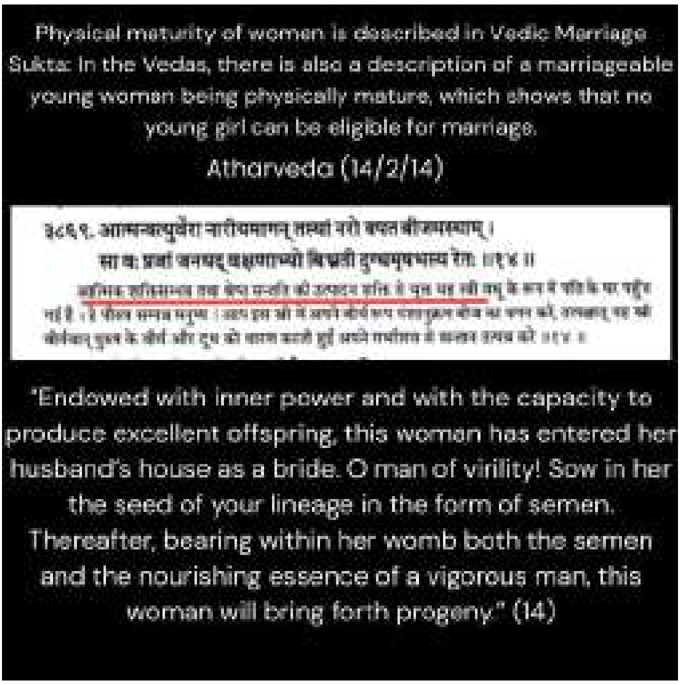
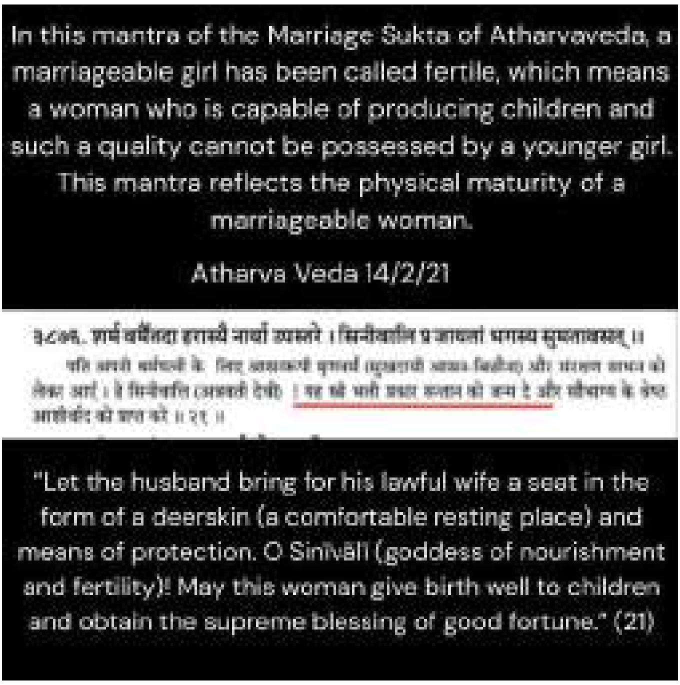
Atharveda (14/2/14)
३८६९. आत्मन्वत्युर्वेरा नारीयमागन् तस्यां नरो वपत बीजमस्याम् । सा वः प्रजां जनयद् वक्षणाभ्यो बिभ्रती दुग्धमृषभस्य रेतः ॥१४ ॥
ात्मिक शक्तिसम्पन्न तथा श्रेष्ठ सन्तति की उत्पादन शक्ति से युक्त यह स्त्री वधू के

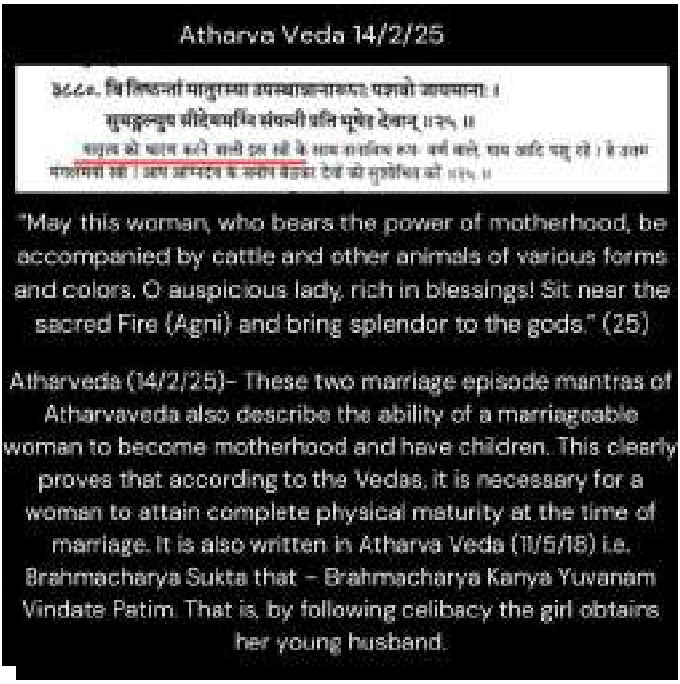
रूप में पति के घर पहुँच गई है। हे पौरुष सम्पन्न मनुष्य ! आप इस स्त्री में अपने वीर्य रूप वंशानुक्रम बीज का वपन करें, तत्पश्चात् यह स्त्री वीर्यवान् पुरुष के वीर्य और दूध को धारण करती हुई अपने गर्भाशय से सन्तान उत्पन्न करे ॥१४ ॥
“Endowed with inner power and with the capacity to produce excellent offspring, this woman has entered her husband’s house as a bride. O man of virility! Sow in her the seed of your lineage in the form of semen.
Thereafter, bearing within her womb both the semen and the nourishing essence of a vigorous man, this woman will bring forth progeny.” (14)



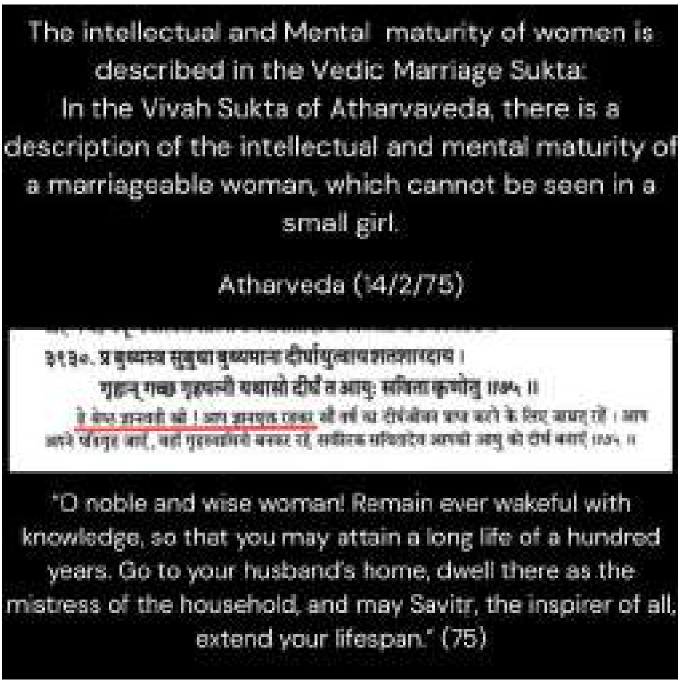
In this mantra of the Marriage Sukta of Atharvaveda, a marriageable girl has been called fertile, which means a woman who is capable of producing children and such a quality cannot be possessed by a younger girl.
This mantra reflects the physical maturity of a marriageable woman.
Atharva Veda 14/2/21
३८७६. शर्म वर्मैतदा हरास्यै नार्या उपस्तरे । सिनीवालि प्र जायतां भगस्य सुमतावसत् ।।
पति अपनी धर्मपत्नी के लिए आसनरूपी मृगचर्म (सुखदायी आसन-बिछौना) और संरक्षण साधन को लेकर आएँ । हे सिनीवालि (अन्नवती देवी) ! यह स्त्री भली प्रकार सन्तान को जन्म दे और सौभाग्य के श्रेष्ठ आशीर्वाद को प्राप्त करे ॥ २१ ॥
“Let the husband bring for his lawful wife a seat in the form of a deerskin (a comfortable resting place) and means of protection. O Sinīvālī (goddess of nourishment and fertility)! May this woman give birth well to children and obtain the supreme blessing of good fortune.” (21)



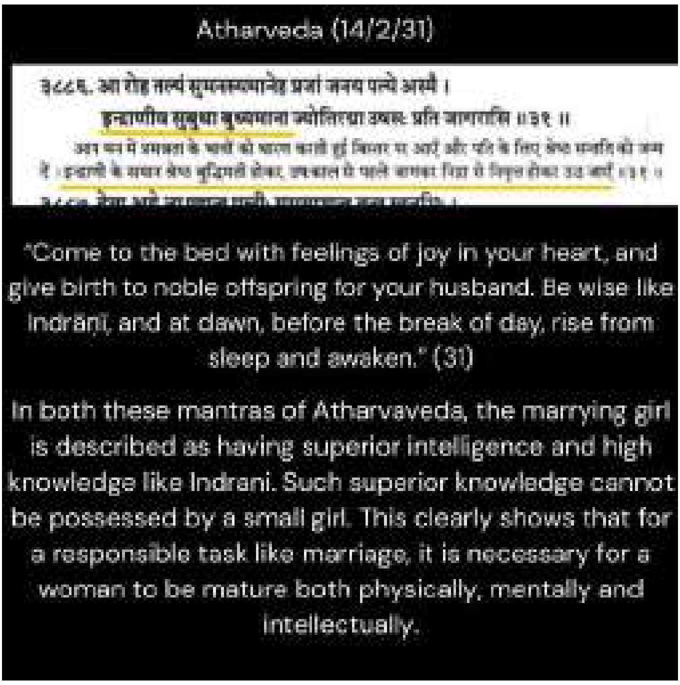
Atharva Veda 14/2/25
३८८०. वि तिष्ठन्तां मातुरस्या उपस्थान्नानारूपाः पशवो जायमानाः । सुमङ्गल्युप सीदेममग्नि संपत्नी प्रति भूषेह देवान् ।।२५ ।।
मातृत्व को धारण करने वाली इस स्त्री के साथ नानाविध रूप- वर्ण वाले, गाय आदि पशु रहें । हे उत्तम मंगलमयी स्त्री ! आप अग्निदेव के समीप बैठकर देवों को सुशोभित करें ॥ २५ ॥
"May this woman, who bears the power of motherhood, be accompanied by cattle and other animals of various forms and colors. O auspicious lady, rich in blessings! Sit near the sacred Fire (Agni) and bring splendor to the gods." (25)
Atharveda (14/2/25)– These two marriage episode mantras of Atharvaveda also describe the ability of a marriageable woman to become motherhood and have children. This clearly proves that according to the Vedas, it is necessary for a woman to attain complete physical maturity at the time of marriage. It is also written in Atharva Veda (11/5/18) i.e. Brahmacharya Sukta that – Brahmacharya Kanya Yuvanam Vindate Patim. That is, by following celibacy the girl obtains her young husband.



The intellectual and Mental maturity of women is described in the Vedic Marriage Sukta: In the Vivah Sukta of Atharvaveda, there is a description of the intellectual and mental maturity of a marriageable woman, which cannot be seen in a small girl.
Atharveda (14/2/75)
३९३०. प्र बुध्यस्व सुबुधा बुध्यमाना दीर्घायुत्वाय शतशारदाय । गृहान् गच्छ गृहपत्नी यथासो दीर्घ त आयुः सविता कृणोतु ॥७५ ॥
हे श्रेष्ठ ज्ञानवती स्त्री ! आप ज्ञानयुक्त रहकर सौ वर्ष का दीर्घजीवन प्राप्त करने के लिए जाग्रत् रहें। आप अपने पतिगृह जाएँ, वहाँ गृहस्वामिनी बनकर रहें, सर्वप्रेरक सवितादेव आपकी आयु को दीर्घ बनाएँ ॥७५ ॥
“O noble and wise woman! Remain ever wakeful with knowledge, so that you may attain a long life of a hundred years. Go to your husband’s home, dwell there as the mistress of the household, and may Savitr, the inspirer of all, extend your lifespan.” (75)



Atharveda (14/2/31)
३८८६. आ रोह तल्पं सुमनस्यमानेह प्रजां जनय पत्ये अस्मै । इन्द्राणीव सुबुधा बुध्यमाना ज्योतिरग्रा उषसः प्रति जागरासि ॥३१ ॥
आप मन में प्रसन्नता के भावों को धारण करती हुई बिस्तर पर आएँ और पति के लिए श्रेष्ठ सन्तति को जन्म दें । इन्द्राणी के समान श्रेष्ठ बुद्धिमती होकर, उषःकाल से पहले जागकर निद्रा से निवृत्त होकर उठ जाएँ ॥३१ ॥ ३८८।७ देवा अ ोराली सामापन्न वन्त उनलभिः ।
“Come to the bed with feelings of joy in your heart, and give birth to noble offspring for your husband. Be wise like Indrānī, and at dawn, before the break of day, rise from sleep and awaken.” (31)
In both these mantras of Atharvaveda, the marrying girl is described as having superior intelligence and high knowledge like Indrani. Such superior knowledge cannot be possessed by a small girl. This clearly shows that for a responsible task like marriage, it is necessary for a woman to be mature both physically, mentally and intellectually.



Estimate of the age of a woman at the time of marriage based on the analogy given in the Vedas:

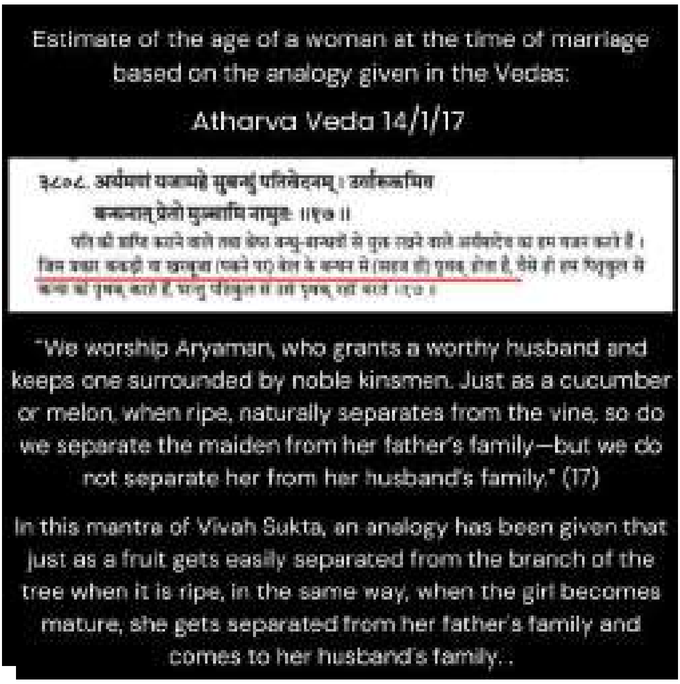
३८०८. अर्यमणं यजामहे सुबन्धुं पतिवेदनम् । उर्वारुकमिव बन्धनात् प्रेतो मुञ्चामि नामुतः ॥१७॥

पति की प्राप्ति कराने वाले तथा श्रेष्ठ बन्धु-बान्धवों से युक्त रखने वाले अर्यमादेव का हम यजन करते हैं। जिस प्रकार ककड़ी या खरबूजा (पकने पर) बेल के बन्धन से (सहज ही) पृथक् होता है, वैसे ही हम पितृकुल से कन्या को पृथक् करते हैं, परन्तु पतिकुल से उसे पृथक् नहीं करते ॥१७॥

"We worship Aryaman, who grants a worthy husband and keeps one surrounded by noble kinsmen. Just as a cucumber or melon, when ripe, naturally separates from the vine, so do we separate the maiden from her father's family-but we do not separate her from her husband's family." (17)

In this mantra of Vivah Sukta, an analogy has been given that just as a fruit gets easily separated from the branch of the tree when it is ripe, in the same way, when the girl becomes mature, she gets separated from her father's family and comes to her husband's family..



Gobhila GrihyaSutra Prapathak 3 Kandika 4 verse 6

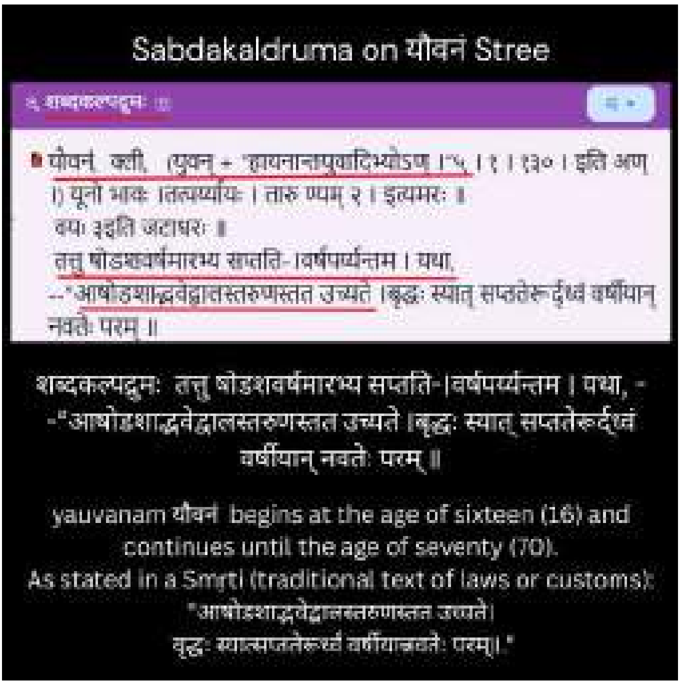
As stated in a Smṛti (traditional text of laws or customs):

"आषोडशाद्भवेद्बालस्तरुणस्तत उच्यते।

वृद्धः स्यात्सप्ततेरूर्ध्वं वर्षीयान्नवतेः परम्॥."



Thus these Smriti Verses which he quoted should be interpreted in such a way that they don't contradict the Shruti . So these verses simply mean that one should marry a younger woman than oneself and should not be taken literally as told by Acharya Medhatithi in his Manu 9.94 bhasya

(१) मेधातिथिः । इयता कालेन यवीयसी कन्या वोढव्या, न पुनरेतावद्वयस एव विवाह इत्युपदेशार्थः । अथापि न यथाश्रुतवर्षसंख्यैव । किं तर्हि ? बहुना कालेन यवीयसी वोढव्या । न ह्येतद्विवाहप्रकरणे श्रुतम् । येन संस्कार्यविशेषणत्वेन तदङ्गकालो दशादि-वर्षां पञ्चविंशत्यादिवर्षं च निवर्तयेत् । "ननु च वाक्यान्तरस्थस्याप्यङ्गविधिर्भवत्येव" । सत्यम्; इह प्रकरणोत्कर्षेण पाठादाचार्यस्याभिप्रायान्तरमनुमीयते । तथा शिष्टसमाचारः । सुतस्य च पुनर्दारक्रियायां नैष कालः संभवतीति 'पुनर्दारक्रियां कुर्यात्' इति नोपपद्यते ।। ९४ ।।

Chap. X.] SARIRA STHANAM. 211

Metrical Texts :—An offspring of a girl below the age of sixteen by a man below twenty-five is usually found to die in the womb. Such a child, in the event of its being born alive, dies a premature death or else becomes weak in organs (Indriyas). Hence a girl of extremely tender age should not be fecundated at all. An extremely old woman, or one suffering from a chronic affection (of the generative organ), or afflicted with any other disease, should not be likewise impregnated. A man with similar disabilities should be held likewise unfit. 40-44.

In Mahabharta Sabha Parva Adhaya 64 where Vidurji was answering Duryodhan Accusations of being biased towards Pandavas and being against kauravas for criticising Duryodhan Vidurji responded- jusk like a Maiden does not accept a 60 year old Person as his husband similarly Duryodhan does not accept Vidur ji Advice showing that the practice of marrying young maidens to old men was never allowed in Vedic Norms

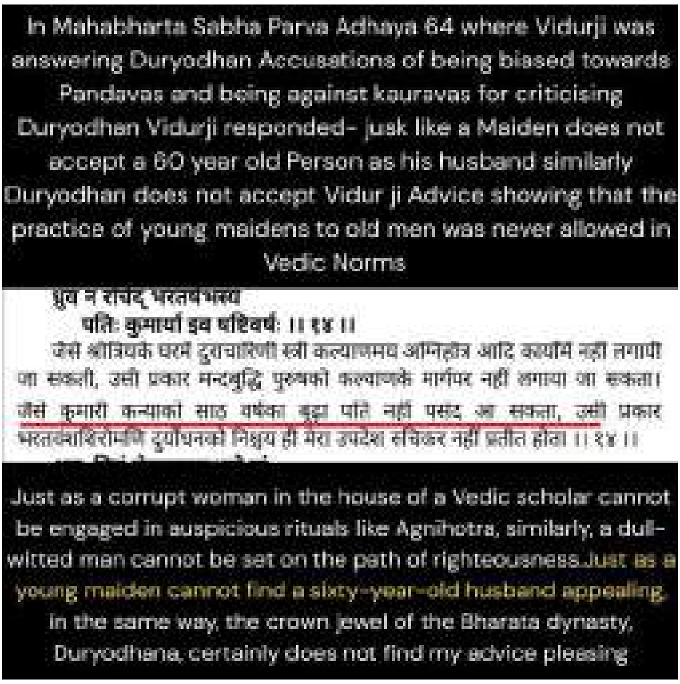
Just as a corrupt woman in the house of a Vedic scholar cannot be engaged in auspicious rituals like Agnihotra, similarly, a dull-witted man cannot be set on the path of righteousness.Just as a young maiden cannot find a sixty-year-old husband appealing, in the same way, the crown jewel of the Bharata dynasty, Duryodhana, certainly does not find my advice pleasing



Similar Analogy is present in Mahabharat Vana Parva Adhaya 5 Sloka 15 where Vidur Ji says similar thing regarding Raja Dhritrashtra that just like a young maiden does not accept an aged 60 year old Husband Raja Dhritrashtra does not accepts his advices

अजातशत्रो! जैसे श्रोत्रियके घरकी दुष्टा स्त्री श्रेयके मार्गपर नहीं लायी जा सकती, उसी प्रकार राजा धृतराष्ट्रको कल्याणके मार्गपर लाना असम्भव है। जैसे कुमारी कन्याको साठ वर्षका बूढ़ा पति अच्छा नहीं लगता, उसी प्रकार भरतश्रेष्ठ धृतराष्ट्रको मेरी कही हुई बात निश्चय ही नहीं रुचती ।। १५ ।।

O Ajātashatru (Yudhishthira), just as a wicked woman in the household of a Vedic scholar cannot be brought onto the path of righteousness, in the same way, it is impossible to guide King Dhritarashtra onto the path of welfare. Just as a young maiden does not find an old man of sixty pleasing as a husband, similarly, O best of the Bharatas, Dhritarashtra certainly does not find my words agreeable.

These evidences prove that the practice of Pedophilia marrying young girls with Old Man was never a part of Vedic Civilization and never followed by people and was seen down by people including Mahatma Vidurji .

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.

Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

The question, both in the tradition and in modern scholarship, whether the Devībhāgavata° or the Vaiṣṇava Bhāgavata° is the true and original Śrīmadbhāgavata° has been discussed under the Bhāgavata°. It should be noted in this connection that the term Devībhāgavata° appears only in the chapter colophons, and in the text of the last two skandhas; elsewhere in the text the purāṇa refers to itself either as Bhāgavata° or Śrīmadbhāgavata°, once as Satī° (1.3.41). The text also repeatedly refers to itself as "the best of purāṇas" (purāṇottama), and declares that "there are many other purāṇas devoted to Hari and Rudra, but they are not worth one-sixteenth part of this Devībhāgavata" (12.13.25–26).

Hazra[174] sees arguments both for the Devībhāgavata° having been composed in Bengal and outside Bengal. He therefore concludes that "the author of the Devī-bhāgavata was a Smārta Śākta Brahmin of Bengal and . . . he migrated to Benares (probably because it was the best place of residence for a Devī-worshipper), lived there for a long time, and then wrote the Devī-bhāgavata."

Ramachandran[175] dated the Devībhāgavata° "not later than the 6th century A.D.," based on his belief that the story of the penance of Nara and Nārāyaṇa, as related in the fourth skandha, inspired the relief in the Gupta temple at Deogarh. His arguments did not find acceptance with other scholars,[176] and, in general, the text has been dated much later. Farquhar[177] assigned it to his A. D. 900–1350 period. Hazra[178] narrowed the period down to "the eleventh or twelfth century A.D." Lalye[179] proposes a gradual growth of the text, through five different stages which cannot be dated separately; in any case the final stage must have been reached in the eleventh century.

What if certain Puranas and Smritis contain references to Child Marriages would those specific references be considered valid and authoritative?

The Answer is No ! Manu Smriti , Vyasa Smriti , Mimasa Sutra all describe the Supreme Authority of Vedas . Vedas clearly say that when a woman becomes physically and mentally matured and beautiful she chooses her own Husband and marries . Gobhilya Grihyasutra describes the minimum age of marraige as 16 for girls . Same thing is told in Ayurveda Text Sushruta Samhita . This supreme Authority of Vedas is confirmed by the following refrences

3. Ram marries 6 year old Sita

📚Valmiki Ramayana 3.47.3-11📚
I am the daughter of noble-souled Janaka, the king of Mithila, by name I am Seetha, and the dear wife and queen of Rama, let safety betide you. On residing in the residence of Ikshvaku-s in Ayodhya for twelve years, I was in sumptuosity of all cherishes while relishing all humanly prosperities. In the thirteenth year the lordly king Dasharatha deliberated together with his imperial ministers to anoint Rama as Crown Prince of Ayodhya. When Raghava's anointment was being organised my venerable mother-in-law known as Kaikeyi begged her husband Dasharatha for a boon. Restraining my veracious father-in-law by a good deecronce done by her in this respect, Kaikeyi besought two boons from him, namely expatriation of my husband, and anointment of her son Bharata. 'If Rama is anointed now, come what may I will not eat, sleep, or drink, and my life ends this way, thus Kaikeyi was adamantine, and the king and my father-in-law entreated her who is nagging with meaningful riches, but she did not make good on that entreaty. My great-resplendent husband was of twenty-five years of age at that time, and to me eighteen years are reckoned up from my birth."

If we do a little math here, we can understand that Sita was 18 years old when she went into exile with her husband. Before the exile, she had spent 12 years with her husband in the house of King Dasharatha. So, if we deduct the age of Sita at the time of exile (18 years) and the number of years she spent in the house of King Dasharatha (12 years), we get:

18 – 12 = 6 years old

Skanda Purana clearly states that Sita was married when she was only six years old,

📚Skanda Purana 3.2.30.8-9📚
The bow of Isvara that was kept in the abode of Janaka, was broken. In his fifteenth year, O king, Rama married the six year old beautiful daughter of the king of Mithila, Sita who was not born of a womb. On getting Sita, Raghava became contented and happy.

Refutation–

Coming to Valmiki Ramayana 3.47 regarding the age of Mata Sita

Age of Mata Sita at the time of Her Marriage as per Valmiki Ramayan CE which is based on Bengal Recession . We can see from here Devi Sita stayed at Ayodhya for 1 year after marriage and her age was 18 years . Thus we can Conclude Devi Sita age at the time of marriage as 18-1 = 17 years

The बंगाल पूर्वोत्तर संसकरण mentions Devi Sita's stay at for 1 year instead of 12 years. So based on the verse – अष्टा दश हि वर्षाणि मम जन्मनि गण्यते ३.४७.१० we can conclude Devi Sita's age as 18-1 = 17 years.

We find the same narration in Sundara Kanda.

Coming to the Skanda Purana verse the Skanda Purana verse provides Mata Sita and Bhagwan Shree Ram's Age after Upanayana Sanskar . The Upanayana Sanskar for girls was done at nearly 11 years for Girls and boys . So based on this we get Mata Sita age as 11+6=17 years .

Moreover Valmiki Ramayana being an Itihasaas grantha is Authoritative over Puranas and Valmiki Ramayana Critical Edition clearly says Mata Sita was 17 years old at time of er marriage

Krishna's abduction of Rukmini and their subsequent marriage is often considered an example of the Raksasa type of marriage, as stated in the verse mentioned below (Brahma Purana 91.6-12), The Raksasa marriage is one of the eight types of Hindu marriages mentioned in ancient texts like the Manusmriti and other Dharmashastras. In a Raksasa marriage, the groom forcefully abducts the bride against her will or without the consent of her parents, as elaborated in the Hindu Scriptures

On the eve of marriage day Krsna abducted that virgin even as Rama and other kinsmen were opposed to it...After defeating Rukmin Krsna married Rukmini duly in accordance with the injunctions regarding Raksasa type of marriage."

Skanda Purana 5.3.142.8-27
The second child born was a daughter named Rukmiṇī. At that time an unembodied etherial voice told him, "O Bhīsmaka, this girl should be given to a Four-armed One (born) on this earth." On hearing these words, he and his beloved became delighted. Along with learned Brāhmaṇas, he entered the lying-in-chamber and made them recite the Svastika prayers and the girl was duly named Rukmiṇī. O descendant of Bharata, she was proclaimed Rukmiṇī by the Brāhmaṇas then because she had a freckle golden in colour congenitally. As time passed on she became a girl of eight years. The king recollected the words of the unembodied being and became worried. 'To whom shall I give this daughter? Who will be the four-armed one?' In the meantime Damaghoṣa, the chieftain of Cedi came there from the excellent mountain Raivata. He entered the royal palace where King Bhīṣmaka was present. On seeing him arrived in the abode, the king duly adored him. He was taken to the Royal Court and given a proper seat. 'This day has dawned meritoriously. I was eager to see you. O great king, my daughter has come to the age of eight years. The ethereal voice of an unembodied being has told that she should be given to a Four-armed One". On hearing the words of Bhīṣmaka, Damaghoṣa said thus: "My son is well known in all the three worlds as Four-armed One (Caturbhujā). O Bhīṣmaka, let this girl be given to Śiśupāla." On hearing the words of Damaghoṣa, O king, Rukmiṇī was betrothed to Śiśupāla by Bhīṣmaka."

Shrimad Bhagavatam 10.53.51-52
Smitten with love kindled (in their breast) by her. the illustrious warriors assembled (there) felt bewildered to behold the princess, who was possessed of a shapely (slender) waist and had not yet attained puberty, and who had a girdle of jewels thrown about her hips and in whom signs of womanhood were (just) manifesting themselves, whose (charming) countenance was graced with ear-rings and whose eyes were moving as though afraid of her curly locks (that overhung her face)."

Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 105.1-10
The monarch Bhismaka observed his beautiful daughter engaged in child-like sports and increasing in splendour day by day like a digit of the moon in the midst of clouds. Considering it advisable to marry his youthful and lovely daughter..."

श्रीब्रह्म महापुराण गोवधनतीथवणन नामक इक्यानववाँ अध्याय समाप्त ।।९१॥

Brahma said:
After that, there is the sacred Govardhana Tīrtha which destroys all sins and grants happiness to the ancestors (Pitṛs). Even remembering it destroys all sins. ॥1॥

O Nārada! I have personally seen its glory with my own eyes. It happened like this: There was a Brahmin farmer known by the name Jāvāli. ॥2॥

Even after midday, he would not release his bullocks (oxen), but instead, would beat them on their backs and sides with a stick. ॥3॥

Seeing those bullocks tormented and with tears in their eyes, Kāmadhenu, the divine mother of cows, went to Nandī (the bull of Lord Shiva) and reported everything. ॥4॥

Moved by the suffering of those animals, the sacred river (probably Gautamī/Godāvarī) also went to Lord Śiva and submitted a petition. ॥5॥

Rāma (here, an epithet of Lord Shiva) said to Nandī: "Let everything be accomplished as per your wish." ॥6॥

Then, on Lord Shiva's command, the river hid the entire group of cows. Because of the disappearance of the cows, there was an uproar in both heaven and earth. ॥7॥

The gods came to me (Brahma) in haste and said, "How can we survive without cows?" I replied, "Go to Śiva and pray to him." ॥8॥

Following my advice, those distressed deities worshipped Lord Shiva and expressed their concern to him. Shiva responded, "This matter is known best by my vehicle, Nandī." ॥9॥

The gods then went to Nandī again and requested, "Please return the beneficent cows to us." Nandī replied, "You must perform a sacrifice called Go-sava Yajña." ॥10॥

Only then will all the divine and earthly cows become available again. Thereafter, as per the plan of the gods, the Go-sava Yajña was performed. ॥11॥

As a result of the yajña, the population of cows began to flourish in the sacred region of the Gautamī river's banks. That Govardhana Tīrtha became a place that greatly pleases the gods. ॥12॥

O best of sages! Bathing at that tīrtha grants the merit of donating a thousand cows. As for the merit of giving donations there—I myself do not fully know it. Therefore, I declare my inability to describe its full glory. ॥13॥

Thus ends the 91st chapter of the Śrī Brahma Mahāpurāṇa, titled "Description of Govardhana Tīrtha." ॥91॥

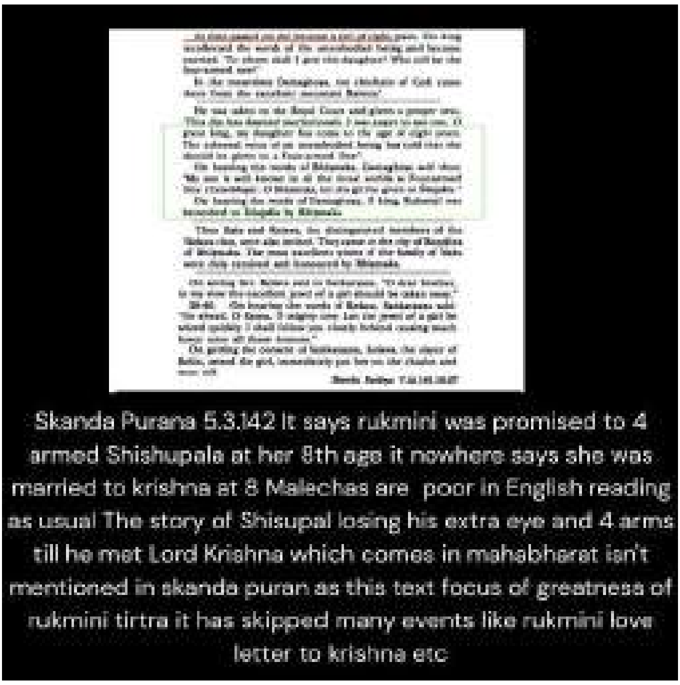
Regarding Skanda Purana 5.3.142 claims



Skanda Purana 5.3.142 It says rukmini was promised to 4 armed Shishupala at her 8th age it nowhere says she was married to krishna at 8 Malechas are poor in English reading as usual The story of Shisupal losing his extra eye and 4 arms till he met Lord Krishna which comes in mahabharat isn't mentioned in skanda puran as this text focus of greatness of rukmini tirtra it has skipped many events like rukmini love letter to krishna etc

Regarding Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 105.1-10 claim

Srimad Bhagvatam 10/53/51-53 also tells that Mata Rukmini was 16 years old at time of her marriage and she was a totally grown beautiful lady 51-53. The glorious warriors who assembled there found themselves tormented with the passion of love and became perplexed at seeing her, who like the deluding potency (Māyā) of the Lord, was enchanting to the warriors, with her beauti-ful slender waist, and countenance beautified with the ear-rings; she was sixteen years of age, wore a girdle of precious stones around her waist: had protruding breasts (showing attainment of womanhood); her eyes were unsteady, appearing as if afraid of her over-hanging locks of hair. Beaming with bright smile, her white jasmine-bud like teeth appeared reddish as they were tinged with the splendour of her red lips-red like the Bimba fruit. Her gait was like that of a royal swan and her feet were radiant with the splendour of jingling anklets.

Sripad Vallabhachrya of Pustimarga Sampradaya too told that Devi Rukmini was 16 years old at the time of her marriage with Lord Krishna

Allegations-

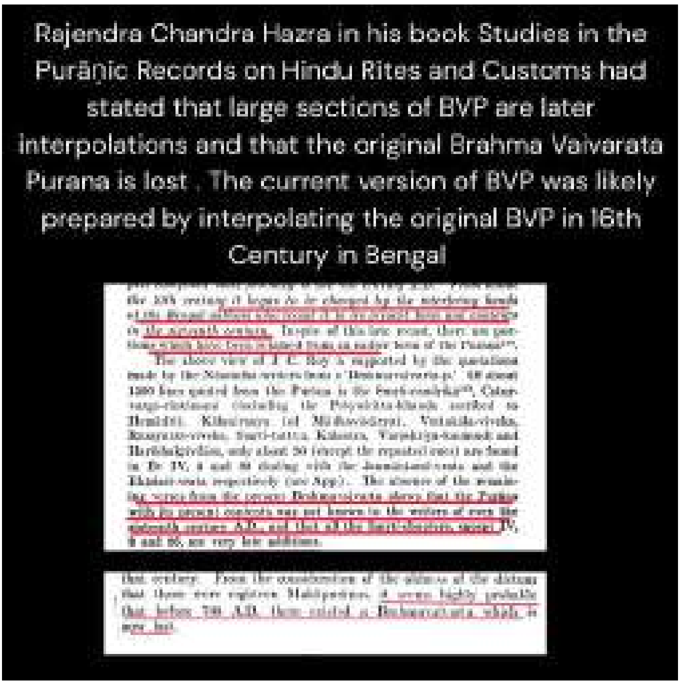
Krishna had intercourse with pre pubscent Rukmini after marriage after which she fainted

Brahma Vaiavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda Chapter 112 slokas 1-10

Lord Kṛṣṇa beheld the smiling Rukmiṇī in the prime of her youth living in great pleasure and hallazioned with gems. She was not yet fully developed and had just attained puberty. She was just like a bud which had not yet begun to shoot to become a flower. Her body was decked with ornaments. So she was abashed in that hall of the wicked females and just like a she-elephant that is entered by her lord she was clothed, ornaments on her head, she was afraid of shame. Rukmiṇī, the daughter of Bhīṣmaka, of her herself was worthy of marriage. Rukmiṇī cast love-laden longing looks at Shri Kṛṣṇa. Her bashfulness increased. Later on, Lord Kṛṣṇa consoled her and intercourse was consummated between them. The goddess Rukmiṇī was filled with raptures at the act and fainted."

Refutation-

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of Suicide in Hinduism

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of "Suicide in Hinduism ".

Allegations-

1. Verses Encouraging Suicide

📚Matsya Purana 107.4-6📚
One who resides on the banks of the Ganges, with or without any object in view, and dies there, goes to heaven and remains far away out of the sight of hell. Such a man sits in a vimana, adorned by decent birds. like swans and flamingoes, where celestial nymphs sing lovely songs. in heaven. Thus he enjoys long life On coming back from heaven, he is born in the house of a very wealthy man.'

📚Agni Purana 111.6-12📚
The scriptures and sacrificial rites are endowed with forms at Prayāga. By singing in praise of this sacred place, or by the repetition of (lord's) names or by touching the earth here (one) gets free from all sins. Charity, ancestral rites and recitation (of names of the god) done at Prayāga, the place of confluence (of the two rivers), has undecaying merits. O Twice-born! One who has resolved to die at Prayāga at the end (of his term of life) should not change his mind on the authority of scriptures or on the words of the people. Ten thousand and six crores of sacred places are present only here. Hence Prayāga is the foremost (place). The Bhogavatī, sacred spot of Vāsuki (serpent chief) and the flight of swans are present here. One reaps the fruits of making a charity of a crores of cows by bathing at Prayāga three days in the month of māgha (February-March). The learned have declared thus. It is easy to have access to Ganges all along its course, but very difficult at the (following) three places—Gaṅgādvāra (Haridvāra), Prayāga and the confluence of Ganges with the ocean. One goes to heaven by giving alms here and one will become a monarch here itself."

📚Matsya Purana 106.1📚
Yadhisthara said: Sage I feel I am gradually being freed from my sins by the virtues of Prayaga that you have been pleased to relate to me. O, blessed saint, tow he pleased to explain to me how one should go to Prayaga"

📚Kurma Purana 1.38.3-12

If a person who has the full complement of the five sense organs, who has no deficiency in any limb and who has no ailment performs the rite of Karisagni (i.e. immolation of the body in the cowdung fire) at the confluence of Ganga and Yamuna, O ruler of the Earth, he is honoured in the heavenly world as many thousand years as there are pores of hairs in his body. After enjoying extensive pleasures, he falls off from heaven and becomes the lord of Jambudvlpa. He attains the same Tirtha once again. If {in order to cast off his body) a person enters water at the world famous confluence (at Prayaga)» he becomes liberated from all sins, as the moon devoured by Rahu becomes completely brilliant after the eclipse. He attains Somaloka (region of the moon) and he rejoices with Soma (the moon) for sixty-six thousand years. From heaven he rejoices in Indra's world resorted to by sages and Gandharvas. O leader of kings, falling off from that place, he is born in a prosperous family. If a man stands topsyturvy with the legs up and the head below and drinks water from the current of Ganga he is honoured in the heavenly world for seven thousand years. O leader of kings, fallen off from that place, the man becomes the performer of the rite of Agnihotra, Enjoying extensive pleasures, he resorts to that Tirtha once again. Listen to the benefit attained by one who severs his limbs and offers pieces to birds and who is devoured by the birds. He is honoured in the Somaloka for a hundred thousand years."

📚Kurma Purana 1.37.14-16📚
O dear one, neither at the instance of the mother nor at the report of the common people should your mind to perform pilgrimage to Prayaga, be dissuaded. O scion of the family of Kurus, sixty thousand Tirtkas and other sixty crores of sacred places are present here (at Prayaga). The goal attained by one who gives up his life at the confluence of Ganga and Yamuna is the same as obtained by a learned man who has renounced the world as a Sannyasin and who is endowed with Yogic power."

📚Narada Purana Uttar Bhaga 63.129b-132📚
(This holy sacred place and sphere of Prajapati has the following boundaries Prayaga* extends from Pratisthana up to the deep pool of Vasuki in front of Prajapati and up to the two Nagas Kambala and Asvatara and the Naga Bahumulaka. This is known in the three worlds as the sacred spot of Prajapati. By taking the holy bath there, people go to heaven. Those who are dead there are not reborn. Not only through the words of the Vedas but through the popular saying this is justified. The soul goes up in its flight as a result of the death in Prayaga. There are ten thousand Tirthas and another sixty crores."

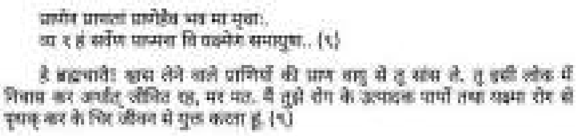
O God! We should wish to live for hundred years while performing our duties. There is no other way to attain salvation. Karma does not bind a man. –

Those who live surrounded by deep darkness are called Asuryas. Those who kill the soul, they reach the same worlds in the form of ghosts –

Atharva Veda 3.31.9 says we should always live on and live a long life and never hope to die



हे ब्रह्मचारी ! श्वास लेने वाले प्राणियों की प्राण वायु से तू सांस ले. तू इसी लोक में निवास कर अर्थात् जीवित रह, मर मत. मैं तुझे रोग के उत्पादक पापों तथा यक्ष्मा रोग से पृथक् कर के चिर जीवन से युक्त करता हूं. (९)

“O celibate one! Breathe with the life-breath of living beings. Dwell in this world, that is, remain alive—do not die. I separate you from the sins that produce disease and from the disease of consumption (yakṣmā), and I endow you with long life.” (9)

Sri Mahabharata, Shanti Parva, Chapter 297, Gita Press Gorakhpur

“Those who, after attaining the physical body, stubbornly renounce it, experience a painful existence in their subsequent bodies, just as a person moving from one house to another. Even though they have obtained a human body, which is the means to attain liberation, due to committing suicide, they are deprived of the benefit of this opportunity and instead keep transitioning from one body to another.”
The only reason for their attaining that state is the sin of suicide; it is only fitting for such beings to acquire a body made of the five elements (panchabhutas)

However, death caused by consuming poison, hanging oneself, burning in fire, being killed by robbers, or being struck by animals with tusks is considered to be of the lowest category

तथा शरीरं भवति देहाद् येनोपपादितम्।
अध्वानं गतकश्चायं प्राप्तश्चायं गृहाद् गृहम्॥ १२॥

द्वितीयं कारणं तत्र नान्यत् किंचन विद्यते।
तद् देहं देहिनां युक्तं पञ्चभूतेषु वर्तते॥ १३॥

इनकी उस अवस्थाके प्राप्त होनेमें आत्महत्यारूप पापके सिवा दूसरा कोई कारण नहीं है। उन प्राणियोंको उस शरीरका मिलना उचित ही है, जो कि पंचभूतमय है॥ १३॥

Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of Allegations on Shri Hari Vishnu

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of "Lust of Vishnu ".

1. Vishnu – The sex addict

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.14.4-23📚
Gaṅgā Devī was very much overpowered with enjoyment in her first intercourse with Nārāyaṇa; so much so that she remained motionless."

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 6.28.1-11📚
Thus the Bhagavān Nārāyaṇa was playing in amorous movements with the daughter of the ocean, fully capable to give one delight and enjoyment. Seeing me, the lovely Devī Kamalā, dear to Vāsudeva, full of youth and beauty, decorated with ornaments, endowed with all auspicious signs, superior to all the women, went away at once (to another room) from the presence of Janārdana. The breast of Lakṣmī Devī was becoming visible even through the cloth thrown over it; therefore she went hurriedly to the inner compartment."

Refutation-

Lord Vishnu does not have a material body to experience sexual intercourse like humans or animals he has a spiritual body . Only in a material body one can experience sexual intercourse.

Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8

वह परमपिता सर्वव्यापक, चमकीला, (दीप्तिमान), काया रहित, नाड़ियों से रहित है. वह घावों से रहित, पवित्र, पाप रहित, विद्वान्, मननशील, सर्वव्यापक व स्वयंभू (स्वयं उत्पन्न होने वाला) है. उस ने सृष्टि के आरंभ से ही सब के लिए यथायोग्य साधन सुविधाओं की व्यवस्था की है. (८)

Narayana is पर्यगात्- Omnipresent शुक्रम् – Radiant अकायम्- Material Bodiless अव्रणम्- “Woundless” – Free from any imperfections or injuries अस्नाविरम्- Without flesh, nerves, or tissues , immaterial शुद्धम्- Pure -Untouched by impurities or defects अपापविद्धम् -“Untainted by sin” – Free from any trace of evil karma कविः with divine wisdom and foresight मनीषी-with supreme intellect परिभूः-Beyond all limits and boundaries स्वयंभूः- Self Existent याथातथ्यतः- Supreme Truth शाश्वतीभ्यः unchanging and समाभ्यः-Eternal

Sri Hari Vishnu is not a mortal human being. He is the supreme Brahman. He is free from all humanely acts like Sex, lust etc which are experienced though Gross Subtle body. Mahabharta Shanti Parva Adhaya 351 slokas 2-3 Narayana does not have a gross Subtle Human like Material body. This is a khandan of Humanely Subtle acts like Sexual intercourse on Shri Hari Vishnu

वे स्थूल, सूक्ष्म और कारण तीनों शरीरोंसे रहित होकर भी सम्पूर्ण शरीरोंमें निवास करते हैं और उन शरीरोंमें रहते हुए भी कभी उनके कर्मोंसे लिप्त नहीं होते हैं ।। ३ ।।

He accused on Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.14.4-23 . You can read it yourself nowhere its mentioned that Narayana had intercourse with Devi Ganga . Instead its mentioned here that Narayana spent some time with Ganga and roamed with Ganga . The english translators generally mistranslate the Rati-Raman word as intercourse . However that is not its primary meaning unless until explicitly stated so . Pandit Madhavacharya Shastri had given a similar explanation on Meaning of Reme and Rati as roaming . keeping in Mind that Lord Narayana does not have a material body and hence he cannot experience sexual intercourse here Rati-Raman should be interpreted as Roaming and spending time together

यहाँ यह बतलाने की आवश्यकता नहीं कि रति, रमण, रम्भा, रमणीय, रमा, रामा, रश्मि और राम आदि सभी शब्द 'रम्' क्रीडायाम् धातु से बने हैं। इन सब शब्दों का मूल एक ही है, केवल इसके भावमें

स्थिति में यदि 'रति' और 'रमण' शब्द का अर्थ विषयानन्द किंवा व्यभिचार है तो राम का अर्थ व्यभिचार करना होगा परन्तु वस्तुतः राम शब्द का निर्वचन है—'रमन्ते योगिनो यस्मिन्' अर्थात्—योगीजन जिसमें 'रमण' करते हों, अथवा—आत्मानन्द का अनुभव करते हों वह ईश्वर।

📚Shiva Purana 3.22.45-47📚
In the meantime Viṣṇu saw those damsels born of nectar sprays who were haughty due to their divine beauty and whose faces resembled the full moon. Fascinated by the Cupid's arrows Viṣṇu attained highest pleasure only there. He began to indulge in sexual dalliance with those women of exquisite beauty. Viṣṇu begot of them sons of great exploits and valour, experts in various kinds of warfare, shaking the entire earth."

Refutation-

He has alleged on Satrudra Samhita of Shiva Purana .

According to R.C. Hazra and Ludo Rocher, the Śatarudra Saṁhitā, along with the Rudra Saṁhitā and Koṭirudra Saṁhitā, is a much later addition to the Śiva Purāṇa and cannot be dated earlier than the 14th century CE.

[illegible], nor the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā can be earlier than the fourteenth century A.D.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Śatarudra Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[387] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions – which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śiva°	Class A Bombay 1884 Veṅkaṭ. 1895–96 Vaṅga.		Class B Veṅkaṭ. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya Tr. AITM
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara/	ch. 25
II. Raudra	Vidyeśvara	25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka		(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhauma/Auma	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyu/Vāyavīya		Umā/Auma	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	30	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya
IX. Koṭirudra	Dharma	65	pūrvabhāga	35
X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śiva° is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages;" it is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[388] Hazra, who did not include the Śiva° in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

Scriptures such as the Mahābhārata—particularly the Viṣṇu Sahasranāma in Anuśāsana Parva, Chapter 149—describe Śrī Nārāyaṇa Deva as being utterly free from all defects, including lust, anger, and greed. He is Hṛṣīkeśa, the supreme master of all senses, and Śuddhātmā, the Pure Soul—completely untouched by impurities, attachments, and worldly illusions. Nārāyaṇa embodies absolute truth, divine consciousness, and eternal bliss, remaining beyond all material limitations and entirely free from sexual or any other form of desire or impurity. He is sinless—pure in every act, thought, and intention. As Dharmakṛt, He not only upholds dharma but practices it perfectly to establish it in the world. As Nivṛttātmā, His nature is intrinsically free from all worldly cravings, including lust and greed, and His mind remains eternally pure.

2. Vishnu became lusty after seeing Padmavati (Daughter of King Akasa)

📚Skanda Purana 2.1.4.40-54📚
The girls replied to him: "Nothing was seen by us. Why have you come to our park wielding an excellent bow. O leader of hunters, none of the animals living here should be killed. Go away quickly from this park which is in the protective jurisdiction of King Âkasa." On hearing the words of those maidens he got down from the horse. "Who are you all? Who is this lotus-like maiden? She has excellent magnificence. All her limbs are fascinating. Her breasts are plump and protruding. Tell me. After hearing the same I shall go back to my abode in the mountain." On hearing these words of his the friend and attendant of Padmavati urged by the daughter of Dharani said to the hunter, a resident of the mountain: "This is the daughter of King Akasa. She was born out of the bowels of the earth. O hero, she is our leader and her name is Padmini. Tell us, O youth of handsome features, what is your name? Whose son are you? What is your caste? Where is your residence? Why have you come here?" On being asked thus he replied to them with a smile on his lotus-like face: "Those conversant with ancient traditions say that our family is that of the Sun. Our names are innumerab They sanctify learned men. By colour and name the ascetics say that I am Krsna. My discus instills fear in the minds of the enemies of Suras and those who hate Brahmanas. On hearing the sound of my conch enemies become confounded. Even among the immortal beings there is no bow equal to mine. They call me the lord of heroes, residing in Venkatadri. It was from the ridge of that mountain that I surrounded (i.e. accompanied) by my Nisada followers have come for hunting, riding on a horse, to your park. A certain animal moving rapidly like the wind has been pursued by me. It went away somewhere. Unable to see it I have now seen this maiden of exalted magnificence. I have come here with love. Can this maiden be obtained by me?" On hearing these words of Krsna they became infuriated and said: "If King Akasa sees you, he will bind you with fetters and take you away. Before this happens go quickly to your own abode." Threatened by them thus, he mounted the swift horse. Accompanied by all his followers, he went back to the mountain quickly

In Skanda Purāṇa 2.1.4.40–54 (Venkatachala Māhātmya), the narrative describes the divine marriage of Padmāvatī, an incarnation of Goddess Lakṣmī, with Lord Viṣṇu in the form of Śrīnivāsa.

According to the account, King Ākāśa Rāja had once received a boon from Lord Viṣṇu that he would be freed from a certain curse when he would offer a crown to the Lord at the time of His marriage with Padmāvatī. While engaged in a hunt, Lord Śrīnivāsa beheld Padmāvatī and, recalling His earlier promise to Ākāśa Rāja, approached the king to request her hand in marriage—thus setting the stage for the fulfillment of both the boon and the destined union.

Skanda Purana Vaishnava Khanda Venkatachala Mahatmya Chapter 4 slokas 40-54 hindi translation by Chaukhamba Publications

वह अश्वारोही कहता है- हे ललनाओं! पुराविदपण्डितगण मेरे वंश को सूर्यवंश कहते हैं। जिसका नाम अनन्त है, जिनका नाम मनीषीगण के लिये भी पवित्र है, तपस्वीगण जिसका वर्ण भी कृष्ण कहते हैं तथा जिसका नाम भी कृष्ण ही है, जिसका चक्र ब्रह्मद्वेषी दैत्यों के लिये भयावह है, वैरीगण जिसकी शंखध्वनि सुनकर मोहित हो जाते हैं, देवताओं के पास भी जिसके धनुष ऐसा धनुष नहीं है, वैसे मुझको विद्वान् लोग वेंकटाचलवासी वीरपति कहते हैं। मैं उस वेंकटाचल पर्वत की घाटी से निषादों के साथ अश्वारोहण करके आखेट के लिये तुम्हारे वन में आ गया। मैं वन में प्रवेश करते ही एक पशु का पीछा करने लगा। तब वह पशु भी द्रुतवेग से भाग गया। तब मैं उसे न पाकर इस वन में विचरण करते-करते यहां आ गया। तदनन्तर मैंने यहां इस सौम्यमुखी कामिनी को देखा जिसे देखकर कामार्त्त हो गया हूं। क्या मैं इसे प्राप्त कर सकता हूं? ।।४७-५२

वे कुमारीगण इन कृष्ण का कथन सुनते ही क्रोधित हो गयीं तथा वे पुनः कहने लगीं – “इससे पहले कि आकाशराज यहां आकर तुमको जंजीर से बांधकर ले न जाये, उससे पहले तुम यहां से अपने घर भाग जाओ। इस प्रकार कुमारीगण से लांछित होकर कृष्ण अपने तेजगति वाले अश्व पर बैठा तथा अनुचरों के साथ गिरिगुहा में चला गया।।५३-५४।।

Śrī Varāhadeva said – Hearing that man's words, those maidens replied:
“We have not seen anything at all. O best of bowmen! Why have you come to our forest? O lord of Niṣādas! All the animals that wander in this forest are protected and must not be slain. They are cared for by King Ākāśa. You should quickly leave this forest!”

Hearing these words, that man dismounted from his horse and addressed the companions:
“O lotus-faced maidens! Who are all of you? And who is this fortunate maiden, with charming limbs, high and full breasts? Tell me this, and then I shall return to my dwelling in the mountains.” (40–43)

Hearing this, and following the sign of the princess —the daughter of Queen Dharanī—her companion Padmāvatī spoke to that Niṣāda (tribal) youth of the mountains:
"O hero! These are the daughters of King Ākāśa, who were born from the Earth herself. This is our leader her name is Padminī. O gentle-looking one! Now tell us—who are you? Whose son are you? What is your name? What is your lineage? Where do you live? And for what reason have you come into this forest?"

Hearing this, that horse-riding hero, with a lotus-like face and a gentle smile, began to speak. (44–46)

The horseman said:
*"O maidens! The learned know my lineage as the Sūryavaṃśa (Solar Dynasty). My name is Ananta. My very name is considered pure even by the wise; the ascetics describe my form as dark in complexion, and my name is Kṛṣṇa. My discus is terrible for demons who hate Brahmins; my enemies become bewildered when they hear the sound of my conch; and among the gods themselves, no one possesses a bow like mine.
The learned call me the valiant lord of Veṅkaṭācala. I have come from the valleys of Mount Veṅkaṭa, riding horses with the Niṣādas for the sake of hunting in your forest.

As soon as I entered the forest, I began to chase an animal. That creature ran swiftly and escaped me. Unable to catch it, I wandered through the forest and thus came here. Then I saw this gentle-faced maiden; seeing her, I have become overwhelmed with desire to obtain her . Can I obtain her?"* (47–52)

On hearing these words of Kṛṣṇa, the maidens became angry and again said:
"Before King Ākāśa comes here and has you bound in chains, run back to your home!"

Thus reproached by the maidens, Kṛṣṇa mounted his swift horse and, along with his attendants, returned to the caves of the mountain. (53–54)

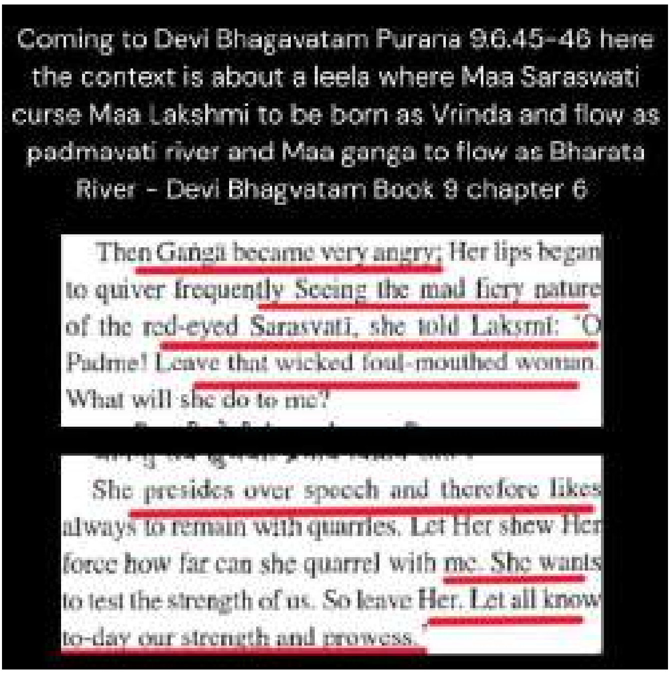
3. Vishnu exchanged his wives with Brahma and Shiva

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.6.45-46📚
Now go in full Amsas to Brahmā and become His wife. Let Gaṅgā go also in Her fullness to Śiva. Let Padmā remain with Me. Padmā is of a peaceful nature, void of anger, devoted to Me and of a Sāttvika nature.

Refutation-

Coming to Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.6.45-46 here the context is about a leela where Maa Saraswati curse Maa Lakshmi to be born as Vrinda and flow as padmavati river and Maa ganga to flow as Bharata River – Devi Bhagvatam Book 9 chapter 6

Then Ganga became very angry; Her lips began to quiver frequently Seeing the mad fiery nature of the red-eyed Sarasvati, she told Laksmi: 'O Padme! Leave that wicked foul-mouthed woman.
What will she do to me?
She presides over speech and therefore likes always to remain with quarrles. Let Her shew Her force how far can she quarrel with me. She wants to test the strength of us. So leave Her. Let all know to-day our strength and prowess.



Then Bhagvan MahaVishnu told that parts of Ganga , Lakshmi and Saraswati will have to incarnate on Earth and a part of Ganga will go and stay with Maheshwar Shiva and a Part of Saraswati will go and stay with Brahma Deva .

आदि सृष्टि में परमात्मा कृष्ण ने महा विराट् का सृजन किया था। जब प्रलय का समय होता है, उस समय नित्य वह दिशा-श्राकाश और ईश्वर के साथ स्थित रहना है ॥ २२॥ पृथ्वी की अधिष्ठात्री देवी सुरों के द्वारा वाराह में यह पूजित हुई थी और मनुओं के द्वारा-मुनियों से-वित्रों के द्वारा और गन्धव आदि के द्वारा भी पूजित होती है ॥२३॥ वह वराहरूप बाले विष्णु की पत्नी है जोकि श्रुति से सम्मत है। उसका पुत्र सुयम बाला मङ्गलात्मन मंगल जानने के योग्य है ।॥ २४॥ देर्वाष नारद ने ने कहा- वाराह कल्प में यह मही देवों के द्वारा किस रूप से पूजी गई है और बाराह के द्वारा सबके साथ वारा ही पूजी गई थी जो कि सती सबका आश्रय है ।।२५।। हे प्रभो! उसकी पूजा का विधान और नीचे का उद्धरण क्रम तथा मंगल का मगल जन्म भी विस्तार पूर्वक कहिये ॥२६॥ नारायण ने कहा- पहिले समय में ब्रह्मा के द्वारा बाराह में बराह का स्तयन किया गया था और उसने हिरण्याक्ष का वध करके रसातल से इस मही का उद्धार किया था ॥२७।। फिर उस पृथ्वी को पद्म पत्र की भाँति सागर पर स्थापित कर दिया था। वहाँ पर ही बह्मा ने मनोहर सर्वं विश्व का निर्माण किया था ॥२८॥

In the beginning of creation, the Supreme Being Krishna brought forth the great cosmic form (Maha-Virat), and during the time of dissolution (Pralaya), He remains eternally situated with the Supreme Lord in that divine realm. The Earth goddess, who presides over the planet, was worshipped in the Varaha incarnation by celestial beings, including Manus, sages, forefathers, Gandharvas, and others. She is the consort of Vishnu in His Varaha form, as affirmed by the Vedas, and her son is Su-yama, known as Mangala (Mars), the bearer of auspiciousness. Sages Durvasa and Narada once inquired about how the Earth was worshipped during the Varaha Kalpa and how she, the ever-chaste refuge of all, was honored along with the Varaha. They requested the Lord to describe the ritual of her worship, the sequence of her rescue, and the auspicious birth of Mangala in detail. Lord Narayana responded by explaining that in the earliest times, Varaha was invoked by Brahma to slay the demon Hiranyaksha and rescue the Earth from the netherworld. He then placed the Earth, resembling a lotus leaf, upon the ocean, where Brahma proceeded to create the beautiful, all-ncompassing universe.

5. Vishnu raped Vrinda (Tulasi)

📚Skanda Purana 2.4.21.17-30📚
I am your beloved and innocent wife. Why don't you speak to me now? You were the conqueror of the three worlds. Devas and Gandharvas along with Viṣṇu have been defeated by you. How did it happen that you have now been killed by a mere ascetic? After lamenting thus, Vṛndā spoke these words to the sage: O excellent sage, O storehouse of mercy, resuscitate this my lover and lord. You alone are capable of bringing him back to life, O sage, I believe. On hearing these words of hers, the sage said with a smile: He has been killed in battle by Rudra. He cannot be made alive once again. Still, out of sympathy for you, I shall make him alive. After saying this, the Brāhmaṇa vanished. By that time, the son of the Ocean embraced Vṛndā and kissed her face with great mental pleasure and satisfaction. Vṛndā too was extremely delighted in her mind on seeing her husband once again. Staying within the forest in his company for many days, she sported about. Once at the conclusion of the sexual intercourse, she saw him in the form of Viṣṇu. Rebuking him angrily Vṛndā spoke these words: Fie upon your conduct, O Hari, you commit adultery! I know now well that you are a fake ascetic. The two, your own gatekeepers, who were shown to me by you by means of Māyā will be born as Rākṣasas. They will abduct your wife. You will wander in forest, miserable due to the separation from your wife. Do wander along with this Lord of serpents, who has now been your disciple. After saying this, Vṛndā entered fire, though Viṣṇu whose mind was attached to her, tried to prevent her."

📚Shiva Purana 2.5.23.38-45📚
On seeing her husband, Vṛndā too was delighted. She forgot her sorrow. She considered everything a dream. Delighted in the heart and with all the dormant passions kindled up, she sported with him for many days in the middle of that forest. Once at the end of the sexual intercourse she realised that it was Viṣṇu. Vṛndā rebuked him angrily and spoke thus. Fie on this misdeed of Viṣṇu in outraging the modesty of another man's wife. I have now realised you as the wielder of illusion, appearing in the guise of an ascetic. O Vyāsa, saying thus in great anger she showed her brilliant powers as a staunch chaste lady by cursing Viṣṇu. "O base foe of the Daityas, defiler of other people's virtue, O wicked one, take this curse from me, greater in force than all persons. The two persons whom you made to appear in front of me shall become Rākṣasas and abduct your wife. You will be distressed on account of separation from your wife roaming about with Śeṣa 'lord of snakes' who posed as your disciple here. You will seek the help of monkeys in the forest."

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.24.14-22📚
O Dear! Full one Samvatsara the war lasted betwixt us. All the Daityas were killed. Then Brahmā Himself came and mediated. Peace, then, was brought about and by the command of Brahmā, I gave over to the Devas their rights. When I returned to my home, Śiva went back to His Śivaloka. Thus saying, Hari, the Lord of the world, slept and then engaged in sexual intercourse with her. But the chaste Tulasī, finding this time her experience quite different from what She used to enjoy before, argued all the time within herself and at last questioned him :– Who are you? O Magician! By spreading your magic, you have enjoyed me. As you have taken my chastity, I will curse you. Bhagavān Nārāyaṇa, hearing Tulasī's words and being afraid of the curse, assumed His real beautiful figure. The Devī then saw the Eternal Lord of the Devas before her. He was of a deep blue colour like fresh rain-clouds and with eyes like autumnal lotuses and with playful Līlās equivalent to tens and tens of millions of Love personified and adorned with jewels and ornaments. His face was smiling and gracious; and he wore his yellow-coloured robe. The love-stricken Tulasī, seeing That Lovely Form of Vāsudeva, immediately fell senseless; and at the next moment, regaining consciousness, she began to speak."

📚Shiva Purana 2.5.41.1-39📚
Vyasa said:- "How did the lord Nārāyaṇa manage to deposit his semen in the vaginal passage of Tulasī? Please narrate the same…It was in the guise of Śaṅkhacūḍa that he indulged in sexual dalliance with his wife…Very near the entrance to Tulasī's palace he caused the drum Dundubhi to be beaten and cries of victory to be raised. He thus made the beautiful woman wake up. On hearing it that chaste lady was highly delighted. Eagerly she peeped through the window into the high way. Knowing that her husband had returned she observed all auspicious rites and offered monetary gifts to the brahmins. She then beautified herself. After decending from the chariot, Viṣṇu who assumed the guise of Śaṅkhacūḍa by deceptive art for the sake of carrying out the task of the gods went to the apartment of the queen…My dear wife, we fought continuously for a year. O lovely woman, all the Asuras were destroyed. Brahmā made us come to a peace. At the bidding of Brahmā the powers of authority were re-assigned to the gods. I have returned home…Then out of joy Viṣṇu indulged in sexual intercourse. That lady began to suspect on observing a change in her happiness, endearment and attraction and asked him "who are you? Who are you? Tell me quickly. I have been enjoyed by you deceptively. My modesty has been outraged. Hence I am going to curse you." On hearing the words of Tulasī, Viṣṇu became afraid of the curse. O Brahmin, sportively he re-assumed his own real beautiful form. On seeing the characteristic signs she guessed that it was Viṣṇu. Infuriated by the violation of her chastity she said. "O Viṣṇu, you are ruthless. Your mind is likea rock. Since my chastity has been outraged my husband is doomed. O wicked one, being ruthless you are like a rock. Hence due to my curse you will become a rock. Those who call you ocean of mercy are erring. There is no doubt. How was a devotee killed for another man's sake, even without any offence?" After saying this, the chaste beloved of Śaṅkhacūḍa, Tulasī lamented again and again in the excess of her grief. On seeing her crying, Viṣṇu remembered lord Śaṅkara, Parameśvara, by whom the universe is deluded. Then Śaṅkara, favourably disposed to his devotees appeared in front of them. He was bowed to and eulogised humbly by Viṣṇu. On seeing Viṣṇu distressed and the beloved lady lamenting, Śiva kind to the poor tactfully enlightened both of them."

आधिभौतिक

'पद्म-पुराण' में इस आख्यायिका का जो कथानक (Plot) अङ्कित किया है वह भौतिक विज्ञान से सम्बन्ध रखता है। तुलसी नामक प्रसिद्ध औषधि विशेषजन्य अनेक ज्वरों एवं मलेरिया के कीटाणुओं (Germs) को समूल नष्ट कर देती है यह बात आजकल की नई खोज में भी सिद्ध हो चुकी है। प्राचीन ऋषियों ने 'ऋतम्भरा' प्रज्ञा द्वारा इस रहस्य की साङ्गोपाङ्ग गवेषणा की थी, इसीलिए हमारी दैनन्दिनी दिनचर्या में तुलसी के सेवन का पर्याप्त उपयोग पाया जाता

जल को धारण करने वाला बादल ही 'जलंधर' है और इस बादल में सर्वान्तर्भाव से रहने वाली 'विद्युत्-शक्ति' ही वृन्दा है। साध्वी स्त्री का सर्वस्व जिस प्रकार उसका एकमात्र पति ही होता है उसी प्रकार मेघमण्डलवर्ती विद्युत् का भी अनन्य आश्रय बादल ही है। यह मेघ क्षण क्षण में नये नये रूप बदलकर आकाश में विचरता है। कई बार तो यह 'कुन्द-इन्दु-सम-धवल-देह-द्युति' बन कर एवं बीच बीच में नीलकण्ठ को सदा दिखाता हुआ—'भव, भव विभव पराभव कारिणी! विश्वविमोहिनि, स्ववशविहारिणी—अद्भुतमय पार्वती देवी को भी विमुग्ध कर डालने को उद्यत होता है। सूर्य चन्द्रादि ग्रह, नक्षत्र, तारे, सितारे और सैयारे अपनी अपनी कान्ति रूप आत्माओं को इस जलधरपटल के प्रतिरोध से मानो व्याकुलित सी देख पाते हैं। यह जलन्धर दैवी-सम्पदा रूप प्राणीमात्र के जीवन आधार जलों को आत्मसात् कर के मानो उनके जीवन को मुट्ठी में ले लेता है अतएव वे सब विचलित हो उठते हैं। परन्तु मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत् की प्रवाह धारा जब तक अविच्छिन्न रूप से

(घ) तस्माद्यां दिशं वायुरेति तां दिशं वृष्टिरन्वेति । (शतपथ ८ । २ । ३ । ५)

इस प्रकार तुलसी चरित्र के अलौकिक चमत्कार का परोक्षपद्धति से निर्देश करने वाला यह कथानक, 'पौराणिक-वनस्पति-विज्ञान' का ज्वलन्त उदाहरण है । इसका हम आधिभौतिक निरूपण करने के बाद अब आधिदैविक विवेचन करते हैं ।

The cloud that holds water is Jalandhar and the विद्युत residing in this cloud in its entirety is Vrinda. Just as a pious wife is devoted only to her husband, similarly, the only refuge of the cloud-borne विद्युत is the cloud itself. The cloud [Jalandhar] frequently changes shape in the sky, sometimes appearing white as snow with hints of blue, reminiscent of the goddess Parvati's form, enticing and omnipresent, charming the universe and traversing with free will. Planets, stars, and constellations look on as this mass of clouds absorbs water, seemingly taking life in its grasp. However, as long as the flow of विद्युत [Vrinda] within the cloud[Jalandhar] remains uninterrupted, not a single drop of vapor condenses to fall to Earth.

. Following Parvati's suggestion as Prakriti , Vishnu, as air, approaches the विद्युत [Vrinda] in the cloud as it flows in all directions. As soon as this विद्युत[Vrinda], energized by the air[Vishnu], begins to vibrate, the vapor condenses and falls to Earth in droplets. Not every air current brings rain; even modern science identifies only specific types of air currents, like the monsoon, as rain-producing. In this allegory, Air (Vishnu) has to disguise itself as a cloud to approach Vrinda . Only then does she disperse and fall to Earth, symbolizing the fact that only particular winds cause rain. The divine Vidyut within the clouds, which has been referred to in scriptures as Divya Agni derived from electric energy, mixes with water particles, following the principle "Adbhyah Prithvi, Prithvibhyah Oshadhayah" (from water comes Earth, and from Earth, the herbs), resulting in the Tulsi plant.

This is why the Tulsi plant is imbued with extraordinary powers, inherited from the divine विद्युत within clouds. To convey this mystical aspect, Vedavyasa shows Vrinda, a pure devotee, reincarnating as the Tulsi plant after her curse. Vrinda cursed Lord Vishnu to become a stone, the Shaligram, which is essentially an embodiment of condensed air. Just as air intensifies even a small spark of fire, similarly, the divine fire within Tulsi leaves is enhanced when in contact with the Shaligram, symbolizing the unlimited power of Tulsi.

Allegations-

6. Vishnu raped multiple other women

📚Shiva Purana 5.4.17📚
O great sage, Viṣṇu was deluded by Kāma by the power of Śiva's Māyā. He outraged the modesty of other men's wives many times.

Refutation-

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhaumasaṃhitā,[391] also called Auma/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and manvantaras; etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

saṃhitās which are absent from these Śiva° passages.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[400] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as ṛgyajuḥsāmarūpin, who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahma; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Siva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Banaras, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A. D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[387] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions — which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śiva°	Class A Bombay 1884 Veṅkaṭ. 1895–96 Vaṅga.		Class B Veṅkaṭ. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya Tr. AITM
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara/ Vighneśa	ch. 25
II. Raudra	Vidyeśvara	25
III. Vaināyaka		(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhauma/Auma	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyu/Vāyavīya		Umā/Auma	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	30	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya

X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śiva° is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages;" it is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[388] Hazra, who did not include the Śiva° in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of Wine and Alcohol Consumption in Hinduism

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of "Wine Consumption in Hinduism ".

The Use and Drinking and Consumption of Wine and Alcohol is heavily condemned in Sanatan Dharma evident from following Pramanas

Atharva Veda 5/1/6 contains the seven maryadas which are never to be practiced and one of which includes मद्यपान which means drinking Madira Alcohol

मनु आदि ऋषियों ने चोरी, गुरुपत्नीगमन, ब्रह्महत्या, ्रणहत्या, मद्यपान, मिथ्याभाषण एवं पापकर्म इन

सात कर्मों के रूप में धार्मिक, मर्यादा निश्चित की है. जो इस मर्यादा को नहीं मानता, वह पापी है. इन सात मर्यादाओं का पालन करने वाला पुरुष मृत्यु के पश्चात सूर्य मंडल में स्थित आदित्य को प्राप्त करता है और प्रलय काल तक वहीं स्थित रहता

The sages like Manu have defined religious codes of conduct through seven actions: theft, adultery with a teacher's wife, killing of a Brahmin, abortion, consumption of alcohol, speaking falsehood, and sinful deeds. One who does not adhere to these codes is considered sinful. A person who follows these seven moral principles attains Aditya, who resides in the solar realm, after death and remains there until the time of cosmic dissolution (pralaya)

Rig Veda 10/5/6 says that anyone who commits any of the seven Moral Restraints (Sapta Maryada) becomes a Big Sinner

मेधावियों ने सात मर्यादाओं को छोड दिया है. इन कार्यों में से एक को करने वाला भी पाप को प्राप्त करता है. मनुष्यों को पाप से रोकने वाले अग्नि समीपवर्ती मानवलोक में, सूर्यकिरणों के विचरने के स्थान में एवं जलों में रहते हैं

The wise have abandoned the seven moral restraints. Even one who commits any one of these actions incurs sin. Those who restrain humans from sin dwell near the sacred fire, in the realm of humans close to it, in the regions where the sun's rays roam, and in the waters.

सप्त मर्यादाः कवयस्ततक्षुस्तासामेकामिदभ्यंहुरो गात्।

Rig Veda 8/21/14 says that Indra (Ishwar) does not help and accept the prayers of those people who consume Alcohol

हे इंद्र ! तुम केवल धनवान् व्यक्ति को ही अपनी मित्रता के लिए स्वीकार नहीं करते, इसका क्या कारण है? ऐसे लोग शराब पीते हैं एवं तुम्हारा विरोध करते हैं. जब तुम अपने स्तोता को संपत्ति देते हो, उस समय वह तुम्हें ऐसे पुकारता है, जैसे कोई अपने पिता को पुकारता है. (१४)

O Indra! Why is it that you do not choose only the wealthy as your friends? Such people indulge in drinking Alcohol and oppose you. But when you grant wealth to your devotee, he calls upon you as a child calls upon his father. (14)

Atharva Veda 20.114.2 says that Indra (Ishwar) becomes sad by those people who consume Alcohol

हे इंद्र ! सुराश्व अर्थात् मदिरा पीने वाले तुम्हें दुःखी करते हैं. तुम जब गर्जन करने लगते हो, तब पिता के समान कहे जाते हो. तुम धनी मनुष्य को मित्रता के लिए प्राप्त करते हो

O Indra! Those who drink liquor cause ou distress. When you begin to roar , you are spoken of as a father. You befriend the wealthy man.

Chandogya Upanishad 5/10/9 says that the one who drinks liquor and the one who keeps company with Such people who drink and consume liquor are lost

9. A person who steals gold, or drinks liquor, or goes to bed with his teacher's wife, or kills a brāhmin—these four are lost. Also lost is the fifth—one who keeps company with such people.

In the Chandogya Upanishad, Emperor Ashvapati, while describing his Vedic kingdom, states that there is no one in his realm who consumes alcohol. This implies that in Vedic kingdoms, drinking alcohol was considered a punishable offense.

5. When they arrived, Aśvapati had each of his guests worshipped eparately. The next morning, after getting up from bed, he said to them: ‘There is no thief in my state, no miserly person, no drunkard, no brāhmin who does not perform the agnihotra sacrifice, no one who is uneducated, no adulterer, and therefore no adulteress. Sirs, I am performing a sacrifice. The amount of money I will be giving to each priest in this sacrifice, I will give to each one of you. Revered sirs, please stay here’.

Mahabharat 13/141/26-27 – Maheshwar Shiva prescribes to leave eating meat and drinking Alcohol as five signs of Sanatan Dharma

श्रीमहेश्वरने कहा- देवि ! किसी भी जीवकी हिंसा न करना, सत्य बोलना, सब प्राणियोंपर दया करना, मन और इन्द्रियोंपर काबू रखना तथा अपनी शक्तिके अनुसार दान देना गृहस्थ-आश्रमका उत्तम धर्म है ।। २५ ।।

(उक्त गृहस्थ-धर्मका पालन करना,) परायी स्त्रीके संसर्गसे दूर रहना, धरोहर और स्त्रीकी रक्षा करना, बिना दिये किसीकी वस्तु न लेना तथा मांस और मदिराको त्याग देना – से धर्मके पाँच भेद हैं, जो सुखकी प्राप्ति करानेवाले हैं। इनमेंसे एक-एक धर्मकी अनेक शाखाएँ हैं। धर्मको श्रेष्ठ माननेवाले

मनुष्योंको चाहिये कि वे पुण्यप्रद धर्मका पालन अवश्य करें ।।

Lord Maheshwara said:
“O Devi! Not harming any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one’s capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder. (Verse 25)

(Apart from following this householder’s dharma,)
— abstaining from contact with another’s wife,
— protecting entrusted possessions and women,
— not taking anything without giving in return,
— and renouncing meat and alcohol —

These constitute the five forms of Dharma, which lead to happiness.
Each of these principles has many branches.
Those who hold Dharma as supreme should certainly practice this meritorious path.

(Now, I will explain the faults of drinking alcohol)
Those who drink alcohol, after consuming it, laugh loudly in drunkenness, speak nonsensical things, many of them dance happily, and sing good or bad songs.

They quarrel with each other according to their desires and often beat each other. Sometimes they suddenly start running, sometimes they stagger and fall.

How disgraceful! Wherever they go, they begin to speak inappropriate things and sometimes become unconscious, lying on the ground, flailing their limbs.

In this way, with disturbed minds, they express various emotions. Those who drink alcohol, which leads them into delusion, are sinful people.

Drinking alcohol destroys a person's patience, modesty, and intelligence. As a result, they become shameless and immoral.

A person who drinks alcohol loses their sense of duty and propriety, acting according to their own desires, without listening to the guidance of the wise, and thus attracts sin.

An alcoholic person is disgraced in the world. They create rifts among friends, eat everything, and remain unclean at all times.

They destroy themselves in every way and often argue with wise and discerning people. They speak harsh, bitter, and terrifying words.

Being intoxicated, they speak nonsense to their elders, commit sexual violence against other women, consult with tricksters and gamblers, and never listen to any beneficial advice from others.

How disgraceful! There are many faults in alcohol drinkers. They only end up in hell, and there is no question of this being otherwise.

Therefore, the virtuous, who seek their own well-being, have completely renounced drinking alcohol. If, for the sake of protecting righteousness, the virtuous do not give up drinking, the entire world would lose its moral code and become inactive (this is a great sin related to the body).

Srimad Bhagavatam 1.17.38-41 says that Kali lives in Gambling Drinking hence one should not resort to these activities at any cost

Sūta said:

38. (Thus) solicited (by Kali), the King then gave Kali the following places used for gambling, drinking, bad women and slaughtering where four kinds of iniquities thrive.
39. When (Kali) supplicated again, the Lord gave hinı gold (to live in). Then (he gave Kali) five abodes viz. untruth, pride, passion, ignorance and the fifth-enmity.
40. As pointed out by him, Kali, the cause of unright-eousness, lived in these five places allotted to him by the son of Uttarā (Parikşit).
41. Hence these should not be resorted to by persons who are anxious to be good-especially by the rghteous king who is the preceptor and lord of men.

There are many more evidences in Shruti and Mahabharat against Drinking and consuming Alcohol . This much evidences must be enough to debunk the allegations that consuming Alcohol is strictly condemned and forbidden in Sanatan Dharma

Now i will debunk his allegations

Indra, inquisitive about Asava, a particular type of liquor, seeks guidance from Brihaspati. In response, Brihaspati explains the nuances of Asava and also outlines which type of liquor is acceptable for Kshatriyas and Vaishyas, provided it is first offered as a sacred offering to the deities,

📚Brahmanda Purana 4b.7.63-76📚
Indra said: 'What is the nature of Asava? (Liquor). What is its defect? What is its merit? What type of cooked food is defective? Mention this in detail to me.' Brihaspati said: The different types of intoxicating beverages are as follows: Paiffika (made from flour or rice), Talaja (from the date palm), Kaira (cocounut palm-juice), Madhuka (made from honey or Madhuka flowers), Gudasambhava (prepared from molasses). In regard to sinful nature the later ones mentioned above are half as dreadful as the earlier ones. Asava can be used as a beverage by the three castes beginning with the Ksatriyas. Excepting a Brahmana lady, all women can drink liquors beginning with the third one i.e. Kaira (coconut palm juice, and prepared from honey and molasses). A widow, a virgin and a woman in her monthly period shall avoid drinking liquor. If a woman drinks liquor out of covetousness and not in the company of her husband, she is called Unmadini (a mad woman). One should avoid her like a Candala woman. The ratio of drinking liquors in the case of four castes beginning with the Brahmanas shall be ten to eight or six to four. In the case of women it shall be half of the above. If they drink in the company of their husbands it shall be one-fourth of the above. After drinking liquor out of delusion, a Brahmana should perform Krcchracandrayana expiation. Or he shall repeat Gayatri Mantra or Jatavedasa Mantra ten thousand times. If a man repeats Ambikahrdaya Mantra he shall become pure. A Ksatriya among the three castes shall be purified by repeating those Mantras half the number of times. In the case of women the number of repetitions shall be one-fourth or they can get the same done through Brahmanas. One should repeat the Mantras a thousand times under water and become purified thereby. Laksmi, Sarasvati, Gauri, Candika, Tripura, Ambika, Vaisnavi, Bhairavi, Kali and Mahendri are the mothers. There are other Sakti goddesses. In worshipping them the liquor prepared from honey is approved of. A Brahmana who has mastered the Vedangas shall perform worship without wine …The base fellow who drinks liquor without worshipping Para Sakti shall stay in hell called Raurava for a period calculated at the rate of a year for every drop so consumed."

Now before going to his next claims I will like to explain the meaning of word Sura that appears in Vedic Rituals

According to Maharshi Panini's Dhatupatha (root number 1866) and Unadi Sutra (2/24), the word "Sura" is formed by adding the suffix "Kran" to the root "Ṣuñ" (meaning "to press/extract"). The root meaning of this word is the juice obtained by pressing

Nirukta 1/11 states

अथापि न च इत्येष इदित्येतेन सम्प्रयुज्यतेऽनुपृष्टे- 'न चेत्सुरां पिबन्ति' इति । सुरा सुनोतेः ।

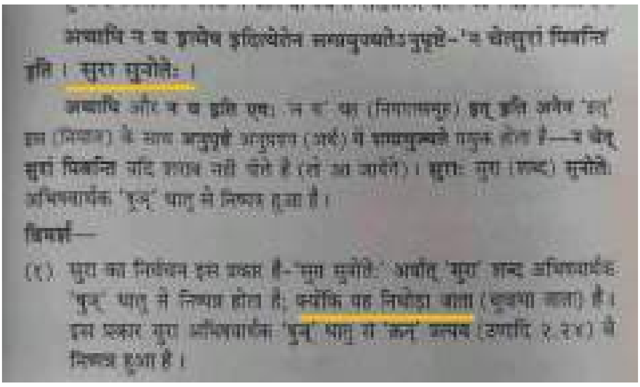
अथापि और न च इति एषः 'न च' यह (निपातसमूह) इत् इति अनेन 'इत्' इस (निपात) के साथ अनुपृष्ट अनुप्रश्न (अर्थ) में सम्प्रयुज्यते प्रयुक्त होता है-न चेत् सुरां पिबन्ति यदि शराब नही पीते हैं (तो आ जायेंगे) । सुराः सुरा (शब्द) सुनोतेः अभिषवार्थक 'पुञ्' धातु से निष्पन्न हुआ है।
विमर्श-
(१) सुरा का निर्वचन इस प्रकार है- 'सुरा सुनोतेः' ार्थात् 'सुरा' शब्द अभिषवार्थक 'षुञ्' धातु से

निष्पन्न होता है; क्योंकि यह निचोड़ा जाता (चुवाया जाता) है। इस प्रकार सुरा अभिषवार्थक 'षुञ्' धातु से 'क्रन्' प्रत्यय (उणादि २.२४) से निष्पन्न हुआ है।

Furthermore, the term “na cha” (न च) — composed of the particles “na” (not) and “cha” (and) — is employed along with the indeclinable particle “it” (इत्) in the sense of an implied or rhetorical question. For example: “na chet surām pibanti” — “If they do not drink surā , (then they will come).”

The word “surā” (सुरा) is derived from the root “ṣuñ” (षुञ्), which means “to extract” or “to press out.”

Discussion:
(1) The etymology (nirvacana) of “surā” is explained thus: “surā” comes from “ṣuñ” (to extract), because it is something that is extracted (or distilled). In this way, the word “surā” is formed by adding the suffix “kran” (Unādi Sūtra 2.24) to the root “ṣuñ”, which conveys the meaning of pressing or extracting.



[illegible] इति । सुरा सुनोतेः ।

विमर्श—

(१) सुरा का निर्वचन इस प्रकार है- 'सुरा सुनोतेः' अर्थात् 'सुरा' शब्द अभिषवार्थक 'षुञ्' धातु से निष्पन्न होता है; क्योंकि यह निचोड़ा जाता (चुवाया जाता) है। इस प्रकार सुरा अभिषवार्थक 'षुञ्' धातु से 'क्रन्' प्रत्यय (उणादि २.२४) से निष्पन्न हुआ है।

In the Vedas, the use of surā is prescribed in certain sacrificial rituals. From an ordinary worldly perspective, surā is commonly understood to mean ɔquor or wine.

However, the Sanskrit of the Vedas is not conventional (rūḍha), but rather etymological (yaugika), based on the original meanings of words.

In Vedic ritual contexts, “surā” does not mean alcohol. Instead, it refers to the juice obtained by pressing medicinal herbs into water, and it is with this extracted juice that the sacrificial rituals (yajña) are performed.

Satapatha Brahmana 12/8/1/4

यह आहुति इस मन्त्र से दी जाती है- “यस्ते रसः सम्भृत ऽ ओषधीषु सोमस्य शुष्मः सुरया सुतस्य । तेन जिन्व यजमानं मदेन सरस्वतीमश्विनाविन्द्रमग्निम्” (यजु० १६।३३) – “यह जो सुरा है वह जलों और ओषधियों का रस है। इस प्रकार इसको जलों और ओषधियों के रस से समृद्ध करता है। सोम में जो शक्ति है और जो सुरा में, उन दोनों का लाभ करता है। 'तेन जिन्व यजमानं मदेन' का तात्पर्य है कि उस आनन्द से यजमान को प्रसन्न कर। सरस्वती और अश्विन, इन देवताओं से यज्ञ को बढ़ाता है और उन्हीं देवताओं और यज्ञ के द्वारा यजमान को। आहुति देकर सुरा का पान करते हैं। इस प्रकार जो त्रुटि होती है, उसको दूर करते हैं

This oblation is offered with the following mantra:

“Yas te rasaḥ sambhṛtaḥ oṣadhīṣu somasya śuṣmaḥ surayā sutasya | tena jinva yajamānaṃ madena Sarasvatīm aśvināv indram agnim” (Yajurveda 16.33).

— “This surā is the juice of waters and medicinal herbs. In this way, it is enriched by the essence of waters and herbs.
: derives benefit from both the potency present in Soma and in Surā.

'Tena jinva yajamānaṃ madena' means: With that bliss, make the sacrificer (yajamāna) joyful.
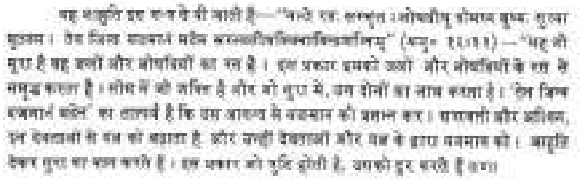
Through Sarasvatī and the Aśvins, the sacrifice is enhanced, and through these deities and the sacrifice, the sacrificer is elevated.

After offering the oblation, they partake of the surā.
In doing so, any shortcomings or errors in the ritual are corrected."

In the Shatapatha Brahmana (12.8.1), within the context of the Sautrāmaṇi sacrifice, it is also stated that the surā refers to the juice of medicinal herbs that has been extracted into water. After offering it as an oblation in the sacrifice, there is a prescription to partake of it.



Since surā is the juice of medicinal herbs, the Brāhmaṇa texts describe surā with epithets such as "bestower of fame and valor" and "supreme nourishment" (parama-anna).

Meaning: Surā is fame (glory); through it, one attains strength and valor.

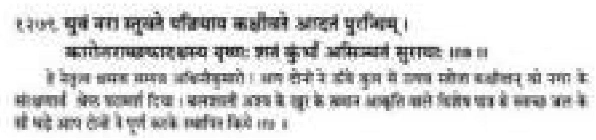
"O Ashvini Kumars, endowed with leadership and wisdom! You both gave excellent counsel for the protection of the city to Kakshivan, the chanter born in a noble lineage. With a specially shaped vessel, resembling the strong hoof of a powerful horse, you both filled and placed a hundred jars of pure water.



Allegations–

📚Shatapatha Brahmana 12.7.3.8📚
There are both milk and Surâ-liquor; for milk is Soma, and the Surâ-liquor food: through the milk he secures the Soma-drink, and through the Surâ-liquor food. And milk is the nobility (chieftaincy), and Surâ-liquor the peasantry (clan); the milk he purifies after purifying the Surâ-liquor: he thus produces the nobility from out of the peasantry, for the nobility is produced from out of the peasantry."

📚Shatapatha Brahmana 12.9.1.1📚
Verily, from this sacrifice the man is born and whatever food a man consumes in this world, that (food), in return, consumes him in yonder world. Now this sacrifice is performed by means of spirituous liquor, and spirituous liquor (parisrut is not to be consumed by a Brâhmana: he thus is born from that which is not (to be) consumed, and the food does not, in return, consume him in yonder world. Therefore this (sacrifice), the Sautrâmanî, is a Brâhmana's sacrifice."

📚Shatapatha Brahmana 5.1.2.14📚

📚Shatapatha Brahmana 5.5.4.19📚
Let him therefore rather throw them into the fermented liquor (Parisrut)...let him therefore throw it rather into the spirituous liquor."

Refutation –

Here the context is about the Sautrāmani sacrifice . Srimad Bhagvatam 11.5.13 clarifies that in Sautrāmani sacrifice The smelling of Sura is laid down as its intake and no drinking is permitted

सौत्रामणि यज्ञमें भी सुराको सूँघनेका ही विधान है, पीनेका नहीं

In the Sautramani sacrifice, it is prescribed to smell Sura , not to drink it

13. The smelling of wine (in the Sautrāmaṇi sacrifice) is laid down as its intake (and no drinking of liquor is permitted); a beast is to be (symbolically) offered to the deities (by touching it) in sacrifices, but no killing for meat-eating is allowed; similarly, sexual intercourse (with one's wife) is to be indulged in for procreation but not for sexual enjoyment. But people do not understand this pure course of their own dharma.

Allegations–

📚Aitareya Brahmana 8.8📚
The spirituous liquor represents the Kshattra, and further, the juice in the food; thus both the Kshattra and the juice in the food, are placed in him... Now he gives into his hand a goblet of spirituous liquor, under the recital of the verse, svadishthaya madishthaya, (9.1.1) i.e. 'Purify, O Soma! with thy sweetest most exhilarating drops (the sacrificer), thou who art squeezed for Indra, to be drunk by him.' After having put the spirituous liquor into his hand, the priest repeats a propitiatory mantra (which runs thus): 'To either of you (spirituous liquor and Soma!) a separate residence has been prepared, and allotted by the gods. Do not mix with one another in the highest heaven; liquor! thou art powerful; Soma! thou art a king. Do not harm him (the king)! may either go to his own place.' (Here is said), that the drinking of the Soma and that of liquor, exclude one another (they are not to be mixed). After having drunk it...Thus he finally places the liquor in his friend (gives him a share in it)

📚Aitareya Brahmana 8.20📚
Then the priest gives into his hands a goblet filled with spirituous liquor, repeating the mantra, svadishthaya. He then should drink the remainder (after previous libations to the gods)…The Soma beverage which is (in a mystical way) contained in the spirituous liquor, is thus drunk by the king, who is inaugurated by means of Indra's inauguration ceremony (the ceremony just described)…The drinking of spirituous liquor, or Soma, or the enjoyment of some other exquisite food, affects the body of the Kshattriya who is inaugurated by means of Indra's great inauguration ceremony

Pandit Madhavacharya Shatri explained in his book Purana Digdarshan as

वेद पुराण आदि हिन्दू धर्मग्रन्थों में जहां सत्वगुणी और रजोगुणी पुरुषों को धर्मनिष्ठ रहने की आज्ञा दी है वहाँ तमोगुणी मनुष्यों को भी आस्तिक बनाए रखने को व्यवस्था की है। सनातनधर्म के विशाल क्षेत्र में संसार भर के भले और बुरे सभी प्रकार के मनुष्य समा सकते हैं । यही सार्वभौम धर्म बड़े से बड़े दुराचारी को भी क्रमशः सदाचारी बनाने की शक्ति रखता है । अतएव गीता में- 'न बुद्धिभेदं जनयेदज्ञानां कर्मसंगिनाम्'- ऐसी श्राज्ञा दी गई है। प्रत्यक्ष में भी देखा जाता है कि शराबी एवं कबाबी मनुष्यों को एकदम इस चिराभ्यस्त दुराचार से हटाने की चेष्टा की जाए तो सफलता नहीं मिलती। इसीलिये मीता के 'शनैशनैरुपरमेत' आदेश के अनुसार तरीके से ही धीरे २ बुराइयों को दूर किया जा सकता है।
तमोगुणी पुरुषों का सर्वथा बहिष्कार कर दिया जाय, यह भी सम्भव नहीं हो सकता, क्योंकि 'प्रवृत्तिरेषा भूतानाम्' इस मनूक्ति के अनुसार संसार में तमोगुणी मनुष्यों की संख्या अत्यधिक है वे बहिष्कृत किये जाने पर और भी उद्दण्ड एवं उच्छङ्खल हो जाएंगे और देश में ऐसी अशान्ति फैलेगी कि सदाचारी-समुदाय को जीवन निर्वाह करना भी महाकठिन हो जायगा, अतः ईश्वर ने तमोगुणी मनुष्यों को भी धर्मसूत्र में बाँधकर अस्तिक बनाये रखने का आदेश दिया है और मनुष्य समाज में उनका विशिष्ट स्थान रख दिया है। वे लोग पूजन सामग्री तो अपने आचार के अनुसार ही बर्ताव में लायेंगे, परन्तु किसी न किसी

'यदन्नः पुरुषो लोके तदन्नास्तस्य देवताः'
(वाल्मीकीय रामा० अयोध्या० २०३-३०)
अर्थात् – मनुष्य स्वयं जैसा भोजन खाने वाला हो वह अपने देव-ताओं को भी वैसा ही प्रदान करता है-ऐसा सिद्धांत स्थिर किया है।
सो भविष्यपुराण का 'कुमारी सुभगा देवी' आदि विधान भी केवल तामस मनुष्यों से ही सम्बन्ध रखता है। वे उक्त रीति से पूजन कर सकते हैं। शेष वैष्णवी

उपासना वाले सदाचारी पुरुष तो विशुद्ध पत्रपुष्पादि से ही पूजन करते हैं- यह प्रत्यक्ष में भी देखा जाता है।

English Translation-

In the Sanatan scriptures such as the Vedas and Puranas, just as virtuous conduct is enjoined upon people of sattvic (pure) and rajasic (passionate) nature, a system is also laid out to keep tamasic (ignorant or dull) people theistic (believers in God). Within the vast domain of Sanatan Dharma , all types of people—good and bad from across the world—can find a place. Sanatan Dharma has the power to gradually transform even the most wicked individuals into virtuous ones. Therefore, the Bhagavad Gita instructs:

"Na buddhi-bhedam janayed ajnanaam karma-sanginaam"
("One should not disturb the minds of the ignorant who are attached to work.")

It is also seen practically that if one tries to immediately remove deeply rooted bad habits—like drinking and meat-eating—from certain individuals, success is rarely achieved. Hence, as per the Gita's instruction "Shanaiḥ shanaiḥ uparamet" ("Gradually one should cease "), vices must be removed slowly and tactfully.

Completely excluding tamasic individuals is not feasible, because as per the scripture "Pravrittir eṣhā bhūtānām" ("Such tendencies are inherent in living beings"), the number f tamasic people in the world is quite large. If excluded, they would become even more rebellious and unruly, spreading such chaos in society that the virtuous would find it extremely difficult to live peacefully. Therefore, God has bound even the tamasic individuals through the framework of Dharma and commanded that they be maintained as theists, assigning them a specific place in human society.

These individuals may use worship materials in accordance with their behavior, but in one way or another, they remain God-believers and theistic. For this reason, the sages have stated:

“Yad-annaḥ puruṣo loke tad-annās tasya devatāḥ”
(Valmiki Ramayana, Ayodhya Kanda, 203.30)
“Whatever food a person eats in this world, that same kind of food he offers to his deities.”

This principle has been established. Hence, the ritual in Vishnu Purana and Narada Purana , is also related only to tamasic individuals. They can perform worship in that specific way. On the other hand, virtuous individuals who follow Vaishnava worship engage purely in worship with sacred leaves and flowers, as can be observed in reality.

वेद पुराण आदि हिन्दू धर्मग्रन्थों में जहां सत्वगुणी और रजोगुणी पुरुषों को धर्मनिष्ठ रहने की आज्ञा दी है वहाँ तमोगुणी मनुष्यों को भी आस्तिक बनाए रखने की व्यवस्था की है। सनातनधर्म के विशाल क्षेत्र में संसार भर के भले और बुरे सभी प्रकार के मनुष्य समा सकते हैं। यही सार्वभौम धर्म बड़े से बड़े दुराचारी को भी क्रमशः सदाचारी बनाने की शक्ति रखता है। अतएव गीता में—'न बुद्धिभेदं जनयेदज्ञानां कर्मसंगिनाम्'—ऐसी आज्ञा दी गई है। प्रत्यक्ष में भी देखा जाता है कि शराबी एवं कबाबी मनुष्यों को एकदम इस चिराभ्यस्त दुराचार से छुड़ाने की चेष्टा की जाए तो सफलता नहीं मिलती। इसीलिये गीता के 'शनैःशनैरुपरमेत्' आदेश के अनुसार तरीके से ही धीरे २ बुराइयों को दूर किया जा सकता है।

तमोगुणी पुरुषों का सर्वथा बहिष्कार कर दिया जाय, यह भी सम्भव नहीं हो सकता, क्योंकि—'प्रकृतिरेषा भूतानाम्' इस उक्ति के अनुसार संसार में तमोगुणी मनुष्यों की संख्या अत्यधिक है वे बहिष्कृत किये जाने पर और भी उद्दण्ड एवं उच्छृङ्खल हो जाएंगे और देश में ऐसी अशान्ति फैलेगी कि सदाचारी-समुदाय को जीवन निर्वाह करना भी महाकठिन हो जायगा, अतः ईश्वर ने तमोगुणी मनुष्यों को भी धर्मसूत्र में बांधकर आस्तिक बनाये रखने का आदेश दिया है और मनुष्य समाज में उनका विशिष्ट स्थान रख दिया है। वे लोग पूजन सामग्री भी अपने आचार के अनुसार ही बर्ताव में लावेंगे, परन्तु किसी न किसी तरह ईश्वर उपासक एवं आस्तिक अवश्य बने रहेंगे। इसलिए ऋषियों ने—

अर्थात्—मनुष्य स्वयं जैसा भोजन खाने वाला हो वह अपने देवताओं को भी वैसा ही प्रदान करता है—ऐसा सिद्धांत स्थिर किया है।

श्री भविष्यपुराण का 'कुमारी सुन्दरी देवी' आदि विधान भी केवल तामस मनुष्यों से ही सम्बन्ध रखता है। वे उक्त रीति से पूजन कर सकते हैं। शैव वैष्णवोपासना वाले सदाचारी पुरुष तो विशुद्ध पत्रपुष्पादि से ही पूजन करते हैं—यह प्रत्यक्ष में भी देखा जाता है। तमोगुणी अधिकारियों के लिए वेद में भी ऐसी तामसी उपासना का उल्लेख मिलता है, यथा—

Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of Allegations on Shiva Linga

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of “Whats a Shiva Lingam ”.

Allegations-

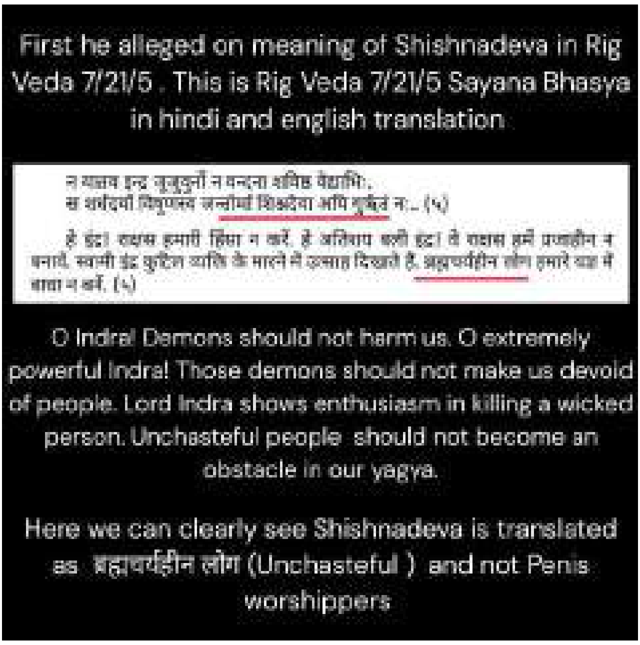
Traces of Phallus or Shiva Lingam worship can be found in the Rig Veda, the oldest scripture of Hinduism. Rig Veda Mandal 7, Sukta 21, verse 5 mentions Shishnadeva, which is literally translated as “Penis worshippers” (Sishna+Deva), and we learn that the ancient Aryans were hostile towards these worshipers.

Refutation-

First he alleged on meaning of Shishnadeva in Rig Veda 7/21/5. This is Rig Veda 7/21/5 Sayana Bhasya in hindi and english translation

यातव इन्द्र जूजुवुर्नो न वन्दना शविष्ठ वेद्याभिः. स

शर्धदर्यो विषुणस्य जन्तोर्मा शिश्नदेवा अपि गुर्ऋतं नः.. (५)
हे इंद्र ! राक्षस हमारी हिंसा न करें. हे अतिशय बली इंद्र ! वे राक्षस हमें प्रजाहीन न बनावें. स्वामी इंद्र कुटिल व्यक्ति के मारने में उत्साह दिखाते हैं. ब्रह्मचर्यहीन लोग हमारे यज्ञ में बाधा न बनें. (५)
O Indra! Demons should not harm us. O extremely powerful Indra! Those demons should not make us devoid of people. Lord Indra shows enthusiasm in killing a wicked person. Unchasteful people should not become an obstacle in our yagya.
Here we can clearly see Shishnadeva is translated as ब्रह्मचर्यहीन लोग (Unchasteful) and not Penis worshippers



Acharya Sayana in his commentary on Rig Veda 7/21/5 too interprets शिश्नदेवा as अब्रह्मचर्या (Unchasteful people)

हे इन्द्र यातवः राक्षसाः नः अस्मान् न जूजुवुः न हिंस्युः। जूजुवुरिति हिंसाक्रियः पृथक्करणक्रियो वा। अपि च हे शविष्ठ बलवत्तमेन्द्र वन्दना वन्दनानि रक्षांसि वेद्याभिः वेद्याभ्यः प्रजाभ्यो नोऽस्मान् न जूजुवुः न पृथक्कुर्वन्तु। किञ्च अर्यः स्वामी स इन्द्रः विषुणस्य विषमस्य जन्तोः प्राणिनः शासने शर्धत् उत्साहेत। अपि च शिश्नदेवाः। शिश्नेन दीव्यन्ति क्रीडन्ति इति शिश्नदेवाः। अब्रह्मचर्या इत्यर्थः। नः अस्माकम् ऋतं यज्ञं सत्यं वा मा अपि गुः मा अपिगमन्। तथा च यास्कः- स उत्सहतां यो विषुणस्य जन्तोर्विषमस्य मा शिश्नदेवा अब्रह्मचर्याः। शिश्नं श्नथतेः। अपि गुर्ऋतं नः सत्यं वा यज्ञं वा (निरु. ४.१९) इति ॥ ॥ २ ॥

Yaskacharya in his Nirukta 4.19 too says that शिश्नदेवा means अब्रह्मचर्या (Unchasteful people)

[6] स शर्धदर्यो विषुणस्य जन्तोर्मा शिश्नदेवा अपि गुर्ऋतं नः।
स उत्सहतां यो विषुणस्य जन्तोर्विषमस्य। मा शिश्नदेवा अब्रह्मचर्याः। शिश्नं श्नथते। अपि गुर्ऋतं नः। सत्यं वा यज्ञं वा ४.१९

1. The meaning of Ling/Linga/Lingam

ISKCON scholars have provided the following meaning,

“lingam — phallic symbol which is used in the worship of Lord Śiva.”

Refutation-

Next he alleged on meaning of Shiva Linga In Shastras and alleged that Shiva Linga represents male private part which is totally wrong because as per Vedic Darshan Shastras and Upanishads – THE TERM LINGA MEANS “MARK”OR “SYMBOL” WHICH REPRESENTS THE NISHKALA (FORMLESS) AND NIRGUMA(ATTRIBUTELESS) ASPECT OF LORD SHIVA WHO IS THE SUPREME REALITY. SHVETASVATARA UPANISHAD CHAPTER 6 MANTRA 9 USES THE TERM

LINGA BY DENOTING IT TO BE A SIGN OR SYMBOL.

Goddess Parvati, engaged in planting trees, giving charity, and honoring guests, upheld righteousness, dispelling the fears of living beings. In summer, she performed penance amid five fires; in the rainy season, she lay upon an open platform; and in the winter and cold season, she remained standing in the midst of water, thus carrying out her austerities. The virtuous great sages, coming to see her, were astonished nd worshipped her. (Verses 13–16)

One day, Gauri herself brought from the forest a plentiful supply of pure flowers with fresh buds. From the sand of the Kampa she constructed a Shiva linga. With the proper ritual gestures and invocation, she began the worship of Shiva right there on the bank of the Kampa. She offered to the Sun-god an oblation of red flowers and a red garland, and then, in due order, completed the worship of Shankara with the five coverings. Afterwards, filled with devotion, she presented incense, lamps, and food offerings to Shiva, and saw that directly before her stood Lord Ishana Shiva, the God of gods. (Verses 17–20)

कम्प, स्वेद, भीति, प्रणय, लज्जा तथा केलि लक्षण उपस्थित हो गये, तथापि उन्होंने क्षण काल के लिए भी स्वयं को चंचल नहीं होने दिया तथा शिवलिंग को अलग नहीं किया। तब एक अशरीरी दैववाणी (आकाशवाणी) उन्होंने सुनी "हे बालिके! महाप्रवाह समाप्त हो गया! तुम लिंग छोड़ दो। तुमने इस स्थिर वैभव बालुकालिंग का पूजन किया है। हे महाभागे ! यह वरदलिंग सुरगण हेतु भी पूज्य हो जाये

"It seems to me," she thought, "that this stream, formed by the divine play of Shiva, has come to purify my soul through devotion at the feet of Shiva. O my friends! All of you go away from here. I shall remain here, firmly embracing the Shiva linga with my hands."

Saying this, Ambika encircled the linga with her arms and, even when surrounded by the powerful current of water, did not release it. When the waters rose and her body was submerged up to her breasts, she respectfully bowed to the linga she embraced, first making ritual gestures and signs. Immersed in meditation, with a heart absorbed in contemplation, eyes shining with joy, and her body thrilled with piloerection, Goddess Ambika continuously remembered the eternal Shiva. (Verses 28–32)

At once, trembling, perspiration, awe, affection, modesty, and playful charm appeared together in the Blessed One. Yet, not for a moment did she allow herself to become restless, nor did she separate from the linga. Then she eard a bodiless divine voice from the sky:

"O maiden! The great flood has ended! Release the linga. You have worshipped this steadfast, glorious sand linga. O highly fortunate one! This boon-bestowing linga shall become worthy of worship even for the gods."

THE TERM LINGA MEANS "MARK"OR "SYMBOL" WHICH REPRESENTS THE NISHKALA (FORMLESS) AND NIRGUMA(ATTRIBUTELESS) ASPECT OF LORD SHIVA WHO IS THE SUPREME REALITY. SHVETASVATARA UPANISHAD CHAPTER 6 MANTRA 9 USES THE TERM LINGA BY DENOTING IT TO BE A SIGN OR SYMBOL.

Allegations-

2. Rishis cutting off Shiva's penis

There are two main versions of how the Shivling originated. One indicates that the Shivling represents a male organ, while the other portrays it as an immeasurable cosmic pillar; both versions support the notion of Shivling symbolizing a penis. The emphasis on Shivling as a penis is noticeable in Hindu scriptures, resulting in various stories about its origin. The most frequently repeated tale revolves around Shiva assuming the Bhikshatana avatar, his “Supreme Beggar” form, appearing as a nude man. In the Daruvanam forest, where Rishis lived with their families, Shiva arrived fully unclothed, carrying a begging bowl, and some texts suggest he appeared before the wives and daughters of Rishis with an erect penis, which I consider an act of molestation. In the modern world, such behaviour would lead to sexual harassment charges and imprisonment. This incident angered the Rishis, who retaliated by assaulting Shiva (Bhikshatana) and cutting off his enis. In some versions, the penis fell due to a curse by sages and grew larger, causing havoc on the Earth. Seeking a resolution, the Rishis sought help from Brahma, who advised them to appease Shiva. Following Brahma's counsel, the Rishis implored Shiva to withdraw his Ling. Shiva agreed, but on the condition that the Rishis create a pedestal resembling Parvati's vagina, where the Ling could be placed, and they should start worshipping it. Following Shiva's instructions, the worship of Shivling commenced.

Let's delve into Hindu texts to explore different versions of Shivling's origin,

📚Shiva Purana 4.12.8-51📚
Once the leading Brahmin devotees of Siva engrossed in the meditation of Siva went into the forest for bringing sacrificial twigs. In the meantime Siva himself assuming a very hideous form came there in order to test their devotion. He was very brilliant but stark naked. He had smeared ashes all over his body as the sole ornament. Standing there and holding his penis he began to show all sorts of vicious tricks. It was with a mind to do something pleasing to the forest-dwellers that Siva, favourite of the devotees, came to the forest at his will. The wives of the sages were extremely frightened at this sight. The other women excited and surprised approached the lord. Some embraced him. Others held his hands. The women were engrossed in struggling with one another...When the naked sage did not reply, the great sages told that terrible Puruṣa. “You are acting pervertedly. This violates the Vedic path. Hence let your penis fall on the ground.” When they said thus, the penis of that Avadhūta, who was Śiva of wonderful form, fell down instantly. That penis burnt everything in front; wherever it went it began to burn everything there. It went to Pātāla; it went to heaven; it went all over the earth; it never remained steady anywhere. “When the naked sage did…Brahmā said:— Let the gods propitiate goddess Pārvatī and pray. If she can assume the form of the vaginal passage that penis will become steady…The penis shall be drenched with that water, O great sages. When the sprinkling is made with Śatarudrīya mantras it will become stable. Pārvatī in the form of the Vaginal passage and an auspicious arrow shall form as the pedestal wherein the phallus shall be installed in accompaniment of the Vedic mantras…After propitiating Pārvatī and the bull-bannered lord and performing the rites mentioned before, the excellent penis became static… Śiva became delighted and so also Pārvatī, the mother of the universe. That phallus was held by her in that form then.”

Refutation-

Next he alleged on Daruvan Incident Story from Various Puranas. Before understanding this story we have to keep in mind that This incident is of previous kalpa and not the current kalpa . It doesn’t talk about origin of Shiv linga but only talks about formation of Hatkeshwar Linga In Fact the Shiv Linga was manifested during the formation of Universe only . Further he quoted JL Shastri translation over this story which are totally wrong and mistranslated without understanding the context of this story from other Puranas or from commentaries and explanations over Puranas like Purana Digdarshan etc

The Daruvan Incident comes in Various Puranas such as Linga, Shiva, Brahma Purana so we will be seeing them as well to understand this story Before Proceeding let me state that as Malechas claim that this incident is responsible for the formation of Shiv Linga, you are totally wrong its only responsible for formation of Hatkeshwar Linga

   Means this incident is of another kalpa . Kalpa in Puranas refers to another time period of Creation. So this incident did not occur in the present kalpa or creation

WHY SHIV JI CAME AND WHAT WAS THE REASON FOR THIS INCIDENT..?

व्यासजीसे जो कल्पभेदकी कथा सुनी है, उसीका आज वर्णन कर रहा हूँ, आपलोग सुनें ॥ ४॥
पूर्वकालमें दारुवनमें ब्राह्मणोंके साथ जो घटना घटी, उसीको आप लोग सुनें। जैसा मैंने सुना है, वैसा ही कहता हूँ। है ऋषिसत्तमो ! जो दारु नामक श्रेष्ठ वन है, वहाँ नित्य शिवजीके ध्यानमें तत्पर शिवभक्त [ब्राह्मण] रहा करते थे ॥ ५-६ ॥
हे मुनीश्वरो ! वे तीनों कालोंमें सदा शिवजीकी पूजा करते थे और नाना प्रकारके स्तोत्रोंसे उनकी स्तुति किया करते थे। शिवध्यानमें मग्न रहनेवाले वे शिवभक्त श्रेष्ठ ब्राह्मण किसी समय समिधा लेनेके लिये वनमें गये हुए थे ॥ ७-८ ॥

इसी बीच उन लोगोंकी परीक्षा लेनेहेतु साक्षात् नीललोहित [भगवान्] शंकर विकट रूप धारणकर वहाँ आये। वे दिगम्बर, भस्मरूप भूषणसे विभूषित तथा महातेजस्वी भगवान् शंकर हाथमें [तेजोमय] लिंगको धारणकर विचित्र लीला करने लगे ॥ ९-१० ॥

Verse 4:
“I am now narrating the story of the different cosmic cycles (Kalpa-bheda) that I heard from Sage Vyasa. All of you, lease listen attentively.”

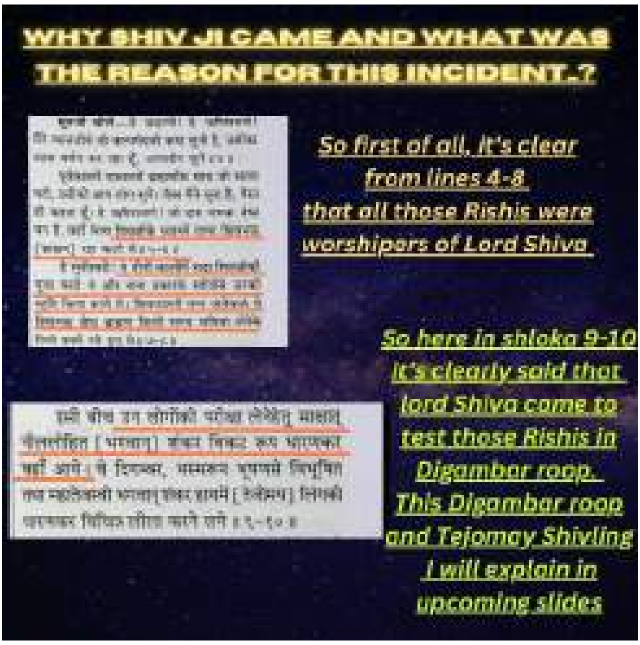
Verses 5–6:
“In ancient times, in the Daru forest, an event occurred involving a group of Brahmins. Listen to that story as I have heard it. O best of sages! In the forest known as Daru — a most excellent forest — there lived devoted Brahmins who were always engaged in meditating on Lord Shiva.”

Verses 7–8:
“O great sages! Those Brahmins, devoted to Shiva, worshipped Him at all times — past, present, and future — and praised Him with various hymns. Absorbed in the meditation of Shiva, these noble Brahmins had once gone into the forest to collect sacrificial firewood (samidha).”

Verses 9–10:
“Meanwhile, to test them, Lord Shankara Himself — the blue-throated (Neelalohita), appeared there in a fierce and unusual form. Naked (digambara), adorned with sacred ash as His ornament, and radiating immense brilliance, Lord Shiva held a blazing, radiant linga in His hand and began performing a wondrous divine play (leela).”

So first of all, it’s clear from lines 4-8 that all those Rishis were worshipers of Lord Shiva

So here in shloka 9-10 it’s clearly said that lord Shiva came to test those Rishis in Digambar roop. This Digambar roop and Tejomay Shivling
I will explain in upcoming slides



Lord Shiva's form

दिगम्बरोऽतितेजस्वी भूतिभूषणभूषितः ।
It is written in sloka 10 that he was in Digambar form. In Digambar swarap a Sadhu leaves all his clothes to leave the material detachment but the society doesn't see them in Obscene way and respects them and their penace. To understand this further let me quote

Avadhuta Upanishad verses 1–2

An Avadhuta is one who is connected with the imperishable (Aksara), worthy of being chosen (Varaniya), free from the bonds of worldly existence (Dhutasamsarabandhana), and possesses the understanding of the essential meaning of statements like 'Tat Tvam Asi' (That Thou Art). The word 'Avadhuta' is formed from the syllables 'A' from Aksara (imperishable), 'Va' from Varaniya (worthy of being chosen), 'Dhu' from Dhutasamsarabandhana (freed from worldly bonds), and 'Ta' from Tat Tvam Asi (essential meaning of the statement)."

What was lord Shiva holding in his hand

Shiv Purana 4.12.9-10

इसी बीच उन लोगोंकी परीक्षा लेनेहेतु साक्षात् नीललोहित [भगवान्] शंकर विकट रूप धारणकर वहाँ आये। वे दिगम्बर, भस्मरूप भूषणसे विभूषित तथा महातेजस्वी भगवान् शंकर हाथमें तेजोमय लिंगको धारणकर विचित्र लीला करने लगे ॥ ९-१०॥

"Meanwhile, to test those people, the Supreme Lord Shiva Himself—manifesting as Nīlalohita—appeared there in a fierce form. He was sky-clad (digambara), adorned with ashes as ornaments, and was immensely radiant. Holding a blazing, luminous liṅga in His hand, Lord Shiva began to perform a wondrous and extraordinary play.

Brahmanda Purana 2.27
10-12. Then the lord came to that forest in order to confer grace on them. His limbs were grey due to the appli-cation of Bhasman (ashes). He was naked. He had hideous features. His hairs were dishevelled and ugly. His teeth were terrific. His hands eagerly got hold of a firebrand.

Linga Purana 1.31
28-32. The lord had vulgar traits. He was stark nude. He had smeared his limbs with ashes. His hands were engaged in whirling a firebrand. His eyes were red and tawny. Sometimes he laughed biosteriously, sometimes he sang surprisingly.
Thus its clear from this that lord Shiva was holding a Fire Brand and not his penis as per Shiva, Brahmanda and Linga Purana

Curse of Rishis explained

Brahmanda Purana 2.27

14. Deluded and enchanted by him the wives of the sages immediately prevented him from dancing. After coming to the hermitage as a guest, he began to beg again and again.
15. He created a wife unto himself, similar in form and bedecked in ornaments. He roared and bellowed like a bull and brayed like a donkey.
16. He began to befool them making all the embodied ones laugh. Thereupon, the sages became angry. They were over-whelmed by fury.
17. Fascinated by his deluding power (Māyā) they approached him in order to curse him. “Since you sing (bray) like a (donkey) you will become a donkey.

So Deluded by Shiva's Maya The Rishis could not realise that The Digambar Sadhu was none other Lord Shiva and out of lord Shiva's Maya the Rishi curse him that the Fiery substance which he was holding would fall down

But the curse could not affect him and he didn't dropped the Fire linga that he hold in his hand instead he transformed his form into a Linga there

On hearing these words of the sages, Lord Sankara, the destroyer of the eyes of Bhaga, said in polished speech, as though he was laughing boisterously.
"This Linga of ours cannot be made to fall down forcibly by all the gods beginning with Brahmā. How then be the other ascetics. O excellent Brahmaṇas, I shall make this Linga fall down."
34-36. They uttered the sentence "Stay in the hermitage or go away".
On being spoken to thus, lord Mahādeva became delight-ed in the activities of the sense-organs. Even as all of them were observing, the lord vanished there itself.
When the lord vanished and Bhava (God Śiva) was trans-formed into a Linga, there was no appearance of any living being in the range of the three worlds. Everything was agitated

Mata Parvati's Yoni roop:-
Sometimes I really think that how stupid these translators like JL Shastri are, in Shiv Puran 4.12, in verse 3 he clearly mentions Arrow form of Devi Parvati

3. Parvati, the beloved of Śiva, is heard in the world in the form of an arrow. O Sūta, what is the reason for this? Please satisfy our curiosity in this respect by giving the account you have heard.

Now see how this stupid translated verse 32 and 37 as viginal passage

Now this clear hypocrisy can be seen in these verses (i.e 32&37)
In Verse 32 yoni roopa is refers to Arrow बाणरूपा श्रुता लोके पार्वती (verse 3)The term Bana(Arrow) is related to the number five as devi holds 5 arrows as one arrorw symbolizing Panchattvamika Prakriti.

Swami Karpatri explains the arrow form is yoni form(prakrti) The scientist who interprets linga and yoni as procreative organs can never figure out the meaning of arrow (banaroopa) mentioned in v3.

अतः पार्वती ने योनिरूप से उस लिङ्ग को धारण किया अर्थात् पञ्चतत्त्वात्मिका प्रकृति बन कर उन्होंने ब्रह्माण्ड को धारण किया। अग्निमय सर्वदाहक लिङ्ग को योनि-प्राकृत चर्मखण्ड मूत्रेन्द्रिय में कौन धारण कर सकता था?

Prakrti, made up of the fivefold elements (pañcatattvātmaka), is the yoni, the support for the brilliant energy of the Absolute (brahma teja kā ādhāra), this linga of light. Therefore, to say that Parvati took the shape of a yoni to hold the linga means that, becoming prakrti – in the form of the five elements – she supported the Universe. Could a worldly yoni, a urinary organ, a scrap of leather, support the jyotirlinga, made of fire, that burns everything? 76

The meaning of the form of the yoni is the same as that of the form of the arrow. The word 'arrow' (bāṇa) is indicative of the number five: it is applied with regards to Kāma, by reason of his five arrows; when addressed towards Śiva, it regards his five faces and when to Parvati, the perspective is her nature comprised of by the five elements. Just as a mass of electricity (vidyut puñja) pervades the five elements, yet is more predominant within water and in mountain ranges, similarly did Parvati become arrow-shaped, that is of the form of a mountain range, and into her the effulgent linga (tejomaya linga) entered. If the mass of electricity were to fall into her yoni that is, into earth or water it would become stable; otherwise, it would reduce trees, men nd everything else to ashes. It was

What is perishable, is Primary Matter (pradhana). What is immortal and imperishable, is Hara (the 'Bearer,' the soul).
Over both the perishable and the soul the One God (deva) rules.
By meditation upon Him, by union with Him, and by entering into His being.
More and more, there is finally cessation from every illusion (māyā-nivṛtti).
Even Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8 too tells that Brahm is अव्रणम् means Free from any imperfections or injuries and that he cannot be injured by anyone and Shiva being Param Brahm he is also free from injuries

Allegations-

📚Kurma Purana 2.38.52-54📚
The sages said: A certain highly brilliant person has entered the holy Daruvana along with his wife, who was very beautiful in all her limbs. But he was naked. The lordly person fascinated our entire women and daughters, with his charming personality. While his beloved defiled our sons. We heaped various imprecations and curses on him but they were defied and set at nought. He was beaten soundly by us. His Linga was struck down

इस (नर्मदा) नदीके उत्तरी किनारेपर तीनों लोकोंमें विख्यात भद्रेश्वरनामका तीर्थ है, जो पवित्र, शुभ तथा सभी पापोंका हरण करनेवाला है। राजन्! वहाँ स्नान करके मनुष्य देवताओंके साथ आनन्दित होता है। राजेन्द्र ! वहाँसे आम्रातकेश्वर तीर्थमें जाना चाहिये। राजन्! वहाँ स्नान करके मनुष्य हजार गौओंके दानका फल प्राप्त करता है॥ ४-५ ॥

Markandeya said – The sages, and even before them, the self-born Lord (Svayambhu Ishwara), have described the Narmada River as the supreme river that destroys all sins. When praised by the sages, this sacred Narmada River emerged from the body of Rudra (Shiva) with the intention of benefiting humanity. She is eternal, destroyer of all sins, and praised by the Apsaras (celestial nymphs). She is revered by all the gods, and worshipped by gods and Gandharvas (celestial musicians).

On the northern bank of this Narmada River, there is a pilgrimage site named Bhadreshwar, which is renowned across the three worlds. It is holy, auspicious, and a remover of all sins. O King! Bathing there causes a human to rejoice with the gods.

O ruler of men! From there, one should proceed to the pilgrimage site of Amrateshwar.
O King! Bathing there grants the merit equal to donating a thousand cows.

The sex-god reached there also and stared at Sankara. In order to defend him from his encounter, lord Sankara started running from there. The sex-god chased them and at the end of such a race lord Mahadeva entered into a dense forest known as Daruvana. The household hermits used to live there with their wives. Having seen lord Sankara there, the hermits saluted him with sheer obeisance and the lord asked for alms from them. All hermits kept mum and did not respond to Sankara. O NSrada! lord Sankara then began to stool in all hermitages. Having seen Mahadeva enter into the asrama all, wives of Bhargava and Atreya except most chaste Arundhati and Anusuya (their mind having dedicated to their husbands) became sensuous and ejaculated. The enchanted, ensuous and passionate women of asrama then followed lord Mahadeva wherever he went. As the (she) elephants follow the intoxicated male-elephant, the wives of hermits began to run after lord Mahadeva and contravened all the rules of the household. O sage! Having seen such a phenomenon, Bhargava and Arigirasa hermits blew a curse that his penis (linga) fall down on the earth. Mahadeva's penis then fell down on the ground and it penetrated the earth where it so fell. Mahes'vara then vanished from there. The fallen penis then penetrated the land and entered into the nether world. Its upper portion had penetrated the cosmos."

Verse 57–58:
There too, Madana (Kamadeva, the god of desire) saw the divine bull form of Lord Vrish (Shiva). Seeing him again, Madana wished to strike once more. But then, Lord Hara fled from the spot and entered a dense forest called Daruvana, where many sages lived peacefully with their wives.

Verse 59–60:
All the sages bowed down respectfully upon seeing Lord Shiva. Then, Lord Shankara said to them, "O sages, please give me alms." Hearing this, all the sages remained silent, observing their vows of silence, as they were all detached and disciplined. O Narada, at that time, Lord Shambhu began wandering through their sacred and meritorious hermitages.

Verse 61–62:
When the wives of the sages saw Shiva entering the hermitages, they were overcome with extreme agitation. These women were of weak spiritual character. Only two—Arundhati and the noble Anasuya—remained undisturbed, as their minds were deeply engaged in worship and meditation upon their husbands.

Verse 63–64:
Wherever Lord Maheshwara entered, the wives of the sages became overwhelmed with desire. Their senses, overcome by lust, became restless, and they began to leave their homes. Just as intoxicated female elephants follow a powerful male tusker, so too did all these women follow Lord Shiva.

Verse 65:
O Sage, witnessing this unnatural situation, the sages such as Bhrigu and Angiras, filled with anger, cursed, “Let this Lingam held by Shiva fall to the ground and perish.”

Verse 66–67:
As soon as the sages said this, the Linga (Fire Linga held by Maheshwar Shiva) fell to the ground, tearing into the earth and piercing deep into the netherworld (Rasatala). It also rose upward, penetrating the cosmic realms (Brahmanda). Thus, it pierced both upward and downward directions.

Verse 68:
As a result of this event, a massive cosmic disturbance occurred—the earth, mountains, rivers, cities, the underworld, and all living and non-living beings were shaken. Those taking refuge in these realms also became disturbed and unstable.

Verse 69:
Seeing all realms, including the earthly world, thrown into turmoil, Brahma approached Lord Madhava (Vishnu) who was resting in the Kshir Sagar (Ocean of Milk).
There, Brahma beheld Lord Hrishikesha and bowed to his feet, worshipping him with deep devotion and reverence.

📚Linga Purana 1.29.5-42📚
In order to propitiate the lord of Devas, the sages performed a terrible penance in the Daru forest. They were accompanied by their wives, sons and sacrificial fires...Rudra, wanted to test the sincerity of the dwellers of the Daru forest...Thus in order to test their faith, and sportively too, he assumed a deformed but attractive appearance. He had three eyes and two hands. He was nude, and dark in complexion. Even in this form he was extremely handsome. He was smiling and singing, with seductive play of his eyebrows, thereby creating feelings of love in the hearts of women. He the destroyer of cupid, the lord of extremely handsome features increased their sexual feelings On seeing a man of deformed features, black-red (in colour), even the chaste women followed him with great enthusiasm...One of them, on seeing him did not know that her upper and lower garments had stripped off. Others in their excitement could not distinguish between their kinsmen and the multi-branched trees though they were familiar...Due to the Maya of Rudra even the chaste ladies fell down in an awkward posture with their clothes loosened and their tresses dishevelled, in the very presence of their usbands...On seeing the crowd of women and Rudra in this situation the brahmins, leading sages began to say harsh words. Their powers of austerity were ineffective against Rudra…Thus deluded the sages of Daruvanam did not understand Rudra. They spoke harsh words to Rudra who thereupon disappeared. In the morning all those sages with perplexed minds and blurred thinking went from Daruvana to Brahma of noble soul…they informed him about what had happened in that holy Daru forest…He stood up with palm joined in reverence and bowed to Rudra. He then spoke hurriedly to the sages who had their abodes in Daru forest. Fie upon you all who had attained excellent treasure, O brahmins, but had unluckily wasted it. The man with a Linga who had been seen by you all without Lingas, the person of deformed features was the supreme lord himself."

सनत्कुमारजी बोले- हे विभो ! प्राचीनकालमें दारुवनमें तपस्यासे भावित आत्मावाले उन वनवासी मुनियोंके साथ जो भी घटित हुआ, उसे मैं इस समय सुनना चाहता हूँ ॥ १ ॥

ऊर्ध्वरेता दिगम्बर भगवान् शिव विकृत रूप धारण करके दारुवनमें क्यों गये? उस वनमें परमात्मा रुद्रके साथ क्या हुआ ? उन देवाधिदेव शिवके क्रिया-कलापोंका भी यथार्थ रूपसे वर्णन करनेकी कृपा कीजिये ॥ २-३ ॥

सूतजी बोले- [हे ऋषिगण !] उन सनत्कुमारका यह वचन सुनकर श्रुतिसारविदोंमें वरिष्ठ शिलादपुत्र भगवान् नन्दिकेश्वर कुछ-कुछ हँसते हुए उनसे कहने लगे ॥ ४ ॥

शैलादि बोले- एक बार घने देवदारुवनमें देवाधिदेव द्रकी प्रसन्नताके लिये अपने स्त्री-पुत्रादिसहित

पंचाग्निका सेवन करते हुए मुनिगण कठोर तप कर रहे थे ॥ ५ ॥

उनके तपसे प्रसन्न जगन्नाथ, चेकितान, वृषध्वज, धूर्जटि, परमेशान, नीललोहित भगवान् रुद्र दारुवनमें निवास करनेवाले उन मुनियोंके प्रवृत्ति-लक्षण तथा ज्ञानकी जानकारी करनेके लिये एवं उनमें श्रद्धाभावकी परीक्षा करनेके लिये और साथ ही प्रवृत्तिज्ञानसे युक्त चित्तवाले उन देवदारुवनवासी मुनियोंमें निवृत्ति-लक्षण तथा ज्ञान स्थापित करनेके निमित्त लीलापूर्वक विकृत रूप धारण करके अलौकिक दारुवनमें पहुँचे। उस समय शंकरजी कृष्ण वर्णवाले, दो भुजाओंवाले, तीन आँखोंवाले, दिगम्बर तथा मोहक स्वरूपवाले थे ॥ ६-९॥

अत्यन्त सुन्दर रूपवाले भगवान् शिव मन्द मुसकान तथा भ्रूविलास करते हुए गीत गाकर स्त्रियोंमें कामभावना उत्पन्न कर रहे थे ॥ १० ॥
कामदेवका संहार करनेवाले तथा अत्यन्त मोहक आकृतिवाले भगवान् शिव वहाँ नारीसमूहको बार-बार देखकर उनके भीतर कामभावनाको बढ़ा रहे थे ॥ ११ ॥ वनमें उस विकृत तथा नीललोहित वर्णवाले पुरुषको देखकर पतिव्रता स्त्रियाँ भी प्रेमपूर्वक उनके पीछे-पीछे चलने लगीं ॥ १२ ॥

आरण्यक कुटीरोंके द्वारतक आयी हुई स्त्रियोंके वस्त्र एवं अलंकार शिथिल हो गये। वे मूच्छित-सी हो गयीं, उन लीलामय शिवके मुखारविन्दकी मोहक मुसकानको पाकर वृक्षोंके आश्रयमें रहनेवाली वे नारियाँ उनके पीछे-पीछे चल दीं ॥ १३ ॥
शिवजीको देखकर प्रौढ़ावस्थावाली होनेपर भी कुछ स्त्रियाँ मदमत्त होकर आँखें घुमाने लगीं तथा भौंहोंका संचालन करने लगीं ॥ १४ ॥
तदनन्तर शिवको देखकर दूसरी स्त्रियाँ मुसकानयुक्त मुखवाली हो गयीं, उनके वस्त्र कुछ शिथिल से हो गये, कांचीबन्धन भी ढीले हो गये; वे मिलकर गाने लगीं ॥ १५ ॥

उस समय शिवको विपिनमें देखकर कुछ ऋषिपत्नियाँ तो शिथिल नूतन वस्त्रों तथा अपने-अपने विचित्र वलयोंको फेंककर मदान्वित हो स्वजनोंके पास पहुंचीं ॥ १६ ॥
स समय शिथिल वस्त्रवाली कोई तो शिवको

देखकर विशिष्ट वासनायुक्त हो गयी तथा अन्य स्त्रियों मतवाली-सी होकर विचित्र शाखावाले प्रसिद्ध वृक्षोंको एवं घनिष्ठ बन्धुजनोंतकको नहीं पहचानती थीं ॥ १७॥

हे द्विजश्रेष्ठो ! कुछ स्त्रियाँ उनके पास जाकर नाचने लगीं और जमीनपर गिर पड़ीं। कुछ स्त्रियाँ हाथीकी भाँति बैठ गयीं। कोई दूसरी स्त्री कुछ बोलने लगी ॥ १८ ॥

कुछ स्त्रियाँ उनसे कहने लगीं कि 'आप कौन हैं? बैठिये। अन्य स्त्रियाँ भी प्रसन्नचित्त होकर कहने लगीं-आप कहाँ जा रहे हैं? आप हम सबपर प्रसन्न होइये ' ॥ २० ॥
भगवान् शंकरकी मायाके प्रभावसे अपने पतियोंके सम्मुख ही पतिव्रता स्त्रियोंके वस्त्रपरिधान, केश आदि अस्त-व्यस्त हो गये और वे कामुक स्त्रियोंकी भाँति स्वेच्छाचारितापूर्ण व्यवहार प्रदर्शित करने लगीं ॥ २१॥

उन स्त्रियोंके हाव-भाव देखकर तथा उनके वचन सुनकर निर्विकार परमेश्वर शिव शुभ अथवा अशुभकुछ भी नहीं बोले ॥ २२ ॥

उस प्रकारकी चेष्टावाली नारियोंके समूहको देखकर वे विप्र मुनीश्वर दिगम्बरवेशधारी शिवको उस अवस्थामें देखकर [शंकरजीके प्रति] अत्यन्त कठोर वचन कहने लगे। किंतु उनकी सभी तपस्याएँ शंकरजीके सम्मुख उसी प्रकार निष्फल सिद्ध हुईं, जिस प्रकार सूर्यके प्रकाशसे आकाश-मण्डलमें स्थित तारागण निस्तेज हो जाते हैं ॥ २३-२४॥

ऐसा सुना जाता है कि महात्मा ब्रह्माका सभी समृद्धियों तथा कल्याणोंका उत्पत्तिस्थलस्वरूप यज्ञ ऋषिके शापसे विनष्ट हो गया था ॥ २५॥
भृगुमुनिके शापसे परम ऐश्वर्यशाली विष्णुको भी दस अवतार लेने पड़े तथा अनेक दुःख सहने पड़े ॥ २६ ॥

मुनि वसिष्ठके शापसे वसुओंको गर्भमें वास करना पड़ा, अगस्त्य आदि ऋषियोंके शापसे राजा नहुषको सर्प होना पड़ा था ॥ २८ ॥
भगवान् विष्णुका निवासस्थान तथा अमृतका आधारस्वरूप वह क्षीरसागर ब्राह्मणोंके द्वारा सदाके लिये दूसरे अपेय जलवाले समुद्रके रूपमें कर दिया गया था ॥ २९ ॥
जनार्दन भगवान् विष्णुने वाराणसीपुरीमें पहुँचकर अविमुक्तेश्वर देवाधिदेव त्र्यम्बकेश्वरका दूधसे अभिषेक करके परम श्रद्धासे युक्त होकर देहसंस्पर्शजन्य अमृतस्वरूप क्षीरद्वारा स्वयं उन मधुसूदनने ब्रह्माजी एवं मुनियोंके साथ भगवान् शिवको अभिषिक्त करके पूर्ववत् क्षीरसागरको अपना निवासस्थान बनाया ॥ ३०-३२ ॥
महात्मा माण्डव्यने धर्मको शापित किया तथा श्रीकृष्णकी प्रेरणासे दुर्वासा आदि महात्माओंके द्वारा वृष्णिवंशी शापित हुए थे ॥ ३३ ॥
महान् आत्मावाले दुर्वासामुनिने लक्ष्मणसहित श्रीरामको शाप दे दिया और श्रीवत्स (श्रीयुक्त वक्षःस्थलवाले) विष्णुको भृगुमुनिका चरण-प्रहार सहना पड़ा ॥ ३४ ॥
देवाधिदेव विरूपाक्ष उमापति शिवको छोड़कर ये तथा अन्य बहुत से लोग भी विप्रों (ब्राह्मणों) के वशवर्ती हुए हैं ॥ ३५ ॥
उन्हीं शिवकी मायासे मोहित होनेके कारण वे मुनिगण शंकरको नहीं जान पाये और अत्यन्त कठोर वचन बोलने लगे, फिर भगवान् शिव भी अन्तर्धान हो गये ॥ ३६ ॥
तत्पश्चात् व्याकुल चित्तवाले वे मुनिगण प्रातःकाल होते ही उस दारुवनसे ब्रह्माजीके पास पहुँचे। वहाँ श्रेष्ठ आसनपर विराजमान महात्मा ब्रह्मासे उस सुन्दर दारुवनमें रहनेवाले क्षीण चेतनावाले मुनियोंने शंकरका सारा वृत्तान्त कह सुनाया ॥ ३७-३८ ॥

उन ब्रह्माजीने भी क्षणभरमें ही मनमें सोचकर पवित्र दारुवनमें उनका पूर्वघटित सम्पूर्ण वृत्तान्त जान लिया ॥ ३९ ॥
अपने आसनसे तत्काल उठकर और दोनों हाथ जोड़कर ब्रह्माजीने मन-ही-मन शिवजीको प्रणाम करके दारुवनमें रहनेवाले उन मुनियोंसे कहा- हे विप्रो ! विनाशको प्राप्त तुम सभीको धिक्कार है; क्योंकि सर्वोत्तम निधि प्राप्त करके भी तुम अभागोंने उसे गँवा दिया ॥ ४०-४१ ॥

तुम अलिंगियोंने उस दारुवनमें जिस विकृत आकारवाले पुरुषको देखा था; वे साक्षात् परमेश्वर शिव ही थे ॥ ४२ ॥

Sanatkumar said:
"O Lord! In ancient times, what happened with those forest-dwelling sages, who were engaged in deep austerities in the Daru forest—please narrate that incident to me now." (1)

"Why did Lord Shiva, the digambara (sky-clad) and one with upward-flowing energy, assume a distorted form and enter the Daru forest? What happened there with the Supreme Being Rudra? Kindly describe truthfully the actions and divine play of that Lord of lords, Shiva." (2–3)

Suta said:
O sages! Hearing the words of Sanatkumar, the son of Shilada and revered among the knowers of the essence of the Vedas, Lord Nandikeshvara, smiled slightly and began to speak. (4)

Shilada said:
Once, in the deep Daru forest, the sages—along with their wives and children—were performing intense austerities like the five-fire ritual (Panchagni) to please Lord Rudra, the Lord of lords. (5)

Pleased by their penance, Lord Rudra—also known as Jagannath, Chekitana, Vrishadhvaja, Dhoorjati, Parameshwar, and Neelalohita—entered the divine Daru forest in a distorted form to examine the tendencies and knowledge of the resident sages, to test their devotion, and to establish renunciation (nivritti) and spiritual knowledge in their minds. (6–9)

Lord Shiva, with a dark complexion, two arms, three eyes, unclothed, and of enchanting appearance, began singing melodiously with soft smiles and expressive eyebrows, generating desire among the women. (10)

Though he had previously destroyed Kamadeva (the god of desire), his captivating form now aroused feelings of passion in the minds of women who repeatedly looked at him. (11)
Seeing that deformed and blue-red hued man in the forest, even chaste women began following him out of love. (12)

As they reached the entrances of their forest huts, their clothes and ornaments loosened. Bewitched by the charming smile of playful Shiva, these women, who normally resided under the shelter of trees, started trailing behind him. (13)
Even elderly women, upon seeing Shiva, became intoxicated and began rolling their eyes and moving their eyebrows flirtatiously. (14)

Other women, seeing him, began to smile, their clothes slipped slightly, and their waistbands loosened. They joined in singing together. (15)

Some women, now intoxicated and dressed in loose new garments, abandoned their unusual ornaments and returned to their kin. (16)
One became full of specific desire just by seeing Shiva, while others—completely intoxicated—failed to recognize even the distinctive trees or their closest relatives. (17)

O best of the twice-born! Some women began to dance before him and fell to the ground. Others sat down like elephants. One started talking erratically. (18)
Smiling and looking at one another, they began to embrace and blocked Shiva's path from all directions, making various charming gestures. (19)

Some said, "Who are you? Please sit." Others joyfully asked, "Where are you going? Be pleased with us all." (20)
Under the illusion of Shiva's divine power, even in front of their husbands, these chaste women became disheveled in clothing and hair and started acting with unchecked desire, like lustful women. (21)

Seeing their gestures and hearing their words, the unperturbed Supreme Lord Shiva said neither good nor bad—he remained silent. (22)

Witnessing such behavior from the women, and seeing Lord Shiva in that digambara state, the sages spoke harsh words to him. However, in Shiva's presence, their penance became ineffective—just as the stars fade in the brightness of the sun. (23–24)

It is said that the sacrifice, which was the source of all prosperity and good fortune and belonged to the great Brahma, was destroyed due to a curse by the sage Rishika. (25)

Due to the curse of Bhrigu, even the all-powerful Vishnu had to take ten incarnations and suffer many hardships. (26)

Due to the curse of sage Vasishtha, the Vasus had to be born in wombs; and because of the curse of sages like Agastya, King Nahusha had to become a serpent. (28)

The abode of Lord Vishnu and the source of nectar—the Kshirasagar (Ocean of Milk)—was rendered as an ordinary, non-drinkable ocean by the Brahmins. (29)

Then, Lord Vishnu, arriving in the sacred city of Varanasi, performed an abhisheka (ritual bath) of the deity Avimukteshwar, Lord of lords Tryambakeshwar, with milk. Filled with deep devotion, he bathed Lord Shiva with that nectar-like milk in the presence of Brahma and the sages, thereby restoring the Kshirasagar as his divine abode. (30–32)

The great sage Mandavya cursed even Dharma. And at Krishna's inspiration, the Vrishni dynasty was cursed by sages like Durvasa. (33)

The great soul sage Durvasa cursed Lord Rama along with Lakshmana. Lord Vishnu, with the Srivatsa mark on his chest, endured a kick from sage Bhrigu. (34)

Everyone—even these and many more—have been subject to the will of Brahmins, except Lord Shiva, the one-eyed (Virupaksha), consort of Uma. (35)

Deluded by the maya (illusion) of Lord Shiva, the sages could not recognize him and began speaking very harshly. Then Lord Shiva vanished from the scene. (36)

After this, those sages—disturbed in mind—went at daybreak to Lord Brahma. Sitting on a high seat, the great Brahma listened to the story of what had happened in the beautiful Daru forest from those mentally weakened sages. (37–38)

Lord Brahma, realizing the entire past event through contemplation within a moment, rose from his seat, joined his palms in reverence, and mentally bowed to Shiva. He then said to the forest-dwelling sages:
“O Brahmins! Woe to all of you who are heading toward ruin! Even after receiving the greatest treasure, you unfortunate ones lost it.” (39–41)

“That deformed-looking man you saw in the Daru forest was none other than the Supreme Lord Shiva himself.” (42)

Same Daruvan Incident here where Shivji went to Daruvan in a deformed form holding a fire lingam in his hands performing various types of tricks to test the Rishis and the Rishis wives were attracted by Shivji Attractive appearance and started following him then the Rishis cursed him that the fire Lingam which was holding in his hands would fall but the curse did not affect him instead he was transformed into a form of a fire linga and was stabilized by Mata Parvati in form of Yoni (Prakriti)

📚Padma Purana 6.255.26-40📚
Having gone near the door of the house of the magnanimous Śaṅkara and seeing very fierce Nandin with a spear in his hand, he said (to him): “I, the brāhmaṇa Bhṛgu, have come to see Hara, the best god. Quickly announce me (i.e. my arrival) to the magnanimous Śaṅkara.” Hearing the words of him, Nandin, the lord of (Śiva's) attendants spoke harsh words to the great sage of an unlimited splendour: “The lord is not in the vicinity. Śaṅkara is sporting with goddess (Pārvatī). O best sage, go back if you desire to live.” Thus repudiated by him the (sage) of a great penance remained there, at the door of the great lord, for many days. “Since he, arrogant due to the company of a woman, thinks lightly of me, he shall have the form of clitoris. Approached (i.e. overcome) by vice he slights me, a brāhmaṇa! Reduced to an impious state, he will not be adored by brāhmaṇas. Therefore, all the food, water, flowers and oblations offered to him will undoubtedly be useless.” The very lustrous one, having thus cursed Śaṃkara honoured by the world, said to the very fierce attendant, Nandin, holding a spear, O king: “May Śiva's devotees, having ash, phallus and bones be impious and out of the Vedic fold.” The sage, having thus cursed Rudra, Tripura's killer, went to Brahmā's world...”

समान नेत्र वाले शङ्करजी को देखकर महातेजस्वी गौरीजी द्वारा रोके जाने पर मुनि वहाँ ठहरे ॥३९॥ मुनि अपने चरणों में नेत्र दिखाकर जोर से हँसते हुए चले गये। उन्होंने कहा मेरा शाप अमोघ है तुम कुरूप हो जाओगे ॥४०॥ उसी समय से हे राजन्! सभी भूतों के स्वामी शङ्करजी का चरणोदक इत्यादि ब्राह्मणों के लिए अग्राह्य हो गया।।४१।। पाखण्डियों के द्वारा पूजे जाने वाले शिवजी लिङ्ग का रूप धारण करने वाले हो गये इस तरह से त्रिपुरघातक शिवजी को शाप देकर मुनि ॥४२॥ सभी लोकों से नमस्कृत ब्रह्माजी के लोक में गये। वहाँ पर देवताओं के साथ बैठे हुए परमेष्ठी ब्रह्माजी को ॥४३॥ देखकर हाथ जोड़कर महामति ब्रह्माजी को नमस्कार किये ओर उनके सामने चुपचाप खड़े रहे ॥४४॥ उन मुनिश्रेष्ठ को देखकर तमोगुण सम्पन्न होकर ब्रह्माजी आये

"There is no deity more worthy of reverence than the Brahmins. Only one who is composed of pure Sattva (goodness) can be truly devoted to Brahmins."

"Only he is worthy of receiving offerings and blessings from Brahmins in this world. His leftovers (uchchhishta) become sacred for the gods and ancestors."

"O best of sages! Please go swiftly to the abode of the gods. O Lord, O best among sages, bring welfare to the world at once."

Sage Vashishtha said: "Having heard this, the great sage Bhrigu immediately traveled by the aerial path to Mount Kailash, the dwelling place of Lord Shiva."

"He arrived at the gate of Shankara (Shiva), where stood the fierce Nandi, holding a trident."

"He said to Nandi: 'O best of the gods! I am Bhrigu, a Brahmin, and I have come to have a vision (darshan) of Lord Shankara. Kindly inform the great Lord of my arrival.'"

"Upon hearing these words, the radiant and powerful Nandi, master of all virtues, responded harshly to the great sage."

"'At this moment, Shankara is engaged in sport with the Goddess. Therefore, he cannot be met. O best of sages! If you value your life, you should turn back.'"

Vashishtha said: "Thus insulted, the great sage remained at Shiva's gate for several days. Then, filled with anger, he pronounced a curse."

Bhrigu said: "This ignorant Shiva, , does not recognize me. due to his union with his wife he has insulted me."

"Hence, he shall take on the form of a Yoni-Linga Because he insulted a Brahmin, he shall be filled with Tamoguna."

"He shall become non-Brahmanical and unworthy of worship by Brahmins. Offerings of food, water, flowers, and sacrificial oblations given to him shall all become impure. There is no doubt about this."

Vashishtha said: "Having thus cursed Shiva, revered by the world, the mighty sage then turned to Nandi, who stood fiercely with a trident."

"'Those followers of Rudra who smear themselves with ash and wear bones—let them become heretics, outside the Vedic fold.'"

Vashishtha said: "Hearing this, Lord Shiva—the destroyer of Tripura—burning with Tamoguna, wished to slay Sage Bhrigu."

"As he raised his trident in fury, Goddess Parvati respectfully intervened, folding her hands and pacifying him."

"Seeing Shiva with eyes like millions of suns and flames, the radiant Goddess Gauri restrained him, and the sage remained there."

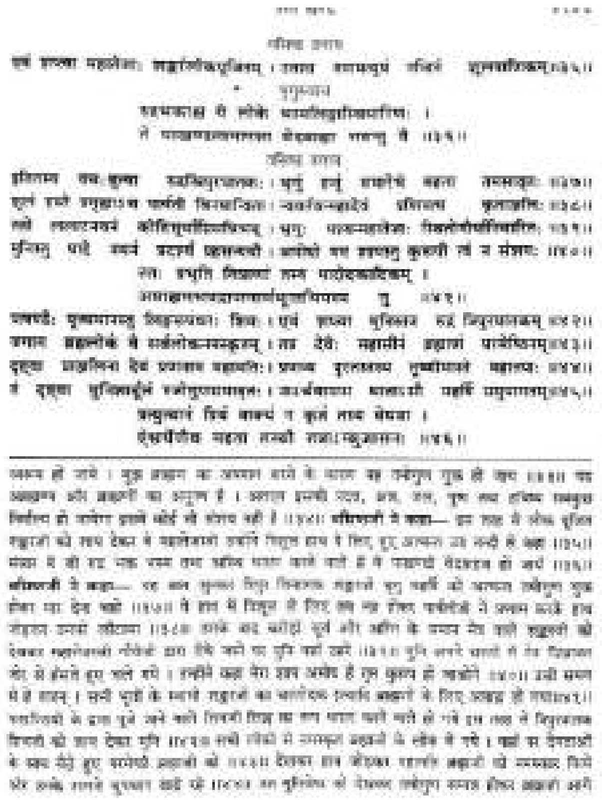
"The sage showed eyes on his feet (a sign of divine power), laughed loudly, and departed. He declared: 'My curse is unfailing—you shall become deformed.'"

"From that time onwards, O King, the holy water from Shiva's feet and other offerings became unacceptable for Brahmins."

"Thus, Shiva—worshiped by heretics—assumed the form of the Linga. After cursing the Tripura-destroying Lord, the sage…"

"…departed and went to the abode of Brahma, the Supreme Creator, worshiped by all worlds."

"Seeing Lord Brahma seated with the gods, the wise sage folded his hands and offered silent reverence before him."



Here the Story of Shiva Appearing in the form of Shiva Lingam (Symbol of Nirakar Brahm) and Yoni (Mool Prakriti – Mata Parvati) is mentioned and nowhere about Daruvan Incident or any such thing

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 4.20.36-37
O King! When Mahâdeva, being infatuated with Kâma, went into the forest of Bhrigu and becoming naked, began to copulate, the ascetic Bhrigu, seeing him in that state, exclaimed "O You are very shameless" and cursed Him thus:- Let your penis drop off just now. Mahâdeva, then to satisfy his thirst for passion, began to drink the water of the lake Amrita Vapî, dug by the Dânavas."

Ludo Rucher in his book the Puranas page 172 dated Devi bhagvatm to be written between 1100-1350 AD and not later than that . He also proposed that the writer of this text must have been a Bengali Shakta Smarta Brahmin

The question, both in the tradition and in modern scholarship, whether the Devībhāgavata° or the Vaiṣṇava Bhāgavata° is the true and original Śrīmadbhāgavata° has been discussed under the Bhāgavata°. It should be noted in this connection that the term Devībhāgavata° appears only in the chapter colophons, and in the text of the last two skandhas; elsewhere in the text the purāṇa refers to itself either as Bhāgavata° or Śrīmadbhāgavata°, once as Satī° (1.3.41). The text also repeatedly refers to itself as "the best of purāṇas" (purāṇottama), and declares that "there are many other purāṇas devoted to Hari and Rudra, but they are not worth one-sixteenth part of this Devībhāgavata" (12.13.25–26).

Hazra[174] sees arguments both for the Devībhāgavata° having been composed in Bengal and outside Bengal. He therefore concludes that "the author of the Devībhāgavata was a Smārta Śākta Brahmin of Bengal and . . . he migrated to Benares (probably because it was the best place of residence for a Devī-worshipper), lived there for a long time, and then wrote the Devī-bhāgavata."

Ramachandran[175] dated the Devībhāgavata° "not later than the 6th century A.D.," based on his belief that the story of the penance of Nara and Nārāyaṇa, as related in the fourth skandha, inspired the relief in the Gupta temple at Deogarh. His arguments did not find acceptance with other scholars,[176] and, in general, the text has been dated much later. Farquhar[177] assigned it to his A. D. 900–1350 period. Hazra[178] narrowed the period down to "the eleventh or twelfth century A.D." Lalye[179] proposes a gradual growth of the text, through five different stages which cannot be dated separately; in any case the final stage must have been reached in the eleventh century.

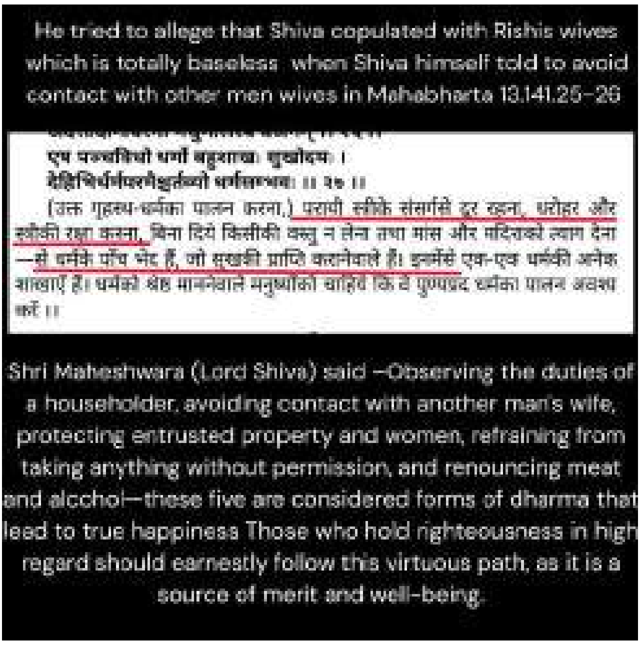
Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said – Observing the duties of a householder, avoiding contact with another man's wife, protecting entrusted property and women, refraining from taking anything without permission, and renouncing meat and alcohol—these five are considered forms of dharma that lead to true happiness Those who hold righteousness in high regard should earnestly follow this virtuous path, as it is a source of merit and well-being.



He tried to allege that Maheshwar Shiva got injured and damaged by a curse when Svetasvatara upanishad chapter 1 verse 10 itself says Rudra is imperishable So how does one accuse that he got injured by some curse

📚Skanda Purana 1.1.34.116-131📚
After saying thus, Pārvatī, the goddess, beloved of Śaṅkara, became furious. She held Śaṅkara by the hand. The lady of slender limbs took away the serpent Vāsuki from his neck. Similarly she removed many other ornaments also. The infuriated lady hurriedly took away the ornaments of Śaṃbhu. His crescent moon and his excellent elephant hide were removed. The serpents Kaṃbala and Aśvatara that had been worn by Maheśa as ornaments were removed by the great goddess laughingly with tricky words. Even his loincloth was taken away laughingly with the utterance of tricky words. At that time the Gaṇas and the friends (of Pārvatī) felt embarrassed and ashamed...O splendid lady, what as been done by you? You are born of a (good) family, O slender-limbed one. Why do you behave like this? If you know for certain, O lady with excellent eyebrows, that I have been defeated by you, do like this. Give me the loincloth alone. Give me the loincloth only. It does not behove you to do otherwise. On being told thus by Śaṃbhu, the Yogin, Pārvatī, the chaste lady of charming face, laughed and spoke these words: “What have you to do with a loincloth? You are a sage of sanctified soul. (Some time back) you wandered through Dāruvana with the cardinal points alone for your garment (i.e. you were naked). Under the pretext of begging for alms, the wives of the sages were enchanted. While you were going, you were greatly adored by them. Your loincloth fell down (penis?) there…

Refutation-

Skanda Purana Maheshwara Khanda book 1 Kedarakhanda section 1 chapter 34 slokas 11-129 hindi translation by Choukhamba publications nowhere its written that Maheshwar came to entice the wives of the Rishis

लोमश कहते हैं- देवदेव जगत्पति रुद्रदेव अब वीरभद्र तथा अन्य प्रमथगण, इन्द्रादि देवता तथा ऋषियों के साथ कैलास पर्वत पर निवास करने लगे। ब्रह्मा उनके स्तुतिगायक थे। भृत्यवत् विष्णु स्थित रहते थे तथा इन्द्रादि देवता उनकी सेवा करते थे। उनका छत्र चन्द्र वहन करते। वायु चामर झलते, अग्नि जातवेदा उत्तम अन्न प्रस्तुत करते तथा गन्धर्वगण उनके गायक तथा स्तावक थे (स्तावक प्रशंसक)। विद्याधर तथा अप्सरायें भगवान् महादेव के समक्ष नृत्यादि किया करते। इस प्रकार प्रियतमा गिरिजा तथा प्रतापी पुत्र गणेश एवं स्कन्द कुमार के साथ वहां निःशङ्क भाव

से भगवान् त्रिपुरारी शंकर विराजमान थे। वे इस प्रकार राज्य सुखानुभव करने लगे।।१-६ ।।

जिन्होंने देवताओं के शत्रु महादैत्य दुर्वृत्त अन्धकासुर का भेदन शूल से किया था तथा उसे चिरकाल हेतु उसी पर लटका रखा था, जिन्होंने गजासुर का वध करके उसके चर्म को स्वयं धारण किया था, जिनके प्रभाव से त्रिपुर दग्ध हो सका था, जो प्रतिपाल्य स्थानीय (सबके पालनकर्त्ता) विष्णु के साथ सर्वाङ्ग सुन्दर रूप से विराजमान रहते हैं, उनको देखने दिव्यदर्शन भगवान् नारद चन्द्रवत् पाण्डुर आभा वाले कैलास नामक उस महान् पर्वत पर पहुंचे। वहां पहुंच कर उन्होंने परम सुधासेवित परम अद्भुद् कर्पूरवत् गौरवर्ण सुमहाबल महादेव को देखा। महादेव का दर्शन पाकर वे विस्मयापन्न हो गये। इस प्रकार नारद ने गन्धमादन में प्रवेश किया।। ७-१०।।

वहां नारद देखते हैं कि यह पर्वत नाना आश्चर्य से मण्डित है। वह स्वर्ण समूह से समुज्ज्वल, गीत-गायन तत्पर विद्याधरी वृन्द से व्याप्त तथा महाप्रभा युक्त है। वहां लताओं द्वारा वेष्ठित अनेक कल्पवृक्ष स्थित हैं। उनकी घनी छाया में कामधेनु गौयें विश्राम कर रही हैं। पारिजात वन में आमोदरत भौरों के समूह से यह पर्वत समाकुल है। वहां अनेक कलहंस पर्वतस्थ अनेक सरोवरों में क्रीड़ा कर रहे हैं। वहां जितनी भी शिखण्डी (मोरनी) हैं, वे अपना प्रीतिभरा केकारव कर रही हैं। मदमत्त विहङ्गम वहां सदा पञ्चम स्वर में आलाप कर रहे है। हथिनियों के साथ हाथी क्रीड़ारत हैं। शार्दूल तथा सिंहों का गर्जन श्रुतिगोचर हो रहा है। नन्दी आदि प्रमुख प्रमथगण तथा वृषगण निरन्तर मदयुक्त आस्फालन तथा कुर्दन (रम्भाना) कर रहे हैं। वहां अनेक देववृक्ष तथा चन्दन वाटिकायें हैं।।११-१६।।

हे विप्रगण! वहां महात्मा नारद ने देखा कि वहां सब कुछ दो भागों में विभाजित था। यह विस्मय देखते तथा पर्वत की शोभा देखते नारद ने तत्काल शिवदर्शनार्थ प्रस्थान किया। जैसे ही वे (शिव निवास के) द्वार पर पहुंचे, वहां भी उन्होंने एक विस्मय देखा। वहां विश्वकर्मा द्वारा निर्मित दो कृत्रिम द्वारपाल खड़े थे। नारद ने मोहित होकर उनसे कहा- "मैं शिवदर्शनेच्छा से अन्दर जाना चाहता हूं। अतः मुझे जाने की अनुमति प्रदान करो।" जब नारद को अपने प्रश्न का कोई उत्तर नहीं मिला, तब वे वास्तविकता जान कर विस्मित हो गये। उन्होंने ज्ञाननेत्र से सब जान लिया तथा मौनी हो गये। उन्होंने समझा था कि ये द्वारपाल कृत्रिम हैं। अब वे स्वयं द्वार से भीतर गये। वहां जाकर देखते हैं कि वहां ऐसी अनेक कृत्रिम मूर्त्ति स्थित हैं। अन्दर उन सबने भगवान् नारद को प्रीतिपूर्वक प्रणाम भी किया। इससे नारद मुदित हो गये।। २२-२८।।

तदनन्तर नारद देखते हैं कि व्यक्त मूर्ति त्र्यम्बक गिरिजा के साथ वहां स्थित हैं। साध्वी देवी गौरी उन प्रभु शंकर के आधे आसन पर बैठी हैं। वे पर्वतराज पुत्री हैं तथा तीनों लोकों में विराजित हैं। वे चारुलोचना, तनुगात्री तथा प्रसन्न मुख वाली हैं। उन्होंने ही महादेव को रूपवान् तथा उपमेय किया है। महादेव निर्विकार हैं। तथापि इन गिरिजा देवी ने उनको विकारों से विकलीकृत किया है। नारद देखते हैं कि वे शिव की अर्द्धाङ्ग संगिनी होकर स्थित हैं। तदनन्तर नारद ने देखा कि त्रिभुवनेश्वर शम्भु भी विराजित हैं। उनकी देहप्रभा शुद्ध स्वर्णवत् है। सुर-असुर उनकी सेवा में लगे हैं। सर्पराज शंख उनके चरणकमल की सेवा कर रहे हैं। धृतराष्ट्र, तक्षक, महापद्म, अनन्त तथा अन्य महानागगण उनकी सेवा में सदैव लगे रहते हैं। महाप्रभायुक्त वासुकि उनके कण्ठ में हाररूपेण शोभायमान हैं।। २९-३५।।

ये सभी सर्प विद्वान्, शोभन, अमित प्रभा वाले, मणिमण्डित थे तथा शिव के हार तथा आभूषण स्वरूप शोभित थे। जिनका अर्द्धचन्द्राङ्कित जटाजूट अतीव सुन्दर था तथा जिनके ललाट पर तृतीय नेत्र स्थित था, जिनके ५ मुख थे, जो दस बाहु वाले देवाधिदेव महादेव थे, जिनका कंकण मरकत जैसा श्यामवर्ण था, वक्षस्थल सुन्दर था, उरु प्रदेश विशाल थे, जंघा तथा चरणद्वय अतीव सुन्दर थे, उन देवदेव के तेजपुंजमय निरुपम चरणों का नारद ने दर्शन किया। उन्होंने देखा कि वे चरणद्वय सन्ध्याकालीन गगन के समान समुज्ज्वल, सुमङ्गल, परमोत्तम तथा निखिल पाप, ताप नाशक हैं। शम्भु का यह पवित्र पद तेजःपुञ्ज का उद्धारक, परात्पर, लावण्यलीला का सम्पदास्वरूप तथा सुख-समृद्धि वर्द्धक है। तदनन्तर परात्परा रूपवती सुन्दरी गौरी नारद को दृष्टिगोचर हो गयीं।
नारद देखते हैं कि शिव सीमन्तिनी सती सौभाग्य तथा लावण्यरूपी महाविभूति द्वारा परम शोभा से शोभित हैं। इस तीनों लोकों के मूलभूत, परम पावन, इन देव दम्पति को देखकर भगवान् के प्रिय नारद ने उनकी प्रेमपूर्वक वन्दना किया। ये दम्पति अभिन्न होकर भी (बाह्य दृष्टि से) भिन्नतया प्रतीत होते हैं। ये निर्गुण होकर भी सगुण हैं। साकार होकर भी निराकार हैं। निरातङ्क होकर भी सुखविधायक भी हैं। नारद उनको बारम्बार प्रणाम करते तथा पुनः उठकर उन जगदीश्वर तथा जगदीश्वरी की स्तुति करते ! ।।४५-५२।।

नारद कहते हैं- हे श्रेष्ठ देवदम्पति ! आप परात्पर निराकार होकर भी अंशतः साकार रूप से विराजमान हैं। इस प्रकार से मेरे नेत्रों द्वारा दृष्टिगोचर हो रहे हैं। आप ही इस चराचर जगत् के बीज हैं। आप लोगों को प्रणाम करता हूं। अब यह तत्व भली प्रकार से मुझे ज्ञात हो गया। आपकी ही कृपा से मुझमें इस ज्ञान का जन्म हुआ है। इसमें सन्देह नहीं है। महात्मा नारद के

इस स्तव से पार्वती तथा भगवान् शंकर संन्तुष्ट हो गये।।५३-५५।।

तब महादेव ने उनसे प्रश्न किया – "आप प्रसन्न तो हैं? हे ब्रह्मन् ! कहिये आपका क्या काम करूं?" शंभु का वचन सुनकर नारद ने कहा- "हे विभो! आपके दर्शन से ही मैं सन्तुष्ट हो गया। हे शम्भु ! इसी से मुझे निःसंदिग्ध रूप से सब कुछ मिल गया। मैं क्रीड़ार्थ ही इस पर्वतप्रवर कैलास आया था। हे प्रभो, भगवान्! आप सदा मनुष्यों के हृदय में अवस्थित रहते हैं तथापि आपका साक्षात्कार प्रत्येक को अवश्य करना चाहिये।।५६-५९।।

गिरिजा कहती हैं- "हे मुनिवर ! आपने कैसी क्रीड़ा करनी चाही है, आप किस क्रीड़ा के पक्षपाती हैं? उसे शीघ्र मुझसे कहें।" यह सुनकर नारद ने हास्यपूर्वक कहा- हे महादेवी! जगत् में नाना द्यूतक्रीड़ा परिलक्षित होती है। दो व्यक्ति द्यूत में प्रवृत्त होकर रमण से भी अधिक महासुख प्राप्त करते हैं।" नारद की यह उक्ति सुनकर देवी विरत हो गयीं तथा ऋषि नारद के प्रति अत्यन्त क्रोध से कहने लगीं- "आपने किस प्रकार द्यूत को ही प्रसिद्ध क्रीड़ा कहा? मनस्वी लोग इसे त्याज्य कहते हैं। हे मुनिवर! आप तो ब्रह्मा के पुत्र हैं। इस त्रिभुवन में आप सर्वत्र विचरण करते हैं। आपने अपने उत्तम वाक्यविन्यास द्वारा मनीषीगण तक को शिक्षित किया है। आपकी अपेक्षा प्रधान मनस्वी और कौन है? देवी द्वारा यह कहे जाने पर देवदर्शन नारद ने शिव के ही समीप गिरिजा से कहा- ।।६०-६४।।

नारद कहते हैं- देवी द्वारा यह कहे जाने पर देवदर्शन नारद ने शिव के ही समीप गिरिजा से कहा- "मैं तपस्वी तथा शिवकिंकर हूं। द्यूत क्या है? मैं नहीं जानता, उसका कभी आश्रय भी नहीं लिया। हे गिरिराजकन्ये! हे योगीगण हेतु परम पावन ! आप मुझसे इस सम्बन्ध में क्यों पूछ रही हैं?" गिरिजा ने नारद का यह कथन सुनकर उनसे कहा- "हे बटु ! आप सब जानते हैं। मैं आपके समक्ष महेश के साथ यह क्रीड़ा करूंगी। आप यहां रह कर उसे देखें।" यह कहकर भुवनों में एकमात्र सुन्दरी गिरिराज कन्या ने अक्ष लिया तथा महादेव शिव के साथ वे क्रीड़ारत हो गयीं। जब वे देवदम्पति क्रीड़ारत थे, तब नारद उस क्रीड़ा को देख रहे थे। विस्मय के कारण उनका ान्तर्मन उत्फुल्ल हो गया। मनस्वी नारद ने इस

शिव के साथ नारद ने भी उपहास में योगदान किया। पार्वती द्यूत में हार गईं थीं। शिव उपहास कर रहे थे। यह देख-सुनकर पार्वती अत्यन्त कुपिता हो गयीं। उन्होंने नारद से कहा कि तुमको अर्द्धचन्द्र दूंगी। (अर्द्धचन्द्र अर्थात् गले में हथेली लगाकर भगाना)। इस कोप से उनकी मनोहर शिरोमणि चंचल हो गयी। सुन्दर मुख कोप के कारण और भी शोभायुक्त लगने लगा। भगवान् शिव गौरी की यह मुखश्री देखकर पुनः पुनः द्यूत क्रीड़ा करने लगे। तदनन्तर गिरिजा ने लोकशंकर प्रभु शंकर से कहा- "मैं द्यूत हार गई। अब बाजी लगाइये। हे शम्भु ! आप अब क्या बाजी लगायेगें, वह कहें।" तब त्रिलोचन ने हंसते हुये पार्वती से कहा- "हे भवानी! मैं आपके लिए महा आभूषण की बाजी लगाता हूं। यह चन्द्रलेखा, यह महाहार (वासुकि नाग का हार) तथा कर्ण के आभूषण (नागद्वय) की बाजी लगाया। हे देवी! आप मुझे जीत कर ये सभी आभूषण ग्रहण करें।" यह कहकर पुनः शिवपार्वती द्यूतक्रीड़ा तत्पर हो गये।।७१-७७।।

वे दोनों ही अक्षविद्या के परम पण्डित थे। अतः यह क्रीड़ा अत्यन्त दक्षभाव से चलने लगी। भवानी ने अनेक आभूषण जीत लिये। अब गौरी ने शंकर से हंसते हुये कहा- "हे शंकर! आपको मैंने क्रीड़ा में परास्त किया। अब जो बाजी तय थी, वह मुझे दीजिये।" तब महेश ने हंसकर कहा- "हे साध्वी! तत्वतः विचार करके देखो! मैं तुमसे हारा नहीं हूं। हे साध्वी! इस त्रिभुवन के सभी प्राणियों से मैं अविजित हूं। हे तन्वी! ऐसा वाक्य न बोलो। पुनः द्यूत क्रीड़ा में प्रवृत्त हो जाओ। देखना! मैं तुमको पराजित कर दूंगा।" अम्बिका अपने पति शंकर से कहने लगीं- "हे देव! मैंने आपको क्रीड़ा में पराजित किया है। इसमें विस्मित होने वाला कुछ भी नहीं है।" यह कहकर वरानना गौरी ने शंकर की बांह पकड़ कर पुनः कहा- "हे शंकर! आप नहीं जानते। आपको मैंने जीत लिया। इसमें संदेह नहीं है।" तदनन्तर देवी ने मधुर हास्य के साथ शंकर की ओर देखते हुये मधुर वाणी में यह

व्यंग्य वाक्य कहा- “हे सर्वमंगल समूह का भी मंगल करने वाले ! कामरिपु ! आपने वाक्य से अनुमोदन करके जो बाजी लगाई थी, वह मुझे अर्पित करें।। ७८-८३।।

नारद कहते हैं- “हे देवी! आकर्ण विशाल नेत्रे (जिनके नेत्र कान तक फैले हैं)! मेरा एक जगत् का मंगल करने वाला वाक्य सुनें। ये देव शंकर तो महाभाग्यवानों के भी वरेण्य हैं। आपने इनको जय किया, ऐसा मिथ्या वाक्य क्यों कह रही हैं? महादेव को आप जय नहीं कर सकतीं! वे देवगण के परम गुरु हैं। पण्डितों का कथन है कि ये अरूप-सुरूप तथा रूपातीत हैं। ये एकमात्र परमज्योति हैं। देवगण की जो तेजः समष्टि है, वे भी ये ही हैं। ये ही त्रैलोक्यनाथ, विश्वात्मा, लोकशंकर शंकर हैं। हे देवी! ये तो तीनों लोकों हेतु अजेय हैं। आप इन पर कैसे जय प्राप्त करेंगी? हे वरानने! आप स्त्रित्व के कारण शिव को सम्यक्तः जान नहीं सकीं।” नारद का वचन सुनकर पार्वती अत्यन्त क्रोधित हो गयीं। वे मात्सर्यवशात् आक्षेपमय वाक्य कहने लगीं।।८८-९२

भृंगी कहते हैं- "हे भामिनी! आप पुनः ऐसे वाक्य का प्रयोग न करें। हे सुमध्यमे ! मेरे प्रभु शिव अजेय तथा निर्विकार हैं। हे वरानने! आप स्त्री स्वभाव से युक्त हैं, तभी आप परात्पर देव को नहीं जान सकीं। हे भवानी ! आपने पूर्वकाल में कामदेव को अग्रगामी करके महेश को पाया है। हे सुभगे ! पूर्व में पिनाकपाणि प्रभु ने जो-जो किया है, क्या आपको स्मरण नहीं है? इन्होंने ही मदन को अनंग बनाया है। आपके पूर्व पिता दक्ष इनके ही द्वारा दण्डित हुये थे। तदनन्तर आपने भी परात्पर परात्मा शिव की आराधना सम्पन्न किया था।" भृंगी की इस बात से कुपित होकर भवानी महेश को सुना-सुना कर कहने लगीं।।९७-१०१।।

पार्वती कहती हैं- हे भृङ्गी! तुमने पक्षपात के कारण मेरे प्रति अयुक्त बातों को कहा है। हे मन्दबुद्धि ! तुम शिवप्रिय, भेदबुद्धिधारी हो। हे मूढ़! मैं शिवात्मिका हूं। शिव भी मुझमें नित्य स्थित हैं। तुमने किस प्रकार से अपने वाक्यबल द्वारा शिव-शिवा का भेद व्यक्त किया?" पार्वती का यह शुभ वाक्य भृङ्गी ने सुना तथा शिव के पास ही रहते पार्वती से कहने लगे- "पिता दक्ष के यज्ञ में आपने शिवनिन्दा सुनी थी। उस अप्रिय विषय को सुनकर आपने प्राणत्याग कर दिया था! हे तन्वङ्गी! अब आपने क्या किया? भ्रम के कारण आपने शिवनिन्दा को नहीं समझा? हे दरवर्णिनी! आपने किस प्रकार पर्वतश्रेष्ठ के यहां जन्म लिया था? हे सुमध्यमे ! किस प्रकार आपने उग्र तपस्या से स्वयं को सन्तप्त किया था? अब देखता हूं कि आपकी शिव के प्रति प्रेमयुक्त भक्ति नहीं है। हे तनुगात्री! आप शिवप्रिया हैं। तभी मैंने आपसे यह सब कहा। शिव से बढ़ कर त्रैलोक्य में कुछ नहीं है। हे वरवर्णिनी! आप भक्ता हैं। हे महाभाग्यवानों में अग्रगण्य ! आप तपस्या से प्राप्त शिव की सेवा करें। शिव वरेण्य तथा सर्वप्रिय हैं। इसके अतिरिक्त उनके प्रति अन्य भावना न रखिये।" भृङ्गी का वचन सुनकर गिरिजा ने कहा।।१०२-१११।।

पार्वती कहती हैं- “हे भृङ्गी! तुम मौन धारण करके बैठो, अथवा यहां से चले जाओ। तुम यह नहीं जानते कि क्या कहना चाहिये अथवा क्या नहीं कहना चाहिये। तुम पिशाचों जैसा क्या बोल रहे हो? किस तपस्या बल से शिव को लाकर पाया? मैं कौन, ये शिव कौन? तुमने भेदबुद्धि से मेरा तत्व क्या जाना? मुझे बताओ, तुम किसके साथ युक्त हुये हो? क्यों अनेक वाक्य बोलते हो? मैं तुमको शापित करूंगी। देखूं कि तुम्हारे शिव क्या करते हैं?” इस प्रकार देवी ने भृंगी के प्रति कुपित होकर उसका तिरस्कार करते हुये शाप प्रदान किया। “हे मन्द! हे शंकरप्रिय भृंगी ! तुम मांसरहित हो जाओ।” शंकरप्रिया पार्वती ने तत्काल यह कहकर कोपपूर्वक तत्काल शंकर के सभी आभूषणों को ले लिया। तनुगात्री शिवा ने शिव के कण्ठ से वासुकि को उतार कर अपने हाथों में लिया। इस प्रकार शिव के अनेक भुजंग (सर्प) भूषणों को शिवदेह से उतारा। उनकी चन्द्रकला, उत्तम गजचर्म, कम्बल तथा अश्वतर नामक नागों के कर्णकुण्डल उन महादेवी ने छलोक्ति द्वारा हास्यपूर्वक ले लिया। भगवान् शिव ने जो कौपीन धारण कर रक्खी थी, उसे भी देवी ने हास्यपूर्वक हर लिया। तब प्रमथगण तथा सभी सखीगण लज्जा से वहां से हट गये। महातपा भृंगी, चण्ड, मुण्ड, महालोमा, महोदर तथा अन्य बहुत

से गण यह देखकर दुःखी हो गये। उनकी यह अवस्था देखकर महेश लज्जित हो गये तथा कुपित होकर पार्वती से कहा ।।११२-१२३।।

Sage Lomaśa narrates: Lord Rudra, the god of gods and master of the universe, now resides on Mount Kailāsa along with Vīrabhadra and other attendants (Pramathas), the gods led by Indra, and the sages. Brahmā sings his praises, Viṣṇu stands by him like a servant, and the gods serve him with devotion. The moon bears his royal umbrella, the wind fans him with a yak-tail whisk, Agni (fire) offers divine food, and the Gandharvas sing and praise him. The Vidyādharas and Apsarās dance before him. Thus, Lord Tripurāri Śiva dwells there fearlessly with his beloved Pārvatī and his mighty sons Gaṇeśa and Skanda, enjoying the bliss of divine sovereignty.

This is the same Śiva who slew the great demon Andhakāsura with his trident and hung him upon it for eternity, who killed Gajāsura and wore his hide, who burned the triple cities (Tripura) with his power, and who sits in radiant form beside Viṣṇu, the protector of all beings. To behold him, the divine sage Nārada arrived at the glorious Mount Kailāsa, shining like the moon. There he saw the wondrous, camphor-white, immensely powerful Śiva, bathed in divine nectar. Overwhelmed with awe, Nārada entered the region of Gandhamādana.

He saw the mountain adorned with countless marvels—glowing with gold, filled with singing Vidyādharīs, and radiant with divine light. There stood many wish-fulfilling trees entwined with vines, under whose shade the sacred cows (Kāmadhenu) rested. The forest of Pārijāta was buzzing with bees, and swans played in the mountain lakes. Peacocks cried joyfully, birds sang in melodious fifth notes, elephants frolicked with their mates, and lions roared. Nandī and other Pramathas danced and played joyfully. The mountain was filled with divine trees and sandalwood groves.

There were Nāga trees, Bakula, Campā, Nāgakeśara, wild jambu, golden ketaka, Kalhāra, Karavīra, Kumuda, Mandāra, Badarī, Krāmuka, Pāṭala, and hundreds more that delighted Lord Śiva. The groves were rich with trees and vines. A wondrous stream of the Ganges flowed down from the sky onto the mountain peak. Sage Nārada saw this sacred river split into two streams.

O sages! Nārada observed that everything there was divided into two parts. Amazed by this and the mountain's beauty, he proceeded toward Śiva's abode. At the entrance, he saw two artificial gatekeepers crafted by Viśvakarmā. Enchanted, he asked them for permission to enter and see Śiva. Receiving no reply, he realized they were not real and entered on his own. Inside, he saw many artificial figures who greeted him with reverence, which pleased him greatly.

Then Nārada saw the manifest form of Lord Tryambaka seated with Goddess Girijā. The virtuous Goddess Gaurī sat on half of Śiva's seat. She is the aughter of the mountain king and revered across the three worlds. She has beautiful eyes, a slender form, and a radiant face. Though Śiva is beyond all attributes, she has adorned him with beauty and form. Nārada saw her as the inseparable half of Śiva. He then saw Lord Śiva himself, glowing like pure gold, served by gods and demons alike. Serpent kings like Śaṅkha served his lotus feet. Dhṛtarāṣṭra, Takṣaka, Mahāpadma, Ananta, and other great serpents were always at his service. Vāsuki adorned his neck like a garland.

Kambala and Aśvatara shone like earrings. Many other serpents rested at the roots of his matted locks. Serpents like Takṣaka, Kulīraka, Śaṅkha, Dhṛtarāṣṭra, Padma, Dambha, Sudanta, Karāla, and Bhīṣaṇa—each with various colors and venom—were part of Śiva's divine form. Some had one hood, others two, three, four, five, six, seven, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, eighteen, nineteen, forty, fifty, seventy, eighty, ninety, a hundred, a thousand, ten thousand, a hundred thousand, or countless hoods. Those with infinite hoods also adorned Śiva as ornaments. Nārada saw all this with wonder.

These serpents were wise, radiant, adorned with jewels, and served as Śiva's garlands and ornaments. Śiva's matted locks bore the crescent moon, and his forehead held the third eye. He had five faces and ten arms. His bracelets were emerald-colored, his chest was beautiful, his thighs broad, and his legs divine. Nārada saw his feet shining like the evening sky—auspicious, supreme, and destroyers of all sin and suffering. Śiva's feet were radiant, transcendent, graceful, and sources of joy and prosperity. Then Nārada beheld the supremely beautiful Goddess Gaurī.

He saw that Śiva was adorned with the divine beauty and fortune of Sati. These divine spouses, though one in essence, appeared distinct. Though beyond attributes, they manifested with form. Though formless, they appeared embodied. Though free from fear, they bestowed bliss. Nārada bowed to them repeatedly and praised them with devotion.

Nārada said: “O supreme divine couple! Though you are beyond form, you appear in partial form before my eyes. You are the seed of the entire universe. I bow to you. Now I understand this truth clearly. By your grace, I have attained this knowledge. There is no doubt.” Pleased by his praise, Pārvatī and Śiva smiled.

Then Śiva asked: “Are you pleased? O Brāhmaṇa, tell me what I can do for you.” Nārada replied: “O Lord! Your darśana alone has satisfied me. I have received everything. I came to this great mountain Kailāsa for divine play. O Lord! Though you dwell in the hearts of all beings, your direct vision is essential for everyone.”

Pārvatī said: “O sage! What kind of play do you wish to see? What kind of game do you favor? Tell me quickly.” Smiling, Nārada said: “O great Goddess! In this world, many kinds of dice games are seen. Two people playing dice often xperience joy greater than even romantic pleasure." Hearing this, the Goddess became displeased and angrily said: "How can you call gambling a noble game? Wise people reject it. O sage! You are the son of Brahmā and travel throughout the three worlds. You have taught even the wisest with your eloquence. Who is greater than you?"

Hearing this, Nārada replied to Pārvatī in Śiva's presence: "I am an ascetic and servant of Śiva. What do I know of gambling? I have never engaged in it. O daughter of the mountain! O purifier of yogis! Why do you ask me about this?" Pārvatī replied: "O sage! You know everything. I will now play this game with Mahādeva before you. Stay and watch."

Saying this, the beautiful daughter of the mountain took the dice and began to play with Śiva. As the divine couple played, Nārada watched with wonder and joy. The wise sage observed their game and was delighted. Sati, along with her companions, played the dice game with trickery. Then Śiva also joined with great cunning and defeated Bhavānī.

Sage Nārada joined Lord Śiva in playful mockery after Goddess Pārvatī lost in a game of dice. Seeing this, Pārvatī became extremely angry and threatened Nārada with the gesture of "Ardhachandra" — a symbolic dismissal made by placing the palm at the neck. Her beautiful crown trembled with rage, and her lovely face, now flushed with anger, appeared even more radiant. Śiva, enchanted by her fiery expression, was inspired to continue the game.

Pārvatī then said to Śiva, “I have lost the game. Now place a wager, O Śambhu! What will you bet?” Śiva, laughing, replied, “O Bhavānī! I wager my great ornaments — this crescent moon, the mighty serpent necklace (Vāsuki), and the serpent earrings (Kambala and Aśvatara). Win, and they are yours.” Thus, the divine couple resumed their dice game.

Both were masters of the game, and the play became highly skillful. Pārvatī won many ornaments and said with a smile, “O Śaṅkara! I have defeated you. Now give me what you wagered.” Śiva laughed and replied, “O virtuous one! Think carefully. I have not truly lost. I am undefeated by all beings in the three worlds. Do not speak such words. Let us play again, and I shall defeat you.”

Pārvatī insisted, “O Lord! I have won. There is no doubt.” She held Śiva’s arm and said sweetly, “You don’t realize it, but I have truly defeated you.” Then, with gentle laughter and playful sarcasm, she said, “O destroyer of desire! You agreed to the wager. Now give me what you promised.”

Śiva replied, “O wide-eyed one! I am invincible. Your prideful words deserve reflection.” Pārvatī responded, “O Mahādeva! It is true you are unconquerable, but it is also true that I alone have defeated you in this pure game. I am determined in this matter.”

As the couple debated, Sage Nārada laughed and said, “O Goddess! Hear my words, which bring welfare to the world. Lord Śiva is revered even by the most fortunate. Why do you falsely claim to have defeated him? He is the supreme teacher of the gods, beyond form and attributes, the embodiment of divine light. He is the soul of the universe and the benefactor of all worlds. How can you claim victory over him? O beautiful one! Due to your feminine nature, you have not truly understood him."

Hearing this, Pārvatī became furious and said, "O son of Brahmā! Though I respect you, do not speak out of turn. Your words have truly frightened me. Be silent, O sage! You praise Śiva's greatness, but he exists only by my grace."

Nārada, hearing these harsh words, chose silence. Then Bhṛṅgī, Śiva's attendant, began to speak.

Bhṛṅgī said, "O passionate one! Do not speak such words again. My Lord Śiva is invincible and beyond change. You are influenced by feminine nature and thus fail to understand the supreme deity. You once sent Kāma (the god of desire) to approach Śiva. Do you not remember how Śiva reduced him to ashes? Your father Dakṣa was punished by Śiva. Later, you yourself performed intense penance to attain him."

Angered by Bhṛṅgī's words, Pārvatī retorted, "You speak unjustly due to bias. You are dull-witted and partial to Śiva. I am the essence of Śiva, and he eternally resides in me. How dare you speak of a difference between us?"

Bhṛṅgī replied, "At Dakṣa's sacrifice, you heard Śiva being insulted and gave up your life. Now, in delusion, you speak against him again. You were born in the house of the mountain king and performed severe penance. But now I see your devotion to Śiva has waned. You are his beloved, and that is why I speak. There is none greater than Śiva in the three worlds. Serve him with devotion and hold no other thoughts."

Pārvatī responded, "Be silent or leave this place. You do not know what to say or what not to say. You speak like a demon. What penance did you perform to attain Śiva? Who are you, and who is Śiva? You speak many words, but I shall curse you. Let us see what your Śiva does then."

Enraged, the Goddess cursed Bhṛṅgī: "O fool! O devotee of Śiva! Become fleshless." Then, in anger, she took all of Śiva's ornaments. She removed Vāsuki from his neck and took many serpent ornaments from his body. She playfully took his crescent moon, the elephant skin, and the serpent earrings. She even took his loincloth with laughter.

Seeing this, the attendants and companions withdrew in shame. Bhṛṅgī, Caṇḍa, Muṇḍa, Mahāloma, Mahodara, and many others were saddened. Witnessing this, Lord Śiva felt ashamed and angrily addressed Pārvatī.

Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said – O Devi! Not causing harm to any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder (Grihastha Ashrama). (Verse 25)

Maintaining these duties of household life —
Staying away from relations with another's wife, protecting entrusted goods and the honor of women, not taking anything without giving in return, and renouncing meat and alcohol — these are five types (aspects) of Dharma that lead to happiness.

Each of these Dharmic principles has many branches.
Those who consider Dharma to be supreme should certainly follow this virtuous and meritorious path.

Svetasvatara upanishad chapter 1 verse 10 says Rudra is imperishable So how does one accuse that he got injured by someone curse
क्षरं प्रधानममृताक्षरं हरः क्षरात्मानावीशते देव एकः।
तस्याभिध्यानाद्योजनात्तत्त्वभावाद्भूयश्चान्ते विश्वमायानिवृत्तिः ।।१०।।
What is perishable, is Primary Matter (pradhana). What is immortal and imperishable, is Hara (the 'Bearer,' the soul).
Over both the perishable and the soul the One God (deva) rules.
By meditation upon Him, by union with Him, and by entering into His being.
More and more, there is finally cessation from every illusion (māyā-nivṛtti).
Even Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8 too tells that Brahm is अव्रणम् means Free from any imperfections or injuries and that he cannot be injured by anyone and Shiva being Param Brahm he is also free from injuries

आरंभ से ही सब के लिए यथायोग्य साधन सुविधाओं की व्यवस्था की है. (८)

3. Shiva's Self-Castration

There is also a tale that describes how Shiva voluntarily allowed his penis to fall down. In this narrative, Brahma sought Rudra/Shiva's assistance in creating living beings. In response, Shiva immersed himself in water, and Brahma waited for an extended period. Growing impatient, Brahma proceeded to create living beings on his own. When Shiva emerged from the water and realized that Brahma had already created all living beings, he became extremely angry and decided to cast off his penis, considering it no longer necessary.

📚Mahabharata 10.17.17-26📚
After the creatures had multiplied and the Grandsire had become well pleased, the first-born rose from the water and beheld the living creation. He saw that diverse kinds of creatures ad been created and that they had multiplied by their own energy. At this sight, Rudra became angry and caused his procreative limb to disappear in the bowels of the Earth. The unfading Brahma, soothing him by soft words, said unto him, “O Sharva, what wert thou doing so long within the water? For what reason, also hast thou caused thy limb of generation to disappear in the bowels of the Earth?” Thus questioned, that lord of the universe wrathfully answered the lord Brahman, “Somebody else has created all these creatures! What purpose then would be served by this limb of mine? I have by my austerities, O Grandsire, created food for all these creatures. These herbs and plants also will multiply like those that will subsist upon them!” Having said these words, Bhava went away, in cheerlessness and rage, to the foot of the Menjavat mountains for practising severer austerities.

Refutation-

Here is Mahabharta Sauptika Parva Adhaya 17 BORI Critical Edition you can read it nowhere written such thing

Chapter 1300(17)

Vaishampayana said, 'When all the soldiers were asleep and were destroyed by the three rathas, King Yudhishthira grieved and spoke these words to Dasharha. "O Krishna! All my sons were maharathas. Drona's son was wicked, inferior and blemished in his deeds. How could they be slain by him? In a similar way, Drupada's sons were accomplished in the use of weapons. They were brave. They could fight with hundreds and thousands. How could they have been brought down by Drona's son? Dhrishtadyumna was the best among rathas. In the forefront of the battle, Drona, the great archer, could not stand before him. How could he have been slain? O bull among men! What act had the preceptor's son accomplished, that he could single-handedly slay all of them in the camp?"

'Vasudeva replied, "There is no doubt that Drona's son had sought refuge with the god of the gods, the lord without decay, the lord of everything. That is the reason he could slay many, though he was single-handed. If Mahadeva is pleased, he can even grant immortality. O bull among the Bharata lineage! I know about Mahadeva's true nature and about the many deeds that he performed in ancient times. O descendant of the Bharata lineage! He is the beginning, the middle and the end of beings. Everything in this entire universe moves because of his deeds. The lord, the grandfather, wished to create beings and saw him first. He told him, 'Without any delay, create beings.' Having been thus addressed, the one with the tawny locks saw that beings would have defects. For a very long time, the immensely ascetic one submerged himself in water and tormented himself through austerities. The grandfather waited for a very long period of time. So as to generate beings, he then created another being through his mental powers. On seeing that Girisha was submerged in the water, this being told his father, 'I will generate beings only if no other being has been born before me.' His father told him, 'There is no other being who has been born before you. Sthanu is submerged in the water. You can confidently do what you have to do.' That being then created seven Prajapatis, Daksha and the others. All of them created the four kinds of beings. Having been created, all the beings were hungry. O king! They violently rushed towards the Prajapatis, wishing to devour them. As they were about to be devoured, in search of succour, they fled to the grandfather. 'O illustrious one! Please save us from these. Decree some means for their sustenance.' He then assigned them the forests, the herbs and all immobile objects. Among mobile beings, the strong could feed on the weak. Having been assigned a means of sustenance, all the beings were satisfied and went away to wherever they had come from. O king! They cheerfully multiplied themselves, within their own species. When the beings prospered, the preceptor of the worlds was pleased. However, the eldest one arose from the waters and saw all these beings. He saw many different kinds of beings, who were extending through their own energies. The illustrious Rudra angrily planted his linga, so that it penetrated the earth and remained stationed there. Brahma wished to pacify him and spoke these words to him. 'O Sharva! Why did you remain inside the water for such a long period of time? Why have you made your linga penetrate inside the earth?' Thus addressed, he angrily replied to the preceptor of the worlds, 'Someone else has created these beings. What will I do with this?' O grandfather! Through my austerities, I have created food for the beings. The herbs will always multiply and so will the beings.' Having angrily spoken in this way, Bhava was cheerless and went away. The immensely ascetic one tormented himself through austerities on the foothills of Mount Munjavat."'

Then Gāyatrī, the giver of boons said to Rudra: "Those, men, who will worship your genital organ (in the form of phallus) even though it had fallen, being purified and earning merit thereby, will share (i.e. enjoy) heaven. That state which men get by worshipping your genital organ (in the form of phallus), cannot be had in (i.e. by) maintaining sacred fire or offering oblations into it. The phallus is united with vagina and vagina is united with phallus. For the sake of perpetual enjoyment here and hereafter the devotee shall worship the phallic emblem which is lord Śiva Himself. He is the sun giving birth and sustenance to the worlds. His symbol is justified in the coming into existence of things. Persons should worship Śiva, the cause of birth, in his phallic form. That which makes the Puruṣa known, is called Liṅga, the symbol. The unification and fusion of the symbols of Śiva and Śakti is thus called Liṅga.

संसारको उत्पन्न करनेवाले सूर्य हैं और उत्पन्न करनेके कारण जगत् ही उनका (प्रत्यक्ष) चिह्न है। [इसलिये उनका एक नाम भग भी है।] पुरुषको लिंगमें जगत्को उत्पन्न करनेवाले लिंगीकी ही पूजा करनी चाहिये। सृष्टिके अर्थको बतानेवाले चिहके रूपमें ही उसे लिंग कहा जाता है ॥ १०५-१०६॥
लिंग परमपुरुष शिवका बोध कराता है। इस प्रकार शिव और शक्तिके मिलनके प्रतीकको ही शिवलिंग कहा गया है। अपने चिह्नके पूजनसे प्रसन्न होकर महादेव उस चिह्नके कार्यरूप जन्मादिको समाप्त कर देते हैं तथा पूजकको पुनर्जन्मकी प्राप्ति नहीं होती। अतः सभी लोगोंको यथाप्राप्त बाह्य और मानसिक षोडशोपचारोंसे शिवलिंगका पूजन करना चाहिये ॥ १०७-१०९

Verses 105–106:
The Sun is the creator of the world, and the world itself is the visible sign (symbol) of that creative cause. Therefore, one of his names is "Bhaga" (one who possesses splendor or creative power).
Just as the Sun is the origin of the world, in a man, the linga (Sign/Symbol) is the instrument of creation. Hence, one should worship the Lingi (the possessor of the linga) through the linga, which is symbolic of the meaning and function of creation. That is why it is called Linga—as it indicates the mark or symbol of the creative force.

Verse 107:
The Linga reveals the awareness or realization of the Supreme Being, Shiva. Thus, the Shiva Linga is a symbol of the union of Shiva and Shakti, the eternal male and female principles of the universe.

Brahmasūtra (ब्रह्मसूत्र) refers to certain lines carved on the rudrabhāga (top-most portion of the mānuşalinga, a type of linga created by humans hands).
Brahmasūtra (ब्रह्मसूत्र) is the tracing of certain lines on the linga. Two vertical lines are engraved on the surface of the rudrabhāga (or the pūjābhāga, as it is often referred to in the Agamas). The length of these lines should be, according to the Siddhāntasārāvali, determined by the following rule: “divide the length of the pūjābhāga of the linga into three equal parts: divide further the two lower parts into eight equal divisions: now the distance between the two parallel vertical lines should be one of these smaller divisions; the tickness and depths of the lines, should be one-ninth of this division: two lines are to be traced, one on either side, which should begin from near the tops of the vertical lines, descend sloping down and removed farther and farther from the central double parallel lines until they reach a distance which is two divisions from the lowers portion of the pūjābhāga; then the two sloping side-lines, (pārśva-sūtras), should be traced in a horizontal plane so as to meet each other at the back. The two central vertical parallel lines should be joined at their tops by a curved line whose curvature should resemble that of the top or (śiras) of the linga.”

Shree Krishna Uvach –

वेदमें उनके दो रूप बताये गये हैं, जिन्हें वेदवेत्ता ब्राह्मण जानते हैं। उनका एक स्वरूप तो घोर है और दूसरा शिव। इन दोनोंके भी अनेक भेद हैं ।। ३ ।।

इनकी जो घोर मूर्ति है, वह भय उपजानेवाली है। उसके अग्नि, विद्युत् और सूर्य आदि अनेक रूप हैं। इससे भिन्न जो शिव-नामवाली मूर्ति है, वह परम शान्त एवं मंगलमयी है। उसके धर्म, जल और चन्द्रमा आदि कई रूप हैं ।। ४ ।।

Verse 2:
The wise call this great Lord Mahadev by many names—Agni, Sthanu, Maheshwara, Ekaksha (the one-eyed), Tryambaka (the three-eyed), Vishvarupa (the cosmic form), and Shiva, among others.

Verse 3:
The Vedas describe two forms of Him, known to the learned Brahmanas. One of His forms is fierce (ghora), and the other is auspicious (Shiva). Even these two have many variations.

Verse 4:
His fierce form is terrifying and gives rise to fear. It has many manifestations such as fire (Agni), lightning (Viduyt), and the sun (Surya). In contrast, His form named Shiva is supremely peaceful and auspicious. It manifests as righteousness (Dharma), water (Jala), the moon (Chandra), and many more.

इनकी जो घोर मूर्ति है, वह भय उपजानेवाली है। उसके अग्नि, विद्युत् और सूर्य आदि अनेक रूप हैं। इससे भिन्न जो शिव-नामवाली मूर्ति है, वह परम शान्त एवं मंगलमयी है। उसके धर्म, जल और चन्द्रमा आदि कई रूप हैं ॥ ४ ॥

वे जो सबको दग्ध करते हैं, अत्यन्त तीक्ष्ण हैं, उग्र और प्रतापी हैं, प्रलयाग्निरूपसे मांस, रक्त और मज्जाको भी अपना ग्रास बना लेते हैं; इसलिये 'रुद्र' कहलाते हैं ।। ७ ।।

वे देवताओंमें महान् हैं, उनका विषय भी महान् है तथा वे महान् विश्वकी रक्षा करते हैं; इसलिये 'महादेव' कहलाते हैं ।। ८ ।।

Verse 7:
He who burns all, who is extremely sharp, fierce, and full of radiance—who, in the form of the fire of dissolution (Pralayagni), —He is therefore called "Rudra."

Verse 8:
He is great among the gods, His domain is great, and He protects the vast universe; hence, He is called "Mahadeva" (the Great God).

यस्त्रिर्दहति यत्तीक्ष्णो यदुग्रो यत् प्रतापवान् ।

ये ऊर्ध्वभागमें स्थित होकर देहधारियोंके प्राणोंका नाश करते हैं। सदा स्थिर रहते हैं और जिनका लिंग-विग्रह सदा स्थिर रहता है। इसलिये ये 'स्थाणु' कहलाते हैं ।। १० ।।

Verse 9:
Alternatively, because His matted hair (jata) is of a smoky color (Dhumra Varna), He is called "Dhurjati". He promotes the upliftment of all beings through all kinds of actions and desires the welfare of all; therefore, His name is "Shiva".

Residing in the upper region, He destroys the life-force (prāṇa) of embodied beings. He remains ever-unchanging, and His Liṅga-form (symbolic form) is eternally stable; therefore, He is called "Sthāṇu" (the immovable one).

Verses 11–12:
In the past, present, and future, His many forms manifest in both the stationary and the moving beings; hence, He is called "Bahurupa" (the One with many forms). All the deities reside within Him; therefore, He is known as "Vishvarupa" (the Universal Form).

Verse 13:
From His eyes radiates brilliance, and His eyes are infinite. Therefore, He is called "Sahasraksha" (Thousand-eyed), "Ayutaksha" (Ten-thousand-eyed), and “Sarvato’kshimaya” (He whose eyes are everywhere).

Verse 14:
He nurtures all beings in every way, finds joy in being among animals, and is the Lord over them. Therefore, He is called “Pashupati” (Lord of all creatures).

Verse 15:
If a person observes celibacy (brahmacharya) and daily worships the steady Shiva Linga, then the great soul Shankara (Shiva) becomes immensely pleased.

वेदके शतरुद्रिय प्रकरणमें उनके सैकड़ों उत्तम नाम हैं, जिन्हें वेदवेत्ता ब्राह्मण जानते हैं। महर्षि व्यासने भी उन महात्मा शिवका उपस्थान (स्तवन) बताया है ।। २३ ।।

Verse 20:
He dwells within the bodies of living beings and manifests as their very death. He also resides within the body in the form of the life-breaths such as Prāṇa and Apāna (vital airs).

Verse 21:
He has many terrifying and radiant forms that are worshipped throughout the world. The wise Brāhmaṇas alone truly understand all these forms.

Verse 22:
Based on His greatness, vastness, and divine deeds, many true and meaningful names of His are known among the gods.

Verse 23:
In the Shatarudriya section of the Vedas, there are hundreds of His excellent names, which are known to Vedic scholars. The great sage Vyāsa has also composed hymns in praise of that great soul, Shiva.

Verse 24:
He is the giver of desired blessings to all the worlds. This vast universe is said to be His very form. The Brāhmaṇas and sages consider Him the foremost of all.

Verse 25:
He is the chief among the gods and has produced Agni (fire) from His own mouth.

He delivers beings afflicted by various planetary afflictions (graha-bādhas) from their suffering.

Verse 26:
He is righteous and deeply compassionate toward those who seek refuge. He never abandons anyone who surrenders to Him. It is He who grants human beings long life, health, prosperity, wealth, and all their desires — and it is He who also takes them away again.

उन्होंने नाना प्रकारके बहुसंख्यक रूपोंद्वारा इस सम्पूर्ण लोकको व्याप्त कर रखा है। उन महादेवजीका जो मुख है, वही समुद्रमें वडवानल है ।। २९ ।।

Verse 27:
The prosperity possessed by Indra and the other gods is said to have been granted by Him alone. He is ever ready to bestow the results of good and bad actions throughout the three worlds.

Verse 28:
Because He is the Lord over all desires, He is called "Ishvara"; and because He is the Supreme Lord of all great worlds, He is known as "Maheshvara."

Verse 29:
He has pervaded this entire universe through

सांख्यशास्त्रके विद्वान् पर, प्रधान, पुरुष, अधिष्ठाता और ईश्वर कहकर सदा जिनका गुणगान करते हैं, योगीजन जिनके चिन्तनमें लगे रहते हैं, विद्वान् पुरुष जिन्हें जगत्की उत्पत्ति और विनाशका कारण समझते हैं, देवताओं, असुरों और मुनियोंमें भी जिनसे श्रेष्ठ दूसरा कोई नहीं है, उन अजन्मा, अनादि, अनन्त, अनघ और अत्यन्त सुखी, प्रभावशाली ईश्वर महादेवजीकी मैं शरण लेता हूँ'

I take refuge in the unborn, eternal, infinite, sinless, and supremely blissful Lord Mahadeva, who is praised by the scholars of Sankhya philosophy as the Supreme, the Purusha (the ultimate person), the Adhisthata (the presiding deity), and Ishvara (the supreme Lord). He is the cause of the creation and destruction of the world, and is the one whom the yogis constantly meditate upon. Among the gods, demons, and sages, there is none superior to Him.

यं पठन्ति सदा सांख्याश्चिन्तयन्ति च योगिनः ।
परं प्रधानं पुरुषमधिष्ठातारमीश्वरम् ।। ४ ।।
उत्पत्तौ च विनाशे च कारणं यं विदुर्बुधाः ।
देवासुरमुनीनां च परं यस्मान्न विद्यते ।। ५ ।।
अजं तमहमीशानमनादिनिधनं प्रभुम् ।
अत्यन्तसुखिनं देवमनघं शरणं व्रजे ।। ६ ।।

'सांख्यशास्त्रके विद्वान् पर, प्रधान, पुरुष, अधिष्ठाता और ईश्वर कहकर सदा जिनका गुणगान करते हैं, योगीजन जिनके चिन्तनमें लगे रहते हैं, विद्वान् पुरुष जिन्हें जगत्की उत्पत्ति और विनाशका कारण समझते हैं, देवताओं, असुरों और मुनियोंमें भी जिनसे श्रेष्ठ दूसरा कोई नहीं है, उन अजन्मा, अनादि, अनन्त, अनघ और अत्यन्त सुखी, प्रभावशाली ईश्वर महादेवजीकी मैं शरण लेता हूँ' ।। ४—६ ।।

इतना कहते ही तण्डिने उन तपोनिधि, अविकारी, अनुपम, अचिन्त्य, शाश्वत, ध्रुव, निष्कल, सकल, निर्गुण एवं सगुण ब्रह्मका दर्शन प्राप्त किया, जो योगियोंके परमानन्द, अविनाशी एवं मोक्षस्वरूप हैं ।। ७-८ ।।

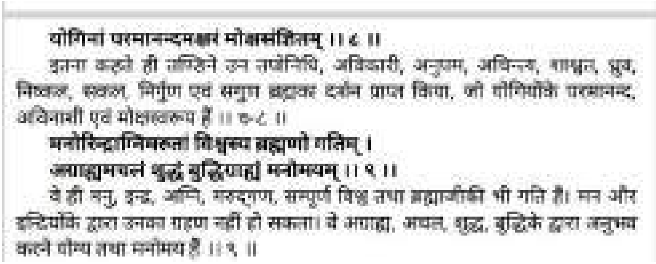
Verses 7-8:
As soon as he uttered these words, Tandini attained the vision of that Supreme, unchanging, unparalleled, incomprehensible, eternal, unshakable, formless yet with form, the absolute Brahman, who is the source of supreme bliss for yogis, imperishable, and the embodiment of liberation (moksha).

Verse 9:
He is the motion of Manu, Indra, Agni, the Maruts (wind gods), the entire universe, and even Brahma. He cannot be grasped by the mind or the senses. He is beyond perception, immovable, pure, experiencable only through intellect, and is also the essence of the mind.



योगिनां परमानन्दमक्षरं मोक्षसंज्ञितम् ।। ८ ।।

इतना कहते ही तण्डिने उन तपोनिधि, अविकारी, अनुपम, अचिन्त्य, शाश्वत, ध्रुव, निष्कल, सकल, निर्गुण एवं सगुण ब्रह्मका दर्शन प्राप्त किया, जो योगियोंके परमानन्द, अविनाशी एवं मोक्षस्वरूप हैं ।। ७-८ ।।

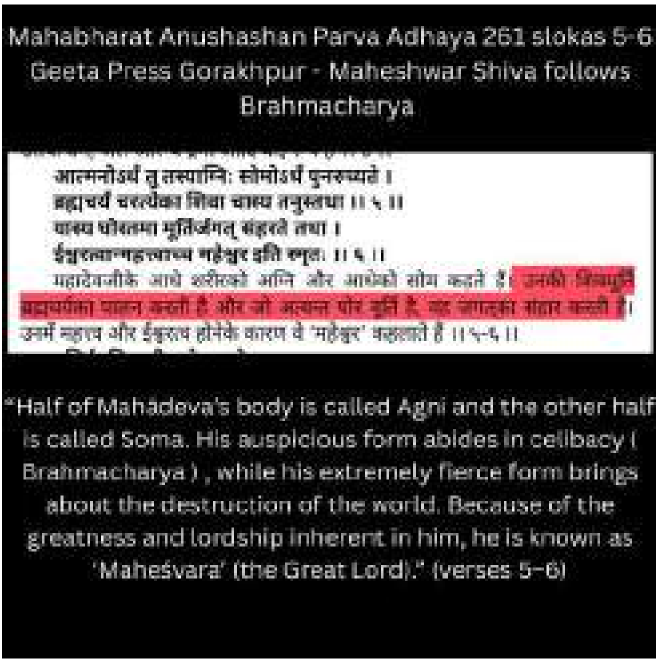
Geeta Press Gorakhpur – Maheshwar Shiva follows Brahmacharya

महादेवजीके आधे शरीरको अग्नि और आधेको सोम कहते हैं। उनकी शिवमूर्ति ब्रह्मचर्यका पालन करती है और जो अत्यन्त घोर मूर्ति है, वह जगत्का संहार करती है। उनमें महत्त्व और ईश्वरत्व होनेके कारण वे 'महेश्वर' कहलाते हैं ।। ५-६ ।।

“Half of Mahādeva’s body is called Agni and the other half is called Soma. His auspicious form abides in celibacy (Brahmacharya), while his extremely fierce form brings about the destruction of the world. Because of the greatness and lordship inherent in him, he is known as ‘Maheśvara’ (the Great Lord).” (verses 5-6)



In Srimad Bhagavatam Book 8 Chapter 7 sloka 32 Maheshwar Shiva is called the destroyer of Kama (Lust)

That you destroyed Kama (the god of Love), the sacrifice (of Daksa), Tripuras the three cities (constructed by Maya) subdued the god of death, consumed the (Hala-hala) poison (which is as good as consumed as you are certain to drink it up just now) and killed innumerable trouble-

In Mahabharta Shanti Parva Adhaya 284 sloka 112 Maheshwar Shiva is called destroyer of Kama (Lust)

काम कामद कामघ्न तृप्तातृप्तविचारिणे । सर्व सर्वद सर्वघ्न संध्याराग नमोऽस्तु ते ।। ११२ ।।
आप कामस्वरूप, कामनाओंको पूर्ण करनेवाले, कामदेवके नाशक, तृप्त और अतृप्तका विचार करनेवाले, सर्वस्वरूप, सब कुछ देनेवाले, सबके संहारक और संध्याकालके समान रंगवाले हैं। आपको प्रणाम है ।।
You are of the nature of Kāma (desire), the fulfiller of desires, the destroyer of Lust, the one who contemplates both satisfaction and dissatisfaction, the embodiment of all forms, the giver of everything, the destroyer of all, and of a hue like that of the evening twilight. I bow to you.

Mahabharat 13.14.71-72 – Geeta Press Gorakhpur –
Maheshwar Shiva the destroyer of Lust

शत्रुनाशक श्रीकृष्ण! आप जिनकी प्रार्थना करते हैं, वे तेज और तपस्याकी निधि अचिन्त्य भगवान् शंकर यहाँ शम आदि शुभभावोंकी सृष्टि और काम आदि अशुभ भावोंका संहार करते हुए देवी पार्वतीके साथ सदा विराजमान रहते हैं ।। ७१-७२ ।।
“O Krishna, destroyer of enemies! The one whom you yourself worship-he is the unfathomable Lord Shiva, the treasure of brilliance and austerity. He eternally resides here with Goddess Parvati, creating auspicious qualities like peace and destroying inauspicious ones like Lust

Mahabharat Anushashan Parva Adhaya 14 Slokas 217 Maheshwar Shiva the conqueror of Lust

दिग्वासाः कीर्त्यते कोऽन्यो लोके कश्चोर्ध्वरतसः । कस्य चार्धे स्थिता कान्ता अनङ्गः केन निर्जितः ।। २१७ ।।

दूसरा कौन दिगम्बर कहलाता है? संसारमें दूसरा कौन ऊर्ध्वरता है? किसके आधे शरीरमें धर्मपत्नी स्थित रहती है तथा किसने कामदेवको परास्त किया है? ।।

“Who else in the world is called Digambara ? Who else embodies supreme asceticism? Whose wife resides in half of his body? And who has conquered Lust ?

कस्यैश्वर्यं समानं च भूतैः को वापि क्रीडते । कस्य तुल्यबला देव गणाश्चैश्वर्यदर्पिताः ।। २१९ ।।

भगवान् शंकरके समान दूसरे किसका ऐश्वर्य है? कौन भूतोंके साथ क्रीड़ा करता है? देव! किसके पार्षदगण स्वामीके समान ही बलवान् और ऐश्वर्यपर अभिमान करनेवाले हैं? ।। २१९ ।।

“Who else possesses opulence like that of Lord Shankar? Who else plays freely among the spirits (bhūtas)? O Lord! Whose attendants are as powerful as their master and take pride in their strength and splendor?”

Shri Shiva Stuti from Srimad Bhagvatam Book 8 Chapter 7

21. Oh God of gods! Oh Supreme God! Oh Creator, the very soul of beings! Be pleased to save us who have sought shelter in you, from the poison that is burning the three worlds.

22. You alone are the Almighty Ruler capable of cau-sing bondage and emancipation of the whole worlds, the wise

23. adore you as such, and as the father (or preceptor) who removes the afflictions of those who seek refuge in you.

24. Oh all pervading Lord! When you, through your own Potency consisting of three gunas, undertake to create, preserve and destroy the universe, Oh self-seeing perfect Lord, you assume (severally) the appellations Brahmā, Vişnu and Śiva.

25. You are that Supreme mysterious Brahman, the creator of beings, of the higher (gods) and the lower order (sub-human beings). You are the supreme soul who appear as the universe by means of your various powers (such as Sattva, Rajas and Tamas). Hence you are the Controller and Master of the Universe.

26. You are the source of the Word (Vedas) and (hence you stand self-revealed); you are the prime cause of the universe (viz. the principle mahat), the soul (the cosmic ego or ahaṁkāra); the three gunas (viz. sattva, rajas and tamas) which bring forth the Vital airs (prāras), cognitive and conative sense-organs (indriyas) and the material object (dravya) and the essential nature (Sva-bhāva) of everything, you are the Time spirit (causing commotion and imbalance of gunas), the will to create (kratu), the Truth, the (cosmic) Order, the righteousness. The śāstras declare that Pradhana constituting of the three gunas is based on (and supported by) you, (or the Pranava consisting of three syllables AUM reveals vou) *

27. Oh Creator of the universe! Fire which represents, gods in its person (as the distributor of sacrificial offerings to gods) is your mouth; the wise know that the earth is your lotus-like feet; Time is the motion, the cardinal points, the ears, and Varuna (the Lord of waters) the palate, of you who are the soul (the Inner controller) of all gods.

28. The sky represents your navel; the wind, your breath, the sun, your eyes, water, (your semen; the support of all jīvas (individual souls) elevated (like that of god Brahmā) and ordinary (like those of sub-human beings), is your ego; Soma or the Moon-god, your mind, and the heavens, your head.

29. The seas symbolize your abdomen, the mountains your bones; all plants and herbs your hair; the Vedic metres seven humours in your body; the dharma as enunciated in the Vedas your heart, Oh embodiment of the three Vedas.

30. Oh Lord! the five upanisads[1] (the sacred hymns or mantras known as Tatpuruşa, Aghora, Sadyojāta, Vāmadeva, and Iśāna) from which the collection of thirty eight mantras evolve, denote your (five) faces; that self-effulgence constitu-ting the supreme principle which is designated as Siva is your (real) absolute state.

31. Your shadow is seen in the waves of unrighteous-ness (such as hypocrisy, covetousness (by which destruction is caused; your (three) eyes are sattva, rajas and tamas (which bring about the creation of the universe); Oh Lord, the eter-nal Veda mainly composed in meters (like Gayatri, Trişṭubh) stand for your glance; for you are the omniscient[1] pro-pounder of the śāstric lore.

32. Oh Lord of mountains! Your supreme effulgence where the modes of Prakrti like sattva, rajas and tamas have no place, and which is nothing but the supreme Brahman trans-cending all distinctions and differentiations, is absolutely inacessible to all the guardian deities of various spheres and to Brahmā, Vişnu[2] and Indra.

33. That you destroyed Kama (the god of Love), the sacrifice (of Daksa), Tripuras the three cities (constructed by Maya) subdued the god of death, consumed the (Hala-hala) poison (which is as good as consumed as you are certain to drink it up just now) and killed innumerable trouble-makers of living beings, is not so much praiseworthy, on your part, as your unawareness of the razing down of this universe-your own creation by the sparks emanating from the fire in your own (third) eye (you remaining absorbed in deep meditation) 3

34. Shameless are they who talk nonsense that you are always accompanied by (your consort) Uma of whom you are (excessively) enamoured, though (actually) the pair of your feet are contemplated in their hearts by the world's precep-tors who are absorbed in the spiritual bliss of the soul. (They are certainly brazen-faced) who (glibly) prate that you are a ferocious and murderous denizen of the funeral-place when you are a performer of austere penance (as an ideal to the sages)! Never can such (people lost to shame) understand your sportive ways.

35. Even god Brahmā and others are incapable of accurately comprehending your essential nature, much less are they able to praise you who are all-pervading and transcenden-tal to Prakrti (The primordialnature) lying beyond the causal relation. How is it possible for us (the recentmost) creation of the creations (like Marici and others) of Brahmā to extol you? The prayer offered by us (to the best of our ability) is kimited to our (meagre) capacity[1].

36. Oh Supreme Lord! What we behold is only your (apparent) visible form, but not the trancendental one. (We however, consider ourselves blessed even with this). Though your activities are unmanifest, this manifestation of yours is meant for the weal (and protection) of the world.

21. Oh God of gods! Oh Supreme God! Oh Creator, the very soul of beings! Be pleased to save us who have sought shelter in you, from the poison that is burning the three worlds.

Salutations to you, O Rudra, who are the embodiment of anger—also to your arrows, salutations!
Salutations be to your bow, and to your mighty arms!
May your arrow, which is most auspicious, be a source of well-being to us.
May your bow be beneficial and gracious to us, Rudra, with that, please be kind to us.
O Rudra, that auspicious form of yours, which is non-terrifying and removes sin—
By that most peaceful form, O Mountain Lord
(Girishanta), please bless us and protect us.

The arrow you hold in your hand, O Lord of the Mountain,
Make that arrow an auspicious one—do not hurt any living being in this world.
With gracious words we address you, O Lord of the Mountains;
May our entire world and people be free of disease and with noble hearts.
The divine healer who was the first to speak,
He subdued all poisons and destroyed all his being who appears red, tawny, and dark (brown), yet auspicious—

And those Rudras who are present in all directions in thousands—
To all of them we offer our salutations with reverence.
That Rudra who moves below, with blue neck and red form—
Even cowherds and water-drawers see him.
All beings have seen him—may he who is seen grant us happiness!
Salutations to the blue-necked, thousand-eyed, ever-gracious one.
And also to all those fierce forms of his—I bow to them all.

release the bowstring, O you who wield the bow in both hands;
Let your arrows, O Bhagavan, be turned away from us.
Unstring your bow, O thousand-eyed one with hundreds of arrows!
Remove the tips of your arrows—may you be auspicious and kind to us.
Let the bow of the matted-haired one be loosened, his arrows rendered harmless.
Let his quiver be emptied of arrows—may the bowstring be slackened.
That weapon of yours, most gracious, held in your hand—
With it, shield us completely from all sides from disease and fear.
Salutations to your weapons, to your bow and to your mighty arms!
May your arrow, shot from the bow, protect us from all sides.

And that quiver of yours, may it be set aside from us!

With this I will cover and debunk all allegations put by this blogspot on Maheshwar Shiva

Allegations-

1. Shiva attempted to rape the daughter of Sage Agniveshya

📚Skanda Purana 1.2.9.40-58📚
O gentle Sir, I saw the daughter of sage Agniveśya standing in water without any clothes on. She was on the threshold of youth. She was a Śyāmā, with slender waist. She was fawn-eyed. She had ample buttocks. Her thighs resembled the interior of a plantain tree (full, round and lovely). Her breasts were very close to each other. Beauty was gradually sprouting in her body. Her face resembled the lotus that was in full bloom. She could be adequately described only by good scholars and that too in accordance with their intellect and not in accordance with her instrinsic [intrinsic?] nature. Her side glances were like volleys of arrows. Smara ('god of Love') seemed to occupy her body himself and struck me hard with those arrows. She was playing as she liked surrounded by her friends. Impatient with love I got down from the aerial chariot and abducted her. On being seized by me and placed in the aerial chariot she lamented loudly for a long time shouting "O father, O father", O gentle Sir. Her friends were very sad. They ran to the sage and said to him, "Your daughter is being taken away by a certain Vaimānika ('one moving about in an aerial chariot'). O holy lord, she is crying. Save her. Get up." On hearing these words of those (girls) from all round, the gentle sage, the storehouse of austerities, Agniveśya, hurriedly came up to her in the sky. "Stop, stop," said he to me and restricted my movement through the power of his penance. The infuriated sage then spoke these unbearable words to me: "My daughter was carried away by force by you in the manner in which a piece of flesh is carried away by a vulture in the sky. So, be a vulture now immediately. My daughter, an ascetic girl, has been abducted by you against her will. O vicious one, obtain its fruit now itself. On hearing this I was overcome with fear. I bent down my face with shame. I grasped the feet of the sage. I fell down at his feet and grasped them. I lamented loudly. (I then said thus:) "She has not been abducted by me after knowing (that she is an ascetic girl). She has not been outraged till now. O ascetic, be pleased. Take back your curse. Ascetics naturally forgive those who bow down. They are good people. So, be pleased. Let me not become a vulture." When I sought refuge in him and bowed down to him thus, the great sage became appeased and said, "My words cannot at ail be untrue. But when you assist in recognizing King Indradyumna, you will get freed from the curse

Refutation-

In Skanda Purana 1.2.9.40-58 it was not Maheshwar Shiva but a prince named Kuśadhvaja a son of the lord of kasi who attempted to kidnap the daughter of Sage Agniveshya and was cursed by Sage Agniveshya to become a Vulture and that when he will assist in recognizing King Indradyumna the prince will get freed from the curse

देव का एक उत्सव हुआ। उस दिन लोग सुवर्ण के झूले में उस लिंग को बैठा कर झुलाते थे। इस दिन रात में जब अन्य कोई नहीं था, मैं जाति चापल्यवशात् वहां झूले पर चढ़कर उसे पुनः पुनः चलाने लगा। इस प्रकार रात्रि व्यतीत होने पर अगले दिन लोग वहां देवदेवेश्वर की पूजा के लिए आये तथा मुझे झूले पर बैठा देखकर लाठी से पुनः पुनः प्रहार करने लगे। उनके वज्रसम दु:सह प्रहार के कारण मैं उस शिवमन्दिर में झूले में रहते ही मर गया।। २१-२७।। मैंने जो शिव को झूला झुलाया था (अनजाने में) उसके फल से राजा के यहां मेरा जन्म हुआ। मैं काशीराज के पुत्ररूप में जन्म लेकर कुशध्वज कहलाया। जब मुझे राजत्व प्राप्त हुआ, तब मैंने अपने राज्य में दमनकोत्सव प्रवर्त्तित किया, क्योंकि मुझे पूर्वजन्म की स्मृति थी। हे भद्र ! मनुष्यगण झूले पर बैठे शिव को जैसे-जैसे झुलाते, उनके अशुभ भी उसी प्रकार उनसे दूर होते जाते! उनका पुण्य संचित होता जाता। मैं शैवागम के वर्णित विधान से दीक्षा लेकर शैवाचार्यों द्वारा समस्त संस्कार से संस्कृत होकर पशुपाश से मुक्त हो गया। मैं निर्वाह दीक्षा पर्यन्त समस्त संस्कार से संस्कृत हो गया। चित्तवृत्ति निरोध द्वारा वैराग्य अभ्यास पूर्वक उद्गीथ जप तथा उसके अर्थ द्वारा समस्त क्लेशों का उच्छेद करके प्रजावर्ग की हितचिन्तना में रत हो, समस्त क्लेशनाशक, जगद्गुरु, अष्टम रसरसिक देवदेवेश, उमापति रुद्र की आराधना करने लगा। मैं प्रणिधान तथा अभ्यास द्वारा साधनमार्ग में दृढ़भूमिका लाभ करके जब विघ्नों द्वारा भी विचलित नहीं किया गया, तब शंभुदेव मेरे ऐसे साधनोत्कर्ष को जानकर मेरे ऊपर प्रसन्न हो गये। उन्होंने दर्शन देकर मुझसे कहा।।२८-३४।। भगवान् कहते हैं- "हे कुशध्वज ! मैं तुम्हारे प्रति सन्तुष्ट हो गया। तुम वांछित वर ग्रहण करो। भूतल पर तुम्हारे अतिरिक्त ऐसा कठोर अनुष्ठान अन्य किसी ने नहीं किया है।" तब मैंने भगवान् शिव से कहा- "हे शम्भु ! मैं इसी शरीर से आपका गण बनना चाहता हूं।" प्रभु शम्भु ने कहा 'ऐसा ही हो।' तदनन्तर शंकर मुझे कैलास ले गये तथा मुझे उन्होंने एक सर्वरत्नमय, सर्वाश्चर्ययुक्त दिव्य विमान प्रदान किया। मैंने उस पर आरोहण किया तथा प्रसन्नचित्त होकर विचरण करने लगा।। ३५-३८।। हे भद्र ! तदनन्तर कुछ काल के उपरान्त एक बार वसन्त के समय पर्वत के गवाक्ष में बैठा जल में स्नान के लिए आई विवस्त्रा अग्निवेश ऋषि की कन्या को देखा। तब मलयवायु प्रवाहित हो रही थी। उस उद्गत् यौवना, श्यामा, क्षीणमध्या, मृगनयनी, विस्तीर्ण स्थूल जघना, संहत स्तनों वाली, केले के तने के समान जघनयुक्त रमणी को देखकर मेरे मन में कामाग्नि जल उठी। उस वर्णनीयतम सौन्दर्यशालिनी, विद्वानों के द्वारा भी यथाशक्ति वर्णन योग्या, विकसित कमल के समान मुख वाली बालिका को देखकर विदित हुआ कि मानों जलसिंचन के कारण उसके लावण्य का अंकुर फूट उठा है! कामदेव उसके अंगों में अवस्थित हो गया तथा वह उस रमणी के कुटिल कटाक्ष विक्षेपरूप कामबाणों के माध्यम से मुझे दृढ़ रूप से विद्ध करने लगा। तब मैं भी कामातुर होकर अपने विमान से उतरा तथा सखियों से घिरी, स्वेच्छापूर्वक क्रीड़ा तत्पर उस बालिका का मैंने हरण कर लिया। हे भद्र! वह मेरे विमान पर पड़ी उच्च स्वर से हा तात, हा तात! कहकर अत्यन्त रोदन करने लगी।। ३९-४५।। तब उसकी

समवयस्का सखियों दीनतापूर्वक शीघ्रता से मुनि के पास जाकर कहने लगीं- "भगवन् ! किसी विमान पर विचरण करने वाले व्यक्ति ने आपकी कन्या का हरण किया है। वह रो रही है। आप उठिये तथा उसकी रक्षा करिये।" यह सुनकर श्रेष्ठ तपोनिधि अग्निवेश्य मुनि आकाश पथ में विमान का पीछा करते बोले, रुको ! रुको ! तथा तपोबल से विमान की गति रुद्ध करके क्रुद्ध होकर मुझसे कहने लगे "हे दुर्मति ! जैसे गृध्र मांसपेशी का अपहरण करता है, वैसे ही तुमने मेरी कन्या का आकाशमार्ग से आकर अपहरण किया है। अतएव तुम गृध्र हो जाओ। मेरी तपःशीला बालिका की इच्छा न होने पर तुमने उसका अपहरण किया है, उसका फल भोगो।" मैं यह शाप सुनकर लज्जापूर्वक अधोमुख हो गया।।४६-५१।।

The vulture said—"O noble one, listen! In a former birth, I was a very restless monkey. In the forest where I lived, there stood a temple of Śiva named Jagadyogeśvara. On the fourteenth day of the bright half of the month of Caitra, when the star Hasta coincided with the auspicious Harṣaṇa yoga, a festival was held for that deity who is the source of the worlds. On that day, people would place the liṅga in a golden swing and rock it. One night, when no one else was there, driven by my monkeyish restlessness, I climbed onto the swing and kept rocking it again and again. When morning came and people arrived for worship, they saw me on the swing and beat me repeatedly with sticks. Because of those unbearable, thunderbolt-like blows, I died there in the swing of that Śiva temple.

From the merit of rocking Śiva's swing (though unknowingly), I was reborn as the son of the king of Kāśī and named Kuśadhvaja. When I attained kingship, I instituted the festival of Damanaka, for I remembered my former birth. O noble one, just as men rock Śiva in a swing, in the same way their misfortunes are driven away and their merit increases. I received initiation according to the Śaiva scriptures from Śaiva teachers, was sanctified by all the prescribed rites, and freed from the bonds of worldly existence. By restraining the movements of my mind through the practice of detachment, chanting the Sāman called Udgītha with its meaning, and destroying all afflictions, I engaged in the welfare of my people. I devoted myself to worship of the world's teacher, destroyer of all sorrows, the nectar-enjoying Lord of Umā, Rudra. With firm resolve in the path of practice, unmoved even by obstacles, I pleased Lord Śambhu by the excellence of my discipline.

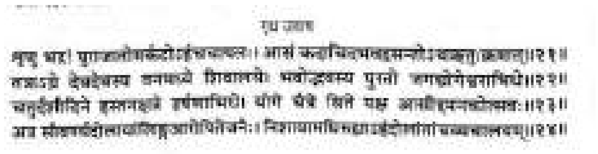
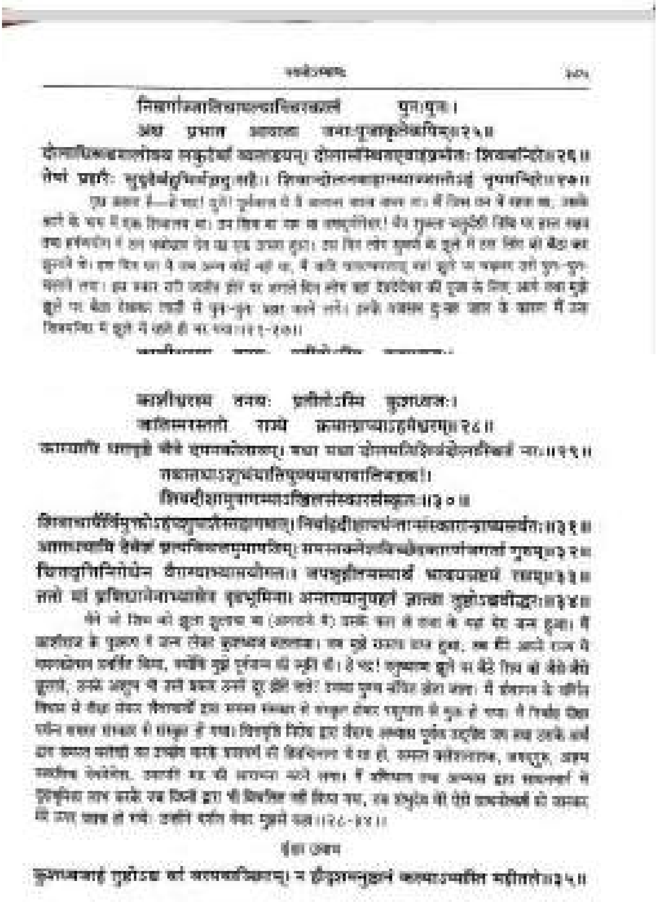
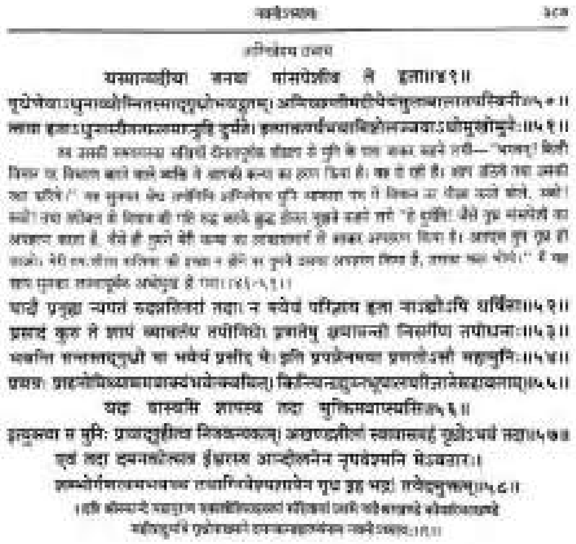
Appearing before me, the Lord said, 'O Kuśadhvaja, I am pleased with you. Choose any boon you desire. None other on earth has performed such severe austerity as you.' I replied, 'O Śambhu, I wish to become one of Your attendants in this very body.' Lord Śambhu said, 'So be it,' and took me to Kailāsa, granting me a wondrous aerial chariot adorned with all jewels. Mounting it, I wandered about joyfully.

Then, after some time, one spring day, as I sat in a window of a mountain palace, I saw Agniveśa Ṛṣi's daughter come to bathe, unclothed. The Malaya breeze was blowing. She was youthful, dark-complexioned, slim-waisted, deer-eyed, with broad and full hips, firm breasts, and thighs like banana trunks. Seeing that most beautiful maiden—whose face was like a blooming lotus, whose charm seemed freshly sprouted as if nourished by water—my mind was inflamed with passion. Kāma himself seemed to dwell in her limbs, and through her crooked sidelong glances, which were like love's arrows, he pierced me deeply. Overcome with desire, I descended from my chariot and seized that maiden, who was sporting with her friends. She cried out loudly upon my chariot, 'Alas, father! Alas, father!' and wept bitterly." The maidens of her age, distressed, quickly went to the sage and said, "Revered one! A man traveling in an aerial chariot has abducted your daughter. She is weeping—please rise and protect her." Hearing this, the eminent ascetic Agniveśya, treasure of penance, pursued the chariot through the sky, calling out, "Stop! Stop!" By the power of his austerities, he halted the chariot's movement, and, enraged, said to me,

“O wicked-minded one! Just as a vulture snatches a piece of flesh, so have you carried off my daughter through the air. Therefore, become a vulture! Because you have abducted my daughter, steadfast in her chastity, against her will, bear the consequence.” Hearing this curse, I hung my head in shame. (46–51)







Hence It was Kuśadhvaja a son of the lord of kasi who attempted to kidnap the daughter of Sage Agniveshya and was cursed by Sage Agniveshya to become a Vulture and later banished from Maheshwara Shiva Ganas and not Maheshwara Shiva himself

In Mahabharat Anushashan Parva Adhyay 17 Maheshwar Shiva is called Greatest of All Yogis and The most conquered of all senses and the most celibate amongst all beings and the most Peaceful and the supreme Yogi

जो वेदोंके भी वेद, उत्तम वस्तुओंमें भी परम उत्तम, तेजके भी तेज, तपके भी तप, शान्त पुरुषोंमें भी परम शान्त, कान्तिकी भी कान्ति, जितेन्द्रियोंमें भी परम जितेन्द्रिय, बुद्धिमानोंकी भी बुद्धि, देवताओंके भी देवता, ऋषियोंके भी ऋषि, यज्ञोंके भी यज्ञ, कल्याणोंके भी कल्याण, रुद्रोंके भी रुद्र, प्रभावशाली ईश्वरोंकी भी प्रभा (ऐश्वर्य), योगियोंके भी योगी तथा कारणोंके

In Mahabharat 13/141/25-26 Maheshwar Shiva himself told to avoid the contact of other men wives as a sign of Dharma

Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said –
O Devi! Not causing harm to any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder (Grihastha Ashrama). (Verse 25)

Maintaining these duties of household life — Staying away from relations with another's wife, protecting entrusted goods and the honor of women, not taking anything without giving in return, and renouncing meat and alcohol — these are five types (aspects) of Dharma that lead to happiness.
Each of these Dharmic principles has many branches.
Those who consider Dharma to be supreme should certainly follow this virtuous and meritorious path.

Mahabharat Anushashan Parva Adhaya 261 slokas 5-6
Geeta Press Gorakhpur – Maheshwar Shiva follows Brahmacharya

महादेवजीके आधे शरीरको अग्नि और आधेको सोम कहते हैं। उनकी शिवमूर्ति ब्रह्मचर्यका पालन करती है और जो अत्यन्त घोर मूर्ति है, वह जगत्‌का संहार करती है। उनमें महत्त्व और ईश्वरत्व होनेके कारण वे 'महेश्वर' कहलाते हैं ।। ५-६ ।।
"Half of Mahādeva's body is called Agni and the other half is called Soma. His auspicious form abides in celibacy (Brahmacharya), while his extremely fierce form brings about the destruction of the world. Because of the greatness and lordship inherent in him, he is known as 'Maheśvara' (the Great Lord)."

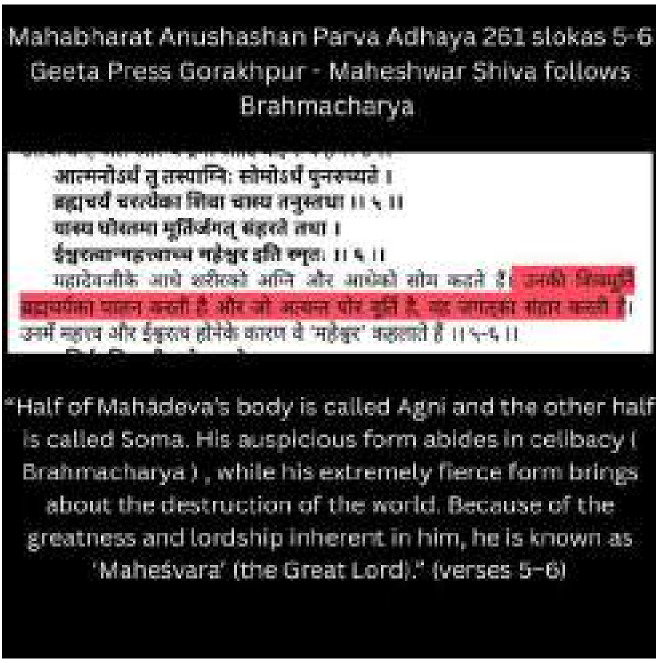
(verses 5-6)



Allegations-

2. Shiva incurs a sage's curse and drops his penis on the ground

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 4.20.36-37📚
O King! When Mahādeva, being infatuated with Kāma, went into the forest of Bhṛgu and becoming naked, began to copulate, the ascetic Bhṛgu, seeing him in that state, exclaimed "O You are very shameless" and cursed Him thus :– Let your penis drop off just now. Mahādeva, then to satisfy his thirst for passion, began to drink the water of the lake Amrita Vapī, dug by the Dānavas."

📚Skanda Purana 1.1.6.24-25📚
Although rebuked thus, Śiva silently went on towards his mountain. Then that immutable Mahādeva was overtaken by the sages. (They then cursed him thus:) "Since you are the abductor of (our) wives, be instantaneously a eunuch." Thus cursed by the sages, his penis fell down on the ground. As soon as it reached the ground, it became very large immediately and it increased in size (enormously)."

📚Shiva Purana 4.12.10-19📚
He was very brilliant but stark naked. He had smeared ashes all over his body as the sole ornament. Standing there and holding his penis he began to show all sorts of vicious tricks. It was with a mind to do something pleasing to the forest-dwellers that Śiva, favourite of the devotees, came to the forest at his will. The wives of the sages were extremely frightened at this sight. The other women excited and surprised approached the lord. Some embraced him. Others held his hands. The women were engrossed in struggling with one another. Meanwhile the great sages came there. On seeing him engaged in perverse activities they were pained and infuriated. The sages, deluded by Śiva's Māyā and plunged in grief, began to say —"Who is this? Who is this?" When the naked sage did not reply, the great sages told that terrible Puruṣa. "You are acting pervertedly. This violates the Vedic path. Hence let your penis fall on the ground." When they said thus, the penis of that Avadhūta, who was Śiva of wonderful form, fell down instantly. That penis burnt everything in front; wherever it went it began to burn everything there."

Refutation-

Next he alleged on Daruvan Incident Story from Various Puranas. Before understanding this story we have to keep in mind that This incident is of previous kalpa and not the current kalpa . It doesn't talk about origin of Shiv linga but only talks about formation of Hatkeshwar Linga In Fact the Shiv Linga was manifested during the formation of Universe only . Further he quoted JL Shastri translation over this story which are totally wrong and mistranslated without understanding the context of this story from other Puranas or from commentaries and explanations over Puranas like Purana Digdarshan etc

The Daruvan Incident comes in Various Puranas such as Linga, Shiva, Brahma Purana so we will be seeing them as well to understand this story Before Proceeding let me state that as Malechas claim that this incident is responsible for the formation of

Shiv Linga, you are totally wrong its only responsible for formation of Hatkeshwar Linga Shiv Purana 4.12.4

4. O brahmins, the story of a different Kalpa was heard from Vyāsa by me. O excellent sages, I shall narrate the same. Please listen.
   Means this incident is of another kalpa . Kalpa in Puranas refers to another time period of Creation. So this incident did not occur in the present kalpa or creation

WHY SHIV JI CAME AND WHAT WAS THE REASON FOR THIS INCIDENT..?

व्यासजीसे जो कल्पभेदकी कथा सुनी है, उसीका आज वर्णन कर रहा हूँ, आपलोग सुनें ॥ ४॥
पूर्वकालमें दारुवनमें ब्राह्मणोंके साथ जो घटना घटी, उसीको आप लोग सुनें। जैसा मैंने सुना है, वैसा ही कहता हूँ। है ऋषिसत्तमो ! जो दारु नामक श्रेष्ठ वन है, वहाँ नित्य शिवजीके ध्यानमें तत्पर शिवभक्त [ब्राह्मण] रहा करते थे ॥ ५-६ ॥
हे मुनीश्वरो ! वे तीनों कालोंमें सदा शिवजीकी पूजा करते थे और नाना प्रकारके स्तोत्रोंसे उनकी स्तुति किया करते थे। शिवध्यानमें मग्न रहनेवाले वे शिवभक्त श्रेष्ठ ब्राह्मण किसी समय समिधा लेनेके लिये वनमें गये हुए थे ॥ ७-८ ॥

इसी बीच उन लोगोंकी परीक्षा लेनेहेतु साक्षात् नीललोहित [भगवान्] शंकर विकट रूप धारणकर वहाँ आये। वे दिगम्बर, भस्मरूप भूषणसे विभूषित तथा महातेजस्वी भगवान् शंकर हाथमें [तेजोमय] लिंगको धारणकर विचित्र लीला करने लगे ॥ ९-१० ॥

Verse 4:
"I am now narrating the story of the different cosmic cycles (Kalpa-bheda) that I heard from Sage Vyasa. All of you, please listen attentively."

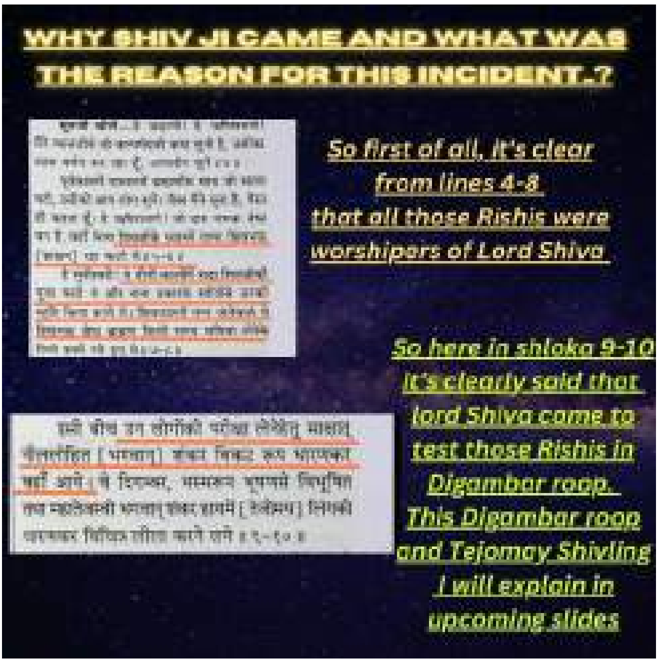
Verses 5–6:
"In ancient times, in the Daru forest, an event occurred involving a group of Brahmins. Listen to that story as I have heard it. O best of sages! In the forest known as Daru — a most excellent forest — there lived devoted Brahmins who were always engaged in meditating on Lord Shiva."

Verses 7–8:
"O great sages! Those Brahmins, devoted to Shiva, worshipped Him at all times — past, present, and future — and praised Him with various hymns. Absorbed in the meditation of Shiva, these noble Brahmins had once gone into the forest to collect sacrificial firewood (samidha)."

Verses 9–10:
"Meanwhile, to test them, Lord Shankara Himself — the blue-throated (Neelalohita), appeared there in a fierce and unusual form. Naked (digambara), adorned with sacred ash as His ornament, and radiating immense brilliance, Lord Shiva held a blazing, radiant linga in His hand and began performing a wondrous divine play (leela)."

So first of all, it's clear from lines 4-8 that all those Rishis were worshipers of Lord Shiva

So here in shloka 9-10 it's clearly said that lord Shiva came to test those Rishis in Digambar roop. This Digambar roop and Tejomay Shivling I will explain in upcoming slides

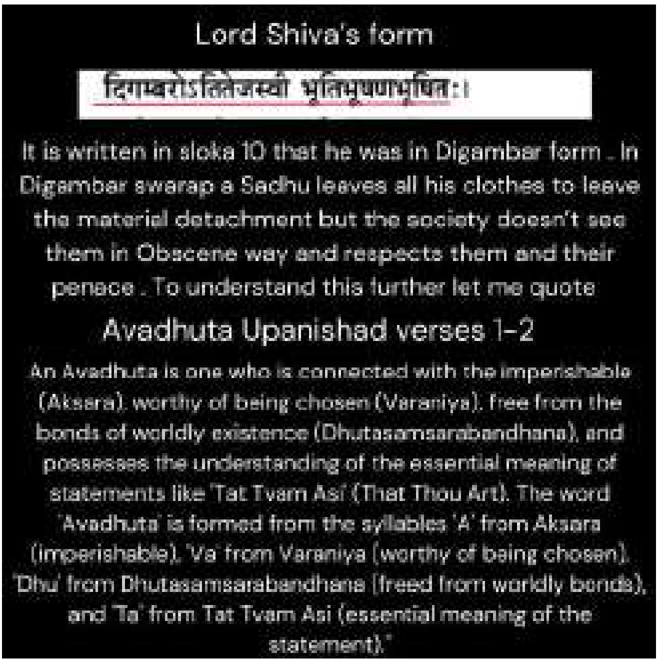


Lord Shiva's form

दिगम्बरोऽतितेजस्वी भूतिभूषणभूषितः ।
It is written in sloka 10 that he was in Digambar form. In Digambar swarap a Sadhu leaves all his clothes to leave the material detachment but the society doesn't see them in Obscene way and respects them and their penace. To understand this further let me quote

Avadhuta Upanishad verses 1–2

An Avadhuta is one who is connected with the imperishable (Aksara), worthy of being chosen (Varaniya), free from the bonds of worldly existence (Dhutasamsarabandhana), and possesses the understanding of the essential meaning of statements like 'Tat Tvam Asi' (That Thou Art). The word 'Avadhuta' is formed from the syllables 'A' from Aksara (imperishable), 'Va' from Varaniya (worthy of being chosen), 'Dhu' from Dhutasamsarabandhana (freed from worldly bonds), and 'Ta' from Tat Tvam Asi (essential meaning of the statement)."



What was lord Shiva holding in his hand

Shiv Purana 4.12.9-10

इसी बीच उन लोगोंकी परीक्षा लेनेहेतु साक्षात् नीललोहित [भगवान्] शंकर विकट रूप धारणकर वहाँ आये। वे दिगम्बर, भस्मरूप भूषणसे विभूषित तथा महातेजस्वी भगवान् शंकर हाथमें तेजोमय लिंगको धारणकर विचित्र लीला करने लगे ॥ ९-१०॥

"Meanwhile, to test those people, the Supreme Lord Shiva Himself—manifesting as Nīlalohita—appeared there in a fierce form. He was sky-clad (digambara), adorned with ashes as ornaments, and was immensely radiant. Holding a blazing, luminous liṅga in His hand, Lord Shiva began to perform a wondrous and extraordinary play.

Brahmanda Purana 2.27
10-12. Then the lord came to that forest in order to confer grace on them. His limbs were grey due to the appli-cation of Bhasman (ashes). He was naked. He had hideous features. His hairs were dishevelled and ugly. His teeth were terrific. His hands eagerly got hold of a firebrand.

Linga Purana 1.31
28-32. The lord had vulgar traits. He was stark nude. He had smeared his limbs with ashes. His hands were engaged in whirling a firebrand. His eyes were red and tawny. Sometimes he laughed biosteriously, sometimes he sang surprisingly.

Thus its clear from this that lord Shiva was holding a Fire Brand and not his penis as per Shiva, Brahmanda and Linga Purana immediately prevented him from dancing. After coming to

On hearing these words of the sages, Lord Sankara, the destroyer of the eyes of Bhaga, said in polished speech, as though he was laughing boisterously.
"This Linga of ours cannot be made to fall down forcibly by all the gods beginning with Brahmā. How then be the other ascetics. O excellent Brahmaṇas, I shall make this Linga fall down."
34-36. They uttered the sentence "Stay in the hermitage or go away".
On being spoken to thus, lord Mahādeva became delight-ed in the activities of the sense-organs. Even as all of them were observing, the lord vanished there itself.
When the lord vanished and Bhava (God Śiva) was trans-formed into a Linga, there was no appearance of any living being in the range of the three worlds. Everything was agitated

Mata Parvati's Yoni roop:-
Sometimes I really think that how stupid these translators like JL Shastri are, in Shiv Puran 4.12, in verse 3 he clearly mentions Arrow form of Devi Parvati

3. Parvati, the beloved of Śiva, is heard in the world in the form of an arrow. O Sūta, what is the reason for this? Please satisfy our curiosity in this respect by giving the account you have heard.

Now see how this stupid translated verse 32 and 37 as viginal passage

Now this clear hypocrisy can be seen in these verses (i.e 32&37)
In Verse 32 yoni roopa is refers to Arrow

महेश्वर बोले-हे देवताओ ! हे ऋषियो! आपलोग आदरपूर्वक मेरी बात सुनिये यदि यह शिवलिंग योनिपीठात्मिका (समस्त ब्रह्माण्डका प्रसव करनेवाली भगवती महाशक्तिके के द्वारा धारण किया जाय, तभी आपलोगोंको सुख प्राप्त होगा। पार्वतीके अतिरिक्त अन्य कोई भी मेरे इस स्वरूपको धारण करने म समर्थ नहीं है; उन महाशक्तिके द्वारा धारण किये जानेपर शीघ्र ही यह मेर निष्कल स्वरूप प्रशान्त हो जायगा ।। ४५-४६ ।।

Maheshwara (Shiva) said —
"O Devas! O Rishis! Please listen to my words with reverence.
If this Shivalinga, which is established in the Yoni-pitha form (i.e., as the cosmic womb, the source of all creation), is borne by the great goddess Mahashakti who gives birth to the entire universe, only then will you all attain happiness.

Other than Parvati, no one else is capable of bearing this form of mine.
When this form of mine is borne by that supreme Shakti, it will soon bring peace to my formless (Nishkala) aspect."

Prakṛti, made up of the fivefold elements (pañcatattvātmikā), is the yoni, the support for the brilliant energy of the Absolute (brahma teja kā ādhāra), this liṅga of light. Therefore, to say that Pārvatī took the shape of a yoni to hold the liṅga means that, becoming prakṛti — in the form of the five elements — she supported the Universe. Could a worldly yoni, a urinary organ, a scrap of leather, support the jyotirliṅga, made of fire, that burns everything?[76]

In the world it is heard that Pārvatī, the beloved of Śiva, is of the form of an arrow (bāṇa).[77]

SHIVA PURAN 12.4
In the world it is heard that Parvati, the beloved of Śiva, is of the form of an arrow (bāṇa)."
The meaning of the form of the yoni is the same as that of the form of the arrow. The word 'arrow' (bāṇa) is indicative of the number five: it is applied with regards to Kāma, by reason of his five arrows; when addressed towards Śiva, it regards his five faces and when to Parvati, the perspective is her nature comprised of by the five elements. Just as a mass of electricity (vidyut puñja) pervades the five elements, yet is more predominant within water and in mountain ranges, similarly did Parvati become arrow-shaped, that is of the form of a mountain range, and into her the effulgent linga (tejomaya linga) entered. If the mass of electricity were to fall into her yoni that is, into earth or water it would become stable; otherwise, it would reduce trees, men and everything else to ashes. It was said by Śiva:
Except Pārvatī, no one is able to sustain the linga; my linga, supported by her, quickly find peace.

Svetasvatara upanishad 4.11 too says the same thing that Yoni means Moola Prakriti

यो योनिं योनिमधितिष्ठत्येको

Svetasvatara upanishad 5.2 – Yoni means Moola Prakriti /Nature

यो योनिं योनिमधितिष्ठत्येको

He alone presides over Nature in all aspects, and controls every form and every cause of production. He witnesses the birth of the first born[1] seer of golden colour and nourishes him with wisdom.[2]

Additionally Svetasvatara upanishad chapter 1 verse 10 says Rudra is imperishable So how does one accuse that he got injured by someone curse

क्षरं प्रधानममृताक्षरं हरः क्षरात्मानावीशते देव एकः।
तस्याभिध्यानाद्योजनात्तत्त्वभावाद्भूयश्चान्ते विश्वमायानिवृत्तिः ।।१०।।

What is perishable, is Primary Matter (pradhana). What is immortal and imperishable, is Hara (the 'Bearer,' the soul).
Over both the perishable and the soul the One God (deva) rules.
By meditation upon Him, by union with Him, and by entering into His being.
More and more, there is finally cessation from every illusion (māyā-nivṛtti).

Even Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8 too tells that Brahm is अव्रणम् means Free from any imperfections or injuries and that he cannot be injured by anyone and Shiva being Param Brahm he is also free from injuries स पर्यगाच्छुक्रमकायमव्रणमस्नाविर ४ शुद्धमपापविद्धम्.

Allegations-

3. Shiva had sex with a prostitute

📚Shiva Purana 3.26.1-30📚
O dear sage, listen to me. I shall tell you about Vaisyanatha, the incarnation of Siva, the supreme soul that yields great bliss. Formerly, in Nandigrâma there was a prostitute known as Mahänandã. She was very beautiful and a devotee of Siva. Once Siva assumed the form of a merchant and visited her house to test her. He had assumed the auspicious form of a devotee…The beautiful prostitute worshipped and welcomed the visitor with great joy. She made him sit with great respect…During the night she had her sexual union with the merchant who behaved like a libertine. She then went to sleep on the couch brilliant with a soft bed."

Refutation-

He has alleged on Satrudra Samhita of Shiva Purana .

According to R.C. Hazra and Ludo Rocher, the Śatarudra Saṁhitā, along with the Rudra Saṁhitā and Koṭirudra Saṁhitā, is a much later addition to the Śiva Purāṇa and cannot be dated earlier than the 14th century CE.

[illegible]

IX. Even as the Śatarudrasaṃhitā, the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā[388] is represented in the class B editions only. In this saṃhitā the sūta complies with the request of the sages to supplement his exposition on Śiva's incarnations with a description of "the divine phallic emblems of the great Lord, both in many places on earth and in any other places glorified by men." In addition to a number of upaliṅgas, the text deals extensively with the twelve jyotirliṅgas: Somanātha, Mallikārjuna, Mahākāla, Oṃkāreśvara, Kedāreśvara, Bhīmeśvara, Viśveśvara, Tryambakeśvara, Vaidyanātheśvara, Nāgeśvara, Rāmeśvara, and Ghuśmeśvara. Near the end the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā has a Śivasahasranāma, and devotes a few chapters to the Śivarātri. Here again, many chapters are said to have been taken from the Jñānasaṃhitā. In Hazra's opinion neither the Rudrasaṃhitā, nor the Śatarudra-saṃhitā, nor the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā can be earlier than the fourteenth century A.D.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Śatarudra Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[387] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions – which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śiva°	Class A Bombay 1884 Veṅkaṭ. 1895–96 Vaṅga.		Class B Veṅkaṭ. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya Tr. AITM
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara/	ch. 25
II. Raudra	Vidyeśvara	25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka		(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhauma/Auma	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyu/Vāyavīya		Umā/Auma	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	30	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya
IX. Koṭirudra	Dharma	65	pūrvabhāga	35
X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śiva° is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages;" it is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[388] Hazra, who did not include the Śiva° in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

In Mahabharat 13/141/25-26 Maheshwar Shiva himself told to avoid the contact of other men wives as a sign of Dharma

Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said –
O Devi! Not causing harm to any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder (Grihastha Ashrama). (Verse 25)

Maintaining these duties of household life — Staying away from relations with another's wife, protecting entrusted goods and the honor of women, not taking anything without giving in return, and renouncing meat and alcohol — these are five types (aspects) of Dharma that lead to happiness.
Each of these Dharmic principles has many branches.
Those who consider Dharma to be supreme should certainly follow this virtuous and meritorious path.

4. Shiva lusted after goddess Girija

📚Skanda Purana 1.1.35.12-20📚
After saying thus, the goddess Girija, the (cause) of all auspiciousness, became desirous of going to Mähesvara after assuming the form of a female Sahara huntress...She had to bend down slightly on account of the weight of the heavy breasts. Her smooth glossy tresses had grown abundantly. She was very slender and thin in her waist. The buttocks were large. Gaur's thighs were like the golden plantain stem... (From a distance) she saw Girija. The lady of beautiful face thus went along, served and accompanied by many friends and attendants. Through the loud humming sound of the bees, she made the three worlds reverberate. Girija (appeared) to revive Manmatha again and again. The royal swans became at that instant filled with love and desire. Bees and peacocks all of them were lovelorn and so had heart-burn. She went to the place where Mahesvara was seated engaged in trance and meditation. He was seen by the goddess extremely fascinated by the sound of bees. Mahädeva woke up from his trance. On seeing the Sabari, Mahesa immediately became afflicted with love. He went near Girijä and was about to seize her by the hand, when the chaste lady suddenly vanished from his presence. Immediately after seeing it, the lord had his wrong notion dispelled. Sambhu wandered around but did not see the dark-eyed lady

Here is Skanda Purana 1.1.35.12-25 hindi translation by Choukhamba Publications

The Skanda Purāṇa 1.1.35.12–20 does not portray Śiva as succumbing to lust, but as participating in a divine play (līlā) initiated and controlled entirely by Goddess Girijā. Disguised as a śabarī (tribal huntress), Girijā approaches Śiva in order to rouse him from meditation and test his awareness. The moment he reaches for her, she vanishes — showing that she governs the encounter and that his pursuit is part of her deliberate sport. In the very same episode, Girijā asserts her eternal unity with Śiva and rebukes him for abandoning her, proving that this scene expresses theological truths about Śakti's supremacy and the inseparability of the divine couple, not an instance of lust.

मृणाल के समान धनुष तथा पीठ पर केतकी के समान तरकश था। ये सुवदना अनेक सखीगण से सेवित होकर तब प्रभु महेश का अवलोकन करने लगीं।।११-१४।। उनके द्वारा कृत भृंगी नाद से तीनों लोक नादित हो गया। मानों गिरिजा ने अभी-अभी कामदेव को पुनर्जीवित कर दिया हो। जहां महेश्वर एकाकी समाधिस्थ थे, वहां राजहंस, द्विरेफ (भौरे) तथा मयूर आदि भी मदनान्वित हो उठे। भृंगीनाद से मोहित महादेव को तब देवी ने देखा। शबरी को देखकर महादेव प्रबुद्ध होकर उठे। महेश मदनान्वित होकर तत्काल समाधि से उठ कर गिरिजा के पास आये। तथा जैसे ही उनका हाथ पकड़ना चाहा, गिरिजा अन्तर्हित हो गयीं। जो देवदेव स्वयं भ्रान्ति का हरण करने वाले थे, वे यह दृश्य देखते ही तत्क्षण भ्रान्तचित्त हो घूमने लगे। कैसे उस सुन्दरी असितेक्षणा का साक्षात्कार मिले ! तब ज्ञानरूप शम्भु मदन शत्रु होकर भी मदन के वशीभूत हो गये। वे अब निर्मोही होकर भी मोहग्रस्त थे। तदनन्तर शिव ने पुनः उस शबरीरूपा गिरिजा को देखा तथा तत्कालोचित वाक्य कहने लगे।।१५-२२।। शिव कहते हैं- “हे तन्वङ्गी! मेरी बात सुनकर तदनुरूप कार्य करो। हे सुमध्यमे ! तुम कौन हो? तुम किसकी हो? किसलिए इस वन में आई हो? हे महाभागे ! यह सब मुझसे यथायथ कहो” ।। २३ ।। शिवा ने कहा- “मैं एक सर्वज्ञ, सकलार्थप्रद, स्वतन्त्र, निर्विकार, जगदीश, वरेण्य पति की खोज में घूम रही हूं।” वृषध्वज ने गिरिजा का कथन सुनकर प्रत्युत्तर दिया- “हे भद्रे! मैं ही तुम्हारा उपयुक्त पति हूं। हे भामिनि ! मेरे सिवाय अन्य पति है ही नहीं। हे वरारोहे! यह यथार्थतः विचार करो।” तब पार्वती ने रुद्र का वाक्य सुनकर कहा- “जो इच्छा हो, आप कहिये, तथापि हे महाभाग ! आप मेरे योग्य पति नहीं हैं। हे महाभाग! पक्षान्तरेण आप मेरे प्रार्थित पति हैं, ऐसी अन्यथा बात न कहें। आपका मंगल हो। परन्तु एक बात पूछती हूं। आप निर्गुण तथा परन्तप हैं। आपके लिए परम तपस्या करके जिस भामिनी ने आपका पतिरूप से वरण किया था, उसे आपने क्षण में त्याग दिया” ।।२४-२८।।

Lomaśa said:

When Mahadeva (Śiva) had gone away into the forest, the slender Parvati (Girijā), distressed with longing, found no happiness either in her home or in any other pleasant place. Then, fair and virtuous Sati thought of nothing but Śiva with all her heart.

Seeing Śiva absorbed in worry, her companion Vijaya spoke:

“O beautiful one! You obtained Lord Śiva through great austerities. Yet, foolishly, you engaged in a game of dice with that ascetic! O sinless one! Have you not heard that gambling brings many faults and disasters?
O wise lady! Go quickly with us to Lord Śiva and beg his forgiveness. Before he goes too far away, approach him and plead. O Devi! If you do not quickly go to him and ask forgiveness, later you will surely face great suffering." (1–6)

Hearing Vijaya's words, Girijā became calm and, smiling, spoke to her in an extraordinary, deeply philosophical way:

"These shameless Mahādeva I had chosen long ago, through supreme union with spiritual glory. It was I who conquered him. Now I have no duty remaining. Apart from me, he always exists in a distorted form.
It was I who gave form and beauty to the Lord of the gods. So, say no more!
For me there is neither union with Śiva nor separation from him.
United with the divine, I myself created this moving and unmoving universe for play.
I alone have made Maheśvara both with form and without form.
This entire cosmos I have created only for sport, and the creation of the world is solely for this reason.
O Vijaya! Now watch my play." (7–10)

Having spoken thus, the all-auspicious Goddess Girijā instantly assumed the form of a Śabarī (a tribal huntress) and set out towards Maheśvara.

She now appeared dark in complexion, with a face like a mountain peak, lips red as the bimba fruit, a beautiful neck, bosom bending her slender form with its weight, glossy hair, a thin waist, broad hips, golden bamboo-like thighs, and hands adorned with fair bangles. She was decorated with parrot-feather ear ornaments, carrying in her hands a bow like a lotus stalk, and on her back a quiver like a ketakī flower. Surrounded by many companions, this fair maiden then went to behold the Lord Maheśa. (11–14)

From the buzzing sound of the bees that followed her, all the three worlds resonated—as though Girijā had just revived Kāma (the god of love) himself.

Where Śiva sat alone in deep meditation, even the royal swans, the black bees, and the peacocks became intoxicated with desire because of that humming. Hearing the bee's drone, Maheśvara, slightly enchanted, opened his eyes, and thus the Goddess beheld him.

On seeing the Śabarī form, Mahādeva rose from his meditation. Love-struck, he immediately approached her, and as soon as he tried to grasp her hand, Girijā vanished on the spot.

He, the Lord of Lords, who removes delusion itself, on witnessing this, suddenly became bewildered and roamed about in distraction, wondering how to again behold that beautiful dark-eyed huntress!

Then Śiva, embodiment of knowledge and conqueror of Kāma, though ordinarily beyond passion, now fell under the sway of love. Soon again he saw that same huntress form of Girijā and spoke to her in words suited to the moment: (15–22)

"O slender-limbed one! Listen to me and act according to my words.
O fair-waisted maiden! Who are you? Whose are you? For what purpose have you come into this forest?
O most fortunate lady! Tell me everything truly." (23)

Śivā replied:

"I am one who is all-knowing, who grants every desire, independent, changeless, and sovereign. I wander in search of a worthy husband."

Hearing her words, the bull-bannered Lord (Vṛṣadhvaja) answered:

"O blessed one! I am indeed your suitable husband. There is no other husband besides me. O fair-bosomed lady! Think of this truth deeply."

Then Pārvatī, hearing the speech of Rudra, said:

"Speak whatever you desire. However, O great-souled one, you are not fit to be my husband.
And yet, in another sense, you are indeed the husband I seek—so do not speak otherwise.
Blessings be upon you! But I ask you this:
You are formless, beyond qualities, the destroyer of foes—
How is it that, after a maiden performed the greatest austerities and chose you as her husband, you abandoned her in a moment?" (24–28)

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 4.20.36-37📚
O King! When Mahâdeva, being infatuated with Kâma, went into the forest of Bhrigu and becoming naked, began to copulate, the ascetic Bhrigu, seeing him in that state, exclaimed “O You are very shameless” and cursed Him thus:- Let your penis drop off just now. Mahâdeva, then to satisfy his thirst for passion, began to drink the water of the lake Amrita Vapî, dug by the Dânavas.”

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 1.12.1-53📚
Sūta, said :– Once on a time, Sanaka and other Ṛṣis went to this forest to pay a visit to Śaṅkara, illuminating the ten quarters by their holy aura. But then Bhagavān Śaṅkara was in amorous dealings with Śaṅkarī. The beautiful Devī Ambikā was then naked and sitting on the lap of Śaṅkara and therefore became very much ashamed at their sight; She got up hurriedly, and putting on her cloth, remained there shuddering, with great shame and sensitiveness. The Ṛṣis, also, seeing them engaged in amorous dealings, went away quickly to the hermitage of Nara Nārāyaṇa.

The question, both in the tradition and in modern scholarship, whether the Devībhāgavata° or the Vaiṣṇava Bhāgavata° is the true and original Śrīmad-bhāgavata° has been discussed under the Bhāgavata°. It should be noted in this connection that the term Devībhāgavata° appears only in the chapter colophons, and in the text of the last two skandhas; elsewhere in the text the purāṇa refers to itself either as Bhāgavata° or Śrīmadbhāgavata°, once as Satī° (1.3.41). The text also repeatedly refers to itself as "the best of purāṇas" (purāṇottama), and declares that "there are many other purāṇas devoted to Hari and Rudra, but they are not worth one-sixteenth part of this Devībhāgavata" (12.13.25–26).

Hazra[174] sees arguments both for the Devībhāgavata° having been composed in Bengal and outside Bengal. He therefore concludes that "the author of the Devī-bhāgavata was a Smārta Śākta Brahmin of Bengal and . . . he migrated to Benares (probably because it was the best place of residence for a Devī-worshipper), lived there for a long time, and then wrote the Devī-bhāgavata."

Ramachandran[175] dated the Devībhāgavata° "not later than the 6th century A.D.," based on his belief that the story of the penance of Nara and Nārāyaṇa, as related in the fourth skandha, inspired the relief in the Gupta temple at Deogarh. His arguments did not find acceptance with other scholars,[176] and, in general, the text has been dated much later. Farquhar[177] assigned it to his A.D. 900–1350 period. Hazra[178] narrowed the period down to "the eleventh or twelfth century A.D." Lalye[179] proposes a gradual growth of the text, through five different stages which cannot be dated separately; in any case the final stage must have been reached in the eleventh century.

5. Shiva followed a naked woman and dropped his semen

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 8.12.26-32📚
The beautiful woman was already naked, and when She saw Lord Siva coming toward Her, She became extremely bashful. Thus She kept smiling, but She hid Herself among the trees and did not stand in one place. His senses being agitated, Lord Siva, victimized by lusty desires, began to follow Her, just as a lusty elephant follows a she elephant. Being embraced by Lord Siva like a female elephant embraced by a male, the woman, whose hair was scattered, swirled like a snake. O King, this woman, who had large, high hips, was a woman of yoga-maya presented by the Supreme Personality of Godhead. She released Herself somehow or other from the fond embrace of Lord Siva's arms and ran away. As if harassed by an enemy in the form of lusty desires, Lord Siva followed the path of Lord Visnu, who acts very wonderfully and who had taken the form of Mohini. Just as a maddened bull elephant follows a female elephant who is able to conceive pregnancy, Lord Siva followed the beautiful woman and discharged semen, even though his discharge of semen never goes in vain.”

Refutation-

Traditional Sri Vaishnava Acharya Pandit Madhavacharya Shastri in his book Purana Digdarshan page 599 explained the meaning of the Shiva Mohini story in Bhagvatam

(क) यद् रुद्रश्चन्द्रमास्तेन । – (कोषीतकी ६ । ७) – (a) Due to which Rudra [is called] the Moon.

(ख) (प्रजापतिः) तं (रुद्रं) अब्रवीन्महादेवोऽसीति । तद्यदस्य तन्नामाकरोच्चन्द्रमास्तरूपमभवत् ।। (शतपथ ६ । १।३।१६) -Prajapati said to this Rudra that you are Mahadev because he was named Mahadev = Mahan-radiant, so he (beautiful) became the Moon. . (ग) आग्नेयी पृथिवी । (ताण्ड्य १५।४।८) -This earth was igneous – fiery vapor

(घ) इयं (पृथिवी) वै देव्यदितिविश्वरूपी । (तैत्तिरीय १ । ७ । ६।७) – This earth itself is the beautiful goddess in the form of Mohini

So the meaning is that on insistence of Lord Shiva in the form of Moon, the आग्नेय वाष्प in the form of Vishnu, on attaining density, assumed the form of Mohini in the form of the Earth. So, when the Earth became stable and the Earth also got an independent orbit due to the attraction and repulsion of other planets, the Moon started revolving around the Earth, as if Lord Shiva became infatuated with the beauty of the Earth in the form of Mohini. This is what Mahadev means by running after Mohini; the Moon ran around to its full capacity, spread its rays or hands, but could not get anything, that is, the Moon could not assimilate the Earth, this is the meaning of Mohini not coming in its hands.

(ख) (प्रजापतिः) तं (रुद्रं) अब्रवीन्महादेवोऽसीति । तद्यदस्य तन्नामाकरोच्चन्द्रमास्तद्रूपमभवत् ।। (शतपथ ६ । १।३।१६) -Prajapati said to this Rudra that you are Mahadev because he was named Mahadev = Mahan-radiant, so he (beautiful) became the Moon.

(ग) आग्नेयी पृथिवी । (ताण्ड्य १५।४।८) -This earth was igneous - fiery vapor

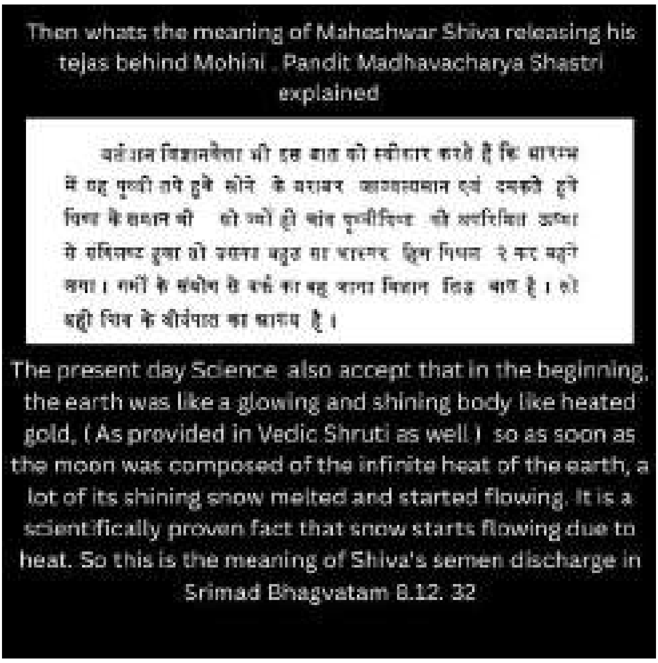
(घ) इयं (पृथिवी) वै देव्यदितिर्विश्वरूपी । (तैत्तिरीय १ । ७ । ६।७) – This earth itself is the beautiful goddess in the form of Mohini

So the meaning is that on insistence of Lord Shiva in the form of Moon, the आग्नेय वाष्प in the form of Vishnu, on attaining density, assumed the form of Mohini in the form of the Earth. So, when the Earth became stable and the Earth also got an independent orbit due to the attraction and repulsion of other planets, the Moon started revolving around the Earth, as if Lord Shiva became infatuated with the beauty of the Earth in the form of Mohini. This is what Mahadev means by running after Mohini; the Moon ran around to its full capacity, spread its rays or hands, but could not get anything, that is, the Moon could not assimilate the Earth, this is the meaning of Mohini not coming in its hands.

Then whats the meaning of Maheshwar Shiva releasing his tejas behind Mohini . Pandit Madhavacharya Shastri explained

वर्तमान विज्ञानवेत्ता भी इस बात को स्वीकार करते हैं कि आरम्भमें यह पृथ्वी तपे हुवे सोने के बराबर जाज्वल्यमान एवं दमकते हुवे पिण्ड के समान थी सो ज्यों ही चांद पृथ्वीपिण्ड की अपरिमित ऊष्मा से संश्लिष्ट हुवा तो उसका बहुत सा भास्वर हिम पिघल २ कर बहने लगा। गर्मी के संयोग से बर्फ का बह जाना विज्ञान सिद्ध बात है। सो यही शिव के वीर्यपात का आशय है।

The present day Science also accept that in the beginning, the earth was like a glowing and shining body like heated gold, (As provided in Vedic Shruti as well) so as soon as the moon was composed of the infinite heat of the earth, a lot of its shining snow melted and started flowing. It is a scientifically proven fact that snow starts flowing due to heat. So this is the meaning of Shiva's semen discharge in Srimad Bhagvatam 8.12. 32



Shastras like the Mahabharata which is 5th Veda , Maheshwar Shiva is referred to as Urdhvareta Brahmachari, meaning that he has never wasted his Tejas– Mahabharat Anushashan chapter 17 Shiva Sahastranam

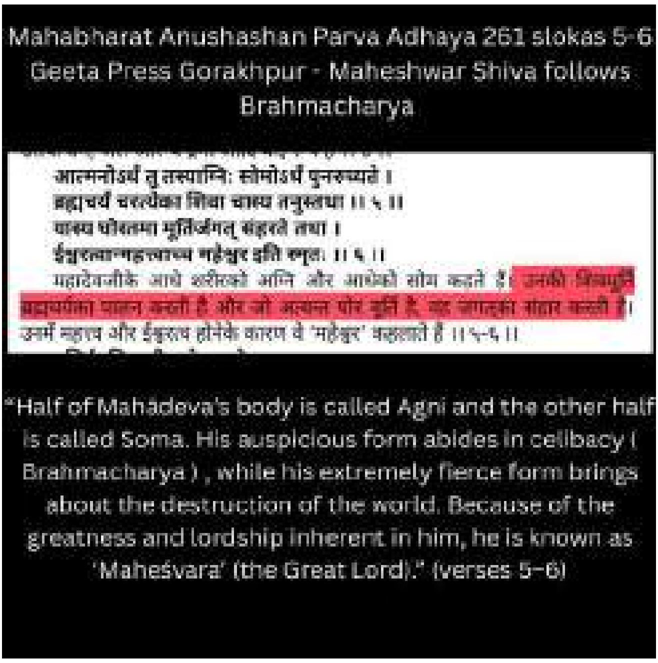
Geeta Press Gorakhpur – Maheshwar Shiva follows Brahmacharya

महादेवजीके आधे शरीरको अग्नि और आधेको सोम कहते हैं। उनकी शिवमूर्ति ब्रह्मचर्यका पालन करती है और जो अत्यन्त घोर मूर्ति है, वह जगत्‌का संहार करती है। उनमें महत्त्व और ईश्वरत्व होनेके कारण वे 'महेश्वर' कहलाते हैं ।। ५-६ ।।
“Half of Mahādeva’s body is called Agni and the other half is called Soma. His auspicious form abides in celibacy (Brahmacharya), while his extremely fierce form brings about the destruction of the world. Because of the greatness and lordship inherent in him, he is known as ‘Maheśvara’ (the Great Lord).” (verses 5-6)



In Srimad Bhagavatam Book 8 Chapter 7 sloka 32 Maheshwar Shiva is called the destroyer of Kama (Lust)

That you destroyed Kama (the god of Love), the sacrifice (of Daksa), Tripuras the three cities (constructed by Maya) subdued the god of death, consumed the (Hala-hala) poison (which is as good as consumed as you are certain to drink it up just now) and killed innumerable trouble-

Formerly, Śarva (i.e. Śaṅkara), having seen youthful and beautiful women of Gandharvas, Kinnaras and human beings, and with his mind set on them, pretended to be intent on practising penance, and with a spell dragged them far away into the sky. Then the great lord, the conqueror of the god of love, having fashioned a very delightful cottage, sported (there) with them. In the meanwhile, Gaurī's mind became excited. By means of meditation she saw the lord of the world, sporting with women. Knowing his intention she became angry. Then taking the form of Kṣemaṅkarī, she entered (the sky), and saw, far away in a lonely region of the sky, Hara (i.e. Śiva), whose lustre was like that of the god of love, who was in the midst of beautiful women, who, the best man, was bright, who, having again and again embraced the women, was sporting with them, who was kissing them excessively, and who was tormented by the passion of love.

Rc Hazra in his book Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs page no 120 said that the chapters after chapter 43 in Shristi khanda (including chapter 56) are later interpolations into Padma Purana and was composed likely after the Satanic Islamic Muhammadans established their rule in India . So this chapter is a later interpolation and not part of Padma Purana originally

(5) SṚṢṬI-KHAṆḌA.[88] This Khaṇḍa, which is assigned the fifth place in our edition, is really the first of the set. This position of the Khaṇḍa is betrayed by the mode of its beginning as well as by the sequence and contents of the five Parvans given in chap. 1.

This Khaṇḍa, as we have it now, can be rightly divided into two parts:

(1) chaps. 1-43 (verses 1-97)

and (2) chaps. 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end.

It will be seen hereinafter that the chapters of the second part were added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. Hence the chapters of the first part, which are of earlier date, are examined first.

[88] The Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa in Bengal Mss consists only of 46 (or according to Aufrecht, 45) chapters. The corresponding chapters in a Bengal Ms. (No. 1621, D. U. Mss Lib.) of this Khaṇḍa and the AnSS ed. are given below:

upon them, it is difficult to say anything about the lower limit.

Chapters 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end, which, according to our division, form the second part of the work, are not found in the Bengal Mss. So their comparatively late date can be well understood. These chapters were written and added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. These foreigners have been called kings[93] and scornfully described more than once under the names 'Turuṣka', 'Mleccha' and 'Yavana'[94]. The descriptions are undoubtedly aimed at the Muhammadans who 'polluted' the society and the land of the Hindus by their contact and slaughter of cows. Hence the date of composition of this part of the Sṛṣṭi-kh. can by no means be placed earlier than 1000 A.D. Such a late date is supported by the contents also, which are replete with Tantric elements. The Āgamas have many times been mentioned as authorities along with the Vedas and the Purāṇas; the Tulasī plant has been glorified in highly extravagant language; and so on. As Hemādri quotes

Likewise, numerous references in the shastras describe Bhagavan and Bhagavati as chidrupa, highlighting their oneness. Those with intellect will recognize that associating human activities with them is nonsensical. Let us now explore the deeper meaning of their union.

There's a reason why Bhagavan Shiva is also referred to as Manthana – महादेवः । यथा, महाभारते । १३ । १७ ।१२८ । "मन्थानो बहुलो वायुः सकलः सर्व्वलोचनः। (कल्पद्रुम) Because he churns Jagadyoni for the manifestation of creation – भैरवे मथनासक्ते जगद्योनिः सदोदिता । त्रैलोक्यसृष्टिहेत्वर्थं मन्थानस्थो भवेत्तद ।

Śiva Relieved of the Grief

Grief is the deep sadness and loss you feel when someone you love dies.
The death of a loved one can mean a big change in your life. It takes time to cope with your loss and find ways to adapt. Comfort and support from others con help as you go through grief.

Losing a loved one is a traumatic experience for anyone. Sometimes people who are emotionally upset, hug and kiss the body of the deceased.

Śiva who had been valorous, felt painful with the separation of his wife. He is the one who always roams about is the best among the best, the seed of the Vedas, the teacher of the yogic practices, he also felt painful with the death of Satī.

[illegible]

After regaining consciousness, immovable Śiva looked like the fallen trunk of the tree. Looking at the lotus-like face of Satī he spoke.

[illegible]

At that point of time his eyes were filled with tears. Though he happens to be the refuge of down-trodden and removes the miseries of the miserable people, still his condition became miserable and he started lamenting.

शंकर उवाच

[illegible]

Śiva said- O beautiful one, O chaste lady of my life, get up I happen to be Śiva, your husband. You look at me since I have come to you.

[illegible]

Though I possess the form of welfare, bestow welfare and the form of all the riches, bestow success, the soul all and the lord of all but in spite of that I happen to be like a dead body without you.

[illegible]

You possess all the prowess. I become competent only when you are with me. Without you I loose my [illegible] and become still in all the performances.

[illegible]

O dear, you possess the special knowledge, the one who is not aware of the importance of Satī, such a person devoid of knowledge and denounce her. It is not proper for you to leave me. But why are you discarding me?

Slokas 16-17

Now simple kissing and hugging due to grief for separation has been Claimed as Necrophilia by these Muslims . Tell me where is Necrophilia in Simple kissing and hugging due to grief for separation

इत्युक्त्वा मृतदेहं च प्रियाया विरहातुर:।
निधायोरसि संश्लिष्य चुचुम्ब च पुन: पुन:॥१६॥
अधरे चाधरं दत्त्वा वक्षो वक्षसि शंकर:।
पुन: पुन: समाश्लिष्य पुनर्मूर्च्छामवाप स:॥१७॥

Thus speaking Śiva infested with the separation of Satī, lifted up the body of his beloved and embraced her, kissing at again and again. He placed his lips over her lips and the chest over her breasts. Thus he embraced her again and again while lamenting.

The Next slokas also mention Maheswar Shiva great Sorrow and continuous crying and tears coming from his eyes becuase of separation from Sati and how he became lifeless with this grief of separation

पुन: स चेतनां प्राप्य वेगादुत्थाय शोकत:।
दुद्राव च यथोन्मत्तो ज्ञानिनां च गुरोर्गुरू:॥१८॥
सप्तद्वीपं सप्तसिंधुं लोकालोकं च काञ्चनम्।
बभ्राम भ्रान्तवज्ज्ञानी सती कृत्वा स्ववक्षसि॥१९॥

After regaining consciousness, he got up with force infatuated with grief. Inspire of his being the teacher of the intellectuals, he started wandering like an intoxicated person. Carrying the body of Satī, he wandered in the seven islands, seven oceans various countries and mountains. He started wandering in the fallacy.

रुरोदोच्चै: स्वयं कृत्वा सति साध्वीत्युदीर्य च।
त्रिनेत्रनेत्रनीरेण संबभूव सरोवरम्॥२१॥
तन्नेत्रं च सरो नाम मुनीनां तपस: स्थलम्।
योजनद्वयविस्तीर्णं पुण्यतीर्थं मनोहरम्॥२२॥
यत्र स्नात्वा पुनर्जन्म नराणां न भवेद्गिरे।
शतजन्मकृतं पापं स्नानमात्रेण नश्यति॥२३॥

He started crying, "O Satī, O chaste women". Thus crying he started shouting loudly. At that point of time the tears flowing from the eyes of Śiva were turned into a lake which was given the name of Netrasara. In due course of time it became the place for performing tapas by the sages. This auspicious and holy place was spread over an area of two yojanas. O mountain, while taking a bath in that sacred place, the humans do not have to be reborn. Having a dip into that water all the sins of the people disappear.

Then reciting the name of Satī the lady of his life, Śiva again fainted. The one who was always roaming in his own soul, even forgot Brahman. Thus the one who fulfilled the desires of others became lifeless with the grief of the separation of Satī and was seated under the banyan tree. He was lying there unconsciousness and finding him in that condition, all the gods were surprised. All of them than went to Śiva Lord Nārāyana also accompanied with his attendants reached at the place. His feet were adorned by Kamalā with the ornaments of gems. He was wearing a pītāmbara had four arms, wore a smile on his face, was delightful and adorned with long garland of forest flowers. Dharma accompanied by gods and the sages arrived there and bowed in reverence to the lord of Lakṣmī. All of them were seated in an assembly there. Thereafter lord Hari took Śiva in his lap, who happen to be the teacher of the intellectuals and was crying. He than started consoling him.

त्रिनेत्र उवाच

Śiva said- O form of lustre, who are you? Who are all the people surrounding you? What is Satī? Who am I? Who are you all talking with me where are these attendants going? You please tell me.

Now if this is still Necrophilia then Muslims should also consider this as Necrophilia and their Prophet Muhammad as Necrophile for kissing the death body of Uthman ibn Mazun Sunan Abi Dawud 3163 – I saw the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) that he kissed Uthman ibn Maz'un while he was dead, and I saw that tears were flowing (from his eyes).

Sunan Abi Dawud 3163

Narrated Aisha, Ummul Mu'minin:

I saw the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) that he kissed Uthman ibn Maz'un while he was dead, and I saw that tears were flowing (from his eyes).

Meanwhile Shri Maheshwar Shiva himself said that punishments for unnatural intercourse with woman (including Necrophilia) is death sentence

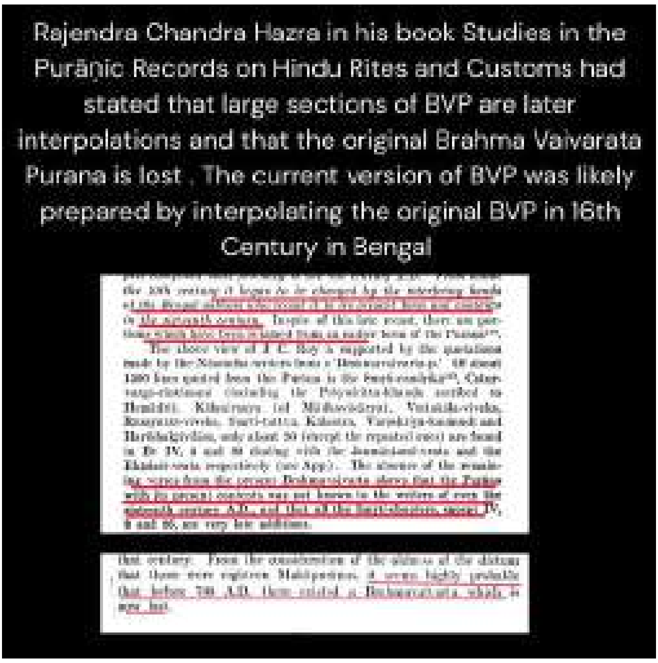
IS THIS PRAKARAN REALLY AUTHENTIC ? ANSWER IS : NO

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

9. Gods drank the semen of Shiva and became pregnant

📚Shiva Purana 2.4.2.9-11📚
What has happened has already happened. Now O gods, listen to what is relevant to the context. Let him who will, take up this discharged semen". After saying this He let it fall on the ground. Urged by the gods Agni became a dove and swallowed it with his beak. O sage, in the meantime Pārvatī came there."

We have become pregnant and also scorched by your semen. O Śiva, take pity on us. Remove our miserable plight."

Refutation-

Next he alleged on Shiva Purana 2.4.2.19 and 30 that is Rudra Samhita Kumara Khanda 2 chapter 2 verse 19 and 30 . Here is Shiva Purana Rudra Samhita Kumara Khanda chapter 2

ब्रह्माजी बोले- इस प्रकार सर्वेश्वरी भगवती पार्वतीने विष्णुप्रभृति देवगणोंको शाप देकर क्रोधपूर्ण हो शिवके तेजका

Brahmaji said — In this way, the Supreme Goddess Parvati, filled with anger, cursed the Devas , and then, with fury, spoke to Agni, the fire deity who had consumed Shiva's Tejas .

Valmiki Ramayana Bala Kanda Sarga 36 slokas 11-13 Geeta Press Gorakhpur states that the Vital Energy of Shiva and Uma is only the Tejas of Maheshwar Shiva

Kataka Commentary on Valmiki Ramayana Bala Kanda Sarga 36 sloka 12 too says that Tejas of Shiva is the Energy of Shiva and Uma which is held within the Aditya Mandala (Constellation of the Sun)which if released unnecessarily could destroy the universe . Whereas mortal human semen is made and stored in blood muscles and veins . This also proves that Maheshwar Shiva Tejas is his Divine Energy and not mortal human semen

Then what should be done? The gods advise Siva to perform the Brahma tapas along with Uma. What is the use of the Brahma tapas and why should Siva perform it? Because he might be able to secure his seed. In the beginning of conception we have an embryo. The semen remains over all parts of the body and soul. “Hold your mercurial semen within the sahaja eight-fold yoga” said the gods. But then the question arises about the effect of holding the semen through sahaja yoga in the body? The answer is it will save the world. It is said that the semen, of the Brahman is held within the Aditya mandala (in the constellation of the Sun) and it saves the worlds. If it is released, like Siva’s semen the worlds will be destroyed.Hence ‘Na alokam kartumarhasi’. So Siva accepted their plea. All the gods are his limbs and if the limbs are destroyed and he will become a branchless trunk (Sthanu). So, he said “All right! I shall hold my seed and so shall Uma. The gods and earth can be happy now. Uma will hold her seed in the fire”. It is said in the Vedas that the menstrual flow in the women is a form of Agni. Siva will hold his seed in water. If their seed falls on the earth, it will burn the entire world and even the gods. "Therefore, to protect them, we shall hold our seed." But stirred by long love the semen will drop from its place .It is in the form of moisture and infallible and the best one capable of giving birth to a son who will be able to fulfil gods' requirement. Who will be able to hold it? Saying this Siva released his seed with which the entire earth along with all its mountains and forests became filled.

should Siva perform it? Because he might be able to secure his seed. In the beginning of conception we have an embryo. The semen remains over all parts of the body and soul. "Hold your mercurial semen within the sahaja eight-fold yoga" said the gods. But then the question arises about the effect of holding the semen through sahaja yoga in the body? The answer is it will save the world. It is said that the semen, of the Brahman is held within the Aditya mandala (in the constellation of the Sun) and it saves the worlds. If their seed

Tilaka Commentary on Valmiki Ramayana Sarga 36 too states that Maheshwar Shiva Tejas is his and Uma Devi's Energy only which Agni Deva received and not any mortal human semen

If lord Siva bears his energy in his own self, of what use is it to the world? The scriptures say 'what is in man in the form of semen is the form of energy in the Sun. That form of energy is light which is the disc of the Sun itself. In that circle the whole world is being protected, if the reverse happens, there will be a calamity (Viparyaye Viparyaya).' If the sun perishes the whole world will collapse.
Siva says, 'I along with Uma, will bear the fire of my energy in my own self'. So he bears the semen. It will turn into fire (blood) in women. Since this world cannot withstand the extraordinary energy, if released, there would be devastation. This is the sense.
The gods said, 'This earth will bear it because it has unlimited power of forbearance'. This is the implied sense. The gods engaged Agni to receive the energy released on the earth as he is the lord and well-wisher of the earth. The wind which accompanied him helped him move. That energy acquired the form of the white mountain and having entered the earth by means of Agni, was moving (as he carried it). Then that energy got the form of a thicket of needles like the fire of the Sun at the place of its entry as a result of its greatness. Since Agni carried the energy for some time, it should be noted, Karttikeya originated from Agni. There was joy among the gods that Siva's energy was borne for the benefit of the world and that the energy that fell transformed into Kartikeya for the sake of the gods. But there was anger in Uma, for Siva did not accept Uma engaged in his worship. She cursed the Earth, saying 'Be not in one form. May you give fruits for a variety of seeds in the same field. Be wife to many husbands (Lords of the earth or kings).

The implication is, 'If only she (earth) had not conceded to bear the energy of Siva, Uma would have received it. She would have had that son'.

Allegations-

10. Shiva offered his testicles as food

📚Padma Purana 1.31.123-127📚
Thus addressed Maheśvara, the god of gods, told them in the vicinity of Pārvatī about their food: "I have accomplished the food prepared in many ways. All that is exhausted. And no other (kind of food) is seen here. Tell me what I should today give to you who have come (to me). I have especially to give something quite new. I shall give you as food which has never been tasted before by anyone. Below my navel are these two circular long and fruit-like testicles. Even with this food you will have great satisfaction."

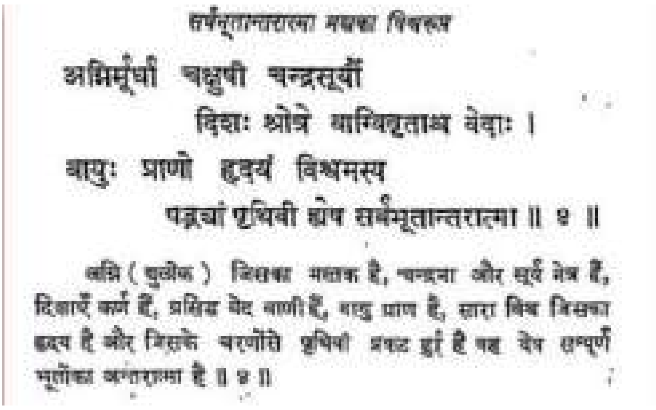
Refutation-

The problem here is the lack of understanding. Is Maheshwar Shiva's body like an normal human..? Idiotic claims made by these fools are debunked by Vedas and Samhitas itself. It's foolishness to regard body and each and every body part of Shiva as a normal one.



सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा भगवान्‌का विश्वरूप

अग्निर्मूर्धा चक्षुषी चन्द्रसूर्यौ
दिशः श्रोत्रे वाग्विवृताश्च वेदाः ।
वायुः प्राणो हृदयं विश्वमस्य
पद्भ्यां पृथिवी ह्येष सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा ॥ ४ ॥

अग्नि (द्युलोक) जिसका मस्तक है, चन्द्रमा और सूर्य नेत्र हैं, दिशाएँ कान हैं, प्रसिद्ध वेद वाणी है, वायु प्राण है, सारा विश्व जिसका हृदय है और जिसके चरणोंसे पृथिवी प्रकट हुई है वह देव सम्पूर्ण भूतोंका अन्तरात्मा है ॥ ४ ॥

In Mundak Upanishad while describing the Cosmic form of Brahman, it's said that- Fire (Dyuloka) is the head, moon and sun are the eyes, directions are the ears, famous Vedas are the speech, air is the life, the whole world is the heart and from whose feet the earth has appeared, that god is the inner soul of all the beings.

Same thing appears in Rig Veda's Purusha Suktam i.e Rig Ved Mandal 10 Suktam 90- नाभ्यां आसीदुन्तरिक्षं शीष्र्णो द्यौः समंवर्तत । पुद्भ्यां भूमिर्दिशः श्रोत्रात्तथां लोकाँ अंकल्पयन् ॥ (14) meaning From his navel came the firmament, from his head the heaven was produced, the earth from his feet, the quarters of space from his ear, so they constituted the world.
One important thing to be noticed is that अंडकोष also means universe itself and this is evident from Shrimad Bhagavatam Mahapuran- क्षित्यादिभिरेष किलावृतः । सप्तभिर्दशगुणोत्तरैरण्डकोशः । यत्र पतत्यणुकल्पः । < सहाण्डकोटिकोटिभिस्तदनन्तः ॥ ६.१६.३७ ॥

37. The egg of the universe is enveloped by seven sheaths of the earth and other elements etc., each outer envelop being ten times the extent of the enclosure inner to it. This egg-like universe together with millions and millions of other universes appears just like an atom on your head. Hence, you are called Ananta, the infinite.

In Bhadrakali Stuti a shloka comes which describes sky to be the face of Mata and here Earth is called to be originated from Naval – द्यौस्ते शीर्ष नाभिदेशो नभश्च चक्षूषि ते चन्द्रसूर्यानलास्ते ।
उन्मेषास्ते सुप्रबोधो दिवा रात्रिर्मातश्चक्षुषोस्ते निमेषम् ॥

मातः ! द्युलोक आपक सिर है, नभोमण्डल आपका नाभिप्रदेश है। चन्द्र, सूर्य और अग्नि आपके त्रिनेत्र हैं, आपका जगना ही सृष्टि के लिये दिन और जागरण का हेतु है और आपका आँखें मूँद लेना ही सृष्टिके लिये रात्रि है ॥ ५॥
From this we should understand that below earth is Patal lok where demons live and as per Markandeya Puran Shivadhuti is slayer of demons so whole interpretation should be taken as that Shiv ji is saying Mata Shivadhuti to eat the demons, testicles here do not mean normal testicles, it should be interpreted as the Patal Lok which lies under the earth. As I already explained that body of Brahman here Lord Shiva, is not normal like we humanshumans, this thing is also seen in Shrimad Bhagavatam. (8.7.26-28)

26. Oh Creator of the universe! Fire which represents, gods in its person (as the distributor of sacrificial offerings to gods) is your mouth; the wise know that the earth is your lotus-like feet; Time is the motion, the cardinal points, the ears, and Varuṇa (the Lord of waters) the palate, of you who are the soul (the Inner controller) of all gods.
27. The sky represents your navel; the wind, your breath, the sun, your eyes, water, (your semen; the support of all jīvas (individual souls) elevated (like that of god Brahmā) and ordinary (like those of sub-human beings), is your ego; Soma or the Moon-god, your mind, and the heavens, your head.

O Visnu, who is this person coming hither? He is incomprehensible with a huge mouth, curved fangs, dishevelled hair, ten arms, characterised by the trident, and faces all round with many eyes. He is the lord of the worlds. He is hideous in form. He wears a girdle of Muflja grass. His penis is lifted up. He is roaring terribly. He has great refulgence. He is a heap of splendour. He has pervaded all the quarters and heaven."

📚Vayu Purana 1.24.90-91📚
Obeisance to you, the lord of good rites and unfa¬ thomable splendour, the lord of holy centres, the Bijin (sower of seeds), the trident-bearing lord- Obeisance to Amedhra (one without the penis), Urdhvamedhra (one with erected penis), Vaikmfharetas (from whose semen Vi?nu was born), the eldest, the superior-most, the first and the foremost."

प्रातःकलीन सूर्य के समान तेजस्वी, विशाल मुख वाले किसी अद्भुत जीव को अपनी ओर समीप आते
देखकर उन्होंने नारायण से पूछा । ५४। विष्णो ! यह महामुख, बड़े-बड़े दाँतों वाला पुरुष कौन है जिसको
मै पहचान नहीं रहा हूँ, जिसके शिर के केश उधर इधर बिखरे हुये है जो दशभुज, त्रिशूलधारी, चारों ओर
मुख और आँख वाला, साक्षात् लोकप्रभु, विकृत, मूंज की बनी मेखला पहने हुये है, जिसका लिंग ऊपर उठा हुआ है और जो भयंकर गर्जना कर रहे है। भगवन् ! ये जोराशि कौन है जो अपने तेज से सब दिशाओं को और आकाश को व्याप्त करते हुये उधर ही आ रहे है ।५५-५७। ब्रह्मा की इन बातों को सुनकर भगवान् विष्णु ने ब्रह्मा से कहा- 'जिनके पद प्रहार से समुद्र में बड़े वेग से चंचल, उत्ताल तरगे उठ रही है,
जिसकी छटा से पद्मसंभव ब्रह्मा भी आवृत से हो गये है, और जिसके श्वास से आपके सहित यह मेरी नाभि
से निकला हुआ कमल वेग से कपित हो रहा है वे भगवान् ईश हैं जो अनादि, लोकनाशक और विभु है।
चलिये, आप और मैं, स्तुति से इस वृषभध्वज का समीप चलकर अभिनन्दन करें ।५८-६०।

Verses 54–60 Translation:

Seeing some astonishing being approaching them, radiant like the morning sun and with a massive face, Brahma asked Narayana:

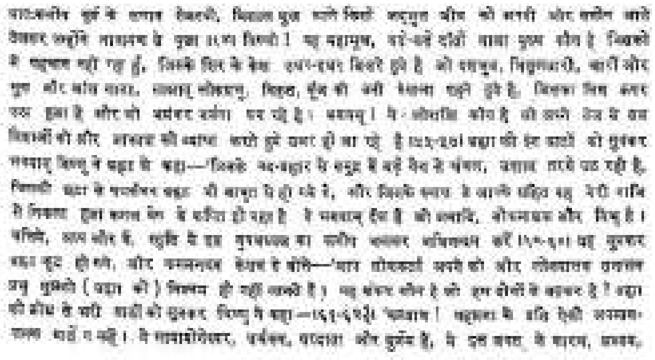
54.
“O Vishnu! Who is this great-faced person with large teeth, whom I cannot recognize? His hair is scattered in all directions, he has ten arms, holds a trident, and has faces and eyes on all sides. He appears to be the very Lord of the worlds—fierce in form, wearing a girdle made of munja grass, with his linga (symbol of Nirakar Saguna Brahm) prominently raised, and roaring terrifyingly.”

55–57.
“O Lord! Who is this powerful entity whose brilliance pervades all directions and the sky as well, and who is approaching with such overwhelming energy?”

Hearing these words of Brahma, Lord Vishnu said to him:

“By whose footfalls the ocean’s waves are surging violently and rising high, whose radiance has even enveloped the lotus-born Brahma, and whose breath is making this lotus—emerging from my navel along with you—shake rapidly, that is Lord Ishvara Himself, the beginningless, the destroyer of the worlds, and the Supreme One.”

58–60.
“Come, let us go together and, through our praises, approach and offer salutations to this Bull-bannered One (Vṛṣabhadhvaja).”



And Vayu Purana 1.24.90-91

In Mahabharat 13/141/26-27 – Maheshwar Shiva himself prescribes to leave eating meat and drinking Alcohol as five signs of Sanatan Dharma

श्रीमहेश्वरने कहा- देवि ! किसी भी जीवकी हिंसा न करना, सत्य बोलना, सब प्राणियोंपर दया करना, मन और इन्द्रियोंपर काबू रखना तथा अपनी शक्तिके अनुसार दान देना गृहस्थ-आश्रमका उत्तम धर्म है ।। २५ ।।

Lord Maheshwara said:
“O Devi! Not harming any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one’s capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder. (Verse 25)

(Apart from following this householder’s dharma,)
— abstaining from contact with another’s wife,
— protecting entrusted possessions and women,
— not taking anything without giving in return,
— and renouncing meat and alcohol —

These constitute the five forms of Dharma, which lead to happiness.
Each of these principles has many branches.
Those who hold Dharma as supreme should certainly practice this meritorious path.

Then he went to the window sill and remained there with face turned down and trembling. On seeing him Sambhu in that secret place laughingly said to Uma. See, O gentle lady, the parrot that is the Fire-god himself who has come here at the instance of Devas. Parvati bashfully said to the lord, "O lord, enough". The lord of Devas called the Fire-god moving about in front of him. in the form of a bird and said, "O Agni, you have been recognised through various ways. Do not speak anything. Open your mouth. Take this in and carry it with you." After saying this lord Sambhu discharged a great deal of semen into the mouth of Fire-god. With this semen within him Agni could not at all go. Utterly

The Gautamī-māhātmya (chaps. 70-175), which was certainly composed by somebody living about the river Godāvarī, is a distinct 'work' (pustakam) by itself. It is called a 'highly meritorious Purāṇa' declared by Brahmā (cf. Br 175, 78 and 87). The place which it occupies in the Brahma-p. was not meant for it, because it divides the chapters on Puruṣottamakṣetra-māhātmya. The way in which chap. 176 opens, shows that it immediately followed chap. 69. Moreover, in chap. 176 there is no hint from which we may conclude that the Māhātmya was there. In Br 179, 2 the sages refer to Bhāratavarṣa (chap. 27) and Puruṣottama-kṣetra, of which, they say, Vyāsa told them elaborately, but they do not mention the Gautamī-māhātmya which also precedes chap. 179 in our edition. So, it is clear that the Māhātmya was not originally there. In the Veṅk. ed. it is placed at the end. This Māhātmya was attached to the Brahma-p. later than the chapters on Orissa, for the Nāradīya-p. (I, 92), which gives the contents of the present

The Gautamīmāhātmya, also called Godāvarīmāhātmya, of which there exist several separate manuscripts[112] and which has also been separately edited,[113] calls itself a purāṇa,[114] and must originally have been a distinct book. It interrupts the section on Puruṣottamakṣetra, and has been inserted exactly in the middle of the Brahma°.[115] It describes the sacred places along the Godāvarī river.

3. Shiva's Self-Castration

There is also a tale that describes how Shiva voluntarily allowed his penis to fall down. In this narrative, Brahma sought Rudra/Shiva's assistance in creating living beings. In response, Shiva immersed himself in water, and Brahma waited for an extended period. Growing impatient, Brahma proceeded to create living beings on his own. When Shiva emerged from the water and realized that Brahma had already created all living beings, he became extremely angry and decided to cast off his penis, considering it no longer necessary.

📚Mahabharata 10.17.17-26📚
After the creatures had multiplied and the Grandsire had become well pleased, the first-born rose from the water and beheld the living creation. He saw that diverse kinds of creatures had been created and that they had multiplied by their own energy. At this sight,

Rudra became angry and caused his procreative limb to disappear in the bowels of the Earth. The unfading Brahma, soothing him by soft words, said unto him, “O Sharva, what wert thou doing so long within the water? For what reason, also hast thou caused thy limb of generation to disappear in the bowels of the Earth?” Thus questioned, that lord of the universe wrathfully answered the lord Brahman, “Somebody else has created all these creatures! What purpose then would be served by this limb of mine? I have by my austerities, O Grandsire, created food for all these creatures. These herbs and plants also will multiply like those that will subsist upon them!” Having said these words, Bhava went away, in cheerlessness and rage, to the foot of the Menjavat mountains for practising severer austerities.

Chapter 1300(17)

Vaishampayana said, 'When all the soldiers were asleep and were destroyed by the three rathas, King Yudhishthira grieved and spoke these words to Dasharha. "O Krishna! All my sons were maharathas. Drona's son was wicked, inferior and blemished in his deeds. How could they be slain by him? In a similar way, Drupada's sons were accomplished in the use of weapons. They were brave. They could fight with hundreds and thousands. How could they have been brought down by Drona's son? Dhrishtadyumna was the best among rathas. In the forefront of the battle, Drona, the great archer, could not stand before him. How could he have been slain? O bull among men! What act had the preceptor's son accomplished, that he could single-handedly slay all of them in the camp?"

"Vasudeva replied, "There is no doubt that Drona's son had sought refuge with the god of the gods, the lord without decay, the lord of everything. That is the reason he could slay many, though he was single-handed. If Mahadeva is pleased, he can even grant immortality. O bull among the Bharata lineage! I know about Mahadeva's true nature and about the many deeds that he performed in ancient times. O descendant of the Bharata lineage! He is the beginning, the middle and the end of beings. Everything in this entire universe moves because of his deeds. The lord, the grandfather, wished to create beings and saw him first. He told him, 'Without any delay, create beings.' Having been thus addressed, the one with the tawny locks saw that beings would have defects. For a very long time, the immensely ascetic one submerged himself in water and tormented himself through austerities. The grandfather waited for a very long period of time. So as to generate beings, he then created another being through his mental powers. On seeing that Girisha was submerged in the water, this being told his father, 'I will generate beings only if no other being has been born before me.' His father told him, 'There is no other being who has been born before you. Sharva is submerged in the water. You can confidently do what you have to do.' That being then created seven Prajapatis, Daksha and the others. All of them created the four kinds of beings. Having been created, all the beings were hungry. O king! They violently rushed towards the Prajapatis, wishing to devour them. As they were about to be devoured, in search of succour, they fled to the grandfather. 'O illustrious one! Please save us from these. Decree some means for their sustenance.' He then assigned them the forests, the herbs and all immobile objects. Among mobile beings, the strong could feed on the weak. Having been assigned a means of sustenance, all the beings were satisfied and went away to wherever they had come from. O king! They cheerfully multiplied themselves, within their own species. When the beings prospered, the preceptor of the worlds was pleased. However, the eldest one arose from the waters and saw all these beings. He saw many different kinds of beings, who were extending through their own energies. The illustrious Rudra angrily planted his linga, so that it penetrated the earth and remained stationed there. Brahma wished to pacify him and spoke these words to him. 'O Sharva! Why did you remain inside the water for such a long period of time? Why have you made your linga penetrate inside the earth?' Thus addressed, he angrily replied to the preceptor of the worlds, 'Someone else has created these beings. What will I do with this?' O grandfather! Through my austerities, I have created food for the beings. The herbs will always multiply and so will the beings.' Having angrily spoken in this way, Bhava was cheerless and went away. The immensely ascetic one tormented himself through austerities on the foothills of Mount Munjavat.'"

Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of Lying in Hinduism

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

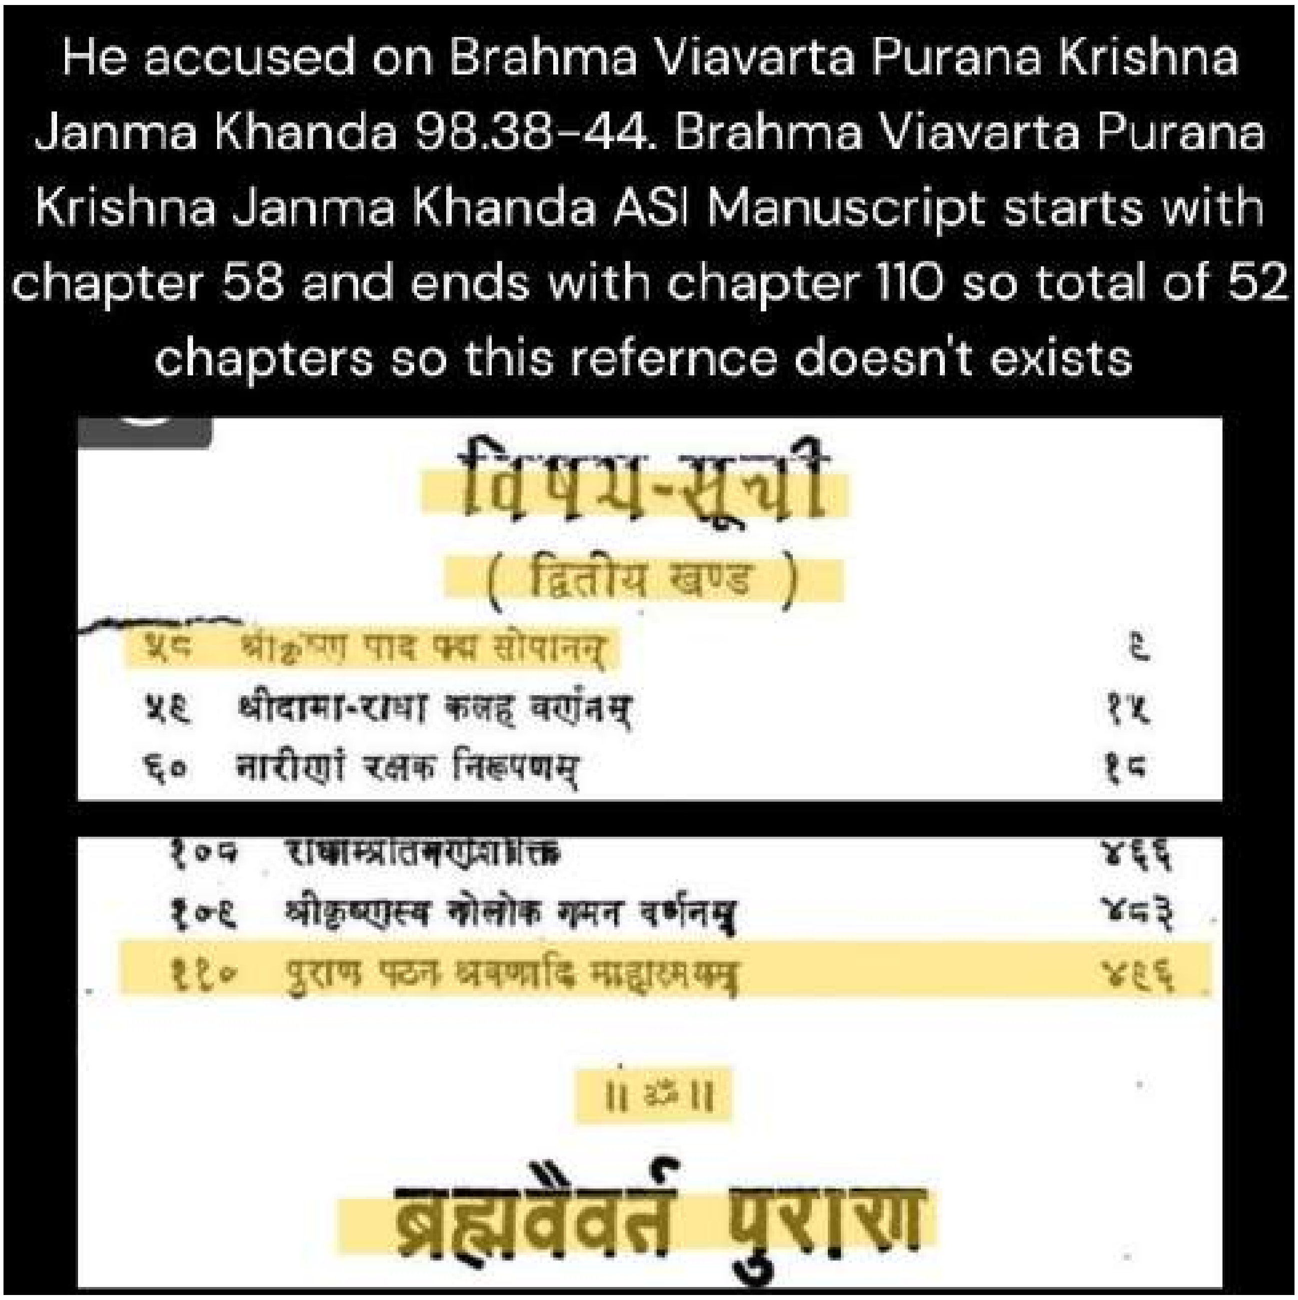
This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of "Lying in Hinduism ".

1. Circumstances when it is allowed to lie

📚Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 98.38-44📚
Madhava smiled and he started speaking words according to the Vedas which were quite truthful. Sri Krsna said- It is not a sin to resort to falsehood while cutting jokes with the damsels, in the marriages, for the sake of livelihood, when life is in danger and for the sake of the cows and the Brahmanas. Therefore even if you don't make your words truthful, there is no harm in the same nor would you have to face the hell. My devotee actually goes to the Goloka and not to the hell."

Refutation-

Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda ASI Manuscript contains only 52 Adhaya and no 98th Adhaya exists



📚Matsya Purana 31.16📚
Sarmistha said:- "King! there is no sin in speaking untruth at the time of indulging in sexual pleasures, on the occasion of marriage, when life is in danger, wealth is at stake, and in joke. Lying on these five occasions is venal.""

📚Mahabharata 1.82📚
Sarmishtha then said, 'It hath been said, O king, that it is not sinful to lie on the occasion of a joke, in respect of women sought to be enjoyed, on occasions of marriage, in peril of immediate death and of the loss of one's whole fortune. Lying is excusable on these five occasions."

Refutation-

Here these are the words of a daitya queen Sarmistha which need not be taken as authority

Claims

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 8.19.42-43📚
Therefore, the safe course is to say no. Although it is a falsehood, it protects one completely, it draws the compassion of others toward oneself, and it gives one full facility to collect money from others for oneself. Nonetheless, if one always pleads that he has nothing, he is condemned, for he is a dead body while living, or while still breathing he should be killed. In flattering a woman to bring her under control, in joking, in a marriage ceremony, in earning one's livelihood, when one's life is in danger, in protecting cows and brahminical culture, or in protecting a person from an enemy's hand, falsity is never condemned."

📚Vasishtha Dharmsutra 16.35📚
(Men) may speak an untruth at the time of marriage, during dalliance, when their lives are in danger or the loss of their whole property is imminent, and for the sake of a Brāhmaṇa; they declare that an untruth spoken in these five cases does not make (the speaker) an outcast."

📚Gautama Dharmsutra 23.29📚
Some (declare, that) an untruth (spoken) at the time of marriage, during dalliance, in jest or while (one suffers severe) pain is venial."

📚Mahabharata 8.69📚
Truth may be unutterable, and even falsehood may be utterable where falsehood would become truth and truth would become falsehood. In a situation of peril to life and in marriage, falsehood becomes utterable. In a situation involving the loss of one's entire property, falsehood becomes utterable. On an occasion of marriage, or of enjoying a woman, or when life is in danger, or when one's entire property is about to be taken away, or for the sake of a Brahmana, falsehood may be uttered. These five kinds of falsehood have been declared to be sinless."

Refutation-

This website has tried to quote some references from Puranas Smritis and Mahabharat that lying is allowed in Hinduism at some circumstances as said by these texts . Hence he was trying to prove Hinduism promotes lying and Hindus can lie indiscriminately at any cirucumstance and thorugh this he was trying to cover the concept of Al-Taqiyya (Deceit and Lying against Non Muslims) in Islam etc and that there is a concept of Al

Taqiyya in Vedic Dharma as well . However that’s not correct . To Understand this I will quote a similar statement in Manu Smriti 8.112 and its explanation by Acharyas

Manu Smriti 8.112

> There is no serious offence in swearing to women, or in connection with marriages, fodder for cows, or fuel, or for the sake of a Brāhmaṇa.—(112)

English Translation –

1) Medhātithi Commentary:

Desire (Kāma) is a special kind of affection or attraction arising from the contact of refined senses with their objects. The women towards whom such desire arises in a man are referred to as kāminī-s, such as a beloved wife (bhāryā) or others.

Now, regarding oaths (śapatha) taken in the context of desire:
If someone takes an oath for the fulfillment of a desire—such as saying, "I do not desire anyone else; you alone are my beloved"—this type of statement is not considered faulty.
However, if the oath is something like "Unite with me," "This must be given by you," or "I shall give this to you," then such statements do lead to a fault (doṣa).

In such oaths, the locative case used for the object of desire (viṣaya-saptamī) is not to be mistaken for an instrumental cause (nimitta-saptamī).
Therefore, if a man desires only one woman (like a beloved), and makes an oath accordingly, it is not faulty.
But if the oath refers to an external cause (like another's property), then it becomes blameworthy—such as when taking an oath regarding theft of someone else's property (paradravyāpahāra), where the instrumental cause applies.

Hence, punishments prescribed in texts such as "Kāmād daśaguṇaṃ pūrvam" ("Due to lust, tenfold punishment" – Manusmṛti 8.121) do not apply here.

Nevertheless, if a false oath is followed by disputation, then the fault of a vain oath (vṛthā-śapatha) arises. This holds true universally.

In cases of marriage:

Statements like "You shall not marry anyone else," or "I shall not marry anyone else," made by friends or well-wishers for the purpose of marriage, even if false, are not faulty.

However, false statements involving denial of caste (jāti-apahnavāda) or lineage are definitely faulty.

In matters like cow fodder:
If someone says, "I must not take the fodder meant for the cows," or "I have not taken it," and is being falsely accused by others connected to the owner, then taking an oath in false testimony does not cause fault.

The same applies for firewood collection.

In the case of Brāhmaṇas, taking an oath (śapatha) with the aim of receiving favor or help is permitted.
In the case of people of other castes, taking oaths for receiving favor is also permitted. This is evident and does not require special clarification.

Some assert: "Oaths are allowed only for Brāhmaṇas, but for Śūdras and others, even false speech is allowed."
This is not correct, because according to the statement "For truth is greater than everything" (Manusmṛti 8.104), even for others, false speech is not allowed.
Thus, there is no prohibition for others. This doctrine is a counter-response to earlier prohibitions against false oaths (vṛthā-śapatha).

Therefore, in acts for the welfare of all varṇas (castes), there is no fault if someone takes an oath. Why then is it mentioned at all?
Because the purpose here is to save someone from harm, which applies to all varṇas.
However, consensual acceptance (abhyupapatti) is exclusive to the Brāhmaṇa, because that is possible due to acquisition of wealth and so on.

Overall, in actions concerning others, when an oath like this is permitted, it should be understood that it is valid as long as there is another method to establish the fact—i.e., the oath must be considered part of a legitimate means of proof.

Acharya Medhatithi explains that in marriage-related matters, statements like “You shall not marry anyone else” or “I shall not marry anyone else,” even if false and spoken by friends or well-wishers to support the Marriage , are not considered sinful, as they aim at social harmony rather than deceit. However, false statements involving the denial of caste or lineage, those made to force union or sexual relations, or oaths referring to an external cause—such as swearing falsely in matters like theft of another’s property (paradravyāpahāra)—are clearly blameworthy and not permitted, as they involve deception and harm.

In cases like accusations over cow fodder, if a person falsely denies involvement to protect themselves from baseless blame by those connected to the owner, such false oaths are not considered sinful.

Furthermore, when a person takes a false oath to help a Brāhmaṇa, it is not deemed blameworthy. More broadly, false oaths taken to protect the welfare of any varṇa (caste) are permitted, provided the intent is to prevent harm or protect the innocent. However, any false oath made with the intent to harm, deceive, or exploit others remains sinful and impermissible whereas in Al Taqiyya the main intention is harm the kaffirs subjugate them conquer them take their woman as sex slaves and harm them by use of deceit and falsehood

Therefore, truthfulness remains a core value in Hindu ethics, with exceptions allowed only in rare, compassionate circumstances to prevent greater injustice.

Atharva Veda 5/1/6

Atharva Veda 5/1/6 contains the seven maryadas which are never to be practiced and one of which includes मिथ्याभाषण which means speaking falsehood

मनु आदि ऋषियों ने चोरी, गुरुपत्नीगमन, ब्रह्महत्या, भ्रूणहत्या, मद्यपान, मिथ्याभाषण एवं पापकर्म इन सात कर्मों के रूप में धार्मिक, मर्यादा निश्चित की है. जो इस मर्यादा को नहीं मानता, वह पापी है. इन सात मर्यादाओं का पालन करने वाला पुरुष मृत्यु के पश्चात सूर्य मंडल में स्थित आदित्य को प्राप्त करता है और प्रलय काल तक वहीं स्थित रहता

The sages like Manu have defined religious codes of conduct through seven actions: theft, adultery with a teacher's wife, killing of a Brahmin, abortion, consumption of alcohol, speaking falsehood, and sinful deeds. One who does not adhere to these codes is considered sinful. A person who follows these seven moral principles attains Aditya, who resides in the solar realm, after death and remains there until the time of cosmic dissolution (pralaya)

Mahabharat 13.141.25-27 – Maheshwar Shiva tells that always being truthful is the duty of every householder

श्रीमहेश्वरने कहा- देवि ! किसी भी जीवकी हिंसा न करना, सत्य बोलना, सब प्राणियोंपर दया करना, मन और इन्द्रियोंपर काबू रखना तथा अपनी शक्तिके अनुसार दान देना गृहस्थ-आश्रमका उत्तम धर्म है ।। २५ ।।

Lord Maheshwara said:
“O Devi! Not harming any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one’s capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder. (Verse 25)

(Apart from following this householder’s dharma,)
— abstaining from contact with another’s wife,
— protecting entrusted possessions and women,
— not taking anything without giving in return,
— and renouncing meat and alcohol —

These constitute the five forms of Dharma, which lead to happiness.
Each of these principles has many branches.
Those who hold Dharma as supreme should certainly practice this meritorious path.

Moreover what's the problem in lying if we are joking or lying for flattering or in lying when our lives and property are in danger (Lets say in case of Terrorist attack or attack by Robbers and dacoits you have to lie in order to protect your life or anyone else life and property otherwise die) or lying to protect innocent cows life or lying to prevent violence (Peace and Non Violence is always prioritized) or lying in marriage related issues with wife (for ex – your wife cooked food and it tasted terrible but your wife made that food with hard work so will you tell the truth and cause troubles in your marriage or will you prefer to tell a small lie (that does not harm anyone) that the food taste was fine . All sensitive people will accept that lying in these circumstances is not harmful rather brings peace and satisfaction and protection in family and society and protects and helps the innocent people . But lying selectively in order to deceit someone and cause him harm and lying to Subjugate him is definitely harmful and Sinful . This is seen in Islamic Al Taqiyya where Muslims use lying in order to deceive Non Muslims and harm them and conquer and convert them and their areas into Islam . This is Islamic Al Taqiyya

There is an explicit prohibition of Lying to harm anyone in Vedic Scriptures (unlike Islam)

Mahabharat 13/141/26-27 – Five signs of Sanatan Dharma which includes abstaining from contact with other men wives

(उक्त गृहस्थ-धर्मका पालन करना,) परायी स्त्रीके संसर्गसे दूर रहना, धरोहर और स्त्रीकी रक्षा करना, बिना दिये किसीकी वस्तु न लेना तथा मांस और मदिराको त्याग देना – से धर्मके पाँच भेद हैं, जो सुखकी प्राप्ति करानेवाले हैं। इनमेंसे एक-एक धर्मकी अनेक शाखाएँ हैं। धर्मको श्रेष्ठ माननेवाले मनुष्योंको चाहिये कि वे पुण्यप्रद धर्मका पालन अवश्य करें ।।

Lord Maheshwara said:
"O Devi! Not harming any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder. (Verse 25)

(Apart from following this householder's dharma,)
— abstaining from contact with another's wife,
— protecting entrusted possessions and women,
— not taking anything without giving in return,
— and renouncing meat and alcohol —

These constitute the five forms of Dharma, which lead to happiness.
Each of these principles has many branches.

Those who hold Dharma as supreme should certainly practice this meritorious path.

In the modern prostitution system, many young women are kidnapped and forced into this exploitative trade, treated as mere commodities to be bought and sold like goods or animals. Some greedy parents even sell their own children into this vile practice. Such acts of activities have been strongly condemned in the scriptures.

From these evidences it must be clear that Prostitution or any acts related to Prostitution is strictly prohibited in Sanatan Dharma

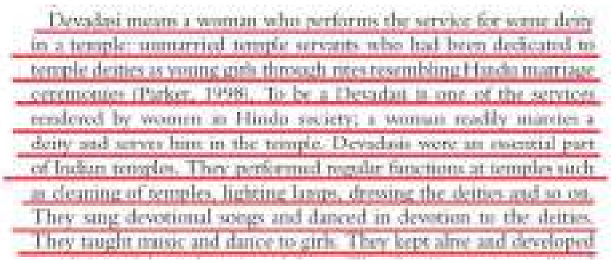
Next Malechas accuse on Devadasi System and accuse and misinterpret it as prostitution which is totally wrong as per Shastras .

Meaning of Devadaasi as per Shastras

शब्दकल्पद्रुम states, 'देवं इन्द्रियं दासनोति हन्तीति' or देवपरिचारिका च as the definition of devadasi meaning the servants of the temple deities

Likewise, Vachaspatyam defines the term as, 'स्त्री देवमिन्द्रियं दासनोति दाससथ' or देवानां परिचारिकायाम् meaning the servants of the temple deities

The sanskrit term "Devdasi" or Tamil "Devar Adiyal" simply translates to a woman engaged in Service of God. Woman were treated with a lot of respect. Hence In Hindu culture, a Devdasi was a pious position for a woman who engaged in different activities of a temple & were considered married to the temple deity. Their work included, cleaning temples, taking care of the deity & sing devotional songs only.



Devadasi means a woman who performs the service for some deity in a temple: unmarried temple servants who had been dedicated to temple deities as young girls through rites resembling Hindu marriage ceremonies (Parker, 1998). To be a Devadasi is one of the services rendered by women in Hindu society; a woman readily marries a deity and serves him in the temple. Devadasis were an essential part of Indian temples. They performed regular functions at temples such as cleaning of temples, lighting lamps, dressing the deities and so on. They sang devotional songs and danced in devotion to the deities. They taught music and dance to girls. They kept alive and developed

Thus, it's clear that they weren't sex slaves but servants of the deities. If they were sex slaves of brahmin then that should've been the definition of devadasi.

There are four types of दासी – दासी चतुर्विधा प्रोक्ता (ब्रह्माण्डपुराणम्/उत्तरभागः/अध्यायः ८). During Hindu period maintaining discipline was mandatory for them. Far from being forced into prostitution, it was considered a strict offence for any man to look at her lecherously coz she was considered the wife of God himself.

The status of the Devadasi accorded with whom she was given to in marriage, that is, the deity, the God of the temple, and thus she was considered 'Sadasuhagan' – at all times married, hence always blessed. Being married to a deity, her adherence to maintaining strict discipline was mandatory; she was the personal possession of the temple and her elevated position made it unacceptable for her to mingle with the rest of the people and, more precisely, to keep in touch with men.

A Devadasi was meant to be revered; while she danced in worship, speaking to her or looking at her has been mentioned as a ritual offence in the sectarian texts that lay out the etiquette on blame in other varieties of indiscretion such as spitting in the temple, turning one's

There are inscriptions in the Raja Rajeswhara Temple, Tanjore Temple itself where it says there were 400 Devdasis in the temple whose position was so important only next to the priests of the temple themselves.

Inscriptions dating back to 1004 AD on the Raja Rajeshwar temple at Tanjore in South India maintain that there were 400 Devadasis in the temples, who were second in importance only to the temple priests who performed the religious rituals. Parallel to this, there is a record of the Someshwar shrine at Gujarat, which maintained 500 Devadasis. They used to live in the streets surrounding the temples and received maintenance in return for service in the temple (Tarachand, 1992).

Infact, Devdasis were quite affluent under the patronage of Hindu kings like cholas or pallavas. They were betowed with a lot of wealth and land. There was no sign of ostracism. Now these is what scholarly research implies, not claiming something without any evidence feom any authentic source.

The affluent status of Devadasis has been found in Pallava and Chola dynasties in the southern parts of India between the 6th and 13th centuries AD. This phase shows that they were accorded with great respect and dignity in society, being the custodians of culture and the arts such as music and dance. There is no hint of ostracism. They were bestowed with grand gifts of land, property and jewellery by wealthy and royal patrons and were quite affluent.

Scholars identified devdasis to hold either of this position listed below. And no hint of prostitution was by "Temple dancers" were found in these inscriptions. This is Hindu period for us

a. She is referred to in the inscriptions by one of several terms—tevaratiyal (or a related term that similarly has the meaning of "devotee," e.g., emperumanatiyal); tevanar makal ("daughter of God"); and patiyilar or taliccerip ("temple woman").
b. She is said to have some function in a temple or matha and/or to receive on a regular basis food, rice, cloth, or gold, or rights over land from the temple.
c. She is identified in the inscription as being a woman "of this temple" or a servant or devotee "of the Lord of such-and-such a place."

Devdasis whose dance was only dedicated to temples & were devotional were forced to become entertainers because of the Islamic attacks on our Temples & later due to British Propaganda. It was as late as 1892 when they were called pr0stitute for the first time.

destruction of the temples, devadasis lost not only their patronage but also their status in society, leading to the beginnings of their exploitation. The result of the loss of patronage forced the devadasis, who previously danced at religious temple events, to dance at wedding feasts or other private entertainments. The system was further limited under British rule, which unlike the Islamic Empire reached the entirety of the subcontinent.

(1018–1034 A.D.) provision was made for offerings to the images of Rājendra and Paravai Naṅkaiyār in the Tiruvarur temple.[21]

2. Temple dancers

The inscription makes mention of donations that were made by dancing girls as well as to them. Temple dancers usually donated gold, lamps, or cows and sheep, and even land.[22] The revenue from the latter would provide for the supply of oil for perpetual lamps. Donation to temple dancers consisted in personal grants of lands or in the gift of land for the maintenance of a group of temple artists.[23] From epigraphical material one may assume that the temple dancers were highly respected members of society who were well provided for by the temple and by the community of devotees.

Dancing women

It is clear from the inscriptions that both the court and the temple supported a large number of female dancers and singers; however, it seems that the two centres did not employ each other's artists. We have sufficient evidence to assume that both types of artists, court dancers as well as temple dancers, were held in great esteem and were generally very rich.[117] Examples of their valuable donations can be found in epigraphical records.

78

It seems that devadasis were held in high esteem in all layers of cultural expression. Their repertoire absorbed a great number of musical and dance compositions that were in vogue during the Vijayanagara period; this fact is attested by the multivalence and divergent character of these ritual compositions that have come to us.

92

European sources

The developments in the artistic field during the Tanjore period were so striking that Indian sources refer to devadasis and art as identical. The other tasks that formed part and parcel of the devadasi tradition were practically entirely obliterated by information about the artistic accomplishments of the devadasis. An indirect proof of the continuation of the ritual sitrasumangali, the ever-auspicious female. This auspiciousness is implored by society in the case of wedding ceremonies[231], in processions of the gods[232], and while carrying the sacred water to the temple.[233] Even after retirement from active temple-service the devadasis of Vaishnava temples were called Kali-yuga-Lakshmi (goddess of prosperity in the worst world-period of Kali)[234] and Kali-yuga-Parvati in Saiva temples.[235] The

Secular patrons

Apart from the patronage which the devadasis received from the temple and the king, their services were valued by society at large. Although the devadasis did not visit the houses of pancamas (outcastes, the so-called 'fifth caste'), they officiated in the houses of Brahmins and of high-caste non-Brahmins (like Mutaliyars). Women of devadasi families took care of the puja-room (home-altar or shrine) and performed kuttharatti or alatti/ alam for the family-members. This function was called manikkam.[306] Another instance of their bygone prestige was the code of palanquin that prescribed that any dignified person of high social status should travel only with a retinue of devadasis. Important visitors should be received in the same manner,

The most important function of the devadasis in the houses of private patrons was to be present at their social-cum-ritual functions. These were mostly of the character of rites of passage (saṃskāras) like the hair-parting ceremony performed for pregnant females, the name-giving and ear-piercing ceremonies for children, and most importantly the wedding-ceremonies. A large bulk in the repertoire of the devadasis concerns songs for such occasions. The maṅgalas serve mostly the more simple rites of passage, whereas a rather rich variety of songs was sung during the wedding festivities. Conclusions Chapter I

As far as our historical data go we can distinguish at all times and at all levels of culture and of society a 'ritual' person who deals effectively with the divine which is considered dangerously ambivalent. This female ritualist whom we would like to call nityasumangalī renders her special power effective in three ways: 1. through her female sexuality that is identified with that of the goddess;

2. through a number of implements of ritual value like the pot, the lamp, coloured water, certain flowers, fruits and unguents;

3. through her art.

At different times and in different socio-cultural foci of South Indian culture a different emphasis has been laid on either of the three. In all cases, however, she deals with the ambivalent divine, warding off its evil forces and supporting its benign workings. This, in itself, is an extremely dangerous task, and only specially qualified persons can be up to it. Her special qualification is her auspiciousness which earns her the epithet nityasumangalī.

Nityasumangali: Devadasi Tradition in South India by Saskia Kersenboom

So the Devadasis were exploited by making them affluent to such an extent that they could donate gold, domestic animals, and even land to the temples.
Further, they were exploited through land grants and respect in the society. Can't imagine the horrors encountered by these innocent women.

Devadutta Pattanik wrote that it was due to Satanic Islamic Invasions that the Sacred Devadaasi system was transformed into Prostitution

Records show that there was another class of mahāris known as sampradā niyoga whose duty was to dance during the ceremonial procession (patuar) of the deities. Religious texts mention such dances during Ratha Jatra, Chandan Jatra, Uthapana Utsaba, Dola Jatra (Holi), Jhoolan Jatra, etc. As the mahāris of this class were also to dance at in patuars (processions), they came to be known as patuari (one who accompanies a procession). Mahāris of this class are completely extinct.

From the beginning of the 17th century till the conquest of the Marathas in the middle of the 18th century the political life of Orissa remained in turmoil. This also affected the religious, social and cultural life of the people. During this period of 150 years the Muslim as well as Hindu subedars of the Mughal court raided the Puri temple successively and looted its property. The idols were often removed and concealed for fear of defilement. The temple services had to be suspended on such occasions. Due to successive Muslim invasions and the weakening of political authority a degree of moral degeneration must have overtaken the mahāris. It is from this period that the mahāris, who were originally intended for temples alone, came to be employed in royal courts as well. From now on, the mahāris ceased to be respected as dāsis of the Lord and came to be associated with concubinage.

Around the middle of the 18th century the powerful Marathas came to power. Their occupation of Orissa marked a revolutionary change in the religious and cultural life of the people. The continuous attacks on the Jagannath temple came to an end. As staunch Hindus the Marathas invigorated the religious movement. The temple services were again regulated. The Marathas also built a number of temples and religious institutions and patronized art and literature. During their rule of more than 50 years till the British takeover in 1803, a number of poets and

The esteemed status of Devdasis that a Hindu society ensured, waned only under the islamic and British period.

The esteemed status of the devadasis began to wane under the Islamic and British rule. Following their successful invasion of North India, Islamic rulers began to destroy Hindu temples throughout the region ..... With the

The Mohamedan invasion of Bharat was the first gateway to subjugation of Devdasis- the same women who were respected in Hindu society. The proof is given By an Islamic scholar Al-Beruni. He describes how Devdasis lost patronage of Hindu kings & protection of Brahman men and Mohamedan rulers used them for their benefits.

> The Muslim invasion (between the 12th and 16th centuries) was the first gateway to their slaughter as the Hindu Empire went to subjugation and the Devadasis lost their royal patronage. By losing virginity earlier, they had to resort to prostitution to earn their living. The testimony of Al-Beruni (Sachau, 1910, p. 157), a traveller during the Muslim invasion, states that kings maintained this institution for the benefit of their revenues, as here the Brahmana or priest was detained to allow into their temples women who sang, danced and played. The kings, however, made them a source of attraction to their subjects so that they might meet the expenditure of their armies out of the revenues derived from them.

After the onslaught of Mohamedan culture, it was British who exploited Devdasis. The end of Royal patronage and capture of temple treasury reduced these woman into prostitution. The women who were given rights second to a priest were forced to become entertainers.

> As we will shortly see, the esteemed status of the Devadasis began to wane under Islamic and British rule (Shingal, 2015). By 1818, the Devadasis themselves had been reduced to the level of prostitutes for sustaining their finances. Especially during British rule (1858–1947), there had been a sea change in the economic system of the society, which led the Devadasis to lose the privileges that they had traditionally enjoyed. British rule in India put an end to the local royalty and temple treasuries. Most of the temples at that time ran with royal funding from local kings. All these faced decline with the rise of British power and one of the groups to be financially and socially pursued and victimized were the Devadasis. Gone was the respect they enjoyed as members of a class next only to the priests. Devadasis remained entertainers but their mode of entertainment changed drastically, being performed by their bodies. They evolved into practising courtesans, skilled in the art of love-making. The system spread across the Belgaum, Gulbarga and Bellary districts in Karnataka and the Satara, Kolhapur, Solapur and Osmanabad districts of Maharashtra.

British Missionaries, who did not see free educated women in christian society couldn't believe women had so much rights in Hindu society and based on their victorian morality they started branding free women as Ⓦ hores. It was only Hindu culture that respected women.

> Dubois' thinking was clearly influenced by his occidental approach. Western-educated Indians thought no differently. The Indian concept of shringara or eroticism was considered something to be ashamed of when compared to high-minded Victorian idealism. The concept of a free woman entitled to choose her partners and with absolute right to property and access to education was anathema to this band of people. Such a woman by the very nature of her life was considered immoral and branded as a whore.

Thus Christian preachers made dubious claims about Devdasis. Hence colonial sources are definitely not a mirror of what Hindu society actually was. Hindu society can only be judged with contemporary sources

> It was a strange situation. On the one hand the community was the storehouse of arts. On the other it was the repository of all evil and every conceivable vice. Opinion was therefore sharply divided. On top of all this was the western mode of education and the relentless pressure from Christian preachers and proselytisers who condemned the entire system as vile. Having never experienced the existence of such a community in their own lands, these people had no hesitation in condemning all Devadasis as prostitutes and their art as sinful.

The Agama shastras have given Devadasis, the right to beat the hell out of pervert priests.

because in fact, a heinous sin happens. The ... may perform ... yattam in the prakāra of Mahāmāri. Dance should be performed in all utsavas. The tāli for the rudradāsi should be tied in her ninth year. Hereafter it is forbidden to tie the tāli. If the desire arises in the rudrakkaṉṉikai, she is advised to go to the kṣetrapālakāraṇi[], and in the morning of the next day favour the gurukkal outside, because the Brahmin custom gives the first rights to the ācārya. It is advisable to perform śāntikam (propitiatory rite to avert evil) with him; it is necessary to remove the tāli, untie it, and destroy it as it is done on the day when a husband has died. The rudradāsis may beat them. If they bear hatred towards them, it is necessary to sprinkle water."[]

Initiation and marriage ceremonies for the rājagaṇikā, grāmadāsi and rudradāsi:[] "The rājagaṇikā is within the dharma of the ādiśaiva. A samayadīkṣa[] is performed in the temple of Durgā. The vṛttakāramāṇa baṭu[] is strung, Saccittambara[] is invoked and worshipped, naivedya, etc. is performed, then the vṛttakāramāṇa baṭu is tied around her neck. If there is no temple of Durgā or Lakṣmī, then the baṭu should be tied in the shrine of Hanumān, or in her own house, or in the sannidhi of Ambikā situated in the temple of Śiva in that town. The baṭu of the grāmadāsi should be tied in the temple of Mahāvitavān.[] The rudradāsi should have her baṭu tied in the temple of Mahākāli. These persons should undergo the ceremony of tying the baṭu at the age of nine years. It is not allowed to tie the baṭu before or after that age."[]

No one denies that there wasn't any exploitation. But accusing शास्त्र for such horrors is baseless. Nowhere in the आगमशास्त्र is this mentioned that devadasis are to be employed as prostitutes of Brahmins. A Brahmin who abides by dharma has to engage in rites the whole day. If he will engage in sex every now and then, he'll die constantly purifying himself before these rituals. It doesn't make any sense saying that shastras are ordaining a suicide sort of enjoyment to brahmins. The reason why brahmins are the most revered ones is because of the harsh lifestyle they have to live. The shastras don't allow them rest for a single minute from the time they wake in the morning and perform Vaisvadeva at night.
Every devadasi has to take oaths while undergoing the diksha process. None of the oaths involve becoming a prostitute for brahmins or town. One can also refer to the royal inscription at Jagannath temple which states that devadasis can't be touched.

Listing some famous Devdasis who are world famous for their talent in Art. And definitely arent prostitutes by any means. This is the famous 7th generation Devdasi, Balasaraswati, a Bharatnatyam dancer famous all over the world & has been awarded with Padma Bibhushan which is the 3rd highest civilian award. Indian government respected her by making a postal stamp with her picture as shown below. From which angle she looks like a prostitute to you . Claiming her prostitute is absolutely baseless

Another famous Devdasi Veenai Dhanammal, is considered the torch bearer of Carnatic Music which goes by her name. Hindu society respect women to this level that they could progress to be this famous and have postal stamps commemorating them. Does she look like a prostitute to anyone sensitive ? People who never respected women wont understand how much respect these women enjoy in a free Hindu society.

Devdasi M.S Subbulakshmi, the nightingale of Carnatic music was awarded Bharat Ratna, the highest civilian award. She lived until 2004 which isnt much long ago. Indian Govt commemorated her with postal stamp.

By offering a dear, young, beautiful woman (i.e. a maiden) along with ornaments and bed, to (one of) the sages, a man would obtain unending fruit. The fruit of a young virgin and a girl eight years old is the same. One should be given to a suitor, the other one to a brahmana. A wise man, without troubling himself, should offer a purchased daughter to god. Till the end of the Kalpa he would get (i.e. live in) heaven, and would be a king or a very rich man on the earth; and in every birth he would get a very beautiful, fine wife."

Rc Hazra in his book Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs page no 120 said that the chapters after chapter 43 in Shristi khanda (including chapter 52) are later interpolations into Padma Purana and was composed likely after the Satanic Islamic Muhammadans established their rule in India . So this chapter is a later interpolation and not part of Padma Purana originally

(5) SṚṢṬI-KHAṆḌA.* This Khaṇḍa, which is assigned the fifth place in our edition, is really the first of the set. This position of the Khaṇḍa is betrayed by the mode of its beginning as well as by the sequence and contents of the five Parvans given in chap. 1.

This Khaṇḍa, as we have it now, can be rightly divided into two parts:

(1) chaps. 1-43 (verses 1-97)

and (2) chaps. 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end.

It will be seen hereinafter that the chapters of the second part were added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. Hence the chapters of the first part, which are of earlier date, are examined first.

* The Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa in Bengal Mss. consists only of 46 (or according to Aufrecht, 45) chapters. The corresponding chapters in a Bengal Ms. (No. 1681, D. U. Mss Lib.) of this Khaṇḍa and the ASS ed. are given below:

upon them, it is difficult to say anything about the lower limit. Chapters 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end, which, according to our division, form the second part of the work, are not found in the Bengal Mss. So their comparatively late date can be well understood. These chapters were written and added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. These foreigners have been called kings[63] and scornfully described more than once under the names 'Turuṣka', 'Mleccha' and 'Yavana'[64]. The descriptions are undoubtedly aimed at the Muhammadans who 'polluted' the society and the land of the Hindus by their contact and slaughter of cows. Hence the date of composition of this part of the Sṛṣṭi-kh. can by no means be placed earlier than 1000 A.D. Such a late date is supported by the contents also, which are replete with Tantric elements. The Āgamas have many times been mentioned as authorities along with the Vedas and the Purāṇas; the Tulasī plant has been glorified in highly extravagant language; and so on. As Hemādri quotes

* In connection with the quotations the following stories of the Padma-p. have been mentioned in the Adbhutasāgara:

Even Geeta Press Gorakhpur padma Purana has only 49 Chapters and no 52nd chapter exists

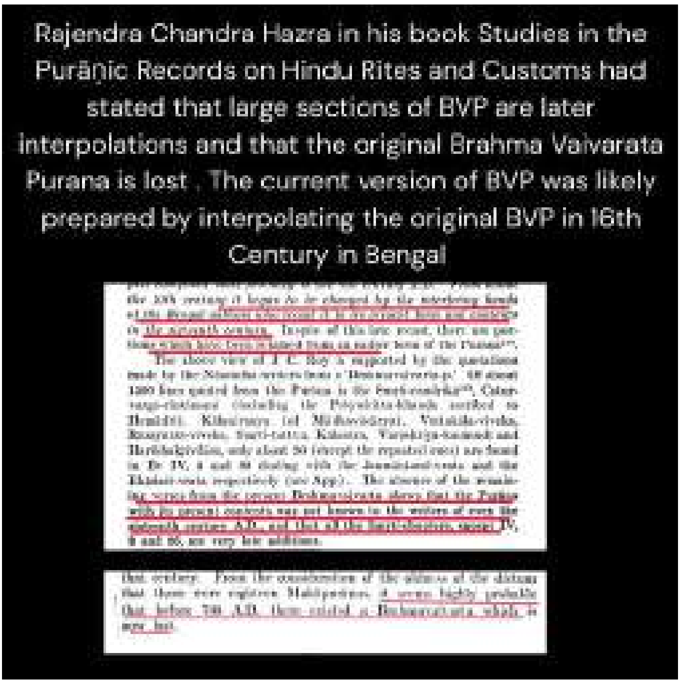
Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. Refutation–

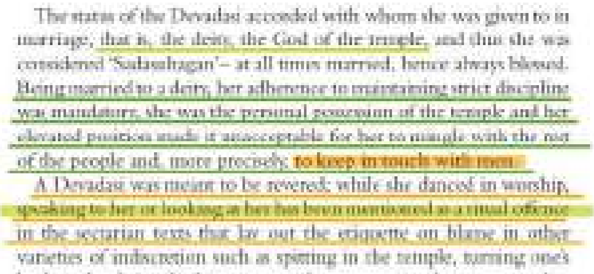
In Padma Purana, Pātāla Khaṇḍa, Chapter 113, verses 40–46 (Hindi translation by Choukhamba Publications), the terms Vāsinī, Ājivikī, and the women who play musical instruments and perform classical devotional dances are mentioned. These women are none other than Devadasis—the dedicated servants of temple deities—who served the temple through their music, dance, and various other religious services. They were not sex slaves or prostitutes, but respected custodians of sacred art and ritual. Historical records also affirm their highly regarded status in society, where they were honored for their cultural, spiritual, and artistic contributions.

During Hindu period maintaining discipline was mandatory for them. Far from being forced into prostitution, it was considered a strict offence for any man to look at her lecherously coz she was considered the wife of God himself.



The status of the Devadasi accorded with whom she was given to in marriage, that is, the deity, the God of the temple, and thus she was considered 'Sadasuhagan'– at all times married, hence always blessed. Being married to a deity, her adherence to maintaining strict discipline was mandatory, she was the personal possession of the temple and her elevated position made it unacceptable for her to mingle with the rest of the people and, more precisely, to keep in touch with men.

A Devadasi was meant to be revered; while she danced in worship, speaking to her or looking at her has been mentioned as a ritual offence in the sectarian texts that lay out the etiquette on blame in other varieties of indiscretion such as spitting in the temple, turning one's

King Dilīpa said — "I ask about that aerial chariot (vimāna), resplendent with all kinds of wealth, which was present at that sacred place, full of all kinds of pleasures." ॥39॥

Sage Vasiṣṭha said — "O King! You have not asked about a merit (puṇya) even more blissful than that, by which living beings will rejoice. I will tell you of that very merit." ॥40॥

Plaster the temple of Śiva with lime, making it as white as nectar, and adorn it with beauty and elegance, with all decorations. Let there be women skilled in singing many kinds of songs, and adept in performing various dances — such women, along with four, eight, or six women who play the mṛdaṅga drum sound. ॥41–42॥

Two of the women should be Vāsinī (fragrant or perfumed attendants), and two women should be Ājivikī (professional female performers). Two women should be players of the naḍā drum, and four women should be dancers. One should be a pleasing singer. ॥43॥

One or two women should possess fine knowledge of songs, and both should be melodious in voice. Two women should play the koṇa (a type of percussion or cymbal). There should be six or eight women who remain silent. ॥44॥

All of them should be endowed with beauty and charm. The breasts of all should be well-raised. They should be skilled in the art of love (Rati-śāstra) so that they do not feel shy. ॥45॥

Their garments and attire should be delicate and fine. Their eyes should be as restless as lightning. O King! A person who, with such women, arranges for dancing in a Śiva temple for one day, travels in a celestial chariot (vimāna) for a year. Hundreds of women keep gazing at his face, and many young men offer worship to him. ॥46–47॥

He becomes filled with means of joy and is free from anger and jealousy. His limbs are anointed with five kinds of fragrances (pañca-gandha). His face becomes as charming as the moon. ॥48॥

He is radiant like the sun, and all his women have beautiful faces. He wears a garland of fresh and fully bloomed pārijāta flowers. ॥49॥

His women wear garlands of fully bloomed red arohī flowers. They also adorn their hair and bosom with garlands. Smiles always play upon their lips. ॥50॥

It is by permission (of the owner) only that a female slave, cattle, or an estate may be enjoyed (by a stranger). He who enjoys that which had not been given up to him (by the owner), must pay for the (illegitimate) enjoyment of what he had been enjoying."

Refutation-

Narada Smriti 8.9 – Similarly, a merchant who seals a deal with one buyer and then sells the goods to another buyer should not only be charged double the price of the goods but the king should also punish him . Yes, if the buyer does not pick up the purchased goods, then the seller does not have any fault if he sells his goods to another merchant; because after all the merchant has to sell his goods, not keep them at home

3. The younger brother should donate his wife to his elder brother

📖Mahabharata 12.165.67-70
If a younger brother weds before his elder brother, then the younger brother, the elder brother and the woman that is married, all three, in consequence of such wedding, become fallen. All of them should observe the vows prescribed for a person who has neglected his sacrificial fire, or practise the vow of Candrayana for a month, or some other painful vow, for cleansing themselves of their sin. The younger brother, wedding, should give his wife unto his unmarried elder brother. Afterwards, having obtained the permission of the elder brother, the younger brother may take back his wife."

Refutation-

Here this low-intelligence Halala Putra Muslim wanted to show that according to Mahabharat and Vasistha Dharmasutra , if the younger brother marries before the elder brother, then the younger brother has to give his wife to the elder brother.

Whereas in reality what is being said here is that if the younger brother first marries the elder brother unrighteously, then he should undergo purification and till the purification is complete, he should not have sexual intercourse with his wife and his mind should not be disturbed during the purification. For that, he has to give his wife to his elder brother (who is also considered like a father) in the form of a daughter-in-law. and after that the elder brother takes care of wife of his younger brother who is like a daughter to him and then he gets back his wife after purification penance. There is nothing sexual about this . Same explanation should be held for Vasistha Dharma Shastra 20.8-10

ज्येष्ठ भाईका विवाह होनेसे पहले ही यदि छोटा भाई अधर्मपूर्वक विवाह कर ले तो ज्येष्ठको 'परिवित्ति' कहते हैं; छोटे भाईको 'परिवेत्ता' हैं और उसकी पत्नीको जिसका परिवेदन (ग्रहण) किया जाता है, परिवेदनीया कहते हैं-ये सब-के-सब पतित माने गये हैं ।। ६८ ।। इन तीनोंको पृथक् पृथक अपनी शुद्धिके लिये उसी व्रतका आचरण करना चाहिये जो यज्ञहीन ब्राह्मणके लिये बताया गया है। अथवा एक मासतक चान्द्रायण या कृच्छ्रचान्द्रायण व्रत करे ।। ६९ ।। परिवेत्ता पुरुष उस नववधूको पतोहूके रूपमें ज्येष्ठ भाईको सौंप दे और ज्येष्ठ भाईकी आज्ञा मिलनेपर छोटा भाई उसे पत्नीरूपमें ग्रहण करे। ऐसा करनेपर वे तीनों धर्मके अनुसार पापसे छुटकारा पाते हैं ।। ७० ।।

If, before the marriage of the elder brother, the younger brother unlawfully marries, then the elder is called parivitti, the younger brother is called parivetta, and the woman whom he takes (in marriage) is called parivedanīyā — all three are considered fallen. (68)
Each of these three should separately perform the same vow prescribed for a Brahmana who has not performed a sacrifice, in order to purify themselves. Alternatively, they may observe the Chāndrāyaṇa or Kṛcchra-Chāndrāyaṇa vow for one month. (69)
The parivetta (younger brother) should hand over the new bride to the elder brother as his daughter-in-law, and after receiving the elder brother's permission, the younger may accept her as his wife. By doing so, all three become free from sin in accordance with dharma. (70)

📖Valmiki Ramayana 2.91.43-55
At that moment itself, twenty thousand women adorned with beautiful ornaments, sent by Brahma, arrived. Twenty thousand more women, who were radiant and adorned with gold, gems, pearls and corals came from the region of Kubera. A particular company of Apsaras, embraced by whom, a man looked as though seized with insanity, came from Nandana grove. Those most excellent kings among celestial musicians – Narada, Tumbura and Gopa whose radiance is like that of the sun, began to sing in front of Bharata. hen, on the command of Bharadwaja, Alambusa, MishraKesi and Vamana started dancing in the presence of Bharata.By the command of Bharadwaja, wreaths of flowers which were beloved of the gods or those which grow in the woods of chaitra ratha were seen at Prayaga. By the command of Bharadwaja, Bel trees assumed the form of drummers, Vibhitaka trees assumed the form of cymbalists and Peepul trees assumed the form of dancers. Then, dcodars palmyras and Tilaka trees along with Tamala trees transformed into hunch backs and dwarfs and joyfully arrived there.Shimshapas (Ashoka trees), Amalakis (Emblic myrobalan), Jambus (rose-apple trees), Malati, Mallika Jati and other creepers in the forest had been changed into dancing girls in the hermitage of Bharadwaja and they spoke as follows: O, wine-bibbers! Drink the wine, however much you desire! O troops stricken with hunger! Let milk thickened iwth rice and the meats which are very much fresh, be eaten (as you will). Seven or eight young women bathed every single man on the beautiful river-banks, after massaging their body with oil. Women with charming eyes came running and shampooed their limbs. Lovely women likewise wiped off the moisture on their body with towels and gave them beverages to drink, mutually sharing them among each other.

According to R.C. Hazra (Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs), chapters 19–28 of the Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa of the Padma Purāṇa — including chapter 23 — represent a comparatively late stratum of the text. These portions, in his assessment, were not part of the original Brahma-worshipping redaction but were inserted subsequently by compilers belonging to other sectarian traditions. Their thematic and stylistic character, as well as their divergence from the Brahma-centric orientation of the earlier core chapters, support the conclusion that they are later accretions rather than authentic components of the earliest Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa.

A careful study of the chapters of the first part shows that they should be divided again into several groups; viz.,

The chapters in group 2 are different from those in group 1 in general character, some being Vaisnava, some Rämaite and some Saiva. A good number of these chapters have been borrowed from the Matsya-p., but they do not show any traces of the attempt of the Brahma-worshippers to adapt them to their own purpose. Hence it can be little doubted that the chapters of the second group were added to the Srşṭi-kh. by some people other than the Brahmā-worshippers. These chapters, being rooted in those of group 1 and frequently referring to the events and stories in the latter, are certainly later in date. Their comparatively late date is further established by the story of king Sveta (in Srşṭi-kh. 33, 85 ff.) which is different from that in chap. 31 (verses 104 ff.) of the first group.

Kataka Commentary on Valmiki Ramayana Bala Kanda Sarga 36 sloka 12 too says that Tejas of Shiva is the Energy of Shiva and Uma which is held within the Aditya Mandala (Constellation of the Sun)which if released unnecessarily could destroy the universe . Whereas mortal human semen is made and stored in blood muscles and veins . This also proves that Maheshwar Shiva Tejas is his Divine Energy and not mortal human semen

Then what should be done? The gods advise Siva to perform the Brahma tapas along with Uma. What is the use of the Brahma tapas and why should Siva perform it? Because he might be able to secure his seed. In the beginning of conception we have an embryo. The semen remains over all parts of the body and soul. “Hold your mercurial semen within the sahaja eight-fold yoga” said the gods. But then the question arises about the effect of holding the semen through sahaja yoga in the body? The answer is it will save the world. It is said that the semen, of the Brahman is held within the Aditya mandala (in the constellation of the Sun) and it saves the worlds. If it is released, like Siva’s semen the worlds will be destroyed.Hence ‘Na alokam kartumarhasi’. So Siva accepted their plea. All the gods are his limbs and if the limbs are destroyed and he will become a branchless trunk (Sthanu). So, he said “All right! I shall hold my seed and so shall Uma. The gods and earth can be happy now. Uma will hold her seed in the fire”. It is said in the Vedas that the menstrual flow in the women is a form of Agni. Siva will hold his seed in water. If their seed falls on the earth, it will burn the entire world and even the gods. “Therefore, to protect them, we shall hold our seed.” But stirred by long love the semen will drop from its place .It is in the form of moisture and infallible and the best one capable of giving birth to a son who will be able to fulfil gods’ requirement. Who will be able to hold it? Saying this Siva released his seed with which the entire earth along with all its mountains and forests became filled.

Tilaka Commentary on Valmiki Ramayana Sarga 36 too states that Maheshwar Shiva Tejas is his and Uma Devi’s Energy only which Agni Deva received and not any mortal human semen

If lord Siva bears his energy in his own self, of what use is it to the world? The scriptures say ‘what is in man in the form of semen is the form of energy in the Sun. That form of energy is light which is the disc of the Sun itself. In that circle the whole world is being protected, if the reverse happens, there will be a calamity (Viparyaye Viparyaya).’ If the sun perishes the whole world will collapse.
Siva says, ‘I along with Uma, will bear the fire of my energy in my own self’. So he bears the semen. It will turn into fire (blood) in women. Since this world cannot withstand the extraordinary energy, if released, there would be devastation. This is the sense.
The gods said, ‘This earth will bear it because it has unlimited power of forbearance’. This is the implied sense. The gods engaged Agni to receive the energy released on the earth as he is the lord and well-wisher of the earth. The wind which accompanied him helped him move. That energy acquired the form of the white mountain and having entered the earth by means of Agni, was moving (as he carried it). Then that energy got the form of a thicket of needles like the fire of the Sun at the place of its entry as a result of its greatness. Since Agni carried the energy for some time, it should be noted, Karttikeya originated from Agni. There was joy among the gods that Siva's energy was borne for the benefit of the world and that the energy that fell transformed into Kartikeya for the sake of the gods. But there was anger in Uma, for Siva did not accept Uma engaged in his worship. She cursed the Earth, saying 'Be not in one form. May you give fruits for a variety of seeds in the same field. Be wife to many husbands (Lords of the earth or kings).

The implication is, 'If only she (earth) had not conceded to bear the energy of Siva, Uma would have received it. She would have had that son'.

📚Padma Purana 5.112.23a-33a📚

On the death of the husband before (her death) she should not enter fire (with the thought:) 'In my widowhood, all this wealth will be useful for my religious merit.' Resolving like this with (i.e. in) her mind, when widowhood has come, she, when she gets an itching of the vulva (i.e. has a desire for sex) by day or at night, she said (i.e. would say), after having gone to a lonely place and after having uncovered (i.e. taken off) her garment, to her vulva these words, through grief, and with her hand on her generative organ: "O vulva, what have you done? What sin have you committed? Or is it the sin of the penis due to having got into you? Or is it the sin of the doer due to avoiding service like me?" Even then when the itch is produced, she would put her finger (into her vulva); and due to the feeling of the itch she would do strange movements after that. Having rubbed it with her hands, having strack it and having expanded it, she, being extremely pained, repeatedly shook her feet. She, after having embraced the (piece of) wood of the cot, and pressed her breasts (against it) as she liked, became sad due to a peculiar disposition of her mind."

Here is Padma Purana Patala Khanda Chapter 112 hindi translation by Choukhamba Publications

This passage does not promote masturbation or sexual indulgence in any form. Instead, it is a stern moral narrative that condemns the behavior of a lustful, adulterous woman who, driven by unrestrained desires and attachment to wealth, abandons dharma (righteous conduct).

The vivid descriptions within the passage are not prescriptions or endorsements — rather, they are deliberate literary devices used to highlight the consequences of uncontrolled lust, betrayal, and moral downfall. These depictions aim to:

- Show how unchecked desire can lead to the breakdown of trust in marriage.
- Expose how wealth and independence, when not guided by restraint or ethics, may lead to deviant behavior.
- Critique the destructive cycle of infidelity, deceit, and loss of honor in society.
- Emphasize that such women ultimately fall into self-degradation, shame, and social ruin.

Specifically:

- Acts like touching or rubbing the yoni, or using fingers, are portrayed with disgust and pity, not as expressions of liberation or sexuality.
- These are shown as symptoms of despair and internal torment, not as healthy or acceptable behaviors.
- The passage ultimately calls out such women as dhṛṣṭāḥ (shameless) and vyabhicāriṇī (adulteresses) who lose their place in both domestic life and dharmic society.

The story culminates with Shoṇa rejecting the woman, symbolizing society's disapproval, and the demon Mārīcha's deception showing how such women become vulnerable to demonic (adharmic) influences.

है और इस समय उसका भोग कर रहे हैं ॥१८॥ उसके कारण वह पति की प्रतीक्षा नहीं करती है, अथवा किसे में भी (पति का) प्रेम नहीं होता है। चतुर नारियों का कोई भी स्नेहिल नहीं होती है, वह अपने पुरुष के अतिरिक्त दूसरे पुरुष के साथ चलने लगती हैं ।।१९। जिन वाक्यों को आपने मुझसे कहा है उस वाक्य को कोई भी अपनी स्त्री को कहता है। मैं वैसी ही बातें कह रही हूँ, मैं कोई इधर-उधर की बात (फालतूबात) नहीं कह रही हूँ ॥२०॥ इस तरह से नारी धृष्ठ (ढीठ) हो जाती है अथवा दूसरे प्रकार से वह धृष्ट हो जाती है। वह कुछ धन लेकर स्वतन्त्र बन जाती है ॥२१॥ वह जिसके साथ व्यवहार करती है वह उसको मारकर उसके द्रव्य को लेकर उसको कहीं फेंक देता है। यदि पहले पति मर जाता है तो अग्नि में प्रवेश नहीं करती है ।।२२।। वह सोचती है कि विधवा हो जाने पर सारा मेरा धन धर्मार्थ हो जायेगा। विधवा हो जाने पर इस तरह से मन में निश्चित करके वह दिन अथवा रात में योनि रूपी कुण्ड को प्राप्त करके वह दिन अथवा रात्रि में एकान्त में जाकर अपने वस्त्र तथा योनि को खोलकर ।।२३-२४।। योनि पर हाथ रखकर दुःखी होकर कहती है कि अरे योनि तुमने कैसा कर्म किया है ? तुमने भयङ्कर पाप किया है ॥२५॥ क्योंकि तुमने दूसरे शिश्न को अपने भीतर प्रवेश कराया है। इस पाप कार्य को करने वाले ने मेरी सेवा भी नहीं की ॥२६॥ इतना होने पर भी यदि उसकी योनि में खुजली पैदा होती है तो वह अपनी अङ्गुलि को अपनी योनि में डाल देती है और वह खुजली की बुद्धि से विचित्र प्रकार के चेष्टायें करती हैं ।॥ २७॥ वह योनि को दोनों हाथों से फैलाकार उसको रगड़ती है। अत्यन्त दुःखी होकर वह अपने मुख को खोलकर बार-बार अपने दोनों पैरों को पटकती है ॥२८॥ वह काठ अथवा खाट को पकड़ कर अपनी इच्छा भर स्तनों को दबाती है। उसके पश्चात् चित्त में विकार आ जाने पर वह व्यभिचारिणी हो जाती है ॥ २९॥ अथवा दिन में किसी पुरुष के साथ बातें करती है, घर में रात्रि में या संध्या के समय, या विशिखाओं (गलियों) में अपना दूसरा वेष बदलकर जिस किसी व्यक्ति के द्वारा उपभोग की जाती है। अथवा वाच्य (निन्दा) के प्रभाव से शङ्कित होकर वह योग्य व्यक्ति को अपने घर लाती है ॥३०-३१॥ वह अज्ञात घर में जाकर निश्चित रूप से उसके साथ रमण करती है। नारी के सामने धन प्राप्त होने पर ये ही सारी बातें होती हैं ।॥३२॥ अतएव मेरे साथ आपको विचार करने की कोई आवश्यकता नहीं है। शोण ने कहा- निस्सन्देह तुम्हारी बातें सत्य हैं। तुम यहाँ से दूर चली जाओ ।॥३३॥ अब मैं यहाँ ठहर कर बाद में मलमूत्र का त्याग करने के लिए जाऊँगा। उसके चले जाने पर शोण ने अपने कपड़े के टुकड़े कर दिए ॥३४॥ वह एक-एक टुकड़े मे बहुत अधिक धन ले लिया। उसने बालु में घुटने-घुटने पर कई स्थानों पर गढा बनाया ॥३५॥ उसमें धन को गाड़ करके उसको रखकर उसके ऊपर विष्ठा कर दिया । उसके बाद जिस घड़े में धन था उसको कहीं फेंक दिया ॥३६॥ इन समस्त कार्यों को अज्ञात के समान करके वह स्नान करने के लिए चला गया। उसकी पत्नी तब तक स्नान करके तथा पार्वतीजी की पूजा करके आयी ॥३७॥ उसको पति ने कहा कि तुम जाओ और वह अपने घर चली गयी। उसको अकेली समझकर मारीच नामक राक्षस ॥३८॥ उसके पति का रूप बनाकर कला से कहा। मारीच ने कहा-सप्त गोदावरी नदी के तट पर पापों को विनष्ट करने वाला पवित्र द्राक्षाराम है। वहाँ पर भीम नामक शङ्करजी का लिङ्ग स्वयं स्थित है। वह मनुष्यों को भोग तथा मोक्ष प्रदान करने वाले हैं तथा स्मरण करने मात्र से पापों का विनाश करने वाले हैं ॥३९-४०।। हम दोनों वहाँ शीघ्र चलें, हे सुन्दरि ! तुम आगे निकलो। कला ने कहा- अभी तुम अभिषेक करने वाले थे और अभिषेक भी नहीं किए ॥४१॥ ऐसा अपने पहले कभी नहीं कहा था आज आप ऐसा क्यों कह रहे हैं? उत्तम पुरुषों का कहना है कि प्रकृत का परित्याग करने से उत्पात होता है ॥४२॥ मारीच ने कहा- नारीयों का यही धर्म है कि वे कभी भी पति के मन के प्रतिकूल कार्य न करें। प्रतिकूल हो अथवा अनुकूल हो मुझको शीघ्र बतलाओ ।॥४३॥ उसके बाद

The one who is always cautious may also experience great misfortune. It is seen that when a person has wealth, the desire to enjoy pleasures increases. (Verse 13)
After obtaining one pleasure, the desire for another arises. This leads to the destruction of all rituals and duties. If a woman considers a man to be destined for her due to fate, she becomes independent and begins to openly declare the wealth acquired through anger. (Verses 14–15)
Due to her trust, the man believes in her and either goes away or loses interest in her. Because of the trust placed in them, women begin to engage in many improper activities. (Verse 16)

She falls in love with any young man she sees. Because of love, they unite, and after uniting, they engage in sexual intercourse. (Verse 17)
With continued intercourse, the trust begins to break down. You too have had such enjoyment before, and even now you are enjoying it. (Verse 18)
As a result, the woman no longer waits for her husband nor feels love for anyone. Clever women are never affectionate—they start associating with other men besides their own. (Verse 19)
The words you said to me are the same that any man would say to his wife. I am only speaking such things—I am not saying anything irrelevant or senseless. (Verse 20)
Thus, a woman becomes bold (or shameless), or she becomes bold in another way. She takes some money and becomes independent. (Verse 21)
She interacts with someone who then kills her, takes her wealth, and throws her somewhere. If her first husband dies, she does not enter the fire (with his corpse). (Verse 22)
She thinks—"If I become a widow, all my wealth will go to charity." So thinking this, whether day or night, she secretly goes to a place resembling a yoni (vaginal-shaped pit), disrobes, and exposes her private parts. (Verses 23–24)
She places her hand over her yoni and says in anguish, "O yoni! What deed have you done? You have committed a terrible sin!" (Verse 25)
"For you have allowed another man's organ to enter you. The one who did this sinful act didn't even care for me." (Verse 26)
Even after all this, if itching arises in her private part, she inserts her finger into it and performs strange acts to relieve it. (Verse 27)
She spreads her private part with both hands and rubs it. Overwhelmed with pain, she opens her mouth and repeatedly strikes her legs. (Verse 28)
She holds onto a cot or a piece of wood and squeezes her breasts to her desire. After her mind becomes agitated, she turns to adultery. (Verse 29)
Or, during the day she talks to some man; at night or in the evening, or in secret alleys, she changes her appearance and lets herself be enjoyed by some man. Or, fearing slander, she brings a suitable man into her home. (Verses 30–31)
She goes to an unknown house and certainly copulates with him. When women have access to wealth, these things happen. (Verse 32)
Therefore, there is no need for you to think further about me. Shoṇa said—"Indeed, what you've said is true. Now go far away from here." (Verse 33)
"Now I will remain here and later go to relieve myself." After she left, Shoṇa tore pieces of his cloth. (Verse 34)
In each piece, he took a lot of money and dug several knee-deep pits in the sand. (Verse 35)
He buried the money in those pits, covered them with excrement, and then threw away the pot that held the money. (Verse 36)
Doing all of this as if in secrecy, he went to bathe.

Meanwhile, his wife had bathed and completed her worship of Goddess Pārvatī. (Verse 37)
Her husband told her to go home, and she returned home. Thinking she was alone, the demon Mārīcha, (Verse 38) disguised in her husband's form, said to Kalā, "On the banks of the sacred Seven Godāvarī Rivers lies the holy Drākṣārāma, destroyer of sins. There stands the self-manifested Liṅga of Lord Shiva named Bhīma, who grants both pleasure and liberation to humans and destroys sins merely by remembrance." (Verses 39–40)
"Let us quickly go there together. O beautiful one, you lead the way."
Kalā replied—"You were just about to perform the sacred bath, but you haven't done it yet." (Verse 41)
"You have never spoken like this before. Why are you saying this now? It is said by noble people that abandoning one's natural behavior causes upheaval." (Verse 42)
Mārīcha said—"It is the dharma of women that they never go against the wishes of their husbands. Whether it is agreeable or not, tell me quickly." (Verse 43)

O sage, in the course of the sexual activity she suspected him to be another man. Hence she received the semen through the mouth into the nostril. Thence were born the twin gods Asvins, the foremost among physicians.""

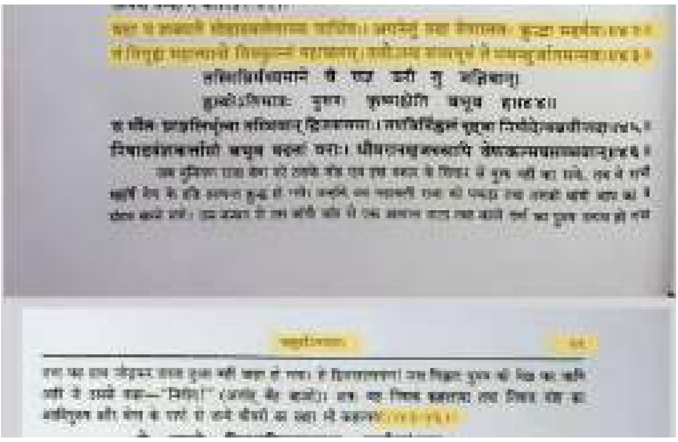
जब मुनिगण राजा वेण को उसके मोह एवं इस प्रकार के विचार से मुक्त नहीं कर सके, तब वे सभी महर्षि वेण के प्रति अत्यन्त क्रुद्ध हो गये। उन्होंने उस महाबली राजा को पकड़ा तथा उसकी बांयी जांघ का वे मंथन करने लगे। उस मन्थन से उस बांयी जांघ से एक अत्यन्त नाटा तथा काले वर्ण का पुरुष उत्पन्न हो गया तथा वह हाथ जोड़कर डरता हुआ वहीं खड़ा हो गया। हे द्विजसत्तमगण! उस विह्वल पुरुष को देख कर ऋषि अत्रि ने उससे कहा- "निषीद!" (अर्थात् बैठ जाओ)। अतः वह निषाद कहलाया तथा निषाद वंश का आदिपुरुष और वेण के पापों से जन्मे धीवरों का स्रष्टा भी कहलाया।।४२-४६।।

When the assembly of sages could not free King Veṇa from his attachment and such thoughts, all the great sages became extremely angry with him. They seized the mighty king and began churning his left thigh. From that churning of his left thigh, a very short man of dark complexion emerged, who stood there folding his hands in fear. O best of the twice-born! Seeing this distressed man, Sage Atri said to him: "Nishīd!" (meaning, "Sit down!"). Hence, he was called Nishad, and he became the progenitor of the Nishad lineage as well as the creator of the fishermen, born from the sins of Veṇa.



Coming on to Shiva Purana, UmaSamhita 5.35.32-34 –

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

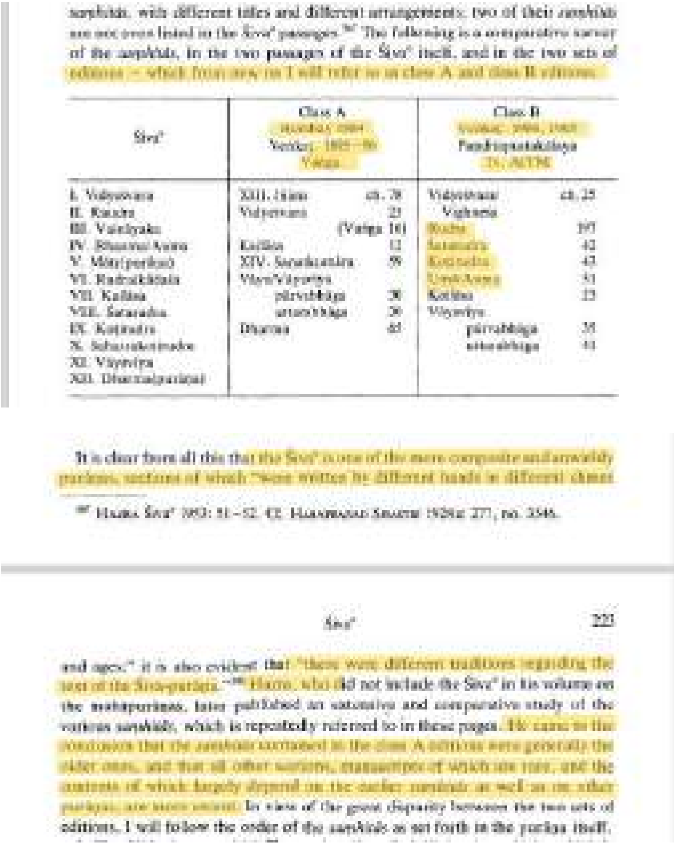
The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.



saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śivaᵖ passages.[96] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śivaᵖ itself, and in the two sets of editions – which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śivaᵖ	Class A [illegible] Venkat. [illegible] [illegible]		Class B [illegible] Paṇḍitapustakālaya [illegible]
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. [illegible]	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara	ch. 25
II. Rudra	Vidyeśvara	25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka	([illegible]	16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhaumī/Umā	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyu/Vāyavīya		Umā/Ambā	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	30	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya
IX. Koṭirudra	Dharma	65	pūrvabhāga	35
X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śivaᵖ is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages." It is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[98] Hazra, who did not include the Śivaᵖ in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other versions, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

[96] Hazra Śivaᵖ 1953: 51–52. Cf. Haraprasad Shastri 1928a: 27[illegible], no. 2346.

"When a man does not find any woman to his taste, how does he satisfy himself? With men, or with the vaginas of other species, mares, she-goats, bitches, sheep, any animal of female gender, as he would, Otherwise, he manages by simply "seizing the lion" (simhakranta). meaning masturbation. In this connection, it is said: In an upright position, seizing the lion means grasping one's sex with one's hand and thus scattering one's orgasm. Since spilling one's seed anywhere is a serious offense, a purification rite should then be performed

The bee [bhramaraka]. Once the instrument is in place, moving it in a circular fashion is known as the bee, and requires practice." "The phallus is driven into the vagina. Lifting her body with the hands, her legs folded, make her turn on the instrument as on the axis of a potter's wheel. This requires practice."

Refutation-

The Kamasutra is not a dharmic text. Its primary focus is on sexual activity, disregarding the principles of Dharma. According to the Shastras, sexual intercourse is prescribed not for mere pleasure or recreation, but solely for the purpose of procreation. In contrast, texts like the Kamasutra reduce sexual activity to acts of lust and indulgence, promoting pleasure as an end in itself rather than fulfilling dharmic duties.

Srimad Bhagvatam 11.5.13

The smelling of wine (in the Sautrāmani sacrifice) is laid down as its intake (and no drinking of liquor is permitted); a beast is to be (symbolically) offered to the deities (by touching it) in sacrifices, but no killing for meat-eating is allowed; simi-larly, sexual intercourse (with one's wife) is to be indulged in for procreation but not for sexual enjoyment. But people do not understand this pure course of their own dharma.

If you happen to drop your semen on the ground, you should pick it up with your fingers and rub it on your eyebrows and chest,

📚Brihadaranyaka Upanishad 6.4.9-10📚
If a man desires his wife with the thought: "May she enjoy love with me." Then, after inserting the member in her. joining mouth to mouth and stroking her organ, he should utter the following mantra "O semen, you have been produced from my every limb...Bring this women under my control, like a deer pierced by a poisoned arrow." Now, the wife whome he desires with the thought: "May she not conceive" after inserting the member in her and joining mouth to mouth, she should inhale and exhale, repeating the following mantra: "with power, with semen, I reclaim the semen from you." Thus she comes to be without semen.

Brihadaranyaka Upanishad 6.4.20-22 Then he embraces her, repeating the following mantra: I am the vital breath and you are speech. You are speech and I am the vital breath. I am Saman and you are Rig; I am heaven and you are earth. Come, let us strive together so that we may have a male child." Then he spreads apart her thighs, repeating the following mantra: "Spread yourselves apart, Heaven and Earth." Inserting the member in her and joining mouth to mouth, he strokes her three times from head to foot, repeating the following mantra:" Let Vishnu make the womb capable of bearing a son! Let Tvashtra shape the various limbs of the child! Let Prajapati pour in the semen! Let Dhatra support the embryo! O Sinivali, make her conceive; O goddess whose glory is widespread, make her conceive! May the two Atvins, garlanded with lotuses, support the embryo! "Let the two Atvins chum the womb with the two golden arani sticks! I am placing a seed in your womb to be delivered in the tenth month. As the earth has fire in its womb, as heaven is pregnant with the sun, as the quarters are impregnated by air, so I am impregnating you by placing this seed in your womb." After the reciting of the mantra, he utters his own name and that of his wife and places the seed."

Refutation-

Addressing the allegations regarding Bṛhadāraṇyaka Upaniṣad 6.4.9–10 and 6.4.20–22 — the context in these passages is clearly about the Garbhādhāna Saṃskāra (conception rite) and the process of reproduction aimed at obtaining progeny. As I have already established earlier in this article, Sanātana Dharma permits sexual intercourse solely for the purpose of begetting children in accordance with dharmic injunctions, and never as an act driven by lustful desires or mere sensual gratification.

Brihadaranyaka Upanishad 6th Adhaya 4th Brahmana Geeta Press Gorakhpur

जिस प्रकार जन्म लेनेवाला, जिस विधिसे उत्पन्न किया हुआ अथवा जिन गुणोंसे विशिष्टताको प्राप्त हुआ पुत्र अपने तथा पिताके लिये लोक-परलोकमें हितकारी होता है; वैसे पुत्रकी उत्पत्ति कैसे हो? यह बतानेके लिये अथवा ऐसे पुत्रकी प्राप्तिके उपायका सम्पादन करनेके लिये यह चतुर्थ ब्राह्मण प्रारम्भकिया जाता है। जिस प्राणोपासक पुरुषने श्रीमन्थ-कर्मका सम्पादन कर लिया है, उसीका पुत्रमन्थ कर्ममें अधिकार है। साधक जब पुत्रमन्थ करना चाहता है तब वह श्रीमन्थ-कर्मका अनुष्ठान करके पत्नीके ऋतुकालकी प्रतीक्षा करता है; यह बात रेतस् (शुक्र) को ओषधि आदिका रसतम (सारतम) बताकर उसकी प्रशंसा करनेसे जानी जाती है

Just as a son—by the manner in which he is born, the method by which he is begotten, or the qualities with which he is endowed—becomes beneficial for both himself and his father in this world and the next, so too arises the question: How should such a son be brought into being? In order to explain this, or to set forth the means for obtaining such a son, this fourth Brāhmaṇa is begun.

Only the son of a Prāṇopāsaka (one devoted to the worship of prāṇa) who has completed the Śrīmantha-karma is entitled to perform the Putramantha-karma. When the aspirant wishes to perform the Putramantha, he first undertakes the Śrīmantha-karma and then waits for his wife's ṛtukāla (the fertile period). This is understood from the praise of retas (semen), which is described as the very essence (sāratama) of plants, herbs, and the like.

Since a son (suta) saves his father from the hell named Puṃ, therefore, by reason of this deliverance, Brahmā Himself has called him putra ("son").

Linga Purana 5.30-33 states –

पुन्नामक नरकसे पुत्री ही रक्षा करती है, यहाँपर ऐसी ही उक्ति है॥ ३०-३१॥

"It is stated here likewise that it is the daughter who delivers (her parents) from the hell called Punnāmaka." (verses 30–31)

Thus, the significance of begetting progeny in Sanātana Dharma stands clearly established.

They say: 'There are many such Brahmins, merely so in name, who are subject to death, devoid of the senses (through negligence), devoid of merit, and ignorant of the knowledge of intercourse, yet engage in the act of intercourse with attachment—they become degraded in the next world. If, before the wife's ṛtukāla (fertile period) has arrived, the semen of this worshipper of life (prāṇopāsaka) is discharged—whether in greater or lesser quantity—while sleeping or while awake, (then he should perform the following expiations as prescribed).' One of the most important rites is the Garbhādhāraṇa Saṃskāra. In Sanātana Dharma, there are sixteen saṃskāras for a human being, among which Garbhādhāraṇa is performed before conceiving a child. This means that during the actual union, this sacrament is carried out with the chanting of mantras to invoke the blessings of God and to obtain virtuous, desired progeny.

Pandit Dinanath Shastri ji in his book Sanatan Dharmloka adds few important points that must be noted and followed while Garbhadhaaran sanskaar otherwise it could affect the future of child.

'गर्भाधानं प्रथमतः' । (व्यासस्मृति १।१६)
यह संस्कार पितृ-ऋणके संशोधनार्थ और धार्मिक संततिके उत्पादनार्थ किया जाता है। इस संस्कारसे बीज एवं गर्भसे सम्बद्ध मलिनता नष्ट हो जाती है तथा क्षेत्रका संस्कार हो जाता है। इसमें कामभाव न करके धर्म-भाव किया जाता है। यह बालकका संस्कार नहीं; पर बालक बननेका संस्कार है। इसमें सावधानता न करनेसे बालकका भविष्य नष्ट हो जाता है। काममूलक-मैथुनसे सन्तान कामवाली उत्पन्न होती है; उसमें आगे चलकर व्यभिचारकी भी आशङ्का रहती है। संस्काररूपसे वैध गर्भाधान होनेपर उसमें-'अमावास्यामष्टमीं च पौर्णमासीं चतुर्दशीम् । ब्रह्मचारी भवेन्नित्य-मप्युतौ स्नातको द्विजः' ।। (मनु० ४।१२८) ('स्नातक द्विजको चाहिए कि पत्नीका ऋतुकाल आने पर भी अमावास्या, अष्टमी, पूर्णिमा और चतुर्दशी तिथियोंको सदा ब्रह्मचर्यका ही पालन करे) ।' इन अमावास्या, अष्टमी, पूर्णिमा और चतुर्दशी आदिको ब्रह्मचारी रहने आदि नियमोंका पालन अनिवार्य होनेसे धर्मानुकूलता आ जाती है। 'धर्माविरुद्धो भूतेषु कामोऽस्मि भरतर्षभ ।' (गीता ७ । ११) (भरतश्रेष्ठ ! मैं सम्पूर्ण भूतोंमें धर्मानुकूल काम हूँ)। 'प्रजन-श्वास्मि कन्दर्पः' (गीता १०।२८) ('मैं शास्त्रोक्तरीतिसे सन्तानकी उत्पत्तिका हेतुभूत कामदेव हूँ।') इस प्रकार धर्मसे अविरुद्ध होने पर वही काम भगवद्रूप हो जाता है । यही समय भावी सन्तानके जीवनके मूल रखनेका होता है । इस समय माता-पिताकी मानसिक तथा शारीरिक स्थिति जैसी शुद्ध-पवित्र होगी; बालकका मन और शरीर भी उससे वैसा ही प्रभावित होगा ।
यदि माता-पिता केवल कामवासना रक्खेंगे तो उनकी सन्तान भी वैसी ही कामी होगी। अतः गर्भाधानके समय शरीरकी नीरोगताके साथ माता-पिताका मन भी स्वस्थ और धर्मान्वित हो-यह आवश्यक है। तब माता-पिताके विचार गर्भ-समयमें जैसे होंगे – उनका पुत्र भी वैसा ही होगा। जैसे कि सुश्रुतसंहिता शारीर-

"Garbhādhānam prathamatah" (Vyāsa Smṛti 1.16) — This sacrament is performed for the repayment of the debt to the ancestors (pitṛ-ṛṇa) and for the begetting of a righteous progeny. By this rite, the impurity connected with the seed (bīja) and the womb (garbha) is removed, and the kṣetra (the field — the wife's body) is sanctified. In this, the attitude is not one of lust, but of dharma. It is not a sacrament for the child already born, but a sacrament for the becoming of the child. If care is not taken in this rite, the future of the child is destroyed. From intercourse based on lust, lustful progeny is born; in such a child there is also the danger of future adultery.

When garbhādhāna is performed as a rite according to the law, then —
"Amāvāsyām aṣṭamīṃ ca paurṇamāsīṃ caturdaśīm | Brahmacārī bhaven nityam apy uta snātako dvijaḥ"
(Manu 4.128)
("Even when his wife's ṛtukāla has arrived, the twice-born who has completed his studentship should observe celibacy on the amāvāsyā (new moon), aṣṭamī (8th lunar day), pūrṇimā (full moon), and caturdaśī (14th lunar day).")

The obligatory observance of such rules of continence during amāvāsyā, aṣṭamī, pūrṇimā, and caturdaśī brings harmony with dharma.

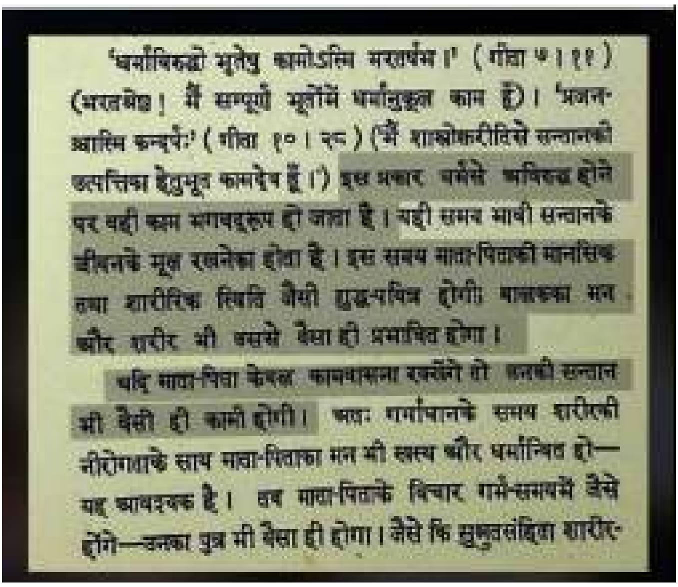
“I am desire (kāma) in beings which is not opposed to dharma, O best of the Bharatas.” (Bhagavad Gītā 7.11)
“I am Kandarpa (the god of love) who causes generation according to the injunctions of the scriptures.” (Bhagavad Gītā 10.28)

Thus, when it is not opposed to dharma, that very kāma becomes a form of the Lord. This is precisely the time to lay the foundation of the future child’s life. At this time, the more pure and holy the mental and physical state of the parents, the more will the child’s mind and body be influenced likewise.

If the parents maintain only lust, then their offspring will also be lustful. Therefore, at the time of garbhādhāna, along with the physical health of the body, the parents’ mind must also be sound and dharmically oriented — this is essential. Then, whatever the parents’ thoughts are during pregnancy, so will be the nature of their son.



'धर्माविरुद्धो भूतेषु कामोऽस्मि भरतर्षभ ।' (गीता ७ । ११) (भरतश्रेष्ठ ! मैं सम्पूर्ण भूतोंमें धर्मानुकूल काम हूँ)। 'प्रजनश्चास्मि कन्दर्पः' (गीता १० । २८) (मैं शास्त्रोक्तरीतिसे सन्तानकी उत्पत्तिका हेतुभूत कामदेव हूँ।') इस प्रकार धर्मसे अविरुद्ध होने पर वही काम भगवत्स्वरूप हो जाता है। यही समय भावी सन्तानके जीवनके मूल रखनेका होता है। इस समय माता-पिताकी मानसिक तथा शारीरिक स्थिति जैसी शुद्ध-पवित्र होगी, बालकका मन और शरीर भी उससे वैसा ही प्रभावित होगा।

यदि माता-पिता केवल कामवासना रखेंगे तो उनकी सन्तान भी वैसी ही कामी होगी। अतः गर्भाधानके समय शरीरकी नीरोगताके साथ माता-पिताका मन भी स्वस्थ और धर्मान्वित हो—यह आवश्यक है। जब माता-पिताके विचार गर्भ-समयमें जैसे होंगे—उनका पुत्र भी वैसा ही होगा। जैसे कि सुश्रुतसंहिता शारीर-

Coming to Brihadaranyaka Upanishad 6.4.9-10

Bṛhadāraṇyaka Upaniṣad 6.4.9–10 forms part of the instructions for Garbhādhāna Saṃskāra, the first of the Vedic conception rites performed to beget righteous and virtuous progeny . In this sacred context, the described physical acts are not for sensual gratification but are procedural elements of a yajña-like union, accompanied by mantras invoking divine blessings for marital harmony and progeny of noble qualities. The imagery, such as the "deer pierced by a poisoned arrow," poetically conveys unwavering affection between husband and wife, essential for the child's upbringing, while verse 10 prescribes a regulated, mantra-based method to avoid conception during in auspicious times. Sanātana Dharma's injunctions — from the Vedas to the Bhagavad Gītā — permit intercourse solely within dharma for progeny, never for lust; thus, interpreting these verses as erotic is a gross misreading that strips them of their ritual, moral, and spiritual significance.

वह पुरुष अपनी जिस पत्नीके सम्बन्धमें ऐसी इच्छा करे कि यह मेरे प्रति कामनायुक्त हो—मुझे मनसे चाहने लगे; उसकी योनिमें अपनी जननेन्द्रियको स्थापित करके उसके मुखसे अपना मुख मिलाकर उसके उपस्थका स्पर्श करते हुए इस मन्त्रका जप करे—'अङ्गा-दङ्गादित्यादि' ॥ ९ ॥

अपनी जिस पत्नीके विषयमें ऐसी इच्छा हो कि वह गर्भधारण न करे तो उसकी योनिमें अपनी जननेन्द्रियको स्थापित करके उसके मुखसे अपना मुख मिलाकर अभिप्राणन कर्म करके अपानन क्रिया करे और कहे- 'इन्द्रियस्वरूप वीर्यके द्वारा मैं तेरे रेतस्को ग्रहण करता हूँ', ऐसा करनेपर वह रेतोहीन ही हो जाती है- गर्भिणी नहीं होती ॥ १० ॥

"In regard to that wife about whom he has the desire that she should not conceive, he should place his organ in her vagina, join his mouth with her mouth, perform the act of breathing upon her (abhiprāṇana), then perform the act of drawing in (apānana), and say: 'By means of virility, which is of the nature of the senses, I take hold of your retas (seed).' By doing so, she becomes devoid of retas and does not become pregnant." (Verse 10)

Shankar Bhasya – पुरुष अपनी जिस पत्नीके विषयमें ऐसी इच्छा करे कि यह गर्भ धारण न करे-गर्भवती न हो तो वह उसकी योनिमें इत्यादि अर्थ पूर्ववत् समझ लेना चाहिये।

In regard to that wife about whom a man wishes that she should not conceive—should not become pregnant—he should understand the procedure in her case as being the same in meaning as described before concerning the placing (of the organ) in the vagina, etc.

Having first performed abhiprāṇana (breathing upon her), he should then, with the mantra 'Indriyeṇa te retasā reta ādade' ('With the virility which is of the nature of the senses, I take away your retas'), perform apānana (drawing in). By this, she becomes without retas—that is, she does not become pregnant." (Verse 10)

Coming to Brihadaranyaka Upanishad 6.4.20-22

Bṛhadāraṇyaka Upaniṣad 6.4.20–22 is a detailed liturgical guide for the Garbhādhāna Saṃskāra, the Vedic conception rite performed to beget virtuous progeny, not an erotic manual.. In Sanātana Dharma, as affirmed in Śrīmad Bhāgavatam 11.5.13, Manusmṛti 2.27, and Bhagavad Gītā 7.11, sexual union is sanctioned only within marriage and only for procreation, never for lustful indulgence. These verses meticulously combine ritual actions with sacred mantras — invoking Viṣṇu, Sūrya, Prajāpati, Dhātā, Sinīvālī, and the Aśvins — to sanctify the womb, harmonize the couple with cosmic forces, and ensure auspicious conception. The occasional mention of bodily gestures is procedural, just as other Vedic rites describe physical acts for offering or worship, and gains meaning only within the yajña-like context of the saṃskāra. Misinterpreting these sacramental passages as "sex positions" is a modern distortion that ignores their sacred intent, replacing their spiritual, moral, and ritual depth with a crude, sensationalized reading that demeans a solemn dharmic ceremony.

Brihadaranyaka Upanishad 6.4.20-22 Geeta Press Gorakhpur hindi translation-

तदनन्तर पति अपनी कामनाके अनुसार पत्नीको खीर आदि भोजन करानेके पश्चात् शयनकालमें 'अमोऽहमस्मि' इत्यादि मन्त्र पढ़कर उसका आलिङ्गन करे। [उस मन्त्रका भाव इस प्रकार है-] 'देवि! मैं प्राण हूँ, तुम वाक् हो; तुम वाक् हो, मैं प्राण हूँ, मैं साम हूँ, तुम ऋत हो; मैं आकाश हूँ, तुम पृथ्वी हो; अतः आओ, हम

दोनों दम्पति एक-दूसरेका आलिङ्गन करें, एक साथ रेतस् धारण करें, जिससे हमें पुरुषत्वविशिष्ट पुत्रका लाभ हो ॥ २० ॥

After that, the husband, according to his wish, should feed his wife with kheer or similar food, and at bedtime, reciting the mantra beginning with "Amo'hamasmi," should embrace her.
[The meaning of that mantra is as follows:]
"O Devi! I am prāṇa (vital breath), you are vāk (speech); you are vāk, I am prāṇa; I am sāma (the Sāma Veda), you are ṛta (cosmic order); I am the sky, you are the earth. Therefore, come, O wife, let us both embrace one another, let us together hold the seed (retas), so that we may obtain a son endowed with manliness." (Verse 20)

After that, he should separate the wife's two thighs from each other.
[At that time, he should recite the mantra "Vijihīthāṃ dyāvāpṛthivī iti" — "O Heaven and Earth, in the form of thighs! You two be separated." Then, placing his organ in the wife's vagina, joining his mouth with her mouth, he should, in regular order, stroke the entire body of the wife — from head to feet — three times.]
During the stroking, he should recite the mantra beginning with “Viṣṇur yoniṃ kalpayatu,” the meaning of which is as follows:

“O beloved! May the all-pervading Lord Viṣṇu make your generative organ fit for producing a son. May the Sun God form and strengthen the limbs of both you and the child to be born, making them well-shaped and pleasing. May the Cosmic Person, Lord Prajāpati, abiding as one with me, deposit the seed in you. May Lord Dhātā, abiding as one with me, uphold and nourish your embryo. O Devi! You who are Sinīvālī, much praised (the lunar day of Amāvāsyā, when only one digit of the moon remains), sustain this embryo, sustain it. May the twin Aśvins, divine physicians, adorned with garlands of lotus-like rays (of Sun and Moon), abiding as one with me, deposit the embryo in you.” (Verse 21)

प्राचीन कालमें ज्योतिर्मयी अरणियाँ थीं, जिनसे अश्विनीकुमारोंने मन्थन किया। उस मन्थनसे अमृतरूप गर्भ प्रकट हुआ। उसी अमृतरूप गर्भको हम तेरी कुक्षिमें स्थापित करते हैं। इसलिये कि तू इसे दसवें महीनमें उत्पन्न कर सके। जैसे पृथ्वीका गर्भ अग्नि है, जैसे स्वर्गीय भूमि इन्द्रसे गर्भवती है, जैसे दिशओंका गर्भ वायु है, उसी प्रकार में तुझमें पुत्ररूप गर्भ स्थापित करता हूँ, अमुक देवि ! ॥ २२ ॥

In ancient times there were radiant, golden araṇis (sacrificial fire-sticks), with which the twin Aśvins churned. From that churning emerged the ambrosia-like embryo. That very ambrosia-like embryo we now place within your womb, so that you may bring it forth in the tenth month. Just as the womb of the earth contains fire, just as the heavenly region is made pregnant by Indra, just as the womb of the quarters contains wind — in the same way, O (name of the) Devi, I place within you the embryo in the form of a son. Refutation-

Rc Hazra in his book Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs page no 120 said that the chapters after chapter 43 in Shristi khanda (including chapter 53) are later interpolations into Padma Purana and was composed likely after the Satanic Islamic Muhammadans established their rule in India . So this chapter is a later interpolation and not part of Padma Purana originally

(5) SṚṢṬI-KHAṆḌA.* This Khaṇḍa, which is assigned the fifth place in our edition, is really the first of the set. This position of the Khaṇḍa is betrayed by the mode of its beginning as well as by the sequence and contents of the five Parvans given in chap. 1.

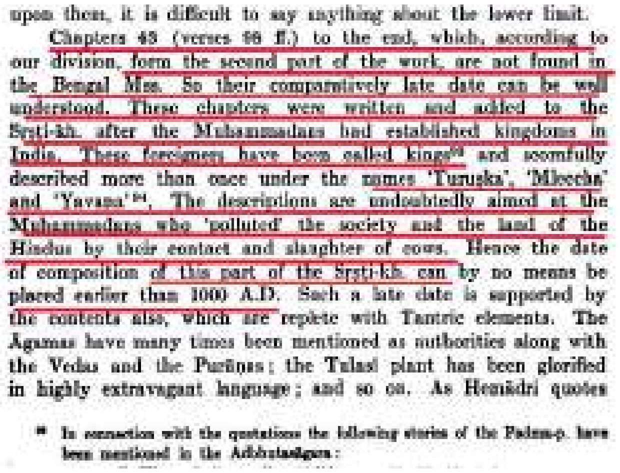
This Khaṇḍa, as we have it now, can be rightly divided into two parts:

(1) chaps. 1-43 (verses 1-97)

and (2) chaps. 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end.

It will be seen hereinafter that the chapters of the second part were added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. Hence the chapters of the first part, which are of earlier date, are examined first.

* The Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa in Bengal Mss. consists only of 46 (or according to Aufrecht, 45) chapters. The corresponding chapters in a Bengal Ms. (No. 1681, D. U. Mss Lib.) of this Khaṇḍa and the Ānss ed. are given below:



upon them, it is difficult to say anything about the lower limit. Chapters 48 (verses 98 ff.) to the end, which, according to our division, form the second part of the work, are not found in the Bengal Mss. So their comparatively late date can be well understood. These chapters were written and added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. These foreigners have been called kings[63] and scornfully described more than once under the names 'Turuṣka', 'Mleccha' and 'Yavana'[64]. The descriptions are undoubtedly aimed at the Muhammadans who 'polluted' the society and the land of the Hindus by their contact and slaughter of cows. Hence the date of composition of this part of the Sṛṣṭi-kh. can by no means be placed earlier than 1000 A.D. Such a late date is supported by the contents also, which are replete with Tantric elements. The Āgamas have many times been mentioned as authorities along with the Vedas and the Purāṇas; the Tulasī plant has been glorified in highly extravagant language; and so on. As Hemādri quotes

* In connection with the quotations the following stories of the Padma-p. have been mentioned in the Adbhutasāgara:

Even Geeta Press Gorakhpur padma Purana has only 49 Chapters and no 53 rd chapter exists

She emerged from the root of a tree and filled the entire forest with her fragrance. (19) The scent of this nectar-filled wind reached Lord Balarama, as if it were a gift for him! Attracted by its aroma, Balarama went with the Gopis to that place, where they drank the essence of it. (20)

At that time, the Gopis were singing songs of Lord Balarama's virtues around him, and he, intoxicated with joy, wandered in the forest. Their eyes were filled with bliss. (21) Around his neck, a garland of flowers adorned him, and he was wearing a garland of victory (Vaijayanti), rejoicing in pure happiness.

With these the allegations of Hinduphobes stands debunked

Response to Vedkabhed and Hinduscript . Refutation of allegations of Rape against Hinduism

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of "Rape in Hinduism".

Before Beginning this refutation i will share some basic facts which are very important for the readers and which have to be kept in mind by everyone

First of all let me state that in Sanatan Dharma Ishwar (God) is one and only without a second . This is evident from the following Pramans

Taittriya Samhita 1.8.6 says -एको हि रुद्रो न द्वितीयाय meaning Rudra (God) is one and only one and second to none

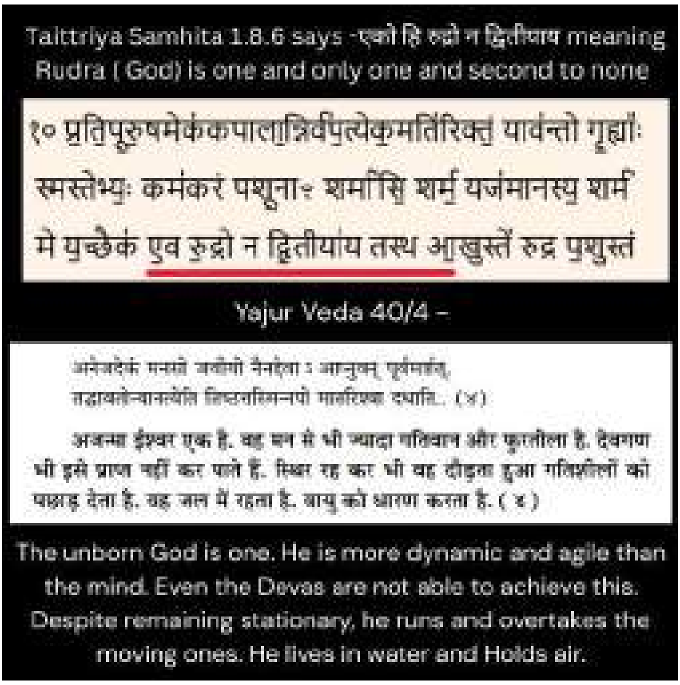
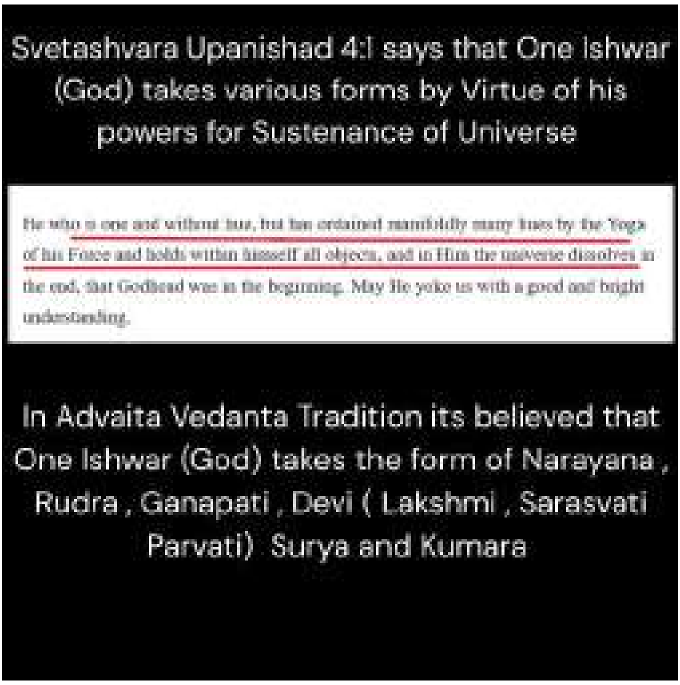
Yajur Veda 40/4 -The unborn God is one. He is more dynamic and agile than the mind. Even the Devas are not able to achieve this. Despite remaining stationary, he runs and overtakes the moving ones. He lives in water and Holds air.



Svetashvara Upanishad 4:1 says that One Ishwar (God) takes various forms by Virtue of his powers for Sustenance of Universe

He who is one and without hue, but has ordained manifoldly many hues by the Yoga of his Force and holds within himself all objects, and in Him the universe dissolves in the end, that Godhead was in the beginning. May He yoke us with a good and bright understanding.
In Advaita Vedanta Tradition its believed that One Ishwar (God) takes the form of Narayana, Rudra, Ganapati, Devi (Lakshmi, Sarasvati Parvati) Surya and Kumara



Nature of Ishwar as per Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8

वह परमपिता सर्वव्यापक, चमकीला, (दीप्तिमान), काया रहित, नाड़ियों से रहित है. वह घावों से रहित, पवित्र, पाप रहित, विद्वान्, मननशील, सर्वव्यापक व स्वयंभू (स्वयं उत्पन्न होने वाला) है. उस ने सृष्टि के आरंभ से ही सब के लिए यथायोग्य साधन सुविधाओं की व्यवस्था की है. (८)

He is पर्यगात्- Omnipresent शुक्रम् – Radiant अकायम्- Material Bodiless अव्रणम्- “Woundless” – Free from any imperfections or injuries अस्नाविरम्- Without flesh, nerves, or tissues , immaterial शुद्धम्- Pure -Untouched by impurities or defects अपापविद्धम् -“Untainted by sin” – Free from any trace of evil karma कविः with divine wisdom and foresight मनीषी-with supreme intellect परिभूः-Beyond all limits and boundaries स्वयंभूः- Self Existent याथातथ्यतः- Supreme Truth शाश्वतीभ्यः unchanging and समाभ्यः-Eternal

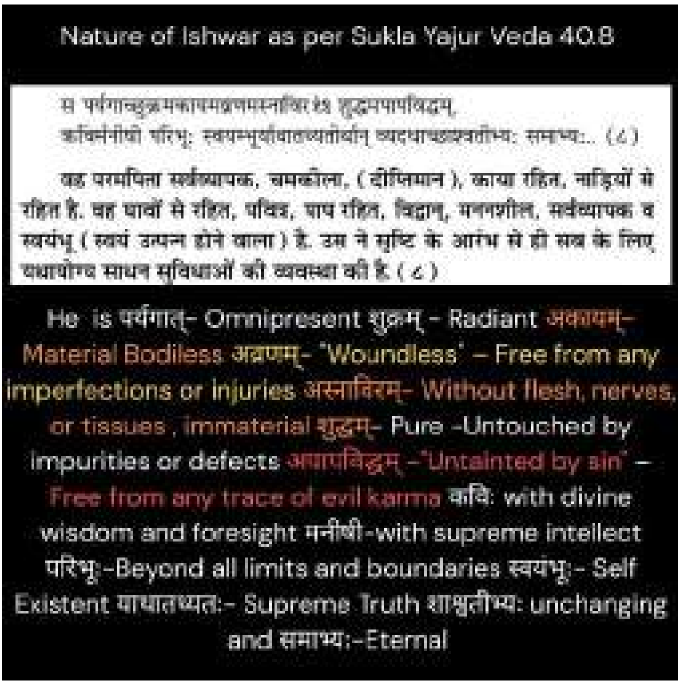
He, the Supreme Father, is all-pervading, radiant (luminous), without a body, and free from nerves (nāḍīs).
He is without wounds, pure, sinless, wise, contemplative, all-pervading, and self-existent (self-born).
From the very beginning of creation, He has arranged appropriate means and resources for all beings. (8)

Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8 is enough to debunk all types of Allegations on Ishwar



Acharya Uvat in his bhasya on Yajur Veda 40.8 explained

"Sa paryagāt" — He (the seeker) attains or fully realizes.

The one who worships the Self in this manner (evam ātmānam upāste) attains (parigacchati) the pure, luminous, blissful, and conscious Brahman, which is:

- Shukra/Shukla: Radiant and pure.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñānānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.

- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.
- Shuddha: Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Apāpaviddha: Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions (kleśa, karma, vipāka, āśaya).

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence and purity. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Thus, such a Brahman is realized (itthambhūtaṁ brahma pratipadyate).

Now, the fruit of worshiping the Self is described:

The one who is:

- A seer (kaviḥ),
- A thinker (manīṣī),
- A wise one (medhāvī),
- One who transcends all (paribhūḥ),
- Self-born (svayambhūḥ) through the power of knowledge,
- One who becomes Brahman itself through the strength of realization,

Such a person orders all things rightly, according to their true nature (yāthātathyataḥ arthān vyadadhāt). He has renounced ownership and possessiveness, and enjoys the world—both sentient and insentient—without attachment.

He performs karma not for worldly gain, but for the eternal welfare of all beings, across countless ages (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ).

Objection: Isn't karma a product of ignorance and bondage?

Answer: True—but when karma is done as a means of self-purification, it becomes a path to Brahman-realization. Therefore, even such a person attains the pure, bodiless Brahman (śukram akāyaṁ brahma).

"Thus is the fruit of one who knows the Self." He who perceives the Self in this manner attains (paryagāt) such a Brahman. What kind of Brahman?

- Shukra: Pure, luminous, and radiant.
- Shuddha: Free from impurity.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñāna-ānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.
- Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions.

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Further fruit of such realization is described:

The one who worships in this way:

- Kavi: Seer, one with deep insight.
- Manīṣī: Wise and discerning.
- Medhāvī: Possessing intellect and memory.
- Paribhūḥ: One who transcends all—by the power of knowledge, he becomes all forms.
- Svayambhūḥ: Self-born—he becomes Brahman itself.

Such a person also attains the previously described Brahman—pure, bodiless, and radiant.

Alternate interpretation of the verse:

The Self described in earlier mantras is one who pervades all (paryagāt), like space, encompassing everything. Having pervaded all, he organizes duties and responsibilities (arthān vyadadhāt) for eternal beings (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ) and for the attainment of infinite time (ananta-varṣa-prāpti), based on the true nature of karma and its results.

Qualities of Brahman:

- Shukra: Pure and luminous.
- Akāya: Without body—free from even subtle forms.
- Avraṇa: Unwounded.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins.
- Shuddha: Spotless.
- Apāpa-viddha: Untouched by sin or unrighteousness.
- Kavi: All-seeing—"There is no other seer than this," says the Upaniṣad.
- Manīṣī: All-knowing—directed by the mind.
- Paribhūḥ: One who exists above all.
- Svayambhūḥ: One who exists by himself, above all others.

He is the eternal Lord (nitya īśvaraḥ)—the one who has done all, created all.

Such a Brahman is attained by the knower of the Self.

इसके पश्चात् इस याज्ञवल्क्यसे शाकल्य विदग्धने पूछा, 'हे याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देवगण हैं?' तब याज्ञवल्क्यने इस आगे कही जानेवाली निविसे ही उनकी संख्याका प्रतिपादन किया। 'जितने वैश्वदेवकी निविद्में अर्थात् देवताओंकी संख्या बतानेवाले मन्त्रपदोंमें बतलाये गये हैं। वे तीन और तीन सौ तथा तीन और तीन सहस्र (तीन हजार तीन सौ छः) हैं।' [तब शाकल्यने] 'ठीक है' ऐसा कहा। फिर पूछा, 'याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देव हैं?' याज्ञवल्क्यने कहा, 'तैंतीस'। [शालक्यने] 'ठीक है' ऐसा कहा और पूछा, 'तो, याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देव हैं ?' After this, the Vidagdha Shakalya asked Yājñavalkya, "O Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?" Then Yājñavalkya explained their number according to the Nivid that is to be stated ahead. "As many as are mentioned in the Nivid of the Vaiśvadeva—that is, in the mantra-verses that declare the number of the Devas—they are three and three hundred, and three and three thousand (i.e., three thousand three hundred and six)."

[Then Shakalya said,] "Alright," and asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

Yājñavalkya said, "Thirty-three."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and asked again, "So, Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

[Yājñavalkya replied,] "Six."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and again asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

[Yājñavalkya said,] "Three."

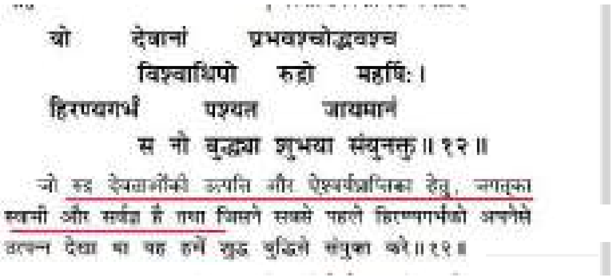
Ishwar created Devas

Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 4 Mantra 12 says

जो रुद्र देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति और ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तिका हेतु, जगत्का स्वामी और सर्वज्ञ है तथा जिसने सबसे पहले हिरण्यगर्भको अपनेसे उत्पन्न देखा था वह हमें शुद्ध बुद्धिसे संयुक्त करे ॥ १२

He who is Rudra, the originator and bestower of strength to the Devas ,
He who has become the Lord of the universe and its dissolution,
He who rules over both bipeds and quadrupeds —
May He unite us with pure and auspicious intellect



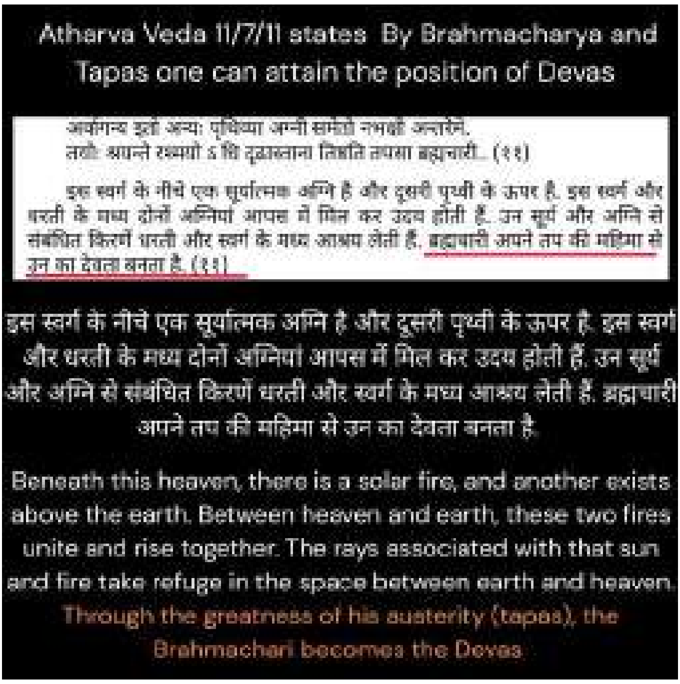
यो देवानां प्रभवश्चोद्भवश्च
विश्वाधिपो रुद्रो महर्षिः ।
हिरण्यगर्भं पश्यत जायमानं
स नो बुद्ध्या शुभया संयुनक्तु ॥ १२ ॥

जो रुद्र देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति और ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तिका हेतु, जगत्‌का स्वामी और सर्वज्ञ है तथा जिसने सबसे पहले हिरण्यगर्भको अपनेसे उत्पन्न देखा था वह हमें शुद्ध बुद्धिसे संयुक्त करे॥१२॥

Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can attain the postion of Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी पृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

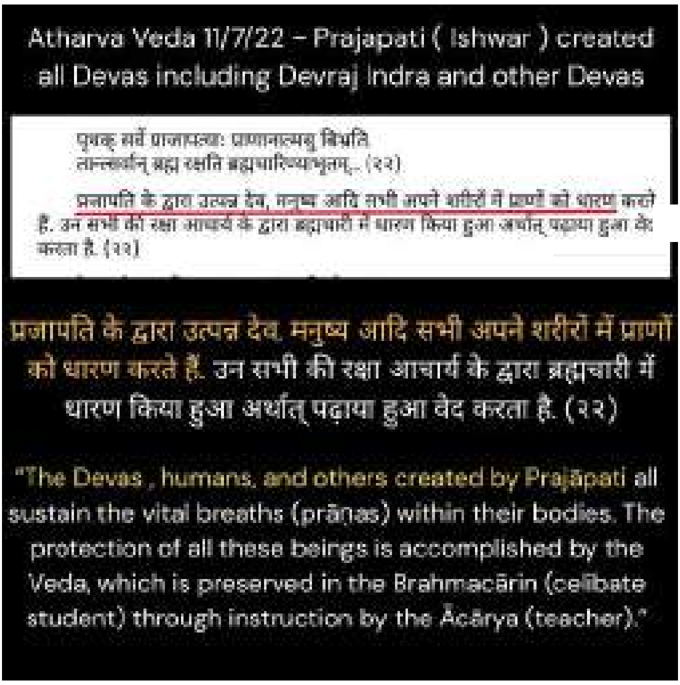
Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between earth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas



Atharva Veda 11/7/22 – Prajapati (Ishwar) created all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

प्रजापति के द्वारा उत्पन्न देव, मनुष्य आदि सभी अपने शरीरों में प्राणों को धारण करते हैं. उन सभी की रक्षा आचार्य के द्वारा ब्रह्मचारी में धारण किया हुआ अर्थात् पढ़ाया हुआ वेद करता है. (२२)

“The Devas , humans, and others created by Prajāpati all sustain the vital breaths (prāṇas) within their bodies. The protection of all these beings is accomplished by the Veda, which is preserved in the Brahmacārin (celibate student) through instruction by the Ācārya (teacher).”



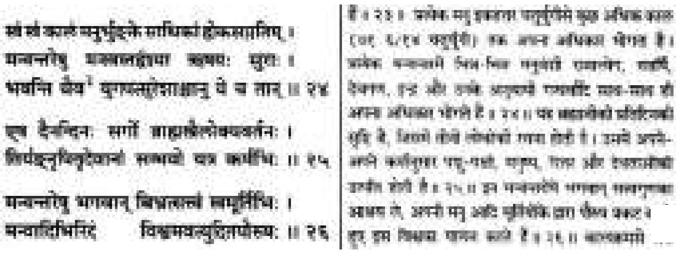
Srimad Bhagavatam 3.11.24-26 tells that in every period of Brahma – Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas are born again and again and attain their position per their karma

॥ प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अनुयायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ।॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Verse 24:
"Each Manu enjoys his reign for a duration slightly more than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In every Manvantara, different rulers of the Manu lineage, the Saptarishis (seven sages), groups of gods (Devas), Indra, and their attendants like the Gandharvas also enjoy their respective domains."

Verse 25:
"This is the daily creation (nitya-srishti) of Brahma, in which the three worlds are created. According to their individual karmas, various beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors (Pitṛs), and Devas are born."

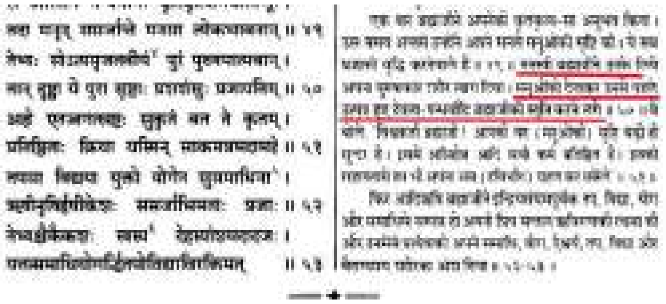
Verse 26:
"In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (goodness), assumes forms such as Manu and others to manifest His divine power (Pauruṣa) and uphold the order of the universe through protection and sustenance."



Srimad Bhagvatam 3/20/50 Geeta Press Gorakhpur

मनस्वी ब्रह्माजीने उनके लिये अपना पुरुषाकार शरीर त्याग दिया। मन्ओंको देखकर उनसे पहले उत्पन्न हुए देवता-गन्धर्वादि ब्रह्माजीकी स्तिि करने लगे ॥ ५० ॥

“Manasvi Brahmaji gave up his masculine form for her. Seeing Manas (the mind), the Devas , Gandharvas, and others who were created before him began to praise Brahmaji.



Shri Vishnu Purana Amsa 1 Adhaya 5

श्रीमैत्रेयजी बोले- हे द्विजराज ! सर्गके आदिमे भगवान् ब्रह्माजीने पृथिवी, आकाश और जल आदिमे रहनेवाले देव, ऋषि, पितृगण, दानव, मनुष्य, तिर्यक् और वृक्षादिको जिस प्रकार रचा तथा जैसे गुण, स्वभाव और रूपवाले जगत्की रचना की वह सब आप मुझसे कहिये ॥ १-२ ॥

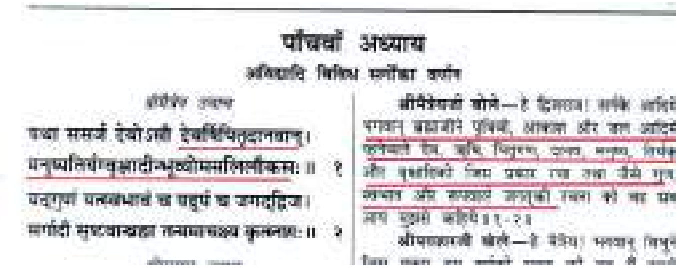
प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अन्यायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Maitreya said:
O chief among the twice-born (Brahmins), at the beginning of creation, Brahma ji created the Devas, sages, ancestors (Pitṛs), demons (Dānavas), humans, animals, birds, and trees, who dwell in the earth, sky, water, and other realms. Please describe to me how he created them, and how he gave them their qualities, natures, and forms. (Verses 1–2)

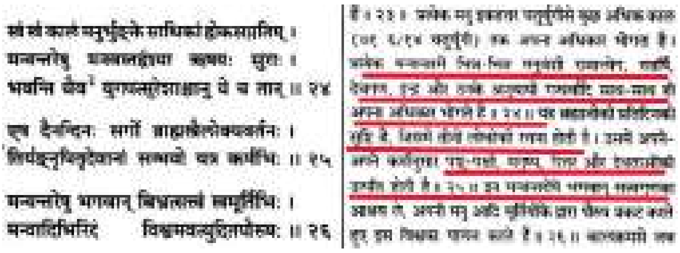
Verse 24:
Each Manu enjoys his rule for a period slightly longer than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically, 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In each Manvantara (the reign of a Manu), different kings of the lineage of that Manu, the seven great sages (Saptarishis), groups of Devas , Indra, and their followers like the Gandharvas exercise their respective authorities.

Verse 25:
This is the daily creation (naimittika sṛṣṭi) of Lord Brahma, in which the three worlds are formed. According to their individual karmas, beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors, and Devas come into existence.

Verse 26:
In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (purity), manifests his divine energy (Pauruṣa) through forms like Manu and sustains the universe.

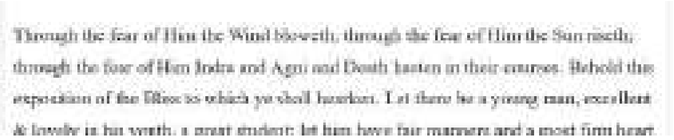


पाँचवाँ अध्याय



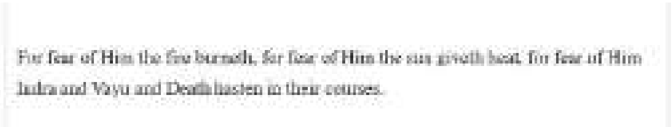
Taittriya Aranyaka 5.14.8 as well as Taittriya Upanishad 2.8.1 of Krishna Yajurveda clearly says devatas such as Indra, wind god, Agni, and Yama perform their duties because they are afraid of the Supreme Brahman.

भीषाऽस्माद्वातः पवते । भीषोदंति सूर्यः । भीषाऽस्मादग्निंश्चेन्दृश्च । मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चंम इति
Meaning: From the fear of Him, Vatah (the wind) blows, from fear of Him the sun rises. From fear of Him the five divinities such as Agni (fire), Indra, and Mrityu (death) work.



Through the fear of Him the Wind bloweth, through the fear of Him the Sun riseth, through the fear of Him Indra and Agni and Death hasten in their courses. Behold this exposition of the Bliss to which ye shall hearken. Let there be a young man, excellent & lovely in his youth, a great student; let him have fair manners and a most firm heart

Katha Upanishad 2.3.3 of Krishna Yajurveda also clearly says how devatas perform all their duties out of fear of the Supreme Brahman.
भयादस्याग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः । भयादिन्द्रश्चाग्निश्च मृत्युर्धावति पंचमः ॥
Meaning: Out of fear of God, the fire burns, the sun heats, and Indra, Vayu as well and Yama function briskly



For fear of Him the fire burneth, for fear of Him the sun giveth heat, for fear of Him Indra and Vayu and Death hasten in their courses.

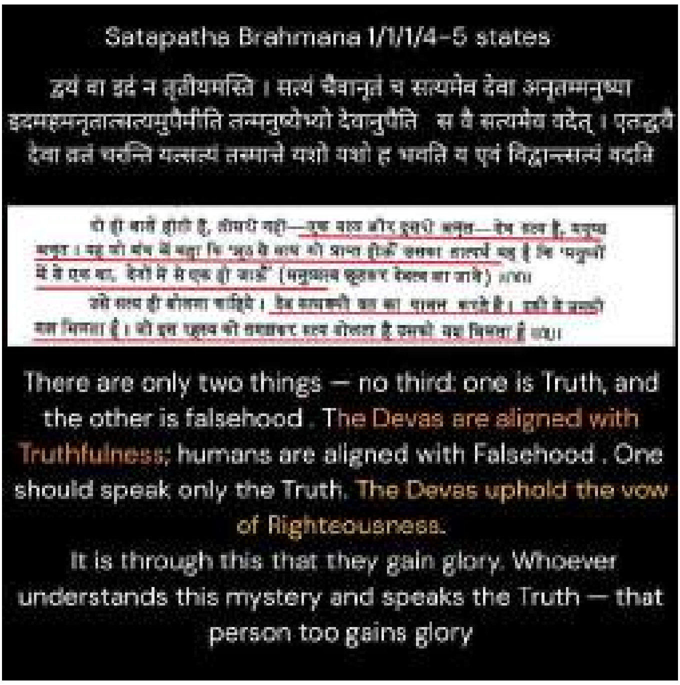
Nature and Qualities of Devas

Satapatha Brahmana 1/1/1/4-5 states

द्वयं वा इदं न तृतीयमस्ति । सत्यं चैवानृतं च सत्यमेव देवा अनृतम्मनुष्या इदमहमनृतात्सत्यमुपैमीति तन्मनुष्येभ्यो देवानुपैति स वै सत्यमेव वदेत् । एतद्धवै देवा व्रतं चरन्ति यत्सत्यं तस्मात्ते यशो यशो ह भवति य एवं विद्वान्त्सत्यं वदति

There are only two things — no third: one is Truth, and the other is falsehood . The Devas are aligned with Truthfulness; humans are aligned with Falsehood . One should speak only the Truth. The Devas uphold the vow of Righteousness.

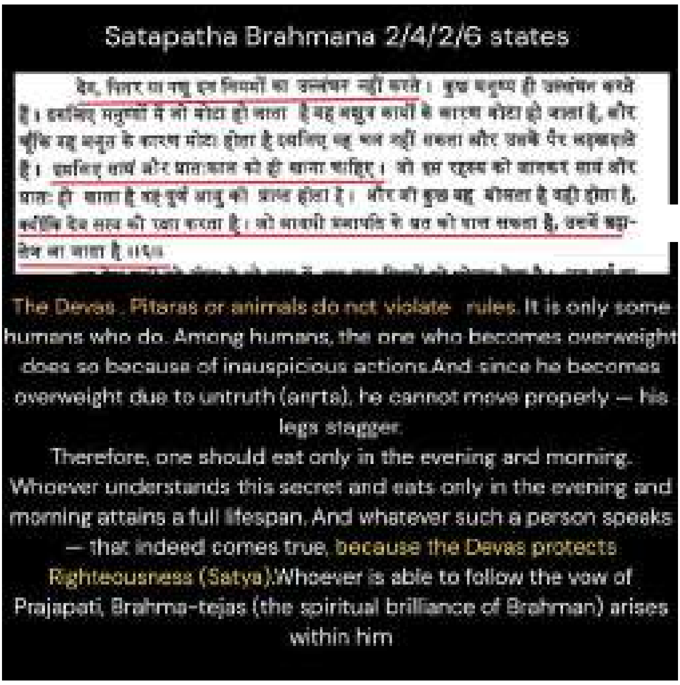
It is through this that they gain glory. Whoever understand this mystery and speaks the Truth — that person too gains glory



Satapatha Brahmana 2/4/2/6 states

The Devas , Pitaras or animals do not violate rules. It is only some humans who do. Among humans, the one who becomes overweight does so because of inauspicious actions.And since he becomes overweight due to untruth (anṛta), he cannot move properly — his legs stagger.

Therefore, one should eat only in the evening and morning. Whoever understands this secret and eats only in the evening and morning attains a full lifespan. And whatever such a person speaks — that indeed comes true, because the Devas protects Righteousness (Satya).Whoever is able to follow the vow of Prajapati, Brahma-tejas (the spiritual brilliance of Brahman) arises within him

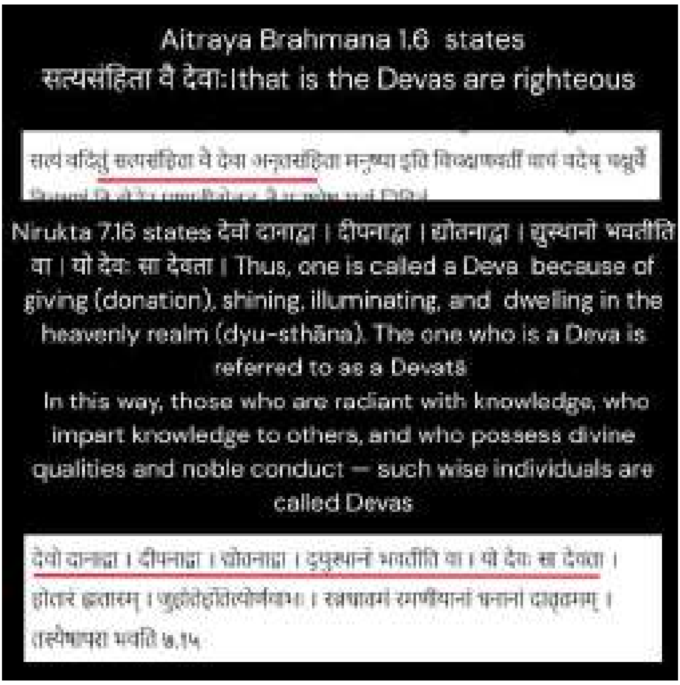


Aitraya Brahmana 1.6 states

सत्यसंहिता वै देवाः।that is the Devas are righteous

Nirukta 7.16 states देवो दानाद्वा । दीपनाद्वा । द्योतनाद्वा । द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । यो देवः सा देवता । Thus, one is called a Deva because of giving (donation), shining, illuminating, and dwelling in the heavenly realm (dyu-sthāna). The one who is a Deva is referred to as a Devatā

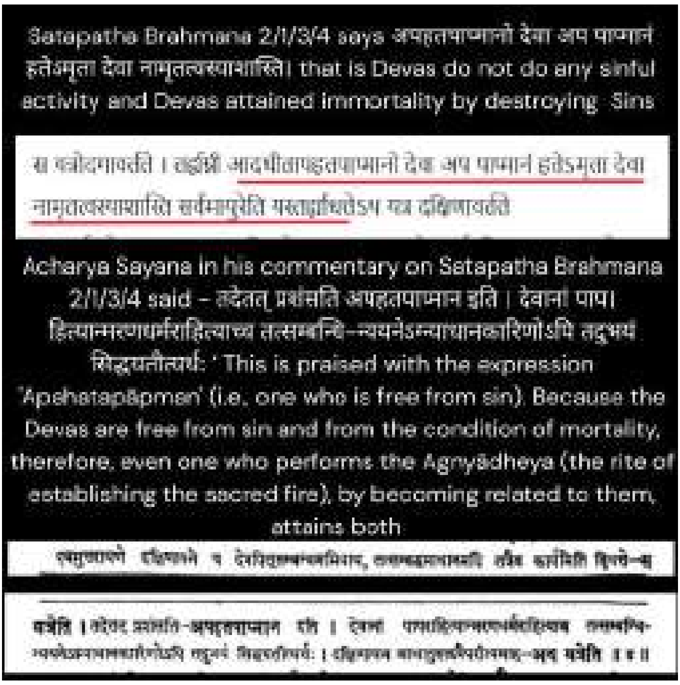
In this way, those who are radiant with knowledge, who impart knowledge to others, and who possess divine qualities and noble conduct — such wise individuals are called Devas



Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 says अपहतपाप्मानो देवा अप पाप्मानं हतेऽमृता देवा नामृतत्वस्याशास्ति। that is Devas do not do any sinful activity and Devas attained immortality by destroying Sins

Acharya Sayana in his commentary on Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 said – तदेतत् प्रशंसति अपहतपाप्मान इति । देवानां पाप।

हित्यान्मरणधर्मराहित्याच्च तत्सम्बन्धि-न्ययनेऽग्न्याधानकारिणोऽपि तदुभयं सिद्धयतीत्यर्थः ' This is praised with the expression 'Apahatapāpman' (i.e., one who is free from sin). Because the Devas are free from sin and from the condition of mortality, therefore, even one who performs the Agnyādheya (the rite of establishing the sacred fire), by becoming related to them, attains both



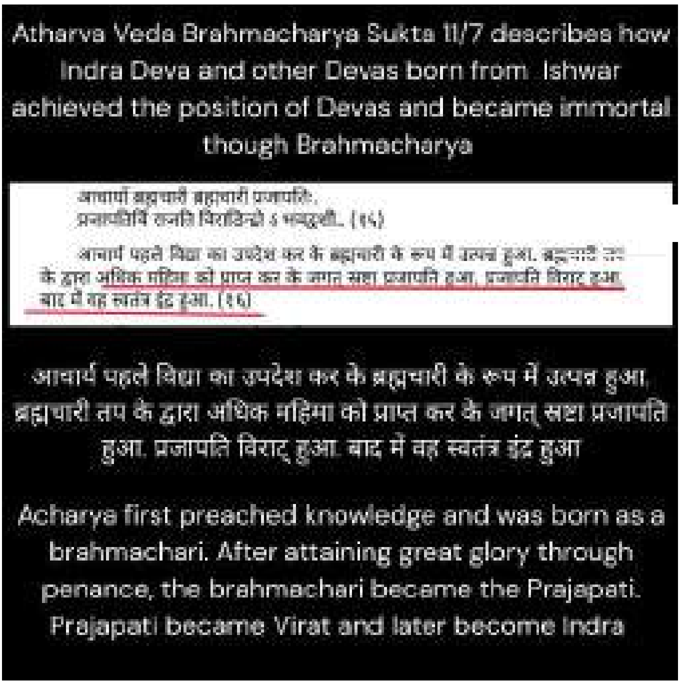
These evidences from Vedic Literature are enough to debunk all sorts of allegations on Devas

Devas follow Strict Brahmacharya

Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7 describes how Indra Deva and other Devas born from Ishwar achieved the position of Devas and became immortal though Brahmacharya

आचार्य पहले विद्या का उपदेश कर के ब्रह्मचारी के रूप में उत्पन्न हुआ. ब्रह्मचारी तप के द्वारा अधिक महिमा को प्राप्त कर के जगत् स्रष्टा प्रजापति हुआ. प्रजापति विराट् हुआ. बाद में वह स्वतंत्र इंद्र हुआ

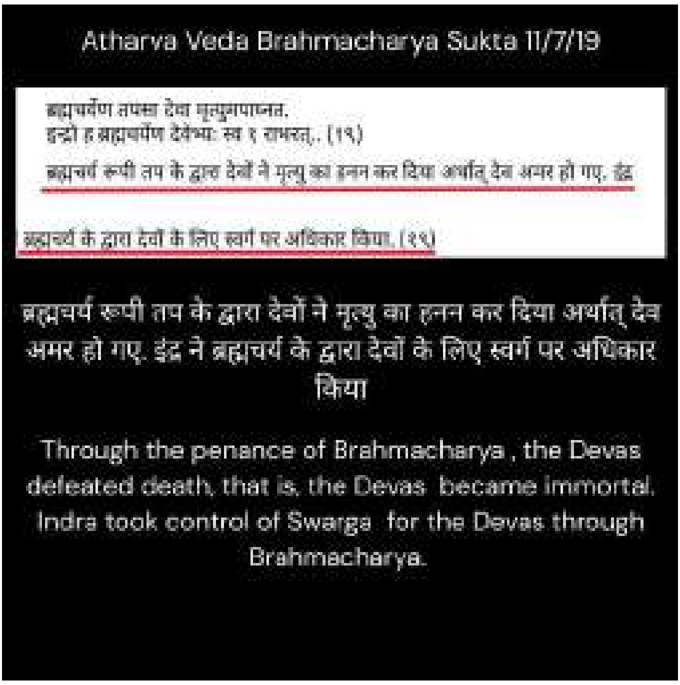
Acharya first preached knowledge and was born as a brahmachari. After attaining great glory through penance, the brahmachari became the Prajapati. Prajapati became Virat and later become Indra



Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7/19

ब्रह्मचर्य रूपी तप के द्वारा देवों ने मृत्यु का हनन कर दिया अर्थात् देव अमर हो गए. इंद्र ने ब्रह्मचर्य के द्वारा देवों के लिए स्वर्ग पर अधिकार किया

Through the penance of Brahmacharya , the Devas defeated death, that is, the Devas became immortal. Indra took control of Swarga for the Devas through Brahmacharya.



Atharva Veda 11/7/7

उस ब्रह्मचारी ने ब्राह्मण जाति के जल अर्थात् गंगा आदि नदियों को, स्वर्ग आदि लोकों को, प्रजाओं की सृष्टि करने वाले प्रजापति को तथा प्रजापति के बाद सृष्टि की रचना करने वाले परमेष्ठी को उत्पन्न किया. वह ब्रह्मचारी मृत्यु रहित ब्रह्म की सत्ता, रज, तमोगुण वाली प्रकृति में गर्भ बन कर सब को जन्म देता है. उस ने तप के बल से इंद्र हो कर देवों के विरोधी असुरों का विनाश किया.

"That Brahmachari created the sacred waters of the Brahmin class, such as the Ganga and other rivers, the heavenly realms, the Prajapatis who created living beings, and thereafter, the supreme creator (Parameshthi) who continued the creation. That Brahmachari, being the immortal essence of Brahman, enters into nature—which is endowed with the qualities of rajas (activity) and tamas (inertia)—as a womb, and gives birth to all. Through the power of his Brahmacharya , he became Indra and destroyed the Asuras who opposed the Devas .”

Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can become Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी पृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between earth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas

Atharva Veda 11/7/14 states all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas follow Strict Brahmacharya and live in Brahmacharya

ब्रह्मचर्य का पालन करने वाला पुरुष दीप्ति वाले वेदरूपी ब्रह्म को धारण करता है. उस वेद से सभी देव संबंधित हैं. देवों का निवास बना हुआ ब्रह्मचारी प्राण और अपान के बाद ज्ञान को, मन, वाणी, हृदय और मेधा को उत्पन्न करता है

A man who practices Brahmacharya attains the Brahm in the form of the Veda which is full of light. All the Devas are related to that Veda. Brahmacharya is the abode of the Devas it produces knowledge, mind, speech, heart and intelligence after Prana and Apan.

Allegations-

1. Brahma and Saraswati

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 3.12.28-31📚
O Vidura, we have heard that Brahmã had a daughter named väk who was born from his body and who attracted his mind toward sex, although she was not sexually inclined towards him. Thus, finding their father so deluded in an act of immorality, the sages headed by Marici, all sons of Brahma, spoke as follows with great respect. O father, this performance in which you are endeavoring to complicate yourself was never attempted by any other Brahmã, nor by anyone else, nor by you in previous kalpas, nor will anyone dare to attempt it in the future. You are the supreme being in the universe, so how is it that you want to have sex with your daughter and cannot control your desire? Even though you are the most powerful being, this act does not suit you because your character is followed for spiritual improvement by people in general."

📚Skanda Purana 3.1.40.6-12📚
Prajpati (i.e. Brahma) was formerly deluded, O Brahmanas. He desired like a lover of his own daughter named Vac (Speech) joyously. This daughter of Prajapati became ashamed on noticing his lecherous love for her. Hence she assumed the form of a Rohita deer. Inclined to have sexual dalliance with her, Brahma too took the form of a deer. As she went ahead in the guise of a female deer, he too followed her. On seeing him intent on having sexual intercourse with his daughter, all the deities condemned him: 'This Brahma is committing a deed that should not be done, i.e. attempt to have sexual union with one's own daughter. Thus they censured the creator and the Lord of the worlds. On seeing Paramesthin (Brahma) engaged in the forbidden act, Lord Hara took up the Pinaka bow and assumed the form of a hunter. He fitted one arrow to his bow. He drew the bow string as far as his ear and hit Brahma with his sharp arrow. Struck down by the arrow of the Annihilator of the three Puras, Brahma fell down on the ground."

Refutation-

Perspective 1

We know the term Prajapati is used for Brahma in Puranas . The Same term Prajapati is used for Sun in Vedas at several places because Sun is responsible for life on Earth . So Sun is Prajapati [Brahma] .

1- यो हं वे सविता स प्रजापतिः। (Satapatha 12.3.5.2)

2- प्रजापतिर्यं सविता। (Tandya Brahmana 8.2.10)

Then who is the daughter of Prajapati Sun [Brahma] . Usha [Dawn] is the daughter of Prajapati Surya [Brahma] as Usha[Dawn] is brought about by approach of Prajapati Sun [Brahma] . Acharya Kumarilla Bhatta explained in his Tantra Vartika 1.3.7

. (1) The word "Prajapati" means 'one who protects all creatures;' as such it can be taken as a name of the Sun; and it is an ordinary fact that towards morning the sun reaches the early Dawn, ('Usha'); and as the early Dawn is brought about by the approach of the Sun, it is called his "daughter;" and it is the fact of the Sun letting his rays fall in (or on) the Dawn that has been figuratively spoken of as the intercourse of a man with a woman.

That is being the protector of the world Prajapati Brahma is Sun and Usha Dawn is the daughter of Prajapati Brahma Sun . In Srimad Bhagvatam and Skanda Purana its written that Prajapati Brahma [Sun] went after his daughter Usha [Dawn] . Rays of Sun can be taken as sons of Prajapati Brahma . The Sons of Prajapati Brahma [Sun] Stopped him and then Brahma [Sun] left his body causing Fog which spread in all directions.It's not that rays of sun try to stop him. We shall not forget it's a Puranic story with characters.The process of condensation is explained here because of which we get tiny droplets of water in the morning during winter.

Gopatha Brahmana 1/2/10-11 says that Brahma is mind
ऊर्ध्वं यच् च किं च मनसैव करोति तद् ब्रह्म ते ब्रूमो मन एव ब्रह्मा मनो ब्रह्म मनो देव इति

Taittriya Samhita 6/1/2/2 says that Saraswati is speech

Prajapati or Brahma is called 'Mind Saraswati is the name of speech. The mind comes before speech, so whatever is first thought through the mind is then said through speech. That mind in the form of Prajapati Brahma controlled Saraswati in the form of speech.

The mind comes before speech, so whatever is first thought through the mind is then said through speech. That mind in the form of Prajapati Brahma controlled Saraswati in the form of speech . It means that speech originates from the power of the mind. That is why both of them have been described here as father and daughter. When the father, in the form of mind inseminates his daughter in the form of speech with प्रेरणारूप वीर्या then only a son in the form of words is born from her

Pandit Madhavacharya Shastri explained it as-

सो ब्रह्मवैवर्त पुराण में उक्त आध्यात्मिक अर्थ को स्पष्ट करने के लिए श्रीराधा जी के पूछने पर श्रीकृष्ण भगवान् कहते हैं-
मनःस्वरूपो ब्रह्मा मे ज्ञानरूपो महेश्वरः ।।५८।। वागधिष्ठात्री देवी या सा स्वयं च सरस्वती ।।५६।। अर्थात्- मनः ही ब्रह्मा है, ज्ञान को महेश्वर समझो तथा वाणी की अधिष्ठात्री देवी ही सरस्वती है ।
यहां इतना और भी समझ लेना आवश्यक है कि इस कथा के अध्यात्म-प्रधान रूपक में – मरीचि आदि पुत्रों का समझाना घटित नहीं होता था, अतएव ब्रह्मवैवर्त में श्री वेदव्यास जी ने उक्त घटना के बजाय यह प्रकट किया है कि 'पुत्री के पीछे भागते हुये ब्रह्मा को उसके पुत्र महादेव ने सावधान किया ।' इस अंश का तात्पर्य यह है कि वाणी का अनुगमन करते हुए मन को विवेक बार २ सावधान करता है। यही इस कथा का 'आध्यात्मिक-अर्थ' है, जिससे मनोविज्ञान का एक अद्भुत रहस्य प्रकट होता है ।

To make this spiritual meaning clear, Lord Śrī Krishna, who, in response to Śrī Rādhā's question, says:

manassvarūpo brahmā me jñānarūpo maheśvaraḥ
(verse 58)

vāgadhiṣṭhātrī devī yā sā svayaṃ ca sarasvatī (verse 56)

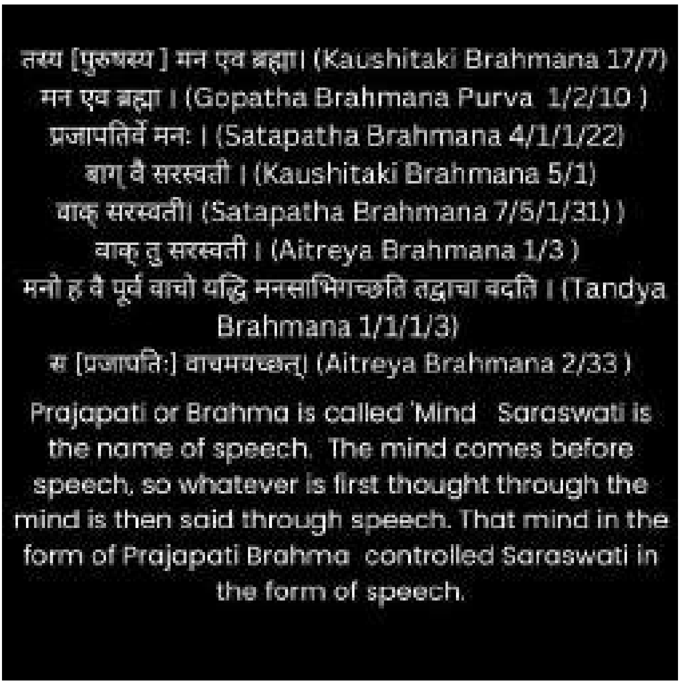
Meaning:

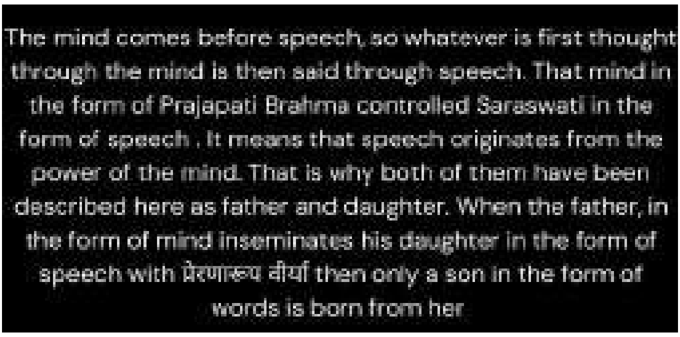
The mind is my form as Brahmā; knowledge is my form as Maheśvara (Śiva); and the presiding goddess of speech is Sarasvatī herself.

It is important to further understand that, in the spiritually symbolic version of this tale, the narrative involving Mārīci and other sons (i.e., their attempt to dissuade Brahmā) is not relevant. Hence, Sage Vedavyāsa presents the story as:

"As Brahmā chased after his daughter, it was his son Mahādeva (Śiva) who warned him."

The meaning behind this is: as the mind chases after speech, it is discrimination (viveka), represented by Śiva, which again and again warns the mind. This is the true spiritual meaning of the tale — revealing a profound mystery of psychology (manovijñāna).





Pandit Madhvacharya Shastri explained in his book Purana Digdarshan as उससे शब्दरूप पुत्र उत्पन्न होता है, जो ब्रह्मवैवर्त पुराण में उक्त आध्यात्मिक अर्थ को स्पष्ट करने के लिए श्रीराधा जी के पूछने पर श्रीकृष्ण भगवान् कहते है—

मनःस्वरूपो ब्रह्मा मे ज्ञानरूपो महेश्वरः ॥५८॥
वागधिष्ठात्री देवी या सा स्वयं च सरस्वती ॥५६॥

अर्थात्—मन ही ब्रह्मा है, ज्ञान को महेश्वर समझो तथा वाणी की अधिष्ठात्री देवी ही सरस्वती है।

यहाँ इतना और भी समझ लेना आवश्यक है कि इस कथा के अध्यात्म-प्रधान रूपक में—मरीचि आदि पुत्रों का समझाना घटित नहीं होता था, अतएव ब्रह्मवैवर्त में श्री वेदव्यास जी ने उक्त घटना के बजाय यह प्रकट किया है कि 'पुत्री के पीछे भागते हुये ब्रह्मा को उनके पुत्र महादेव ने सावधान किया।' इस अंश का तात्पर्य यह है कि वाणी का अनुगमन करते हुए मन को विवेक बार-बार सावधान करता है। यही इस कथा का 'आध्यात्मिक-अर्थ' है, जिससे मनोविज्ञान का एक अद्भुत रहस्य प्रकट होता है।

To make this spiritual meaning clear, Lord Śrī Krishna, who, in response to Śrī Rādhā's question, says:
manassvarūpo brahmā me jñānarūpo maheśvaraḥ (verse 58)
vāgadhiṣṭhātrī devī yā sā svayaṃ ca sarasvatī (verse 56)
Meaning:
The mind is my form as Brahmā; knowledge is my form as Maheśvara (Śiva); and the presiding goddess of speech is Sarasvatī herself.
It is important to further understand that, in the spiritually symbolic version of this tale, the narrative involving Mārīci and other sons (i.e., their attempt to dissuade Brahmā) is not relevant. Hence, Sage Vedavyāsa presents the story as:
"As Brahmā chased after his daughter, it was his son Mahādeva (Śiva) who warned him."
The meaning behind this is: as the mind chases after speech, it is discrimination (viveka), represented by Śiva, which again and again warns the mind. This is the true spiritual meaning of the tale — revealing a profound mystery of psychology (manovijñāna).

Similar explanation has been given by कृष्णनारायण प्रसाद 'मागध' – वाणी प्रकाशन। -१९९९

वैदिक साहित्य में प्रजापति को बहुधा मन '98 एवं वाक् को सरस्वती' 99 कहा गया है। मन की सत्ता वाक् से पूर्ववर्त्तिनी होती है। पहले मन संकल्प करता है। तदुपरांत वह वाक् (वाणी) द्वारा प्रकट होता है। अव्यक्त ब्रह्मा ने सृष्टि (अपने को अनेक रूपों में व्यक्त) करने का मन में संकल्प किया। मन के संकल्प से वाक् की उत्पत्ति हुई। इस पारस्परिक संबंध के कारण 'मन' को पिता (प्रजापति ब्रह्मा) और 'वाक्' को दुहिता (सरस्वती) कहा गया। मन रूपी पिता के वाक् रूपी दुहिता में प्रेरणारूप वीर्याधान किए जाने पर शब्द रूप पुत्र की उत्पत्ति होती है। मन की अपेक्षा वाक् सूक्ष्म होती है। अतः उसके लिए भागवतकार द्वारा प्रयुक्त 'तन्वीं' सार्थक विशेषण है। कामना करना मन का धर्म है। इसीलिए आख्यान में मनरूपी प्रजापति को 'सकाम' और वाक् को 'अकामा' कहा गया है। प्रथम उत्पन्न होने के कारण मन को 'स्वयम्भू' भी कहा जाना सार्थक है। इस प्रकार सृष्टि-विद्या के गूढ़ आध्यात्मिक रहस्य को इस आख्यान के मिस मनोवैज्ञानिक रूप में प्रस्तुत करना पुराणकार का लक्ष्य रहा है।

Vāk as "Sarasvatī".
The existence of the mind precedes speech (vāk).

First, the mind conceives a thought, and afterward, it manifests through vāk (speech).

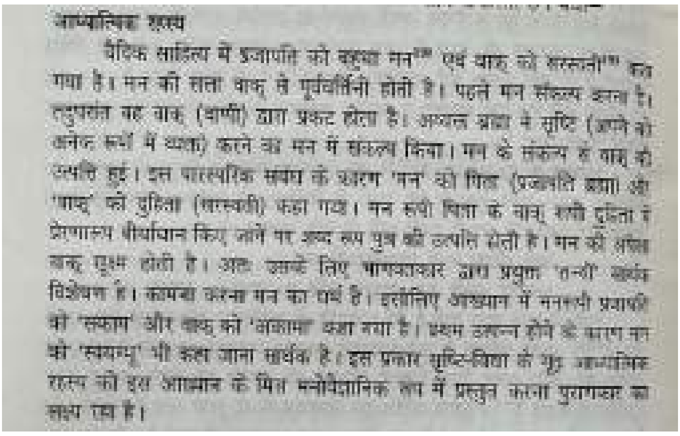
The unmanifest Brahmā resolved in his mind to manifest creation (himself in multiple forms).
From the mental resolution, vāk emerged.

Due to this mutual relationship, the mind is called the father (Prajāpati Brahmā), and vāk is called the daughter (Sarasvatī).

When the mind, in the form of a father, deposits inspiration (vīrya) into vāk, in the form of the daughter, the child in the form of words (śabda) is born.
Compared to the mind, vāk is more subtle.
Therefore, the adjective "tanvīm" (delicate) used by the Bhāgavata author for her is appropriate.

Desire is a natural trait of the mind.
Hence, in the narrative, the mind-like Prajāpati is called "sakāma" (with desire) and vāk is called "akāmā" (without desire).
Being the first to emerge, it is appropriate to refer to the mind as "Svayambhū" (self-born).

In this way, the deep spiritual mystery of the science of creation has been presented in psychological terms through this narrative by the Purāṇa authors.



आध्यात्मिक रहस्य

वैदिक साहित्य में प्रजापति को कहीं मन एवं वाक् को सरस्वती कहा गया है। मन की सत्ता वाक् से पूर्ववर्तिनी होती है। पहले मन संकल्प करता है, तदुपरांत वह वाक् (वाणी) द्वारा प्रकट होता है। अव्यक्त ब्रह्मा ने सृष्टि (अपने को अनेक रूपों में व्यक्त) करने का मन में संकल्प किया। मन के संकल्प से वाक् की उत्पत्ति हुई। इस पारस्परिक संबंध के कारण 'मन' को पिता (प्रजापति ब्रह्मा) और 'वाक्' को दुहिता (सरस्वती) कहा गया। मन रूपी पिता के वाक् रूपी दुहिता में प्रेरणारूप वीर्याधान किए जाने पर शब्द रूप पुत्र की उत्पत्ति होती है। मन की अपेक्षा वाक् सूक्ष्म होती है। अतः उसके लिए भागवतकार द्वारा प्रयुक्त 'तन्वीं' सार्थक विशेषण है। कामना करना मन का धर्म है। इसीलिए आख्यान में मनरूपी प्रजापति को 'सकाम' और वाक् को 'अकामा' कहा गया है। प्रथम उत्पन्न होने के कारण मन को 'स्वयम्भू' भी कहा जाना सार्थक है। इस प्रकार सृष्टि-विद्या के गूढ़ आध्यात्मिक रहस्य को इस आख्यान के मिस मनोवैज्ञानिक रूप में प्रस्तुत करना पुराणकार का लक्ष्य रहा है।

४. खगोलीय/ज्योतिषीय आधार

पूर्व उल्लिखित ऐतरेय ब्रा. की गाथा का उत्तरार्द्ध प्रजापति-नक्षत्र समूह (ORION) अथवा रोहिणी-शकट का रूपकात्मक विवरण प्रस्तुत करता है। ब्रह्म पु. के पंचतीर्थ-माहात्म्य वर्णन में इसी की कथा का रूप दिया गया है। उसमें कथावाचक स्वयं ब्रह्मा हैं। उन्होंने कहा है कि सावित्री, गायत्री, श्रद्धा, मेधा और सरस्वती मेरी ज्येष्ठ कन्याएँ हैं। इनमें एक को मैंने अलौकिक रूपवती बनाया। उसके अद्वितीय सौन्दर्य को देख स्वयं मेरी बुद्धि विकृत हो गयी। कामवश मैंने जब उसे पकड़ना चाहा, तब वह भाग खड़ी हुई। जब वह मृगी बन कर भागने लगी, तब मैंने मृग बन कर उसका पीछा किया। यह देख लोकपालों के रक्षार्थ प्रभु मृग-व्याध का रूप धारण कर, धनुष ताने मेरे पीछे-पीछे दौड़े।

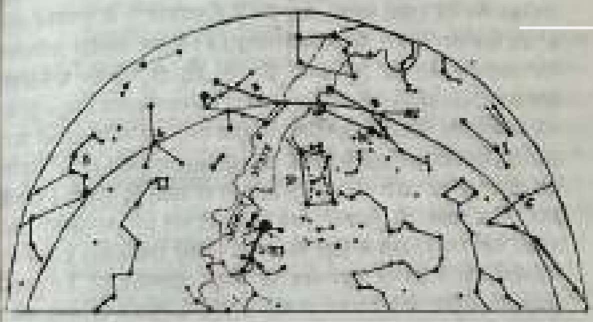
उन्होंने मुझसे कहा—मैं तुम्हारा क्या करूँगा ?' फलतः उनसे भिन्न मुद्रा का मैंने अपनी कन्या विवस्वान् को सौंप दी[?]। इसे आकाशीय चित्र से समझा जा सकता है—

रो. = रोहिणी (मृगी)
प्र. = प्रजापति (मृग)



रो.-रोहिणी, प्र.-प्रजापति, 1. मेष, 2. वृष, 3. कन्या, 4. कर्क, 5. सिंह, 6. मीन

ऊपरि चित्र का नक्षत्र-समूह उत्तरी गोलार्द्ध (भारत सहित एशिया, यूरोप उत्तरी अमेरिका) में शिशिर ऋतु (पौष-माघ, स्थूलतः मध्य दिसंबर से मध्य फरवरी) की रात्रियों के प्रथम प्रहर में दक्षिण की ओर देखने पर सिर के ऊपर दिखायी पड़ता है। द्वितीय प्रहर में यह पश्चिम की ओर ढलने लगता है, तब गाथा में वर्णित दृश्य प्रत्यक्ष हो उठता है। चित्र में, आकाश-गंगा के पश्चिम, दिखायी पड़ने वाला वृहत् और चमकीला नक्षत्र-समूह प्रजापति (Constellation of ORION) है। प्राचीन भारतीय ज्योतिर्विदों के अनुसार प्रजापति नक्षत्र-समूह में पाँच प्रमुख नक्षत्र हैं—रोहिणी (Aldebaran), मृगशिरा, आर्द्रा, मृगव्याध (Sirius) और पुनर्वसु (Pollux)। अपेक्षया पृथ्वी और चंद्रमा के भ्रमण-पथ के निकट रोहिणी दिखायी पड़ती है। रोहिणी का अर्थ मृगी (रोहित) है। यह वृष राशि (Taurus) का सर्वाधिक चमकीला और रक्तवर्णी नक्षत्र है। रोहिणी के पीछे उत्तर-पूर्व में (बायीं ओर) उसका अनुगमन करने वाला मृगरूप धारी प्रजापति (ORION) बीच में है। चतुष्कोण बनाने वाले प्रजापति-समूह के चार तारे ही मृग की चार टाँगें हैं एवं चतुष्कोण के ऊपर दिखायी पड़ने वाला तीन तारों से निर्मित त्रिकोण ही मृग का सिर अर्थात् मृगशिरा नक्षत्र है—'एतद् वै प्रजापतेः

शिरो यन्मृगशीर्षम् (शतपथ ब्रा. 2/1/2/8)। उसके नीचे उत्तर-पूर्व में (कानि का) दिखाई पड़ने वाले 'मृग-व्याध' रूपी रुद्र (Canis Major या Great Dog) की आकृति अगल-बगल के तारों को मिला कर बनती है—लगता है कि कोई व्यक्ति (व्याध) कमर में शस्त्र लटकाए, एक हाथ में धनुष लिए मृगरूपधारी प्रजापति का पीछा कर रहा है। वह बाण छोड़ चुका है। मृग के शरीर के अंदर एक रेखा में अवस्थित तीन तारे (आर्द्रा नक्षत्र ; लोकभाषा में तीनडंडिया) ही मृगव्याध रुद्र के द्वारा छोड़े गए त्रिकांड बाण (इषुस्त्रिकाण्डः) हैं। प्राचीन भारतीय खगोलविदों ने जिस तारा-समूह को रुद्र (मृग-व्याध) कहा है, उसे ही पश्चिमी खगोलविदों ने बृहत्श्वान (Canis Major या Great Dog) कहा है। रुद्र-मृगव्याध तारा-समूह का ही नहीं, अपितु संपूर्ण गोलार्द्ध का सर्वाधिक चमकीला तारा 'मृग-व्याध' (Sirius या Dog Star) है। मृग-व्याध (Sirus) से रोहिणी (Aldebaran) तक एक सीध में काल्पनिक रेखा खींचने पर वह आर्द्रा (ORION'S BELT) से होकर ही गुजरेगी। रोहिणी के ऊपर दायीं ओर वाले (छह, पाश्चात्य मिथक के अनुसार सात जिन्हें 'सप्तभगिनी'—Seven Sisters कहा गया है) तारों के समूह की आख्या कृत्तिका (Pleiades) है। शास्त्रों एवं ज्योतिषीय ग्रंथों में इस पूरे नक्षत्र-मंडल की आख्या 'रोहिणी शकट' है। बृहत्संहिता (47/4) के अनुसार रोहिणी-शकट के बीच से शनि के गुजरने पर बारह वर्षों तक वर्षा नहीं होती है। तैत्तिरीय सं. (4/4/10) में विभिन्न नक्षत्रों और उनके स्वामियों के उल्लेख हुए हैं। तदनुसार रोहिणी के स्वामी प्रजापति (रोहिणी नक्षत्रं प्रजापतिर्देवता) एवं आर्द्रा के स्वामी रुद्र (आर्द्रा नक्षत्रं रुद्रो देवता) कहे गए हैं। इससे भी आख्यान के खगोलीय आधार का संकेत होता है।

प्रजानाथं नाथ प्रसभमभिकं स्वां दुहितरं/गतं रोहिद्भूतां रिरमयिषुमृष्यस्य वपुषा।
धनुष्पाणेर्यातं दिवमपि सपत्राकृतममुं/त्रसन्तं तेऽद्यापि त्यजति न मृगव्याधरभसः॥

. Astronomical/Astrological Basis

The latter part of the previously mentioned Aitareya Brahmana legend presents an allegorical depiction of the Prajapati–Nakshatra constellation group (ORION) or the Rohini-Shakat (the chariot of Rohini). In the Brahma Purana's description of the sanctity of the Panchatirtha (the five sacred spots), this has been presented as a narrative. In this tale, the narrator is Brahma himself. He says:

"Savitri, Gayatri, Shraddha, Medha, and Saraswati are my eldest daughters. I made one of them extraordinarily beautiful. On seeing her unparalleled beauty, my intellect became deluded. Driven by desire, when I tried to seize her, she fled. When she transformed into a deer and ran away, I too became a deer and chased her. Witnessing this, for the protection of cosmic order (lokadharma), Shambhu (Shiva) assumed the form of a deer-hunter, drew his bow, and began chasing after me."

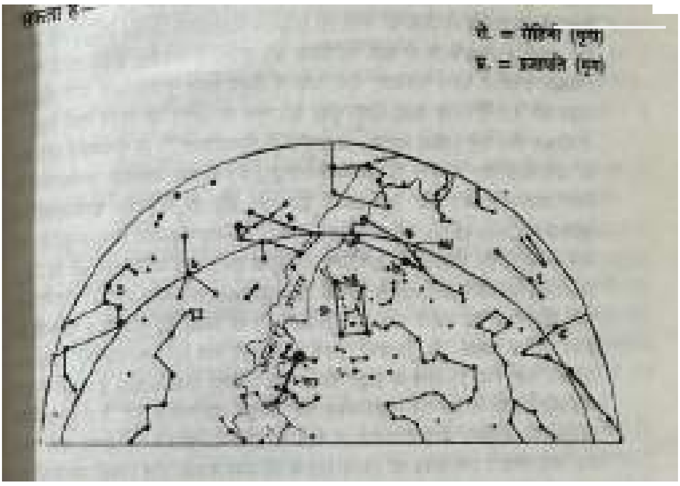
He said to me, "I shall slay you." As a result, freeing myself from him, I handed over that daughter of mine to Vivasvan (the Sun God).



This can be understood through the sky chart marked above. The constellation depicted in the chart appears overhead when looking southward during the early part of the night in the winter season (Paush–Magh months, roughly mid-December to mid-February) in the Northern Hemisphere (including India, Asia, Europe, and North America). During the second watch of the night, it begins to descend westward, and at that time, the scene described in the legend visually manifests.

In the chart, the large and luminous star group seen to the west of the Milky Way is Prajapati (the constellation of ORION). According to ancient Indian astronomers, there are five major stars or nakshatras (lunar mansions) in the Prajapati constellation group: Rohini (Aldebaran), Mrigashira, Ardra, Mrigavyadha (Siriu and Punarvasu (Pollux).

Rohini is visible relatively to the right, near the Moon's orbital path. The term Rohini literally means "the doe" (female deer, Rohit). It is the brightest and reddish star in the Taurus constellation. Below Rohini, toward the northeast (to the left), Prajapati (ORION), in the form of a deer pursuing her, is seen in the middle.

The four stars that form a quadrilateral in the Prajapati group represent the four legs of the deer, and the triangle formed by three stars appearing above this quadrilateral is the head of the deer, i.e., the Mrigashira nakshatra — "Etad vai Prajapateh..." (This indeed is of Prajapati).

The head is what is called Mrigashirsha (the Head of the Deer)" (Shatapatha Brahmana 2.1.2.8). Below it, toward the northeast (to the left), appears the figure of Rudra as the Deer-Hunter (Mrigavyadha), formed by connecting the stars of Canis Major or the Great Dog. It looks like a man (a hunter), with a weapon tied at his waist, holding a bow in one hand and chasing the deer-shaped Prajapati. He has already released an arrow.

Inside the body of the deer, there are three stars aligned in a row (these correspond to the Ardra Nakshatra, popularly known as "Teen Dandiyan" or "Three Sticks" in folk language). These three stars are the three-parted arrow (Trikanda Vaan) shot by Rudra in the form of the Mrigavyadha.

The star cluster that ancient Indian astronomers referred to as Rudra (the Deer-Hunter) is the same one Western astronomers named Canis Major or the Great Dog. The brightest star not only in this group but in the entire visible hemisphere is the Mrigavyadha (Sirius or the Dog Star).

If one draws an imaginary straight line from Mrigavyadha (Sirius) to Rohini (Aldebaran), it will pass directly through Ardra (Orion's Belt). Above Rohini and toward the right, there is a cluster of six stars (called seven in Western mythology, known as the Seven Sisters or Pleiades) — this group is called Krittika in Indian astronomy.

In scriptures and astrological texts, this entire star region is referred to as Rohini-Shakat (the Chariot of Rohini). According to the Brihat Samhita (47.4), if Saturn passes through the center of Rohini-Shakat, it causes a drought lasting twelve years.

The Taittiriya Samhita (4.4.10) mentions various nakshatras and their presiding deities. Accordingly, Rohini's deity is Prajapati (Rohini Nakshatram Prajapatir Devata), and Ardra's deity is Rudra (Ardra Nakshatram Rudro Devata). This also points to the astronomical basis of the myth.

The Mahabharata narrative (Sauptika Parva, Chapter 18) also supports this celestial interpretation. According to it, during the sacrificial ritual (Devayajna), Rudra did not receive his share, and thus, angered, he went to the sacrificial site with bow and arrow. Seeing him enraged, the gods were terrified. Rudra, in his fury, struck the heart of the yajna (i.e., Prajapati) with an arrow. Then the yajna, along with Agni (fire), took the form of a deer and fled, eventually rising into the sky and becoming the constellation of Prajapati. Even in the sky, Rudra, in the form of Mrigavyadha, continues to pursue him — his arrow being the three stars of Ardra (Orion's Belt).

A partial version of this story is also found in the tale of Daksha Yajna's destruction (Mahabharata 12.288.36 onward).

Pushpadanta was fully aware of the astronomical facts related to the Aitareya Brahmana (3.3.9) tale. The twenty-second verse of his Shivamahimna Stotra seems to be directly inspired by this:

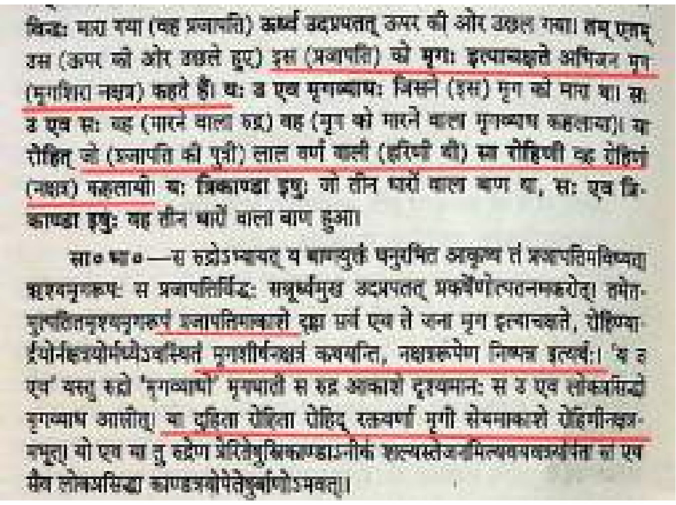
प्रजानायं नाथ प्रसभमभिकं स्वां दुहितरं गतं रोहिद्भूतां रिरमयिषुमृष्यस्य व्युषा । धनुष्पाणेर्यातं दिवमपि सपत्राकृतममुं त्रसन्तं तेऽद्यापि त्यजति न

मृगव्याधरभसः ।।

This interpretation is given by Acharya Sayana in his Commentary on Aitareya Brahmana 3/33 and as well

सा० भा०- स रुद्रोऽभ्यायत् य बाणयुक्तं धनुरभित आकृष्य तं प्रजापतिमविध्यत्। ऋश्यमृगरूपः स प्रजापतिर्विद्धः सन्नूर्ध्वमुख उदप्रपतत् प्रकर्षेणोत्पतनमकरोत्। तमेत-मुत्पतितमृश्यमृगरूपं प्रजापतिमाकाशे दृष्ट्वा सर्व एव ते जना मृग इत्याचक्षते, रोहिण्या-र्द्रयोर्नक्षत्रयोर्मध्येऽवस्थितं मृगशीर्षनक्षत्रं कथयन्ति, नक्षत्ररूपेण निष्पन्न इत्यर्थः। 'य उ एव' यस्तु रुद्रो 'मृगव्याधो' मृगघाती स रुद्र आकाशे दृश्यमानः स उ एव लोकप्रसिद्धो मृगव्याध आसीत्। या दुहिता रोहिता रोहिद् रक्तवर्णा मृगी सेयमाकाशे रोहिणीनक्षत्र-मभूत्। यो एव या तु रुद्रेण प्रेरितेषुस्त्रिकाण्डाऽनीकं शल्यस्तेजनमित्यवयवत्रयोपेता सो एव सैव लोकप्रसिद्धा काण्डत्रयोपेतेषुर्बाणोऽमवत्।।

That Rudra approached, who had a bow with an arrow set upon it, and having fully drawn it, he struck Prajāpati. Prajāpati, who had taken the form of a Ṛśya-mṛga (a kind of antelope or deer), was hit, and looking upwards, he leapt up — he made a great upward flight.
Seeing this Prajāpati in the form of an Ṛśya-mṛga who had thus leapt into the sky, all the people (sages, observers) began to call it 'Mṛga' (deer).
They refer to the Mṛgaśīrṣa Nakṣatra (a lunar constellation) as being located between the stars Rohiṇī and Ārdrā — meaning it has become established in the form of a star (nakṣatra).
The one who (shot the arrow), that Rudra, who is the 'Mṛgavyādha' (hunter of the deer), is seen in the sky — he himself became the popularly known figure of the celestial Mṛgavyādha (hunter of the deer).
And the daughter, the reddish-colored deer-like one (mṛgī), who is Rohiṇī (literally meaning 'reddish' or 'blood-colored'), she became the celestial star Rohiṇī in the sky.
And that very object (the arrow) which Rudra sent forth — composed of three parts: Trikāṇḍa (threefold shaft), Śalya (the point), and Tejana (the fiery power) — that itself became the celestial arrow seen in the sky, renowned for its triple structure



विद्धः मारा गया (वह प्रजापति) ऊर्ध्व उदप्रपतत् ऊपर की ओर उछल गया। तम् एतम् उस (ऊपर की ओर उछले हुए) इस (प्रजापति) को मृगः इत्याचक्षते अभिजन मृग (मृगशिरा नक्षत्र) कहते हैं। यः उ एव मृगव्याधः जिसने (इस) मृग को मारा था। स उ एव सः वह (मारने वाला रुद्र) वह (मृग को मारने वाला मृगव्याध कहलाया)। या रोहित् जो (प्रजापति की पुत्री) लाल वर्ण वाली (हरिणी थी) सा रोहिणी वह रोहिणी (नक्षत्र) कहलायी। यः त्रिकाण्डा इषुः जो तीन धारों वाला बाण था, सः एव त्रि-काण्डा इषुः वह तीन धारों वाला बाण हुआ।

Shatapatha Brahmana (2/1/2/8-9) too states that the Mrigashira Nakshatra is referred to as Prajapati (Brahma) and Rohini Nakshatra as the daughter of Prajapati (Brahma) (Mrigashira Nakshatra)

रोहिणी नक्षत्र में ही पशु अग्नियों का आधान करते हैं कि मनुष्यों की इच्छा तक चढ़ सकें (रोहेम)। उन्होंने मनुष्यों की कामनाओं तक रोहण किया। और जो कामना पशुओं की मनुष्यों के प्रति पूरी हुई, वही पशुओं के प्रति उसकी पूरी होगी जो इस रहस्य को समझकर रोहिणी नक्षत्र में अग्न्याधान करता है ।।७।।
मृगशीर्ष नक्षत्र में भी अग्न्याधान हो सकता है, क्योंकि मृगशीर्ष प्रजापति का सिर है। श्री ही शिर है। इसलिए जो मनुष्य जाति में श्रेष्ठ होता है उसको कहते हैं कि यह जाति का शिर है। जो इस रहस्य को समझकर मृगशीर्ष नक्षत्र में अग्न्याधान करता है वह श्री को प्राप्त होगा ।।८।।
अब मृगशीर्ष नक्षत्र में अग्न्याधान न करने की (युक्ति कुछ लोग यह देते हैं) कि यह प्रजापति का शरीर है। जब इसको देवों ने त्रिकाण्ड तीर से बींधा तो कहते हैं कि उसने शरीर त्याग दिया। इसलिए यह शरीर केवल वास्तु, अयज्ञिय (यज्ञ न करने योग्य) और निर्वीर्य हो गया । इसलिए मृगशीर्ष में अग्न्याधान न करेः।।६।।
परन्तु वह कर सकता है। यह जो प्रजापति का शरीर है, न तो वास्तु है, न ही अयज्ञिय और न निर्वीर्य (इसलिए मृगशीर्ष में अग्न्याधान करे) । पुनर्वसु नक्षत्र में पुनराधेय कर्म करे। ऐसा आदेश है ।।१०।।

“One should also perform the ignition of the sacred fire (Agnyaadhan) during the Rohini Nakshatra, because it was during Rohini Nakshatra that Prajapati, desiring progeny, performed Agnyaadhan. As a result, progeny was born, uniform and flawless, resembling Rohini (the red cow). Therefore, Rohini Nakshatra is considered similar to the Rohini cow.
Hence, whoever understands this secret and performs Agnyaadhan during Rohini Nakshatra flourishes with offspring and cattle. (Verse 6)

It is also during Rohini Nakshatra that the sacrificial fires related to animals are established, so that they may ascend to the level of human desires (Rohem – rise).
The fires rose to fulfill human desires.
And just as the animals' desires toward humans were fulfilled, so too will the humans' desires toward the animals be fulfilled — for the one who, understanding this secret, performs Agnyaadhan during Rohini Nakshatra. (Verse 7)

Agnyaadhan can also be performed during the Mrigashirsha Nakshatra, because Mrigashirsha is considered the head of Prajapati.
'Shri' (wealth, prosperity) is connected with the 'head.'
Therefore, the one who is foremost among a community is called 'the head of the community.'

Thus, whoever understands this secret and performs Agnyaadhan during Mrigashirsha Nakshatra will attain prosperity (Shri). (Verse 8)

Now, some people argue against performing Agnyaadhan during Mrigashirsha Nakshatra, saying that it represents the body of Prajapati.
When the gods pierced it with a threefold arrow (Trikanda Teer), it is said that he (Prajapati) abandoned his body.
Hence, they claim, this body became merely a physical mass, unfit for sacrifice (Ayajniya), and devoid of potency (Nirvirya).
Therefore, according to them, Agnyaadhan should not be performed during Mrigashirsha. (Verse 9)

However, it can indeed be performed.
This body of Prajapati is neither a mere mass (Vastu), nor unfit for sacrifice (Ayajniya), nor devoid of potency (Nirvirya).
Thus, Agnyaadhan may be performed during Mrigashirsha.
During the Punarvasu Nakshatra, the rite of re-establishment (Punaradheya) should be performed.
Such is the instruction. (Verse 10)

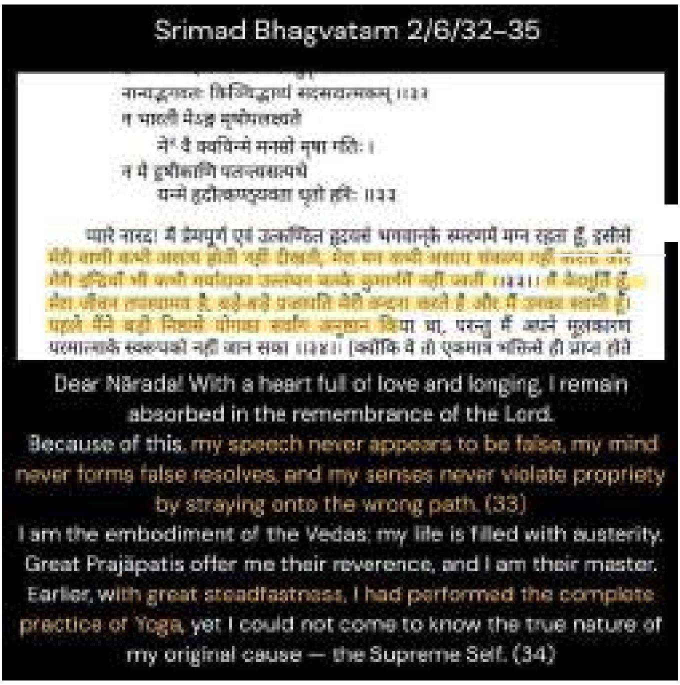
THE TRUE CHARACTER OF BRAHMA JI FROM SRIMAD BHAGAVATAM

Brahma Ji is the master of all his senses, never speaks falsehood, never strays from the righteous path, and remains ever devoted to penance and austerities.

Srimad Bhagvatam 2/6/32-35

प्यारे नारद ! मैं प्रेमपूर्ण एवं उत्कण्ठित हृदयसे भगवान्‌के स्मरणमें मग्न रहता हूँ, इसीसे मेरी वाणी कभी असत्य होती नहीं दीखती, मेरा मन कभी असत्य संकल्प नहीं करता और मेरी इन्द्रियाँ भी कभी मर्यादाका उल्लंघन करके कुमार्गमें नहीं जातीं ।। ३३ ।। मैं वेदमूर्ति हूँ, मेरा जीवन तपस्यामय है, बड़े-बड़े प्रजापति मेरी वन्दना करते हैं और मैं उनका स्वामी पहले मैंने बड़ी निष्ठासे योगका सर्वांग अनुष्ठान किया था

Dear Nārada! With a heart full of love and longing, I remain absorbed in the remembrance of the Lord.
Because of this, my speech never appears to be false, my mind never forms false resolves, and my senses never violate propriety by straying onto the wrong path. (33)
I am the embodiment of the Vedas; my life is filled with austerity.
Great Prajāpatis offer me their reverence, and I am their master. Earlier, with great steadfastness, I had performed the complete practice of Yoga, yet I could not come to know the true nature of my original cause the Supreme Self. (34)



Srimad Bhagvatam 2/9/3-8 Geeta Press Gorakhpur

ब्रह्माजीकी निष्कपट तपस्यासे प्रसन्न होकर भगवान्ने उन्हें अपने रूपका दर्शन कराया और आत्म-तत्त्वके ज्ञानके लिये उन्हें परम सत्य परमार्थ वस्तुका उपदेश किया (वही बात मैं तुम्हें सुनाता हूँ) ।।४।।
तीनों लोकोंके परम गुरु आदिदेव ब्रह्माजी अपने जन्मस्थान कमलपर बैठकर सृष्टि करनेकी इच्छासे विचार करने लगे . ब्रह्माजी तपस्वियोंमें सबसे बड़े तपस्वी हैं। उनका ज्ञान अमोघ है। उन्होंने उस समय एक सहस्र दिव्य वर्षपर्यन्त एकाग्र चित्तसे अपने प्राण, मन, कर्मेन्द्रिय और ज्ञानेन्द्रियोंको वशमें करके ऐसी तपस्या की, जिससे वे समस्त लोकोंको प्रकाशित करनेमें समर्थ हो सके ।।८।।

Pleased with Brahmā's sincere and guileless austerity, the Lord granted him a vision of His own form and instructed him in the Supreme Truth – the ultimate reality so that he might gain knowledge of the Self. (4)
The supreme preceptor of the three worlds, the primordial deity Brahmā, seated upon the lotus – his place of birth – began to contemplate with the desire to create the universe.
Brahmā is the greatest of all ascetics. His knowledge is unfailing. At that time, for a thousand divine years, with a concentrated mind, he brought his life-breath, mind, organs of action, and organs of perception under control, performing such austerity that he became capable of illuminating all the worlds. (8)

Srimad Bhagvatam 3/9/34-37 Geeta Press Gorakhpur

ब्रह्माजी ! नाना प्रकारके कर्मसंस्कारोंके अनुसार अनेक प्रकारकी जीवसृष्टिको रचनेकी इच्छा होनेपर भी तुम्हारा चित्त मोहित नहीं होता, यह मेरी अतिशय कृपाका ही फल है ।।३४।। तुम सबसे पहले मन्त्रद्रष्टा हो। प्रजा उत्पन्न करते समय भी तुम्हारा मन मुझमें ही लगा रहता है, इसीसे पापमय रजोगुण तुमको बाँध नहीं पाता ।।३५।। तुम मुझे भूत, इन्द्रिय, गुण और अन्तःकरणसे रहित समझते हो; इससे जान पड़ता है कि यद्यपि देहधारी जीवोंको मेरा ज्ञान होना बहुत कठिन है, तथापि तुमने मुझे जान लिया है ।।३६।। 'मेरा आश्रय कोई है या नहीं' इस सन्देहसे तुम कमलनालके द्वारा जलमें उसका मूल खोज रहे थे, सो मैंने तुम्हें अपना यह स्वरूप अन्तःकरणमें ही दिखलाया है ।।३७।।

O Brahmā! Even though, according to various karmic impressions, you have the desire to create many kinds of living beings, your mind is not deluded this is solely the result of My supreme grace. (34)

You are the very first seer of the mantras. Even while producing the creation, your mind remains fixed on Me; therefore, the sinful quality of rajas cannot bind you. (35)

You understand Me to be devoid of elements, senses, qualities, and the inner organ (mind); this shows that, although it is extremely difficult for embodied beings to know Me, you have indeed realized Me. (36)

When you wondered, “Do I have a source or not?” and searched for its root in the water through the stalk of the lotus, I revealed this very form of Mine to you within your own heart. (37)

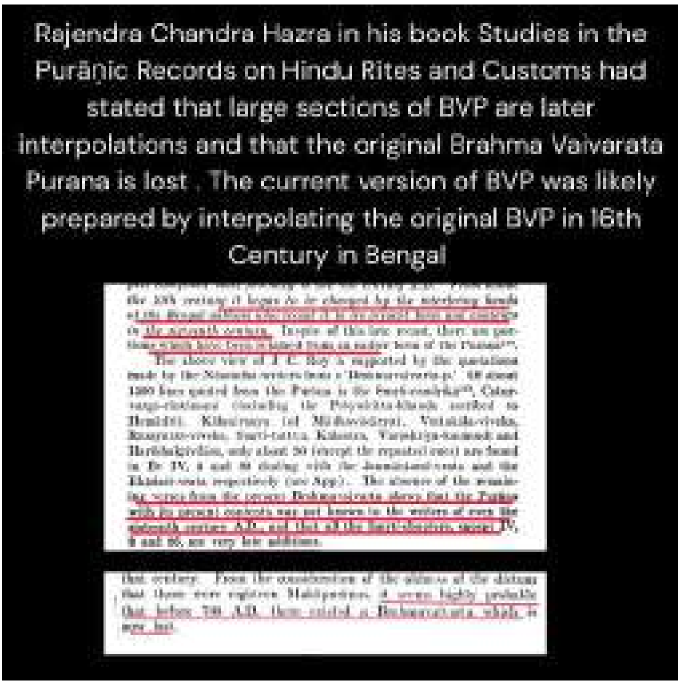
2. Ashwinkumar Raped a Brahmin Lady

📚Brahma Viavarta Purana Brahma Khanda 10.126-128📚
Sauti said, "A Brahmana lady was on her way to pilgrimage. When she reached a lonely orchard with beautiful flower beds, Asvani Kumara felt attracted towards her. Finding her most beautiful and attractive, Asvani Kumara, forcibly cohabited with her against her wishes. She dropped the focus then and there in the orchard, but a son with the complexion of the heated gold was born

Refutation-

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

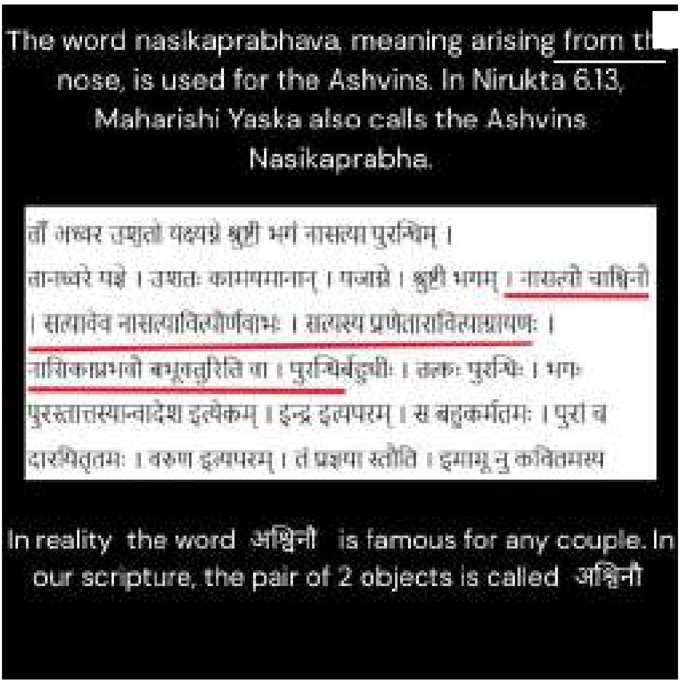
The word nasikaprabhava, meaning arising from the nose, is used for the Ashvins. In Nirukta 6.13, Maharishi Yaska also calls the Ashvins Nasikaprabha. नासत्यौ चाश्विनौ । सत्यावेव

नासत्यावित्यौर्णवाभः । सत्यस्य प्रणेतारावित्याग्रायणः । नासिकाप्रभवौ बभूवतुरिति वा । पुरन्धिर्बहुधीः

In reality the word अश्विनौ is famous for any couple. In our scripture, the pair of 2 objects is called अश्विनौ



In Kathaka Samhita 13.5 the Earth and the Sky are told to be the twin अश्विनौ

वा अश्विनौ तान् द्यावापृथिवीभ्यामेवावस्तान्निबाध्यादित्येन परस्ताद्राच्या अनुदन्त

Similarly, in Maitreya Samhita 3.4.4, day and night are called twin अश्विनौ

अहोरात्रे वा अश्विना, अहोरात्रे एवास्यैतेनाभीष्टे प्रीते भवतः, सजूः सूरा एतशेनेति

Similarly, Prana and Apana are also Ashvins. They originate from the nose, hence they are called nasal origin.

3. Brihaspati Raped his Brother's Wife- Mamatha

📚Shrimad Bhagavatham 9.20.36📚
When the demigod named Brhaspati was attracted by his brother's wife, Mamata, who at that time was pregnant, he desired to have sexual relations with her. The son within her womb forbade this, but Brhaspati cursed him and forcibly discharged semen into the womb of Mamata."

📚Shiva Purana 5.4.38📚
The excellent sage Brhaspati deluded by Siva's Mayã had sexual intercourse with his brother's wife and Bharadvãja was born."

📚Matsya Purana 49.17-28📚
Suta said : — Brihaspati, whilst staying on Earth, one day saw the wife of his brother, Usija, who was big with child, and addressed her thus: — " Dress thyself well and let us enjoy." She, being thus addressed, replied to Brihaspati thus : — " The embryo in my womb is mature and is already reciting the Vedas, Thy seed will also not be fruitless and thy proposal is sinful." Hearing which, Brihaspati said : — " I need not be taught morality by thee, o sweet one." After saying that, he carried out his desire by force ; when on the verge of his final enjoyment, the child from her womb cried out to Brihaspati : — " I have entered the womb first, o Brihaspati, thy seed will also not go in vain. There is no room for a second body in this womb." Brihaspati being thus addressed by the child in the womb, replied in anger : — Because on such an occasion, dear to every creature, thou preventest me from enjoyment, thou shouldst see lasting darkness [Dirghatamas]."

📚Brahmanda Purana 3.74.37-44📚
The younger brother of Usija was the priest of heaven-dwellers named Brhaspati, He had a great deal of effulgence. He approached Mamatà. Mamata who did not like Brhaspati said to him- "T am the wife of your elder brother and I am pregnant too. This child in my womb, O Brhaspati, yells con- stantly practising the recitation of the Vedas along with their Angas (ancillary subjects). You too are Amogharetas (one whose semen never goes in vain). It does not behove you, O lord, to approach me on this occasion or in the manner you think." Though told thus clearly Brhaspati of great effulgence could not resist the passionate impulse of himself, although he was a noble soul. The righteous-souled Brhaspati did indeed have sexual intercourse with her. Even as he was discharging the seminal fluid, the child in the womb spoke to him. "Do not discharge semen O Bṛhaspati. There is no space here for two. You are one whose semen never goes in vain. But I have come here before." On being told thus, the exalted sage Bṛhaspati, became infuriated then. He cursed the son of his brother Uśija, though he was yet in the womb."

📚Devi Bhagavatam 4.15.59-64📚
Look! The Moon stole away perforce knowingly the wife of Brihaspatī; Indra, knowing what is religion stole away the wife of Gautama; Brihaspatī enjoyed forcibly the wife of his younger; and also he outraged his elder brother's wife in her pregnant state and cursed the boy in the womb..."

📚Vayu Purana 2.37.38-45📚
Not desirous of having sexual intercourse with him, Mamata spoke thus to Brhaspati : am pregnant due to my contact with your elder brother. This is the eighth (month). O Brhaspati, this great child in the womb cries much. The son of Aiija that he is, he has learned the Vedas with their six ancillaries and he repeats the Vedic Mantras. Your semen virile too is never-failing. It does not behove you to have sexual intercourse with me, O holy lord, when the period (of gestation) lapses (you may do) as you deem fit. Though emphatically told thus by her, the noble-souled Brhaspati of excessive refulgence did not restrain himself, as he was overwhelmed by passion. The virtuous-souled Brhaspati did have his sexual intercourse with her. Even as he was discharging the semen virile, the child in the womb spoke thus : Snataka (a Brahmana who just had his sacred ablution after completing his Vedic study) shall deposit his (semen virile) here. There is no space here for two. You too are one with never-failing semen virile. I have come here first. Brhaspati, the sage of divine attributes, became infuriated on being told thus. He cursed the son of Asija, his brother, who was yet in the womb: "You have spoken thus to me on an occasion coveted by all living beings. Since you have spoken thus out of delusion, you will enter a long period of darkness."

बृहस्पति और ममता

पुराणों पर एक यह भी आक्षेप किया जाया करता है कि उन में बृहस्पति का ममता से बलात्कार करना लिखा है। कहा जाता है कि बृहस्पति ने अपने बड़े भाई उतथ्य की धर्मपत्नी ममता से गर्भावस्था में ही बार बार हटाने पर भी हठात् मैथुन किया, जब गर्भस्थ बालक ने बृहस्पति का वीर्य अन्दर न जाने दिया तो उसके बाहिर गिरते ही उससे 'भरद्वाज' मुनि की उत्पत्ति हुई, एवं बृहस्पति ने क्रुद्ध होकर गर्भस्थ बालक को जन्मान्ध हो जाने का शाप दिया, जिससे दीर्घतमा ऋषि उत्पन्न हुये। यह कथा

वास्तविक भाव

वास्तविक भाव

उपर्युक्त दोनों स्वरूपों की तुलना करने पर प्रत्येक साक्षर इस आख्यान की वैदिकता का अच्छी तरह अनुमान कर सकता है। कई तुच्छबुद्धि जन इस कथा से नियोग भी सिद्ध करना चाहा करते हैं, परन्तु उन्हें यह विदित नहीं कि इससे तो आप के माने हुये नियोग की उल्टी धज्जियें उड़ जाती हैं। क्योंकि आपके यहाँ नियोग का लक्षण यही तो है कि 'सन्तान के लिए पति की आज्ञा से या उसके मरने पर किसी परपुरुष से इच्छापूर्वक भोग करना।' उक्त कथा में इन तीनों बातों का सर्वथा अभाव है। क्योंकि सन्तान तो पूर्व ही ममता के गर्भ में विद्यमान थी। पति आज्ञा का इसमें लेशमात्र भी नहीं और ममता अन्त तक इस कार्य के सर्वथा प्रतिकूल ही रही है। अतः इसे खुला व्यभिचार या बलात्कार ही कह सकते हैं। अगर आप की सम्मति में नियोग भी इसी का का नाम है तब तो आप के इस धार्मिक कृत्य पर सौ २ बार बलिहारी! आशा है कि प्रतिवादी अब इससे नियोग सिद्ध करने का साहस नहीं दिखायेंगे। रहा इसकी वास्तविकता का विचार, सो हम वैदिक शब्दों में ही प्रकट करते हैं। वेदों में लिखा है कि—

(क) वाग्वै बृहती (शतपथ १४ । ४ । १ । २२)

(ख) पतिः पालयिता (निरुक्त अ० १० खं० २१)

अर्थात्—(क) यह वाक् ही बृहती कही जाती है। (ख) पति रक्षक को कहते हैं।

सो पुरुष का मन ही बृहस्पति कहलाता है: क्योंकि 'यन्मनसाऽनुमनुते तद्वाचा वदति' इस श्रुति के अनुसार पहिले मन में जो भाव उदित होता है वही पश्चात् वाणी से बोला जाता है। अतः मनः ही वाणी का पति कहला सकता है। इसका ज्येष्ठ भ्राता जीवात्मा ही उतथ्य है। 'तथ्य' शब्द का अर्थ सत्य है और 'उ' शब्द वितर्क द्योतक है: अर्थात् जिसकी सत्यता में वितर्क हो वह 'उतथ्य' कहा जाता है। अतः यह जीव—'जीवरूपेण सत्य किंवा—'ब्रह्मविद् ब्रह्मैव भवति' के अनुसार ब्रह्मरूपेण सत्य है?'—ऐसा विचार जीवात्मा के विषय में निरन्तर बना रहता है। द्वैत-अद्वैत-विशिष्टाद्वैत आदि सिद्धान्त इसी एक 'उ' के चमत्कार हैं। 'ममता' शब्द की विशेष व्याख्या करने की आवश्यकता नहीं क्योंकि प्रचलित भाषा में भी किसी वस्तु में विशेष आसक्त होना या उसमें रागाधिक्य रखना, ममत्व-ममता किंवा मामता कही जाती है, जो कि माया का ही विशेष स्वरूप है। 'दीर्घतमा' का अर्थ घोर अन्धकार है, जिसे दूसरे शब्दों में अज्ञान या मोह कहा जा सकता है। इसी प्रकार 'वीर्य' शब्द भी पराक्रम का वाचक है। अतः आध्यात्मिक पक्ष में इसका सीधा अर्थ यही होगा कि जीवात्मा रूप उतथ्य की स्त्री ममता 'ममत्वयुक्त' तादृश वृत्ति के गर्भ में मोहरूप दीर्घतमा थे। बृहस्पति मन ने इस वृत्ति में अपने वीर्य-सामर्थ्य का संचार करना चाहा, परन्तु जब तक ममता के गर्भ में मोह घुसा बैठा हो तब तक मानसी शक्ति का संचार होना सर्वथा कठिन है। वेद में इसी भाव को इस प्रकार प्रकट किया है—

अन्धं तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽविद्यामुपासते। (यजु: ४० । १२)

वृत्ति इन दोनों के पारस्परिक संघर्ष का परिणाम है अतः वह 'भरद्वाज' कहा जाता है। उत्पन्न हुवे आत्मज्ञान का यमनियमादि साधनों द्वारा ही परिपोषण होता है, अतः यही 'भरद्वाज' का देवताओं द्वारा रक्षित होने का अभिप्राय है। यही इस कथा का आध्यात्मिक भाव है। इतिहास पक्ष में वेदपुराणसमन्वयानुसार के देवतावाद-प्रचुरकल्पित दिव्य चरित्रों का मनन करने से सब शंकाएं काफूर हो जायेंगी। क्योंकि मनुष्ययोनि कर्मयोनि है अर्थात् इसमें किए गये शुभाशुभ कर्म भोगने पड़ते हैं और पशु पक्षी आदि तथा देव गन्धर्व आदि भोग-योनियें हैं इनमें पूर्व जन्मकृत अशुभ और शुभ कर्मों को केवल भोगना पड़ता है, अतः सूक्ष्म देवज्ञानव दिव्य शरीरधारी देवताओं के चरित्र स्थूल विकारी पांच भौतिक शरीरधारी मनुष्यों के लिए अनुकरणीय नहीं होते। इसके अतिरिक्त जहाँ यह कथा आती है वहाँ पर इसे कहीं भी धर्मसंगत नहीं कहा है। ऐतिहासिक ग्रन्थों में बुरी भली सभी प्रकार की घटनायें लिखी रहती हैं। उनसे सर्वसाधारण तादृश अनुकरण करने के लिए बाध्य हों सो बात नहीं है। हमारे विचार में यह कथा एक आलङ्कारिक आख्यायिका है परन्तु वेदव्यास जी ने पुराणों की विशिष्ट शैली के अनुसार इसमें ऐतिहासिक अंश को भी सन्निविष्ट किया है, सो विश्लेषण करने पर इतना ज्ञात पड़ता है कि विशिष्ट हुवे भरतकुल का उत्तराधिकारी 'भरद्वाज' हुआ है।

रहा इसकी वास्तविकता का विचार, सो हम वैदिक शब्दों में ही प्रकट करते हैं। वेदों में लिखा है कि-

(निरुक्त अ० १० खं० २१)
अर्थात् (क) यह वाक् ही बृहती कही जाती है। (ख) पति रक्षक को कहते हैं। सो पुरुष का मन ही बृहस्पति कहलाता है क्योंकि 'यन्मनसाऽनुमनुते तेदू बाचा वदति' इस श्रुति के अनुसार पहिले मन में जो भाव उदित

होता है वही पश्चात् वाणी से बोला जाता है। अतः मनः ही वाणी का पति कहला सकता है। इसका ज्येष्ठ आता जीवात्मा ही उतथ्य है । 'तथ्य' शब्द का अर्थ सत्य है और 'उ' शब्द वितर्क द्योतक हैः अर्थात् जिसकी सत्यता में वितर्क हो वह 'उतथ्य' कहा जाता है। अतः यह जीव – 'जोवरूपेण सत्य किंवा 'ब्रह्मविद् ब्रह्मव भवति' के अनुसार ब्रह्मरूपेण सत्य है ?' – ऐसा विचार जीवात्मा के विषय में निरन्तर बना रहता है। द्वैत-अद्वैत विशिष्टाद्वैत आदि सिद्धान्त इसी एक 'उ' के चमत्कार हैं। 'ममता' शब्द की विशेष व्याख्या करने की आवश्यकता नहीं क्योंकि प्रचलित भाषा में भी किसी वस्तु में विशेष आसक्त होना या उसमें रागाधिक्य रखना, ममत्व-ममता किंवा मामता कही जाती है, जो कि माया का ही विशद स्वरूप है। 'दीर्घतमा' का अर्थ घोर अन्धकार है, जिसे दूसरे शब्दों में अज्ञान या मोह कहा जा सकता है। इसी प्रकार 'वीर्य' शब्द भी पराक्रम का पर्याय्य है। अतः आध्यात्मिक पक्ष में इसका सीधा अर्थ यही होगा कि जीमात्मा रूप उतथ्य की स्त्री ममता 'ममत्वयुक्त' तादृश वृत्ति के गर्भ में मोहरूप दीर्घतमा थे। बृहस्पति मन ने इस वृत्ति में अपने वीर्य-सामर्थ्य का संचार करना चाहा, परन्तु जब तक ममता के गर्भ में मोह घुसा बैठा हो तब तक मानसी शक्ति का संचार होना सर्वथा कठिन है। वेद में इसी भाव को इस प्रकार प्रकट किया है-
अन्धं तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽविद्यामुपासते । (यजुः ४० । १२)
अर्थात् – जो मनुष्य अविद्या के वंगुल में फंस जाते हैं वह घोर अन्धकार को प्राप्त होते हैं। अतः मन के हजार बार प्रयत्न करने पर भी ममता-गर्भस्थ मोह मानसिक बल का प्रवेश नहीं होने देता । कदाचित् गह मनःरूप बृहस्पति यथातथा अपने वीर्य सामर्थ्य को ममतावृत्ति के सन्निधान में भी प्रस्खलित करदे-फैलादे, तो उससे झात्मज्ञान रूप 'भरद्वाज' उत्पन्न होता है। क्योंकि 'आत्मज्ञान' मन और वृत्ति इन दोनों के पारस्परिक संघर्ष का परिणाम है अतः वह 'भरद्वाज' कहा जाता है। उत्पन्न हुवे ग्रात्मज्ञान का यमनियमादि साधनों द्वारा ही परिपोषण होता है, अतः यही 'भरद्वाज' का देवताओं द्वारा रक्षित होने का अभिप्राय है। यही इस कथा का आध्यात्मिक भाव है ।

As for its true significance, we express it using Vedic expressions:

- (a) Vāk vai Bṛhatī — "Speech indeed is called Bṛhatī." (Shatapatha Brahmana 14.4.1.22)
- (b) Patiḥ pālayitā — "A husband is the protector." (Nirukta, Chapter 10, Section 21)

Hence, the mind of a man is called Bṛhaspati, because—according to the Shruti (scriptural saying)—'What one contemplates with the mind, that alone one expresses through speech' (yan manasā anumanyate tad vācā vadati). First, the emotion arises in the mind…"

"What arises first in the mind is later expressed through speech. Therefore, the mind can be regarded as the 'husband' of speech. The 'elder' that comes from it is the jivātma (individual soul), which is referred to here as Utathya.

The word 'tathya' means 'truth,' and the prefix 'u' signifies doubt or questioning — thus, 'Utathya' refers to 'that which is questioned in its truthfulness.' In this way, constant inquiry continues about the nature of the soul — whether, being of the form of consciousness, it is truly real, or, as the Upanishadic saying goes, brahmavid brahmaiva bhavati — 'The knower of Brahman becomes Brahman.' Philosophical doctrines such as Dvaita (dualism), Advaita (non-dualism), and Vishishtadvaita (qualified non-dualism) are all intricate elaborations based on this single mysterious prefix 'u'.

The term 'Mamata' requires no special interpretation. In commonly understood language, it signifies deep attachment to or excessive fondness for something — also referred to as possessiveness or egoistic attachment, which is essentially a manifestation of Maya (illusion or cosmic delusion).

The term 'Dirghatama' means 'profound darkness,' which in other words stands for ignorance or delusion. Likewise, the term 'Virya' also means valor or potency. So, in spiritual terms, the meaning becomes clear: the soul (Utathya)'s consort Mamata, who is imbued with egoistic attachment, had in her womb a conception called Dirghatama (darkness/delusion).

The mind, symbolized by Brihaspati, wished to infuse this disposition with the power of its Virya (potency/energy). However, as long as delusion (moha) resides in the womb of Mamata (attachment), the transmission of mental or spiritual power becomes nearly impossible.

This idea is expressed in the Vedas as:
'Andham tamaḥ praviśanti ye'vidyām upāsate' —
"They enter into blinding darkness, those who worship ignorance." (Yajurveda 40.12)"

"That is — those human beings who become entangled in the snare of avidyā (ignorance) attain profound darkness. Therefore, even after countless efforts by the mind, the moha (delusion) residing in the womb of Mamata (attachment) does not allow the entry of mental or spiritual force.

Even if, by chance, the mind in the form of Bṛhaspati — out of weariness or helplessness — ends up spilling or discharging its vīrya-power (potency) in the presence of such an egoistic tendency (Mamata-vṛtti), then the result is the birth of Bharadvāja, who symbolizes ātmajñāna (self-knowledge).

Because self-knowledge is the result of the mutual struggle between the mind (manas) and the tendencies (vṛtti), it is thus called Bharadvāja. The nourishment and growth of this born self-knowledge (Bharadvāja) occur only through disciplines such as restraint and spiritual practices — and so, the idea of the 'gods protecting Bharadvāja' refers to this very nurturing process. This, then, is the spiritual essence of the story.

4. Indra Raped Ahalya

Refutation-

Indra is called the जार (Destroyer) of Ahalya (Night) in these sections of Shruti :

ShadVimsa Brahmana 1.1: -अहल्यायै जारोऽसी।अहलायाया ह मैत्रेय्या जार आस that is Indra is Destroyer of Ahilya

Shatpath Brahmana 3.3.4.18: -अहल्यायै जारोऽसी that is Indra (Sun) is destroyed of Ahilya (Night)

Satapatha Brahmana 4.5.9.4 says वै शुक्रो य एष तपत्येष उ एवेन्द्रस्तस्माच्छुक्राग्रान्गृह्णाति that is Sun is Indra

In Nirukta 3.16, 3.3.4- सूर्य (Sun) is clearly called the जार (destroyer) of रात्रि (Night).

You might be wandering what is the meaning of गौतम (gautam) then? "उत्तमा गावो रश्मयो यस्य सः" That which has Excellent rays is Gautam. Here "चंद्रमा (moon) is Gautama

And Gautama means चन्द्र i.e. kaanta of Ahilya रश्मी गै उच्यते, गौ with तम meaning who shines bright. here because of Surya from whom the moon shines, has been called गौ (Gautam) The meaning that has to be taken as "Sun(Indra) is the

सूर्य्यै की सुषुम्णा नामक रश्मि चन्द्रमा को रूप- सम्पन्न बनाती है- यह वैदिक सिद्धान्त है, सो उस रश्मि को 'गो' कहते हैं, अथवा सभी रश्मियों का नाम 'गौ' है

The sunray named Sushumna, directed toward the moon, makes it beautiful and radiant — this is a Vedic principle. That ray is called 'go', or alternatively, all rays are referred to as 'gau'.

वेद में आदित्य (सूर्य) को ही जार कहते हैं क्योंकि वह रात को जीणं परिसमाप्त खत्म करने वाला है।

According to Ancient Acharya Kumarila Bhatta, in his commentary Tantravartika on the Mimamsa Darshan (page 189), writes that the name "Indra" refers to the Sun, and "Ahalya" refers to the night. When the Sun rises, the night is destroyed. This is why Indra is called the "Destroyer" (jar) of Ahalya. This does not mean that a deity named Indra had an illicit relationship with a woman named Ahalya. In Texts like Ramayana and Mahabharat this Scientific philospy was adopted only in the form of a narrative and this is the real meaning of that Narrative and it should be understood within this context only

Padma Purana 1.54.1-5
(I have) told (you) about Adrohaka's greatness, unbearable to the people. Having resisted (the temptation of cohabiting with) a woman occupying the same bed, he conquered everything. He made convenient (i.e. easy) what was difficult to be accomplished by the wise, and by the celibate sages, and which was difficult for gods, demons and men. Which man, but Adrohaka, is capable of conquering the sexual desire, which is naturally difficult (to overcome)? 0 brahmana, he (i.e. Adrohaka) aloneis a man who has conquered everything. Suresa (i.e. Indra) had vaginal marks (on his body) because of having outraged Ahalyã only. Then again, due to the favour of Goddess (Indraks1), he, became well-known as Sahasraksa (one having a thousand eyes). This is known in the entire mobile and immobile world."

Refutation-

Rc Hazra in his book Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs page no 120 said that the chapters after chapter 43 in Shristi khanda (including chapter 54) are later interpolations into Padma Purana and was composed likely after the Satanic Islamic Muhammadans established their rule in India . So this chapter is a later interpolation and not part of Padma Purana originally

(5) SṚṢṬI-KHAṆḌA.[*] This Khaṇḍa, which is assigned the fifth place in our edition, is really the first of the set. This position of the Khaṇḍa is betrayed by the mode of its beginning as well as by the sequence and contents of the five Parvans given in chap. 1.

This Khaṇḍa, as we have it now, can be rightly divided into two parts:

(1) chaps. 1-43 (verses 1-97)

and (2) chaps. 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end.

It will be seen hereinafter that the chapters of the second part were added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. Hence the chapters of the first part, which are of earlier date, are examined first.

* The Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa in Bengal Mss. consists only of 46 (or according to Aufrecht, 45) chapters. The corresponding chapters in a Bengal Ms. (No. 1081, D. U. Mss Lib.) of this Khaṇḍa and the Ānss ed. are given below:

upon them, it is difficult to say anything about the lower limit.

Chapters 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end, which, according to our division, form the second part of the work, are not found in the Bengal Mss. So their comparatively late date can be well understood. These chapters were written and added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. These foreigners have been called kings[] and scornfully described more than once under the names 'Turuṣka', 'Mleccha' and 'Yavana'[]. The descriptions are undoubtedly aimed at the Muhammadans who 'polluted' the society and the land of the Hindus by their contact and slaughter of cows. Hence the date of composition of this part of the Sṛṣṭi-kh. can by no means be placed earlier than 1000 A.D. Such a late date is supported by the contents also, which are replete with Tantric elements. The Āgamas have many times been mentioned as authorities along with the Vedas and the Purāṇas; the Tulasī plant has been glorified in highly extravagant language; and so on. As Hemādri quotes

* In connection with the quotations the following stories of the Padma-p. have been mentioned in the Adbhutasāgara:

Even Geeta Press Gorakhpur padma Purana has only 49 Chapters and no 54th chapter exists

Shiva Purana 5.4.18
Indra, the lord of the gods, became fascinated by Gautama's wife. That vicious one committed sin and so was cursed by the sage."

Refutation-

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhaktamahātmya,[79] also called Aṣṭama Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and maintenance, etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[80] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as gṛyaṇiṣṭadmarūpin, who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahman; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i. e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasaṃbhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A. D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[80] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions — which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śiva°	Class A Bombay 1884 Venkat. 1895–96 Vaṅga		Class B Venkat. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya Tr. AITM
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara	ch. 25
II. Rudra	Vidyeśvara	25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka		(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhaumī/Aumī	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyavīya		Umā/Aumī	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	30	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya
IX. Koṭirudra	Dharma	65	pūrvabhāga	35
X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śiva° is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages." It is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[81] Hazra, who did not include the Śiva° in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

मेरे पितामह अर्जुनने जो भगवान् वासुदेवकी सहायता पाकर उत्तम विजय प्राप्त कर ली, वह वहाँ उन्होंने कोई अद्भुत कार्य नहीं किया है ।। १९ ।। त्रिलोकीनाथ भगवान् कृष्ण ही जब उनके सहायक थे, तब उनके लिये तीनों लोकोंमें किसी वस्तुकी प्राप्ति असम्भव रही हो, यह मैं नहीं मानता ।। ब्रह्मन् ! मेरे सभी पूर्वज धन्य थे, जिनका हित और कल्याण करनेके लिये साक्षात् जनार्दन तैयार रहते थे ।। लोकपूजित भगवान् नारायणका दर्शन तो तपस्यासे ही हो सकता है; किंतु मेरे पितामहोंने श्रीवत्सके चिह्नसे विभूषित उन भगवान्का साक्षात् दर्शन अनायास ही पा लिया था ।। २२ । उन सबसे भी अधिक धन्यवादके योग्य ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी हैं। मैं अविनाशी नारदजीको कम तेजस्वी ऋषि नहीं समझता, जिन्होंने श्वेतद्वीपमें पहुँचकर साक्षात् श्रीहरिका दर्शन प्राप्त कर लिया। उनका वह भगवद्-दर्शन स्पष्ट ही उन भगवान्की कृपाका फल है ।। मुने ! नारदजीने उस समय श्वेतद्वीपमें जाकर जो अनिरुद्ध-विग्रहमें स्थित नारायणदेवका साक्षात्कार किया तथा पुनः नर-नारायणका दर्शन करनेके लिये जो बदरिकाश्रमको प्रस्थान किया, इसका क्या कारण है? ।। २५ ।। ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी श्वेतद्वीपसे लौटनेपर जब बदरिकाश्रममें पहुँचकर उन दोनों ऋषियोंसे मिले, तब वहाँ उन्होंने कितने समयतक निवास किया? और वहाँ उनसे किन-किन प्रश्नोंको

कारणरूप सनातन परमात्मा भगवान्‌का दर्शन कर लिया? ।। ४६ ।। नारदजीने कहा- भगवन् ! मैंने विश्वरूपधारी उन अविनाशी एवं कान्तिमान् परम पुरुषका दर्शन कर लिया। ऋषियोंसहित देवता तथा सम्पूर्ण लोक उन्हींके भीतर विराजमान हैं ।। ४७ ।। मैं इस समय भी आप दोनों सनातन पुरुषोंको देखकर य... श्वेतद्वीपनिवासी भगवान्‌की झाँकी कर रहा हूँ। वहाँ मैंने अव्यक्तरूपधारी श्रीहरिको जिन लक्षणोंसे सम्पन्न देखा था, आप दोनों व्यक्तरूपधारी पुरुष भी उन्हीं लक्षणोंसे सुशोभित हैं ।। ४८-४९ ।। इतना ही नहीं, मैंने आप दोनोंको वहाँ भी परमदेवके पास उपस्थित देखा था और उन्हीं परमात्माके भेजनेसे आज मैं फिर यहाँ आया हूँ ।। ५० ।। तीनों लोकोंमें धर्मके पुत्र आप दोनों महापुरुषोंके सिवा दूसरा कौन है, जो तेज, यश और श्रीमें उन्हीं परमेश्वरके समान हो ।। ५१ ।। उन भगवान् श्रीहरिने मुझसे सम्पूर्ण धर्मका वर्णन किया था। क्षेत्रज्ञका भी परिचय दिया था और यहाँ भविष्यमें उनके जो अवतार जैसे होनेवाले हैं, उन्हें भी बताया था ।। ५२ ।।वहाँ जो चन्द्रमाके समान गौरवर्णके पुरुष थे, वे सब-के-सब पाँचों इन्द्रियोंसे रहित अर्थात् पाञ्च-भौतिक शरीरसे शून्य, ज्ञानवान् तथा पुरुषोत्तम श्रीविष्णुके भक्त थे ।। ५३ ।।वे सदा उन नारायणदेवकी पूजा-अर्चा करते रहते हैं और भगवान् भी सदा उनके साथ प्रसन्नतापूर्वक क्रीड़ा करते रहते हैं। भगवान्‌को अपने भक्त बहुत ही प्रिय हैं तथा वे परमात्मा श्रीहरि ब्राह्मणोंके भी प्रेमी हैं ।। ५४ ।।वे विश्वका पालन करनेवाले सर्वव्यापी भगवान् बड़े भक्तवत्सल हैं। भगवद्भक्तोंके प्रेमी और प्रियतम श्रीहरि उनसे पूजित हो वहाँ सदा सुप्रसन्न रहते हैं ।।वे ही कर्ता, कारण और कार्य हैं। उनका बल और तेज अनन्त है। वे महायशस्वी भगवान् ही हेतु, आज्ञा, विधि और तत्त्वरूप हैं ।। ५६ ।।वे अपने आपको तपस्यामें लगाकर श्वेतद्वीपसे भी परे प्रकाशमान तेजोमय स्वरूपसे विख्यात हैं। उनका वह तेज अपने ही प्रकाशसे प्रकाशित है ।। ५७

My grandsire Arjuna, having obtained the assistance of Lord Vāsudeva, achieved a glorious victory. In that, he did nothing that could be called extraordinary, for when the Lord of the three worlds, Śrī Kṛṣṇa Himself, was His helper, I cannot believe that there was anything in all the three worlds which could have been unattainable for him.

O Brāhmaṇa, all my forefathers were indeed blessed, for the divine Janārdana Himself was ever ready to protect and bless them. The vision of Lord Nārāyaṇa—worshipped in all the worlds—can be obtained only through great austerities; yet my grandsire effortlessly obtained the direct sight of that Lord adorned with the Śrīvatsa mark upon His chest.

But more worthy of gratitude than all of them is Nārada, the son of Brahmā. I do not consider the immortal Nārada to be in any way less radiant than other sages, for he reached Śvetadvīpa and there obtained the direct vision of Śrī Hari Himself. Clearly, this divine vision was the fruit of the Lord's own grace. O Sage, why was it that, after beholding Lord Nārāyaṇa in His Aniruddha form in Śvetadvīpa, Nārada again set forth for Badarikāśrama to see Nara and Nārāyaṇa?

Vaiśampāyana said: I bow to the supremely radiant Lord Vyāsa, by whose grace I narrate this tale of Lord Nārāyaṇa.

When Nārada returned from the great continent of Śveta after beholding the immortal Śrī Hari, he swiftly reached Mount Meru. He carried in his heart the charge entrusted to him by Lord Hari Himself.

Then a great wonder arose in his mind—"How was it that, after traversing such a far-off path, I have returned here safely?"

Thereafter, from Mount Meru he journeyed toward Mount Gandhamādana and descended from the sky near the great holy place of Badarī.

There he beheld the two ancient divine sages, Nara and Nārāyaṇa, absorbed in Self-realization, having undertaken mighty vows and performing great austerities.

They shone with brilliance surpassing even the sun that illumines all the worlds. The Śrīvatsa mark adorned their chests, and they wore matted locks upon their heads. In their hands was the mark of a swan, upon their feet the mark of a discus. They had broad chests, long arms, four seeds in their scrotum, sixty teeth and eight molars, deep voices like the sound of clouds, beautiful faces, wide foreheads, graceful eyebrows, lovely chins, and charming noses—altogether of wondrous beauty.

Their heads seemed as though covered by a crown-like canopy. Beholding those two great beings adorned with such auspicious marks, Nārada felt great joy. Lord Nara and Lord Nārāyaṇa welcomed and honored Nārada, inquiring after his welfare.

Then, gazing upon them, Nārada thought within himself: "Ah! These two great sages are exactly like the exalted members of the divine assembly whom I beheld in Śvetadvīpa." Thinking thus, he circumambulated them and sat upon a beautiful seat of kuśa grass.

Thereafter, those two sages—abodes of austerity, fame, and radiance, endowed with self-restraint and tranquility—completed their morning rites and, offering water for washing the feet and the ritual welcome, worshiped Nārada.

Having finished their daily duties and the honoring of their guest, they too sat upon seats of kuśa grass. As the three of them sat there, that place shone like a sacrificial pavilion illumined by the blazing flames of three ghee-fed fires.

After Nārada had partaken of hospitality, rested in comfort, and was seated at ease, Nārāyaṇa spoke to him thus:

Nara and Nārāyaṇa said: "O divine sage! Have you now gone to Śvetadvīpa and beheld the eternal Supreme Being, the original cause of both of us?"

Nārada said: "O Lord, I have indeed seen that eternal, radiant Supreme Person who is the form of the whole universe. The gods with the sages, and all the worlds, dwell within Him.

Even now, beholding you two eternal persons here, I seem to be looking upon that very Lord of Śvetadvīpa. The marks and attributes with which I saw the unmanifest Śrī Hari there are the same with which you two, in manifest form, are adorned here. Not only that—I saw you both even there, standing near the Supreme Lord; and it is by His command that I have come here today.

In all the three worlds, apart from you two great souls—the sons of Dharma—who else can equal that Supreme Lord in brilliance, glory, and majesty?

That Lord Śrī Hari explained to me the entirety of dharma, gave me the knowledge of the knower of the field (kṣetrajña), and described to me the future incarnations He will assume here.

There, the fair-complexioned men, shining like the moon, were entirely free of the five senses—that is, devoid of the five-elemental body—yet possessed of knowledge and devoted to the Supreme Person, Śrī Viṣṇu.

They ever worship that Lord Nārāyaṇa, and the Lord in turn ever plays with them joyfully. The Lord dearly loves His devotees, and He is especially fond of the brāhmaṇas.

That all-pervading Lord, preserver of the universe, is supremely devoted to His devotees. Pleased with His devotees' love, He ever remains delighted there, being Himself the doer, the cause, and the effect. His power and radiance are infinite. He is the great and glorious Lord, the source, the command, the ordinance, and the truth itself.

Devoting Himself to austerities, He resides beyond even Śvetadvīpa, known by His resplendent, self-luminous form, whose light shines by its own brilliance.

उन सबसे भी अधिक धन्यवादके योग्य ब्रह्मपुत्र नारदजी हैं। मैं अविनाशी नारदजीको कम तेजस्वी ऋषि नहीं समझता, जिन्होंने श्वेतद्वीपमें पहुँचकर साक्षात् श्रीहरिका दर्शन प्राप्त कर लिया। उनका वह भगवद्-दर्शन स्पष्ट ही उन भगवान्‌की कृपाका फल है ।।

तेजसाभ्यधिकौ सूर्यात् सर्वलोकविरोचनात् ।
श्रीवत्सलक्षणौ पूज्यौ जटामण्डलधारिणौ ।। ३५ ।।

वे दोनों सम्पूर्ण लोकोंको प्रकाशित करनेवाले सूर्यसे भी अधिक तेजस्वी थे। उन पूज्य महात्माओंके वक्षःस्थलमें श्रीवत्सके चिह्न सुशोभित हो रहे थे और वे अपने मस्तकपर जटामण्डल धारण किये हुए थे ।।

उनके हाथोंमें हंसका और चरणोंमें चक्रका चिह्न था। विशाल वक्षःस्थल, बड़ी-बड़ी भुजाएँ, अण्डकोशमें चार-चार बीज, मुखमें साठ दाँत और आठ दाढ़ें, मेघके समान गम्भीर स्वर, सुन्दर मुख, चौड़े ललाट, बाँकी भौंहें, सुन्दर ठोढ़ी और मनोहर नासिकासे उन दोनोंकी अपूर्व शोभा हो रही थी ।। ३६-३७ ।।

उन दोनों देवताओंके मस्तक छत्रके समान प्रतीत होते थे। ऐसे शुभलक्षणोंसे सम्पन्न उन दोनों महापुरुषोंका दर्शन करके नारदजीको बड़ी प्रसन्नता हुई। भगवान् नर और नारायणने भी नारदजीका स्वागत-सत्कार करके उनका कुशल-समाचार पूछा ।। ३८-३९ ।।

तदनन्तर नारदजीने उन दोनों पुरुषोत्तमोंकी ओर देखकर मन-ही-मन विचार किया, अहो! मैंने श्वेतद्वीपमें भगवान्‌की सभाके भीतर जिन सर्वभूतवन्दित सदस्योंको देखा था, ये दोनों ऋषिश्रेष्ठ भी वैसे ही हैं ॥

इति संचिन्त्य मनसा कृत्वा चाभिप्रदक्षिणम् ॥ ४१ ॥

नरेश्वर! अपने नित्यकर्म तथा नारदजीका आतिथ्य-सत्कार करके वे दोनों ऋषि भी कुशासनपर बैठ गये। वहाँ उन तीनोंके बैठ जानेपर वह प्रदेश घीकी आहुतिसे प्रज्वलित विशाल लपटोंवाले तीन अग्नियोंसे प्रकाशित यज्ञमण्डपकी भाँति सुशोभित होने लगा ॥ ४४½ ॥

अथ नारायणस्तत्र नारदं वाक्यमब्रवीत् ॥ ४५ ॥
सुखोपविष्टं विश्रान्तं कृतातिथ्यं सुखस्थितम् ।

इसके बाद वहाँ आतिथ्य ग्रहण करके सुखपूर्वक बैठकर विश्राम करते हुए नारदजीसे नारायणने इस प्रकार कहा ॥ ४५½ ॥

नरनारायणावूचतुः

अपीदानीं स भगवान् परमात्मा सनातनः ॥ ४६ ॥
श्वेतद्वीपे त्वया दृष्ट आवयोः प्रकृतिः परा ।

नर-नारायण बोले—देवर्षे! क्या तुमने इस समय श्वेतद्वीपमें जाकर हम दोनोंका परम कारणरूप सनातन परमात्मा भगवान्‌का दर्शन कर लिया? ॥ ४६½ ॥

नारद उवाच

दृष्टो मे पुरुषः श्रीमान् विश्वरूपधरोऽव्ययः ॥ ४७ ॥
सर्वे लोका हि तत्रस्थास्तथा देवाः सहर्षिभिः ।

नारदजीने कहा—भगवन्! मैंने विश्वरूपधारी उन अविनाशी एवं श्रीमान् परम पुरुषका दर्शन कर लिया। ऋषियोंसहित देवता तथा सम्पूर्ण लोक उन्हींके भीतर विराजमान हैं ॥ ४७½ ॥

3. Indra raped the wife of Brihaspati’s brother
   Skanda Purana 2.7.23.9-20
   He went to the hermitage of (Brhaspati’s brother) Utathya. There he saw his wife who was pregnant and hence could walk only very slowly. She was well adorned with a girdle tied to her tremulous hips. The sweet jingling sound of the bangles surpassed that of the inebriated bees and cuckoos. She had beautiful garments of various colours. The beautiful lad was sweet-voiced with beautiful smiles. Her pair of breasts resembled a pair of very fine pitchers. Her eyes were like blue lilies. When she laughed her face resembled a lotus. She appeared very charming with her pale cheeks resembling the interior of a Ketaki flower-bunch. On account of weariness she took deep breaths. Her eyes indicated her pitiable plight. She lay somewhere near the entrance to the hut. She was asleep on her bed. On seeing her, Indra became enamoured and raped her though she was pregnant? The foetus in the womb became miserable and feared that it might fall it out. Hence, it closed the vaginal passage by means of its foot. Thereupon, the seminal fluid of the enemy of Bali became scattered on the ground. Therefore Lord Indra became furious with the foetus. With the edge of the eyes turned red like copper, he furiously cursed him: “O wicked one, become blind at the very birth, since you have insulted me by closing the vaginal passage.” Thereafter, the son named Dirghatapas was born. (Defective Text) Jalata (?) was born from the seminal fluid that was scattered (on the ground) by the foot. Afterwards Indra was afraid of the curse of the sage and he went away. All the religious students laughed on seeing Indra running. Thereupon he became ashamed and went to a splendid cave of Meru. Remaining concealed there, he performed a great and fierce penance

This Prakaran is Ved Virodh . Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7 and Chandogya Upanishad says that Indra Deva and other Devas are eternal Brahmachari and follow Brahmacharya and as part of their vow of Brahmacharya abstains from all Types of Illicit Sexual Intercourse and lustful activities and follow Strict Celibacy . As per Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 Devas (including Devraj Indra) do not commit and avoid all Sinful activities and are free from Sin and Mortal Activities of Humans

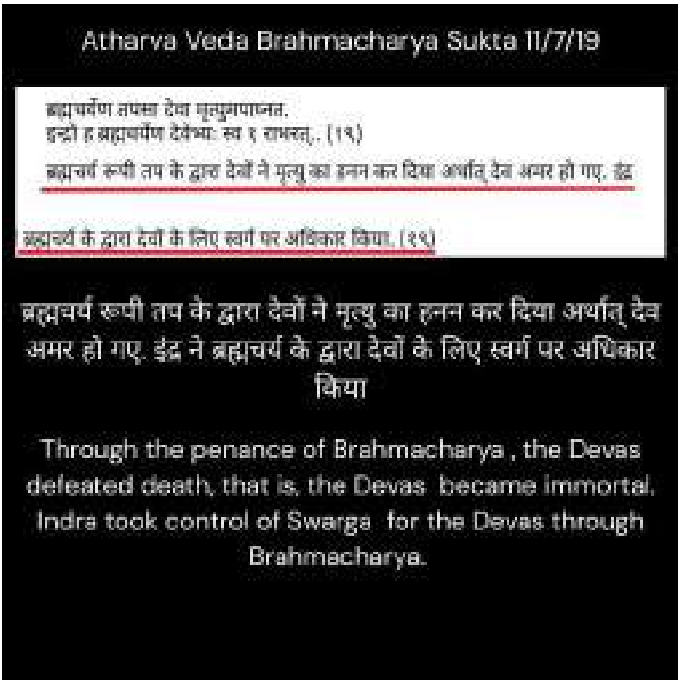
ब्रह्मचर्य रूपी तप के द्वारा देवों ने मृत्यु का हनन कर दिया अर्थात् देव अमर हो गए. इंद्र ने ब्रह्मचर्य के द्वारा देवों के लिए स्वर्ग पर अधिकार किया

Through the penance of Brahmacharya , the Devas defeated death, that is, the Devas became immortal. Indra took control of Swarga for the Devas through Brahmacharya.



Atharva Veda 11/7/14 states all Devas including Devraj Indra follow Strict Brahmacharya and live in Brahmacharya

ब्रह्मचर्य का पालन करने वाला पुरुष दीप्ति वाले वेदरूपी ब्रह्म को धारण करता है. उस वेद से सभी देव संबंधित हैं. देवों का निवास बना हुआ ब्रह्मचारी प्राण और अपान के बाद ज्ञान को, मन, वाणी, हृदय और मेधा को उत्पन्न करता है

A man who practices Brahmacharya attains the Brahm in the form of the Veda which is full of light. All the Devas are related to that Veda. Brahmacharya is the abode of the Devas it produces knowledge, mind, speech, heart and intelligence after Prana and Apan.

Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 says अपहतपाप्मानो देवा अप पाप्मानं हतेऽमृता देवा नामृतत्वस्याशास्ति। that is Devas do not do any sinful activity and Devas attained immortality by destroying Sins

Acharya Sayana in his commentary on Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 said – तदेतत् प्रशंसति अपहतपाप्मान इति । देवानां पाप। हित्यान्मरणधर्मराहित्याच्च तत्सम्बन्धि-न्ययनेऽग्न्याधानकारिणोऽपि तदुभयं सिद्धयतीत्यर्थः ' This is praised with the expression 'Apahatapāpman' (i.e., one who is free from sin). Because the Devas are free from sin and from the condition of mortality, therefore, even one who performs the Agnyādheya (the rite of establishing the sacred fire), by becoming related to them, attains both

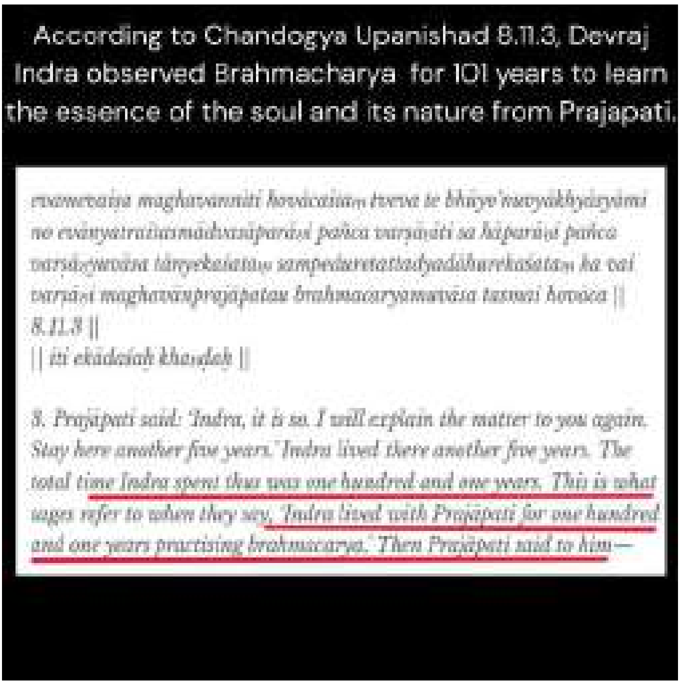
According to Chandogya Upanishad 8.11.3, Devraj Indra observed Brahmacharya for 101 years to learn the essence of the soul and its nature from Prajapati.

Prajāpati said: 'Indra, it is so. I will explain the matter to you again. Stay here another five years.' Indra lived there another five years. The total time Indra spent thus was one hundred and one years. This is what sages refer to when they say, 'Indra lived with Prajāpati for one hundred and one years practising brahmacarya.' Then Prajapati said to him-



Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 says अपहतपाप्मानो देवा अप पाप्मानं हतेऽमृता देवा नामृतत्वस्याशास्ति। that is Devas do not do any sinful activity and Devas attained immortality by destroying Sins

7. Indra entered a horse in order to have intercourse with the Queen

📚Harivamsa Purana 3.5.11-25📚
A few days after Janamejaya duly undertook the celebration of a horse sacrifice accompanied with profuse presents. Having controlled herself according to the rites laid down in the scripture the worshipful lady Vapusthuma Kashya, went to the horse slain at Janamejaya's sacrifice, and sat down near it. Desiring for that perfectly beautiful lady Vasava entered into the body of the slain horse and knew her. Beholding that change Janamejaya said to the sacrificing priest, "This horse has not been slain: kill him at once." Coming to know of that endeavour of Indra's the wise priest communicated it to the royal saint Janamejaya and imprecated a curse on Indra."

Harivamsa Purana bhavishya parva chapter 5 Slokas 31-33 and Sloka 39 makes it clear that Indra entering the dead horse and copulating with Janamejaya wife was an Illusion created by Indra becuase Indra feared of the Ashwamedha Yagya so he created this illusion to destroy the merits of this yagya . In words of Sage Viswavasu to Janamajeya Indra Dev can never commit this heinous crime of Violating other men wife as Indra is rightous and controlled of senses he just created an Illusion to destroy the Yagya

उन ब्राह्मणोंसे भी इन्द्र सदा डरते रहते थे; अतः उन्होंने अकेले ही मायाके प्रयोगद्वारा उन दोनों प्रकारके भयोंको पार कर लिया ॥ २९-३२॥ विजयकी इच्छा रखनेवाले वे महातेजस्वी इन्द्र जिसे दूसरोंने कभी नहीं किया, वह पापकर्म कैसे कर सकते हैं? अपने पोतेकी पत्नीपर बलात्कार उनके द्वारा कैसे सम्भव हो सकता है ? ॥ ३३ ॥ हरिवाहन इन्द्रमें जिस प्रकार उत्तम बुद्धि, उत्कृष्ट धर्म, श्रेष्ठ इन्द्रिय-संयम और परम ऐश्वर्य बतलाया गया है, उसी प्रकार तीन सौ यज्ञोंका अनुष्ठान करनेवाले तुझ दुर्धर्ष वीरमें वे सभी बातें हैं॥ ३४॥ अतः तुम इन्द्रमें, गुरु एवं पुरोहितमें, अपनेमें तथा रानी वपुष्टमामें दोषदृष्टि न करो; क्योंकि काल सर्वथा दुर्लङ्घय है ॥ ३५ ॥ देवेन्द्रने अपनी ऐश्वर्यशक्तिसे अश्वमें प्रवेश करके तुम्हारे हृदयमें रोष उत्पन्न कर दिया था, अतः सुखार्थी मनुष्यको सदा देवताके अनुकूल बर्ताव करना चाहिये ॥ ३६ ॥ जैसे जलके प्रवाहके प्रतिकूल तैरना कठिन होता है, उसी प्रकार प्रतिकूल देवतासे पार पाना बहुत कठिन है। तुम्हारी रानी निष्पाप हैं, ये रमणियोंमें रत्न हैं, तुम निश्चिन्त होकर इनका उपभोग करो ॥ ३७ ॥

They were corrupted by the same force. You, who have performed three hundred sacrifices and are an extremely invincible hero — even you and those Brahmins were always feared by Indra. Therefore, he alone, by using the power of illusion (Māyā), overcame both kinds of dangers. (29–32)

How could that mighty and resplendent Indra, who desired victory, commit such a sinful deed that no one else had ever done? How could it be possible for him to violate the wife of his own grandson? (33)

Just as the highest intellect, supreme righteousness, excellent control over the senses, and great sovereignty are described in Harivāhana Indra, in the same way, all those qualities are present in you, O indomitable hero who has performed three hundred sacrifices. (34)

Therefore, do not see faults in Indra, in the guru and the family priest, in yourself, or in Queen Vapuṣṭamā, for Time is completely irresistible. (35)

By his sovereign power, Lord Indra entered into the horse and kindled anger in your heart. Hence, a man who desires happiness should always behave in accordance with the will of the deity. (36)

Just as it is difficult to swim against the current of a river, in the same way, it is very hard to overcome a hostile deity. Your queen is innocent — she is a jewel among women. Enjoy her company without worry. (37)

📚Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 14.45-51
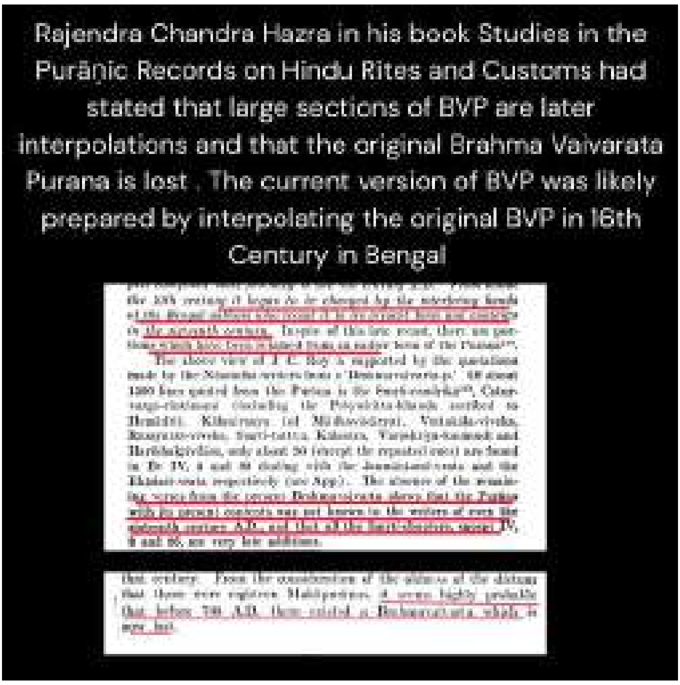
Now I am going to narrate the story of Rambha to you, Rambha was born in the land of Bharata as daughter of Sucandara..the king Sucandara gave away his daughter in marriage to Janamejaya along with several riches... The king enjoyed her company at several places. Once the king started and Asvamedha sacrifice. At that point of time Indra stole away the sacrificial horse and concealed himself in the royal palaces. Thinking that the Sacrificial horse would be quite beautiful she went to the stable alone playfully. On reaching the horse, Indra appeared on the scene and forcibly. enjoyed her company. He had sex with her in spite of her objecting to it. After the performance, Indra was fainted and he lost the senses about the day or night.
The beautiful ladies coming in touch with Indra ended her life and Indra getting terrified from the king went back to the heaven."

📚Devi Bhagavatham Purana 9.40.13-25📚
Nârâyana said :- In ancient days, Indra the Lord of the three worlds, intoxicated with wine and becoming lustful and shameless, began to enjoy Rambhâ in a lonely grove. After having enjoyed her, he became attracted to her; his mind being wholly drawn to her, he remained there in that forest, his mind becoming very passionate."

Refutation-

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. The question, both in the tradition and in modern scholarship, whether the Devībhāgavata or the Vaiṣṇava Bhāgavata is the true and original Śrīmad-bhāgavata has been discussed under the Bhāgavata. It should be noted in this connection that the term Devībhāgavata appears only in the chapter colophons, and in the text of the last two skandhas; elsewhere in the text the purāṇa refers to itself either as Bhāgavata or Śrīmadbhāgavata, once as Saṃ (1.3.41). The text also repeatedly refers to itself as "the best of purāṇas" (purāṇottama), and declares that "there are many other purāṇas devoted to Hari and Rudra, but they are not worth one-sixteenth part of this Devībhāgavata" (12.13.25–26).

Hazra[74] sees arguments both for the Devībhāgavata having been composed in Bengal and outside Bengal. He therefore concludes that "the author of the Devībhāgavata was a Smārta Śākta Brahmin of Bengal and ... he migrated to Benares (probably because it was the best place of residence for a Devī-worshipper), lived there for a long time, and there wrote the Devībhāgavata."

Ramachandran[75] dated the Devībhāgavata "not later than the 6th century A.D." based on his belief that the story of the penance of Nara and Nārāyaṇa, as related in the fourth skandha, inspired the relief in the Gupta temple at Deogarh. His arguments did not find acceptance with other scholars,[76] and, in general, the text has been dated much later. Pargiter[77] assigned it to the A.D. 900–1350 period. Hazra[78] narrowed the period down to "the eleventh or twelfth century A.D." Lalye[79] proposes a gradual growth of the text, through five different stages which cannot be dated separately; in any case the final stage must have been reached in the sixteenth century.

7. Shiva Attempted to Rape the Daughter of Sage Agniveshya

📚Skanda Purana 1.2.9.40-58📚

O gentle Sir, I saw the daughter of sage Agniveśya standing in water without any clothes on. She was on the threshold of youth. She was a Śyāmā, with slender waist. She was fawn-eyed. She had ample buttocks. Her thighs resembled the interior of a plantain tree (full, round and lovely). Her breasts were very close to each other. Beauty was gradually sprouting in her body. Her face resembled the lotus that was in full bloom. She could be adequately described only by good scholars and that too in accordance with their intellect and not in accordance with her instrinsic [intrinsic?] nature. Her side glances were like volleys of arrows. Smara ('god of Love') seemed to occupy her body himself and struck me hard with those arrows. She was playing as she liked surrounded by her friends. Impatient with love I got down from the aerial chariot and abducted her. On being seized by me and placed in the aerial chariot she lamented loudly for a long time shouting "O father, O father", O gentle Sir. Her friends were very sad. They ran to the sage and said to him, "Your daughter is being taken away by a certain Vaimānika ('one moving about in an aerial chariot'). O holy lord, she is crying. Save her. Get up." On hearing these words of those (girls) from all round, the gentle sage, the storehouse of austerities, Agniveśya, hurriedly came up to her in the sky. "Stop, stop," said he to me and restricted my movement through the power of his penance. The infuriated sage then spoke these unbearable words to me: "My daughter was carried away by force by you in the manner in which a piece of flesh is carried away by a vulture in the sky. So, be a vulture now immediately. My daughter, an ascetic girl, has been abducted by you against her will. O vicious one, obtain its fruit now itself. On hearing this I was overcome with fear. I bent down my face with shame. I grasped the feet of the sage. I fell down at his feet and grasped them. I lamented loudly. (I then said thus:) "She has not been abducted by me after knowing (that she is an ascetic girl). She has not been outraged till now. O ascetic, be pleased. Take back your curse. Ascetics naturally forgive those who bow down. They are good people. So, be pleased. Let me not become a vulture." When I sought refuge in him and bowed down to him thus, the great sage became appeased and said, "My words cannot at ail be untrue. But when you assist in recognizing King Indradyumna, you will get freed from the curse...

In Skanda Purana 1.2.9.40-58 it was not Maheshwar Shiva but a prince named Kuśadhvaja a son of the lord of kasi who attempted to kidnap the daughter of Sage Agniveshya and was cursed by Sage Agniveshya to become a Vulture and that when he will assist in recognizing King Indradyumna the prince will get freed from the curse

गृध्र कहता है- हे भद्र ! सुनें! पूर्वकाल में मैं अत्यन्त चपल वानर था। मैं जिस वन में रहता था, उसके आगे के भाग में एक शिवालय था। उन शिव का नाम था जगद्योगेश्वर ! चैत्र शुक्ला चतुर्दशी तिथि पर हस्त नक्षत्र तथा हर्षणयोग में उन भवोद्भव देव का एक उत्सव हुआ। उस दिन लोग सुवर्ण के झूले में उस लिंग को बैठा कर झुलाते थे। इस दिन रात में जब अन्य कोई नहीं था, मैं जाति चापल्यवशात् वहां झूले पर चढ़कर उसे पुनः पुनः चलाने लगा। इस प्रकार रात्रि व्यतीत होने पर अगले दिन लोग वहां देवदेवेश्वर की पूजा के लिए आये तथा मुझे झूले पर बैठा देखकर लाठी से पुनः पुनः प्रहार करने लगे। उनके वज्रसम दुःसह प्रहार के कारण मैं उस शिवमन्दिर में झूले में रहते ही मर गया।। २१-२७।। मैंने जो शिव को झूला झुलाया था (अनजाने में) उसके फल से राजा के यहां मेरा जन्म हुआ। मैं काशीराज के पुत्ररूप में जन्म लेकर कुशध्वज कहलाया। जब मुझे राजत्व प्राप्त हुआ, तब मैंने अपने राज्य में दमनकोत्सव प्रवर्त्तित किया, क्योंकि मुझे पूर्वजन्म की स्मृति थी। हे भद्र ! मनुष्यगण झूले पर बैठे शिव को जैसे-जैसे झुलाते, उनके अशुभ भी उसी प्रकार उनसे दूर होते जाते! उनका पुण्य संचित होता जाता। मैं शैवागम के वर्णित विधान से दीक्षा लेकर शैवाचार्यों द्वारा समस्त संस्कार से संस्कृत होकर पशुपाश से मुक्त हो गया। मैं निर्वाह दीक्षा पर्यन्त समस्त संस्कार से संस्कृत हो गया। चित्तवृत्ति निरोध द्वारा वैराग्य अभ्यास पूर्वक उद्गीथ जप तथा उसके अर्थ द्वारा समस्त क्लेशों का उच्छेद करके प्रजावर्ग की हितचिन्तना में रत हो, समस्त क्लेशनाशक, जगद्गुरु, अष्टम रसरसिक देवदेवेश, उमापति रुद्र की आराधना करने लगा। मैं प्रणिधान तथा अभ्यास द्वारा साधनमार्ग में दृढ़भूमिका लाभ करके जब विघ्नों द्वारा भी विचलित नहीं किया गया, तब शंभुदेव मेरे ऐसे साधनोत्कर्ष को जानकर मेरे ऊपर प्रसन्न हो गये। उन्होंने दर्शन देकर मुझसे कहा।।२८-३४।। भगवान् कहते हैं- "हे कुशध्वज ! मैं तुम्हारे प्रति सन्तुष्ट हो गया। तुम वांछित वर ग्रहण करो। भूतल पर तुम्हारे अतिरिक्त ऐसा कठोर अनुष्ठान अन्य किसी ने नहीं किया है।" तब मैंने भगवान् शिव से कहा- "हे शम्भु ! मैं इसी शरीर से आपका गण बनना चाहता हूं।" प्रभु शम्भु ने कहा 'ऐसा ही हो।' तदनन्तर शंकर मुझे कैलास ले गये तथा मुझे उन्होंने एक सर्वरत्नमय, सर्वाश्चर्ययुक्त दिव्य विमान प्रदान किया। मैंने उस पर आरोहण किया तथा प्रसन्नचित्त होकर विचरण करने लगा।। ३५-३८।। हे भद्र ! तदनन्तर कुछ काल के उपरान्त एक बार वसन्त के समय पर्वत के गवाक्ष में बैठा जल में स्नान के लिए आई विवस्त्रा अग्निवेश ऋषि की कन्या को देखा। तब मलयवायु प्रवाहित हो रही थी। उस उद्दत् यौवना, श्यामा, क्षीणमध्या, मृगनयनी, विस्तीर्ण स्थूल जघना, संहत स्तनों वाली, केले के तने के समान जघनयुक्त रमणी को देखकर मेरे मन में कामाग्नि जल उठी। उस वर्णनीयतम सौन्दर्यशालिनी, विद्वानों के द्वारा भी यथाशक्ति वर्णन योग्या, विकसित कमल के समान मुख वाली बालिका को देखकर विदित हुआ कि मानों जलसिंचन के कारण उसके लावण्य का अंकुर फूट उठा है! कामदेव उसके अंगों में अवस्थित हो गया तथा वह उस रमणी के कुटिल कटाक्ष विक्षेपरूप कामबाणों के माध्यम से मुझे दृढ़ रूप से विद्ध करने लगा। तब मैं भी कामातुर होकर अपने विमान से उतरा तथा सखियों से घिरी, स्वेच्छापूर्वक क्रीड़ा तत्पर उस बालिका का मैंने हरण कर लिया। हे भद्र! वह मेरे विमान पर पड़ी उच्च स्वर से हा तात, हा तात! कहकर अत्यन्त रोदन करने लगी।। ३९-४५।। तब उसकी समवयस्का सखियों दीनतापूर्वक शीघ्रता से मुनि के पास जाकर कहने लगीं- "भगवन् ! किसी विमान पर विचरण करने वाले व्यक्ति ने आपकी कन्या का हरण किया है। वह रो रही है। आप उठिये तथा उसकी रक्षा करिये।" यह सुनकर श्रेष्ठ तपोनिधि अग्निवेश्य मुनि आकाश पथ में विमान का पीछा करते बोले, रुको ! रुको ! तथा तपोबल से विमान

की गति रुद्ध करके क्रुद्ध होकर मुझसे कहने लगे "हे दुर्मति ! जैसे गृध्र मांसपेशी का अपहरण करता है, वैसे ही तुमने मेरी कन्या का आकाशमार्ग से आकर अपहरण किया है। अतएव तुम गृध्र हो जाओ। मेरी तपःशीला बालिका की इच्छा न होने पर तुमने उसका अपहरण किया है, उसका फल भोगो।" मैं यह शाप सुनकर लज्जापूर्वक अधोमुख हो गया।।४६-५१।।

The vulture said—"O noble one, listen! In a former birth, I was a very restless monkey. In the forest where I lived, there stood a temple of Śiva named Jagadyogeśvara. On the fourteenth day of the bright half of the month of Caitra, when the star Hasta coincided with the auspicious Harṣaṇa yoga, a festival was held for that deity who is the source of the worlds. On that day, people would place the liṅga in a golden swing and rock it. One night, when no one else was there, driven by my monkeyish restlessness, I climbed onto the swing and kept rocking it again and again. When morning came and people arrived for worship, they saw me on the swing and beat me repeatedly with sticks. Because of those unbearable, thunderbolt-like blows, I died there in the swing of that Śiva temple.

From the merit of rocking Śiva's swing (though unknowingly), I was reborn as the son of the king of Kāśī and named Kuśadhvaja. When I attained kingship, I instituted the festival of Damanaka, for I remembered my former birth. O noble one, just as men rock Śiva in a swing, in the same way their misfortunes are driven away and their merit increases. I received initiation according to the Śaiva scriptures from Śaiva teachers, was sanctified by all the prescribed rites, and freed from the bonds of worldly existence. By restraining the movements of my mind through the practice of detachment, chanting the Sāman called Udgītha with its meaning, and destroying all afflictions, I engaged in the welfare of my people. I devoted myself to worship of the world's teacher, destroyer of all sorrows, the nectar-enjoying Lord of Umā, Rudra. With firm resolve in the path of practice, unmoved even by obstacles, I pleased Lord Śambhu by the excellence of my discipline.

Appearing before me, the Lord said, 'O Kuśadhvaja, I am pleased with you. Choose any boon you desire. None other on earth has performed such severe austerity as you.' I replied, 'O Śambhu, I wish to become one of Your attendants in this very body.' Lord Śambhu said, 'So be it,' and took me to Kailāsa, granting me a wondrous aerial chariot adorned with all jewels. Mounting it, I wandered about joyfully.

Then, after some time, one spring day, as I sat in a window of a mountain palace, I saw Agniveśa Ṛṣi's daughter come to bathe, unclothed. The Malaya breeze was blowing. She was youthful, dark-complexioned, slim-waisted, deer-eyed, with broad and full hips, firm breasts, and thighs like banana trunks. Seeing that most beautiful maiden—whose face was like a blooming lotus, whose charm seemed freshly sprouted as if nourished by water—my mind was inflamed with passion. Kāma himself seemed to dwell in her limbs, and through her crooked sidelong glances, which were like love's arrows, he pierced me deeply. Overcome with desire, I descended from my chariot and seized that maiden, who was sporting with her friends. She cried out loudly upon my chariot, 'Alas, father! Alas, father!' and wept bitterly." The maidens of her age, distressed, quickly went to the sage and said, “Revered one! A man traveling in an aerial chariot has abducted your daughter. She is weeping—please rise and protect her.” Hearing this, the eminent ascetic Agniveśya, treasure of penance, pursued the chariot through the sky, calling out, “Stop! Stop!” By the power of his austerities, he halted the chariot’s movement, and, enraged, said to me, “O wicked-minded one! Just as a vulture snatches a piece of flesh, so have you carried off my daughter through the air. Therefore, become a vulture! Because you have abducted my daughter, steadfast in her chastity, against her will, bear the consequence.” Hearing this curse, I hung my head in shame. (46–51)

Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said –
O Devi! Not causing harm to any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder (Grihastha Ashrama). (Verse 25)

Maintaining these duties of household life —
Staying away from relations with another's wife, protecting entrusted goods and the honor of women, not taking anything without giving in return, and renouncing meat and alcohol — these are five types (aspects) of Dharma that lead to happiness.
Each of these Dharmic principles has many branches. Those who consider Dharma to be supreme should certainly follow this virtuous and meritorious path.

5. Shiva attempted to Rape Mohini

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 8.12.26-32📚
The beautiful woman was already naked, and when She saw Lord Siva coming toward Her, She became extremely bashful. Thus She kept smiling, but She hid Herself among the trees and did not stand in one place. His senses being agitated, Lord Siva, victimized by lusty desires, began to follow Her, just as a lusty elephant follows a she elephant. Being embraced by Lord Siva like a female elephant embraced by a male, the woman, whose hair was scattered, swirled like a snake. O King, this woman, who had large, high hips, was a woman of yoga-maya presented by the Supreme Personality of Godhead. She released Herself somehow or other from the fond embrace of Lord Siva's arms and ran away. As if harassed by an enemy in the form of lusty desires, Lord Siva followed the path of Lord Visnu, who acts very wonderfully and who had taken the form of Mohini. Just as a maddened bull elephant follows a female elephant who is able to conceive pregnancy, Lord Siva followed the beautiful woman and discharged semen, even though his discharge of semen never goes in vain."

(घ) इयं (पृथिवी) वै देव्यदितिविश्वरूपी । (तैत्तिरीय १ । ७ । ६।७) – This earth itself is the beautiful goddess in the form of Mohini

So the meaning is that on insistence of Lord Shiva in the form of Moon, the आग्नेय वाष्प in the form of Vishnu, on attaining density, assumed the form of Mohini in the form of the Earth. So, when the Earth became stable and the Earth also got an independent orbit due to the attraction and repulsion of other planets, the Moon started revolving around the Earth, as if Lord Shiva became infatuated with the beauty of the Earth in the form of Mohini. This is what Mahadev means by running after Mohini; the Moon ran around to its full capacity, spread its rays or hands, but could not get anything, that is, the Moon could not assimilate the Earth, this is the meaning of Mohini not coming in its hands.

वर्तमान विज्ञानवेत्ता भी इस बात को स्वीकार करते हैं कि आरम्भमें यह पृथ्वी तपे हुवे सोने के बराबर जाज्वल्यमान एवं दमकते हुवे पिण्ड के समान थी सो ज्यों ही चांद पृथ्वीपिण्ड की अपरिमित ऊष्मा से संश्लिष्ट हुवा तो उसका बहुत सा भास्वर हिम पिघल २ कर बहने लगा। गर्मी के संयोग से बर्फ का बह जाना विज्ञान सिद्ध बात है। सो यही शिव के वीर्यपात का आशय है।

The present day Science also accept that in the beginning, the earth was like a glowing and shining body like heated gold, (As provided in Vedic Shruti as well) so as soon as the moon was composed of the infinite heat of the earth, a lot of its shining snow melted and started flowing. It is a scientifically proven fact that snow starts flowing due to heat. So this is the meaning of Shiva's semen discharge in Srimad Bhagvatam 8.12. 32

8. Soma Abducted and Raped the Wife of Brihaspati

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 9.14.4📚
After conquering the three worlds [the upper, middle and lower planetary systems], Soma, the moon-god, performed a great sacrifice known as the Rajasüya- yajña. Because he was very much puffed up, he forcibly kidnapped Brhaspati's wife, whose name was Tara."

📚Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 80.1-22 📚
Sri Krsna said-...Thus the beautiful damsel walked like an elephant, quite slowly, having tender limbs, a moon like face and was quite passionate. She after taking a bath in the river Mandakim was adorned with wet garment. With her mind devoted to the feet of her husband, as soon as she was about to leave for her home, the moon was infatuated with passion at the sight of her beautiful figure and fainted. O lord of Vraja, this moon fainted on the fourth day of the bright fortnight and he retained consciousness. Mounted on the chariot he forcibly carried Tara holding her with her hand and mounted her on the chariot. Getting passionate, he carried her on the chariot and embraced her. Then the moon was found getting ready for a union with her, Tara spoke to him. Tara said- O moon you leave me, O blemish for the gods, leave me alone. I happen to be the wife of your teacher and also the daughter of a Brahmana, I have always been chaste and virtuous. One has to earn the sin of hundred Brahmahatyas by cohabiting with the wife of a teacher. If the wife of a teacher happens to be the daughter of a Brahmana and a chaste one, cohabiting with her earns the sins of a thousand Brahmahatyas. Therefore, lord of gods, you be patient, look I happen to be your mother and you happen to be my son. In case you indulge in such a type of deplorable action, you will earn disgrace and on hearing this Brhaspati, the teacher of the gods would reduce you to ashes. You happen to be the pupil of my husband and are dear to him like his own son. Therefore, sinful one, don't indulge in this. You leave the mother like me free and protect the dharma and in case you would touch me again I shall shower on you the sin of the killing of a woman. The moon on the other hand, did not listen to the words of Tara and got ready to cohabit with her. At this Tara who was free from passion and was quite chaste, became enraged and pronounced a curse on him, "You would be eclipsed by Rahu, covered with the clouds and would be quite sinful to look at. You would be filled with blemish and suffer from the disease of consumption. There is no doubt about it." Thus pronouncing a curse on the moon she also pronounced a curse on the god of love, "You would be reduced to ashes by an illustrious person. O lord of Vraja, thereafter the moon caught hold of Tara and enjoyed her company who was crying and sobbing. He took her in his lap and moved from that place. Thereafter he took her to secluded places, the charming and beautiful mountains pools, rivers and rivulets, the beautiful valleys, the flower orchards which were surrounded by the black wasps and the cuckoos issuing sweet notes. He also took her to the flower orchards and enjoyed her company on a bed of flowers. Thus the moon having his body plastered with the sandal-paste, consuming beverages and was so immensely absorbed in the company of Tara that he lost track of day and night."

चन्द्रमा और तारा

श्रीमद्भागवत (९।१४।—) में और देवी भागवत (१।११।९।१०) में लिखा है कि 'चन्द्रमा ने अपने गुरु बृहस्पति की धर्मपत्नी तारा को हठात् छीन लिया।

(६७०) पुराण दिग्दर्शन

जब हजार बार मांगने पर भी नहीं दी तो इससे देव-दानव-युद्ध प्रारम्भ हो गया, अन्त में श्री ब्रह्मा जी ने बीच बचाव करके किसी तरह तारा वापिस दिलवाई। इसी काल में तारा से बुध नामक एक पुत्र भी उत्पन्न हुआ था, जो चन्द्रमा का समझ जानकर उसे ही दिया गया"। अश्लीलता की ऐनक लगाकर पुराण पढ़ने वाले महाशयों को इस आख्यान में भी अश्लीलता एवं धर्मविरुद्धता का उमड़ा हुआ तोफान दीख पड़ता है, एतदर्थ इस पर भी विचार करना आवश्यक होगा।

वास्तविक भाव

स्वर्गीय श्री पं० कालूराम जी शास्त्रा ने उक्त आख्यान का निम्न-लिखित आध्यात्मिक भाव प्रकट किया है-

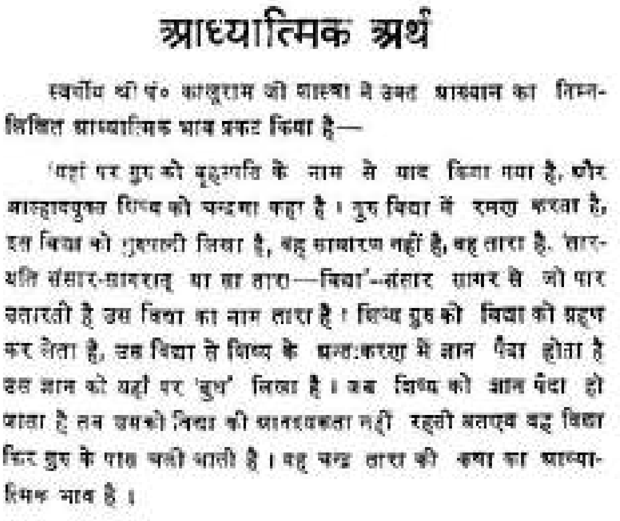
'यहां पर गुरु को बृहस्पति के नाम से याद किया गया है, और आल्हादयुक्त शिष्य को चन्द्रमा कहा है। गुरु विद्या में रमण करता है, इस विद्या को गुरुपत्नी लिखा है, वह साधारण नहीं है, वह तारा है, 'तार-यति संसार-सागरात् या सा तारा – विद्या'– संसार सागर से जो पार उतारती है उस विद्या का नाम तारा है। शिष्य गुरु को विद्या को ग्रहण कर लेता है, उस विद्या से शिष्य के अन्तःकरण में ज्ञान पैदा होता है उस ज्ञान को यहाँ पर 'बुध' लिखा है। जब शिष्य को ज्ञान पैदा हो जाता है तब उसको विद्या की आवश्यकता नहीं रहती अतएव वह विद्या फिर गुरु के पास चली जाती है। यह चन्द्र तारा की कथा का आध्या-त्मिक भाव है ।

The late Shri Pt. Kaluram Ji Shastri expressed the following spiritual interpretation of the aforementioned narrative:

“Here, the Guru is referred to by the name Brihaspati, and the joyful disciple is symbolized as the Moon (Chandra). The Guru delights in knowledge (vidya), which is described as the Guru's consort. This is no ordinary consort—it is Tara, meaning that which liberates: 'Tārayati saṁsāra-sāgarāt yā sā tārā – vidyā'—Tara is that knowledge which helps one cross the ocean of worldly existence.

The disciple receives this knowledge from the Guru, and through this knowledge, wisdom arises within the disciple's heart. This awakened wisdom is referred to here as 'Budha' (Mercury). Once the disciple attains true knowledge, he no longer requires the external form of that knowledge; hence, the knowledge (Tara) returns to the Guru.

This is the spiritual interpretation of the story of Chandra and Tara.



आध्यात्मिक अर्थ

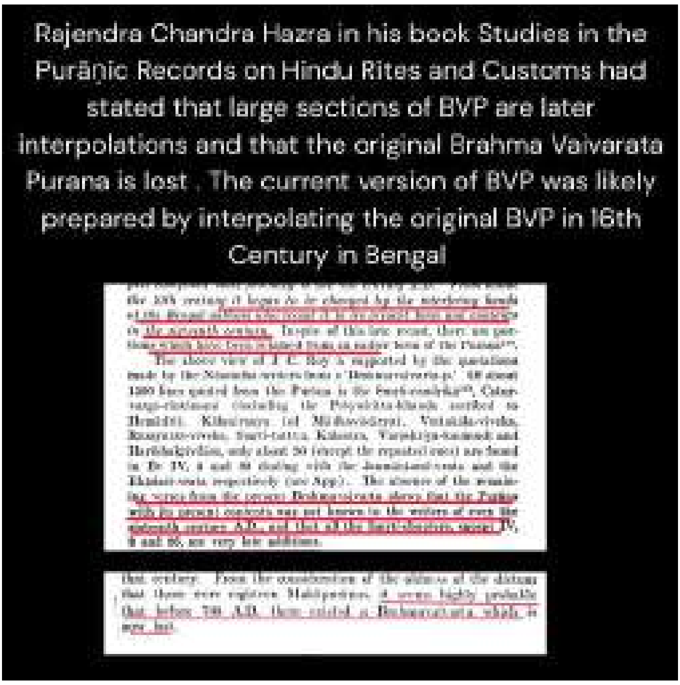
Regarding Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 80.1-22

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

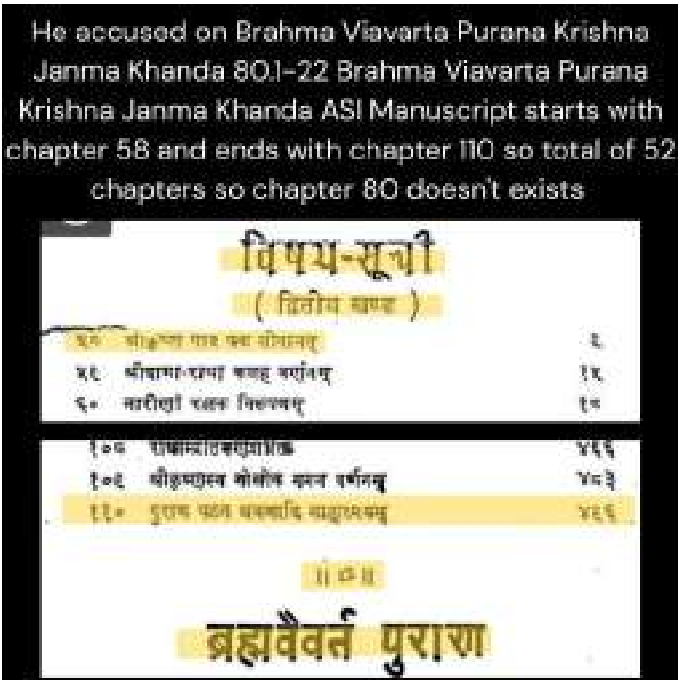
He accused on Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 80.1-22 Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda ASI Manuscript starts with chapter 58 and ends with chapter 110 so total of 52 chapters so chapter 80 doesn't exists



Allegations–

Surya Devta raped Kunti

📚Devi Bhagavatam 2.6.13-35
Sūta then said :– "O Dvija! While Sūrasena's daughter Kunti was a virgin girl, the king Kuntibhoja asked for Kunti that she might become her girl and Sūrasena gave her to the king Kuntibhoja who brought up this beautifully smiling girl. He put to her the service of Agni of Agnihotra. Once, on an occassion, Durvāsā Muni, engaged in the vow, lasting for four months, came there; Kunti served him during that period; the Muni became greatly pleased and gave her a very auspicious, mantra, by virtue of which any Deva, when called upon by that mantra will come to Kunti and satisfy her desires. When the Muni went away, Kunti, remaining in her house, wanted to test the accuracy of the mantra and asked within herself "What Devatā to call upon." Seeing the God Sūrya had arisen in the sky, Kunti uttered the Mantra and invoked him. The Sun, then, assuming an excellent human form, came down from the Heavens and appeared before Kunti in the same room. Seeing the Deva Sun, Kunti became greatly surprised and began to shudder and instantly became endowed with the inherent natural quality of passion (had menstruation). The beautiful-eyed Kunti, with folded palm; spoke to Sūrya Deva standing before :– "I am highly pleased to-day seeing Thy form; now go back to Thy sphere." Sūrya Deva said :– "O Kunti! What for you called me, by virtue of the Mantra? Calling me, why do you not worship me, standing before you? O beautiful blue one! Seeing you, I have become passionate; so come to me. By means of the mantra, you have made me your subservient so take me for intercourse." Hearing this, Kunti said :– "O Witness of all! O knower of Dharma! You know that I am a virgin girl. O Suvrata! I bow down to you; I am a family daughter; so do not speak ill to me." Sūrya then said :– "If I go awayin vain, I will be an object of great shame, and, no doubt, will be laughed amongst the gods; So, O Kunti! If you do not satisfy me, I will immediately curse you and the Brāhmin who has given you this mantra. O Beautiful one! If you satisfy me, your virginity will remain; no body will come to know and there will be born a son to you, exactly like me." Thus saying Sūrya Deva enjoyed the bashful Kunti, with her mind attracted towards him; He granted her the desired boons and went away. The beautiful Kunti became pregnant and began to remain in a house, under great secrecy. Only the dear nurse knew that; her mother or any other person was quite unaware of the fact. In time, a very beautiful son like the second Sun and Kārtikeya, decked with a lovely Kavaca coat of mail and two ear-rings, was born there. Then the nurse caught hold of the hand of the bashful Kunti and said :– "O Charming one! What care can you possibly have as long as I am living." Kunti then, placed the son in a box and said :– "O son! What shall I do? Being afraid of shame, I am leaving you, though you are dear to me as my life itself! I am exceedingly fortunate that I am casting aside this all auspicious son. May the attributeless Bhāgavatī Ambikā, the World Mother and the Lady of all, endowed with attributes, protect Thee! May Kātyāyani, the giver of all desires, feed you with Her milk! Alas! I am quitting you, born of Sūrya's semen in this solitary forest like a vitiated wanton woman. I do not know, when shall I see your lotus like beautiful face, dearest to me like my self. Alas! I never worshipped in my former birth Śivānī, the mother of the three worlds; I never meditated Her lotus like feet, the Giver of all happiness; hence I am so very unfortunate. O Dear son! I must perform great tapasyā to expiate for this terrible sin, that I knowingly commit in relinquishing you in the forest."

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 9.24.33-36📚
As soon as Kunti called for the demigod of the sun, he immediately appeared before her, and she was very much surprised. She told the sun-god, "I was simply examining the effectiveness of this mystic power. I am sorry I have called you unnecessarily. Please return and excuse me." The sun-god said: O beautiful Prtha, your meeting with the demigods cannot be fruitless. Therefore, let me place my seed in your womb so that you may bear a son. I shall arrange to keep your virginity intact, since you are still an unmarried girl. After saying this, the sun-god discharged his semen into the womb of Prthä and then returned to the celestial kingdom. Immediately thereafter, from Kunti a child was born, who was like a second sun- god. Because Kunti feared people's criticisms, with great difficulty she had to give up her affection for her child. Unwillingly, she packed the child in a basket and let it float down the waters of the river. O Maharaja Pariksit, your great- grandfather the pious and chivalrous Page King Pändu later married Kunti."

IV. The Bhaumasaṃhitā,[?] also called Auma/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and [illegible] etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

[illegible]

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[illegible] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as [illegible], who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahma; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A.D. 950.

📚Nirukta 12.10📚
With reference to this, they relate a legend, Saranyu daughter of Tvastr bore twins, Yama and Yaml, to Vivasvat the sun. She having substituted another lady of similar appearance, and having assumed the shape of a mare, ran away. He, Vivasvat, the sun, having also assumed the shape of a horse, pursued her, and joined her. Hence the Ashvins were born."

Refutation –

In Nirukta 12.10 (Hindi translation, Chaukhamba Publications), the birth of the Ashvinī Kumāras is described from the Ashva-rūpa Āditya (Sun) and Saraṇyū. The text itself defines Saraṇyū not as a mortal woman, but as a personification of a cosmic phenomenon—specifically, the shadow or night that follows when Prabhā (light) departs from the Earth. It states that the period of Saraṇyū lies between Vṛṣākapāyī and Uṣā, meaning after the evening twilight and before the morning twilight. Āditya here refers to the Sun, which is also a celestial deity, not a human being. This makes it absolutely clear that the account is symbolic and cosmological, involving deified natural forces—not a literal human relationship—thus the vulgar interpretations pushed by detractors are baseless distortions of Vedic metaphor.

सरण्यू (क) जब प्रभा पृथिवी से चली जाती है तब उस छाया या रात्रि को सरण्यू कहा जाता है। सरण्यू का काल वृषाकपायी के बाद और उषा के पूर्व होता है अर्थात् सायंकालीन सन्ध्या के पश्चात् और प्रातः कालीन सन्ध्या के पूर्व तक के समय को सरण्यू कहा जाता है। that is Saraṇyū (a): When Prabhā (light) departs from the Earth, the shadow or night that follows is referred to as Saraṇyū. The period of Saraṇyū comes after Vṛṣākapāyī and before Uṣā, meaning it refers to the time after the evening twilight (sāyaṁkālīn sandhyā) and before the morning twilight (prātaḥkālīn sandhyā) and Aditya is Sun here .

Ācārya Skanda Svāmi in his Bhāṣya on Nirukta 12.10, explained that Saraṇyū is not a human woman nor an anthropomorphic figure, but the reddish sky at the junction of night and day. The Vedic statement that the rays of the Sun "hide" something means that they conceal the tender reddish glow of dawn (Vṛṣākapāyinī) from mortals, who cannot perceive that subtle stage. When the reddish orb (Aruṇa) rises, the rays reveal another form of the same hue—Saraṇyū—making the dawn-light more visible. The Aśvins are said to "carry" this light, not physically, but symbolically, as they represent the twofold state of darkness and brightness that mediates the transition from night into day. As this reddish form intensifies into daylight, it also embodies duality (Yama–Yamī), form, and speech.

In another symbolic verse, Tvaṣṭṛ is described as the "middle portion," and his daughter is Uṣas (the dawn). Her "union" with the Sun is nothing but the merging of dawn into the rising orb. Thus the imagery of "wife," "mother," or "marriage" is only metaphorical: dawn belongs to the Sun, accompanies him, dissolves into him, and inspires all beings to awaken and act in accordance with their natural duties. By divine law, night and dawn are spoken of as the Sun's companions and even "mother," not in a physical sense but in a cosmic one. Therefore this story is, in fact, a profound Vedic allegory of light, transition, and cosmic action, confirmed by the ancient commentary tradition.

The Vedic sages received divine knowledge. The rays of the sun are said to hide or take away something — what do they hide?
They hide the reddish light of dawn (called Vṛṣākapāyinī) — the early light seen at sunrise.

From whom is it hidden?
From humans — meaning, ordinary people can't see or grasp that divine light clearly.

Later, another form, similar in color and name, was made — called Saraṇyū. When the reddish dawn (Aruṇa) appears, the light of Saraṇyū is given again by the sun's rays, making it more visible.

That light is then carried by the Ashvin twins, not in a physical way, but meaning they hold within themselves both darkness and light — they are a balance of night and day.

That reddish form of dawn gradually becomes more and more bright as the sun rises.

Now, the two twins (male and female — Yama and Yamī) represent this dual nature, and even middle speech (the kind of speech that exists between thought and voice) is connected with this form. So, this reddish form includes three things: form, duality, and speech.

In this Vedic verse (ṛc), Tvaṣṭā is in the middle portion (madhyamastama-bhāgaḥ – middle-most part), and his daughter is Uṣas (the dawn).
Since she is born at sunrise, she is carried or enters (vahati) into the Sun (āditya) — thus the 'marriage' is symbolic of union.

The Sun (Tvaṣṭā or Vivasvat), by entering the night (his daughter in the form of darkness or Uṣas), 'performs the act' (karoti) — this represents the transition between night and day.

Therefore, this entire world (sarvaṁ bhūtajātaṁ) comes together (sameti) and unites with its respective actions (svaiḥ karmabhiḥ saṁbadhyate).
As the dawn rises, darkness fades; hence at sunrise (udite uṣasi), darkness (tam) disappears, and the Sun rises (udeti ādityaḥ).

This belief or metaphysical understanding leads all living beings (sarvaprāṇinaḥ) to begin performing their natural duties or actions (svakarmāṇi).
That is the meaning here: the cosmic process inspires action.

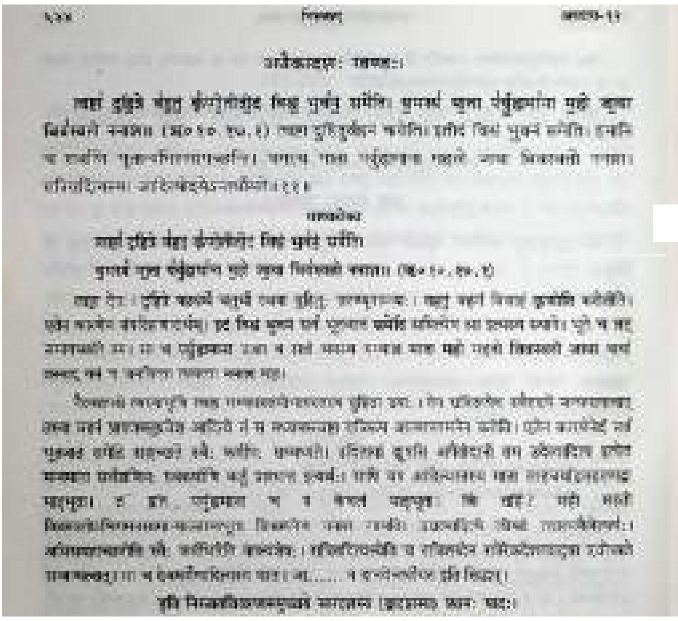
Thus, the Sun (Yama āditya) has his 'mother' in this symbolic relationship — either due to companionship (sāhacaryāt) or the act of essence transfer (rasa-haraṇa – absorption of essence).
She becomes his 'mother', but not only in that sense.

What more?
Because of shared union (abhigamana-sāmānyāt) with Vivasvat, she becomes his wife (jāyā) — and, as Viśvarūpā (universal form), she disappears (nanāśa), gets dissolved.
When the Sun rises, she merges into it — meaning she dissolves into that very form.

"Abhisamāgacchatīti svaiḥ karmabhiriti vākyasheṣaḥ" – She enters or unites, the sentence implies, with her own natural actions.

Also: "rātriḥ ādityasya" — the night is said to belong to the Sun, and by the term 'rātri' (night), since Uṣas (dawn) is a part of it (eka-deśa), she is being referred to here.
Owing to this relationship, she is called his mother by divine law (deva-dharma).

She is born… (ja—) but not to be given as a gift (na dāna-yena antar-dhīyata) – i.e., she is not transferred in the ordinary worldly sense, hence her transcendental or divine nature is established (iti siddham).



Surya (Sun) is called Ashwaroop in Shastras as the rays of Sun travel fastly like Ashwa . Rig Veda 1/50/8 says Sun travels by 7 Horses- O Sun! You are radiant and all-illuminating. Seven horses carry you in a chariot. Acharya Sayana in his Rig Veda 1/164/2 bhasya says that the 7 rays of Sun are the horses of Sun . This is why the Sun is called Ashwaroopa Hear now, O king, the story of Utathya who was born in the race of Angiras. The daughter of Soma, named Bhadra, came to be regarded as unrivalled in beauty. Her sire Soma regarded Utathya to be the fittest of husbands for her. The famous and highly blessed maiden of faultless limbs...It so happened, however, that the handsome Varuna had, from a long time before, coveted the girl. Coming to the woods where Utathya dwelt, Varuna stole away the girl when she had plunged into the Yamuna for a bath. Abducting her thus, the Lord of the waters took her to his own abode. It was adorned with many palaces and by the presence of diverse tribes of Apsaras and of diverse excellent articles of enjoyment. There, within that palace, the Lord of waters; O king, sported with the damsel. A little while after, the fact of the ravishment of his wife was reported to Utathya. Indeed, having heard all the facts from Narada, Utathya addressed' the celestial Rishi, saying, 'Go, O Narada, unto Varuna and speak with due severity unto him. Ask him as to why he has abducted my wife, and, indeed, tell him in my name that he should yield her up. You mayst say to him further, 'You are a protector of the worlds, O Varuna, and not a destroyer! Why then hast you abducted Utathya's wife bestowed upon him by Soma?' Thus requested by Utathya, the celestial Rishi Narada repaired to where Varuna was and addressing him, said, 'Do you set free the wife of Utathya. Indeed, why hast you abducted her?' Hearing these words of Narada, Varuna replied unto him, saying, 'This timid girl is exceedingly dear to me. I dare not let her go!..."

Vaishampayana said, 'Bhishma, Shantanu's son, spoke these words to all the Kurus. O scorcher of enemies! Then, Kouravya remained silent for a while. In due order, he held himself in different stages of dharana. 13 Having controlled his breath of life, the great-souled one propelled it upwards. In the midst of those great-souled ones, an extraordinary event occurred. As Shantanu's son released it along different parts of his body, because of being united with yoga, the wounds disappeared from those parts. While all of them looked on, in a short while, he was completely free of wounds. O king! With Vasudeva at the forefront, all of them were astounded on seeing this and that included all the sages, Vyasa and the others. He restrained his breath of life and controlled all the exits. Therefore, it pierced the crown of his head and ascended towards heaven. O lord of men! Like a giant meteor, it pierced Bhishma's head and emerged, penetrating the sky and instantly disappearing. O tiger among kings! Thus did the king who was Shantanu's son, the extender of the Bharata lineage, himself give up this world.
'The great-souled Pandavas and Vidura collected many diverse kinds of wood and fragrances and prepared the funeral pyre. Yuyutsu and the other Kouravas The great-souled Pandavas and Vidura collected many diverse kinds of wood and fragrances and prepared the funeral pyre. Yuyutsu and the other Kouravas looked on. Yudhishthira and the extremely intelligent Vidura wrapped Gangeya Kourava's body in silken cloth and covered it with garlands. Over it, Yuyutsu held aloft an excellent umbrella. Bhimasena and Arjuna fanned it with whisks. The sons of Madri held the headdresses. Bhishma was the protector of the Kouravas and the extender of the Kuru lineage. On every side, the women stood around with fans made of palm leaves and fanned the body. The great-souled one's funeral ceremony14 was performed according to the prescribed ordinances. Priests who knew the Sama Veda chanted Sama hymns. Sandalwood, yellow fragrant wood, black aloe and fragrances were used in the pyre. Gangeya was covered in these and the fire was lit. The kings, with Dhritarashtra at the forefront, stood on the right side of the pyre. Thus did the supreme ones of the Kuru lineage perform the funeral rites of Gangeya, foremost among the Kurus.

With large numbers of rishis, the extenders of the Kuru lineage then went to the banks of the Bhagirathi. They were followed by Vyasa, Narada, Asita, Krishna, the women of the Bharata lineage and the assembled citizens. Following the prescribed rites, the best among the kshatriyas and all the people offered water to the great-souled Gangeya.

'When water was offered to her son, the goddess Bhagirathi herself arose from the water, weeping in grief. Lamenting, she addressed the Kouravas. "O unblemished ones! I will tell you what has happened. Listen. He was royal in conduct, with wisdom and a noble lineage. He honoured the elders among the weapons and was immensely valorous. He has now been slain by Shikhandi. O kings! There is no doubt that the core of my heart is made out of stone. Though I can no longer see my beloved son, it has not yet been shattered. For the svayamvara, all the kings and the kshatriyas assembled in the city of Kashi. 16 On a single chariot, he defeated all of them and abducted the maidens. There never has been strength like his on earth. Yet, on hearing that he had been brought down by Shikhandi, my mind was not shattered. In Kurukshetra, the great-souled one fought with Jamadagni's son. Despite his being brought down by Shikhandi, I am not greatly afflicted." In this fashion, the great river lamented in many ways. The lord Damodara[1] comforted her. "O fortunate one! Control yourself. O one who is beautiful to see! You should not grieve. There is no doubt that your son has obtained supreme success. O beautiful one! He was one of the immensely energetic Vasus and was cursed. That is the reason he was born as a man. You should not sorrow. He followed the dharma of kshatriyas and fought in the field of battle. He was brought down by Dhananjaya, not by Shikhandi. When Bhishma, tiger among the Kurus, was engaged in a great battle, no one was capable of bringing him down in that engagement, not even Shatakratu himself. O one with the beautiful face! Your son is at ease and has gone to heaven. O best among rivers! Therefore, you should not sorrow on account of that descendant of the Kuru lineage. O goddess! Be without anxiety. Your son has gone and has become one of the Vasus." In this way, the best among rivers was addressed by Krishna and by Vyasa. O great king! She abandoned her grief and controlled herself. All the kings, with Krishna at the forefront, honoured the river. Having taken her permission, all the kings then returned.'

Vaishampayana said, 'Bhishma, Shantanu's son, spoke these words to all the Kurus. O scorcher of enemies! Then, Kouravya remained silent for a while. In due order, he held himself in different stages of dharanas.[13] Having controlled his breath of life, the great-souled one propelled it upwards. In the midst of those great-souled ones, an extraordinary event occurred. As Shantanu's son released it along different parts of his body, because of being united with yoga, the wounds disappeared from those parts. While all of them looked on, in a short while, he was completely free of wounds. O king! With Vasudeva at the forefront, all of them were astounded on seeing this and that included all the sages, Vyasa and the others. He restrained his breath of life and controlled all the exits. Therefore, it pierced the crown of his head and ascended towards heaven. O lord of men! Like a giant meteor, it pierced Bhishma's head and emerged, penetrating the sky and instantly disappearing. O tiger among kings! Thus did the king who was Shantanu's son, the extender of the Bharata lineage, himself give up this world.

'The great-souled Pandavas and Vidura collected many diverse kinds of wood and fragrances and prepared the funeral pyre. Yuyutsu and the other Kouravas looked on. Yudhishthira and the extremely intelligent Vidura wrapped Gangeya Kourava's body in silken cloth and covered it with garlands. Over it, Yuyutsu held aloft an excellent umbrella. Bhimasena and Arjuna fanned it with whisks. The sons of Madri held the headdresses. Bhishma was the protector of the Kouravas and the extender of the Kuru lineage. On every side, the women stood around with fans made of palm leaves and fanned the body. The great-souled one's funeral ceremony[14] was performed according to the prescribed ordinances. Priests who knew the Sama Veda chanted Sama hymns. Sandalwood, yellow fragrant wood, black aloe and fragrances were used in the pyre. Gangeya was covered in these and the fire was lit. The kings, with Dhritarashtra at the forefront, stood on the right side of the pyre. Thus did the supreme ones of the Kuru lineage perform the funeral rites of Gangeya, foremost among the Kurus. With large numbers of rishis, the extenders of the Kuru lineage then went to the banks of the Bhagirathi. They were followed by Vyasa, Narada, Asita, Krishna, the women of the Bharata lineage and the assembled citizens. Following the prescribed rites, the best among the kshatriyas and all the people offered water to the great-souled Gangeya.

'When water was offered to her son, the goddess Bhagirathi herself arose from the water, weeping in grief. Lamenting, she addressed the Kouravas. "O unblemished ones! I will tell you what has happened. Listen. He was royal in conduct, with wisdom and a noble lineage. He honoured the elders among the

Atharva Veda 11/7/15

Varuṇa, becoming an Ācārya , produces water itself. That same Varuṇa, whatever he desires from his father Prajāpati, he attains it by becoming the god Mitra through the greatness of his Brahmacharya (celibacy), drawing it from his own body." (15)

Sayana Bhasya on Atharva Veda 11/7/15

वरुणो देवः आचार्यो भूत्वा घृतम् क्षरणशीलम् उदकं केवलम् अमा सह कृणुते कुरुते । उदकमेव अनन्यसाधारणं स्वम् आत्मना सहितं करोतीत्यर्थः । स वरुणः प्रजापतौ स्वजनके ब्रह्मणि यद्यत् फलम् ऐच्छत् मित्रो देवो ब्रह्मचारी भूत्वा स्वकीयब्रह्मचर्यमाहात्म्येन स्वात् स्वकीयात् आत्मनः शरीरात् । अधिः पञ्चम्यर्थानुवादी। ल्यब्लोपे च इयं पञ्चमी । स्वशरीरम् अनपेक्ष्येत्यर्थः । तत् अपेक्षितं सर्वम् आचार्यभूताय वरुणाय प्रायच्छत् दत्तवान् । ततश्च शिष्येण सता ब्रह्मचारिणा विद्योपदेष्टुर्गुरोः प्रीतिकरम् अपेक्षितं धनं संपाद्य प्रदातव्यम् इत्ययमपि एको नियमो ब्रह्मचारिण उक्तो वेदितव्यः ।

"The god Varuṇa, having become the Āchārya (spiritual teacher), caused ghee (clarified butter) to be poured out—signifying pure water alone—and united it with himself. That is, he made the water, which is unmixed and pure, one with himself. Varuṇa thus, in the form of the teacher, associated water (symbol of purity) with his own self.

This Varuṇa, when desiring a particular fruit or result from Prajāpati—his own progenitor, the Brahman—then he transformed into the god Mitra, becoming a Brahmachārin , through the power and greatness of his own brahmacharya , from his own body—(here "from his own self" is in the ablative sense; 'lyab-lopa' explains the omission of the participle)—without caring for his body, that is, disregarding his own physical comfort, offered everything that was desired to Varuṇa, who was in the role of the teacher.

12. Vayu (Wind God) Raped the Daughters of Kushanabha

📚Valmiki Ramayana 1.32.15-26📚
Seeing those lovely and virtuous princesses, Vayu the wind god thus addressed them: 'I entreat you all to be wedded to me; give up your mortal form, I will render you immortal. Remember youth is passing and youth among mortals passes even more swiftly; wedded to me, you will be beautiful for ever.' "The damsels listened to the improper speech of the wind god and replied mockingly: 'O Deity of the Wind, you knowest all that is passing in the hearts of men, but we know what is passing in your heart. Why dost you insult us, O Wind? O Vayu, who art renowned for your wisdom, we virgins by the power of our devotion and self-control can effect your downfall, but because the merits of the righteous come to nought when they cause harm to others, we shall preserve our sacred vows inviolate. O Stupid One, heaven forfend that we choose husbands for ourselves without first seeking the approval of our honoured sire. He is as a god to us and our master, and we shall wed the husbands he chooses for us.' "The wind god was enraged and entering their bodies, twisted and distorted them. Thus afflicted, the princesses in tears, approached their father for assistance. "The king was grieved to see his daughters in this condition and said: 'O speak, what has occurred? Who, disregarding justice, has deformed you? Tell me all.' The monarch was deeply moved by this event and his heart became heavy.

Refutation-

In Valmiki Ramayana Bala Kanda, Sarga 32, verses 15 to 26 (as published by Gita Press, Gorakhpur), nowhere is it stated that Vayu Deva raped the daughters of King Kushanabha.

Rather, the verses clearly describe that Vayu Deva approached the hundred daughters of Kushanabha with a proposal of marriage, expressing his desire to accept them as his consorts due to their beauty and virtues. However, the princesses, devoted to dharma and obedience to their father, respectfully declined his proposal, stating that their marriage could only be decided by their father.

Offended and enraged by their refusal, Vayu Deva entered their bodies in the form of atmospheric wind (vātātmanā) and disfigured them, making their once-beautiful forms appear deformed or ugly. This act was done in anger, as a punishment for what he perceived as an insult.

"I wish to have you all as my own. You should, therefore, be my wedded wives. The thought that you are human beings should be given up. In this way you will attain a long lease of life. (16)

"What is this strange phenomenon? The whole thing may be related to me; who has violated the principles of justice? By whom have you all been turned hunch-backs and how is it that you are all making gestures and do not utter a word?" Making the aforesaid inquiry and heaving a deep sigh, the king then composed himself in order to hear their reply. (26)

5. Vishnu raped Vrinda (Tulasi)

📚Skanda Purana 2.4.21.17-30📚
I am your beloved and innocent wife. Why don't you speak to me now? You were the conqueror of the three worlds. Devas and Gandharvas along with Viṣṇu have been defeated by you. How did it happen that you have now been killed by a mere ascetic? After lamenting thus, Vṛndā spoke these words to the sage: O excellent sage, O storehouse of mercy, resuscitate this my lover and lord. You alone are capable of bringing him back to life, O sage, I believe. On hearing these words of hers, the sage said with a smile: He has been killed in battle by Rudra. He cannot be made alive once again. Still, out of sympathy for you, I shall make him alive. After saying this, the Brāhmaṇa vanished. By that time, the son of the Ocean embraced Vṛndā and kissed her face with great mental pleasure and satisfaction. Vṛndā too was extremely delighted in her mind on seeing her husband once again. Staying within the forest in his company for many days, she sported about. Once at the conclusion of the sexual intercourse, she saw him in the form of Viṣṇu. Rebuking him angrily Vṛndā spoke these words: Fie upon your conduct, O Hari, you commit adultery! I know now well that you are a fake ascetic. The two, your own gatekeepers, who were shown to me by you by means of Māyā will be born as Rākṣasas. They will abduct your wife. You will wander in forest, miserable due to the separation from your wife. Do wander along with this Lord of serpents, who has now been your disciple. After saying this, Vṛndā entered fire, though Viṣṇu whose mind was attached to her, tried to prevent her."

📚Shiva Purana 2.5.23.38-45📚
On seeing her husband, Vṛndā too was delighted. She forgot her sorrow. She considered everything a dream. Delighted in the heart and with all the dormant passions kindled up, she sported with him for many days in the middle of that forest. Once at the end of the sexual intercourse she realised that it was Viṣṇu. Vṛndā rebuked him angrily and spoke thus. Fie on this misdeed of Viṣṇu in outraging the modesty of another man's wife. I have now realised you as the wielder of illusion, appearing in the guise of an ascetic. O Vyāsa, saying thus in great anger she showed her brilliant powers as a staunch chaste lady by cursing Viṣṇu. "O base foe of the Daityas, defiler of other people's virtue, O wicked one, take this curse from me, greater in force than all persons. The two persons whom you made to appear in front of me shall become Rākṣasas and abduct your wife. You will be distressed on account of separation from your wife roaming about with Śeṣa 'lord of snakes' who posed as your disciple here. You will seek the help of monkeys in the forest."

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.24.14-22📚
O Dear! Full one Samvatsara the war lasted betwixt us. All the Daityas were killed. Then Brahmā Himself came and mediated. Peace, then, was brought about and by the command of Brahmā, I gave over to the Devas their rights. When I returned to my home, Śiva went back to His Śivaloka. Thus saying, Hari, the Lord of the world, slept and then engaged in sexual intercourse with her. But the chaste Tulasī, finding this time her experience quite different from what She used to enjoy before, argued all the time within herself and at last questioned him :– Who are you? O Magician! By spreading your magic, you have enjoyed me. As you have taken my chastity, I will curse you. Bhagavān Nārāyaṇa, hearing Tulasī's words and being afraid of the curse, assumed His real beautiful figure. The Devī then saw the Eternal Lord of the Devas before her. He was of a deep blue colour like fresh rain-clouds and with eyes like autumnal lotuses and with playful Līlās equivalent to tens and tens of millions of Love personified and adorned with jewels and ornaments. His face was smiling and gracious; and he wore his yellow-coloured robe. The love-stricken Tulasī, seeing That Lovely Form of Vāsudeva, immediately fell senseless; and at the next moment, regaining consciousness, she began to speak."

📚Shiva Purana 2.5.41.1-39📚
Vyasa said:- "How did the lord Nārāyaṇa manage to deposit his semen in the vaginal passage of Tulasī? Please narrate the same…It was in the guise of Śaṅkhacūḍa that he indulged in sexual dalliance with his wife…Very near the entrance to Tulasī's palace he caused the drum Dundubhi to be beaten and cries of victory to be raised. He thus made the beautiful woman wake up. On hearing it that chaste lady was highly delighted. Eagerly she peeped through the window into the high way. Knowing that her husband had returned she observed all auspicious rites and offered monetary gifts to the brahmins. She then beautified herself. After decending from the chariot, Viṣṇu who assumed the guise of Śaṅkhacūḍa by deceptive art for the sake of carrying out the task of the gods went to the apartment of the queen…My dear wife, we fought continuously for a year. O lovely woman, all the Asuras were destroyed. Brahmā made us come to a peace. At the bidding of Brahmā the powers of authority were re-assigned to the gods. I have returned home…Then out of joy Viṣṇu indulged in sexual intercourse. That lady began to suspect on observing a change in her happiness, endearment and attraction and asked him "who are you? Who are you? Tell me quickly. I have been enjoyed by you deceptively. My modesty has been outraged. Hence I am going to curse you." On hearing the words of Tulasī, Viṣṇu became afraid of the curse. O Brahmin, sportively he re-assumed his own real beautiful form. On seeing the characteristic signs she guessed that it was Viṣṇu. Infuriated by the violation of her chastity she said. "O Viṣṇu, you are ruthless. Your mind is likea rock. Since my chastity has been outraged my husband is doomed. O wicked one, being ruthless you are like a rock. Hence due to my curse you will become a rock. Those who call you ocean of mercy are erring. There is no doubt. How was a devotee killed for another man's sake, even without any offence?" After saying this, the chaste beloved of Śaṅkhacūḍa, Tulasī lamented again and again in the excess of her grief. On seeing her crying, Viṣṇu remembered lord Śaṅkara, Parameśvara, by whom the universe is deluded. Then Śaṅkara, favourably disposed to his devotees appeared in front of them. He was bowed to and eulogised humbly by Viṣṇu. On seeing Viṣṇu distressed and the beloved lady lamenting, Śiva kind to the poor tactfully enlightened both of them."

आधिभौतिक

'पद्म-पुराण' में इस आख्यायिका का जो कथानक (Plot) अङ्कित किया है वह भौतिक विज्ञान से सम्बन्ध रखता है। तुलसी नामक प्रसिद्ध औषधि विविधजन्य अनेक ज्वरों एवं मलेरिया के कीटाणुओं (Germs) को समूल नष्ट कर देती है यह बात आजकल की नई खोज से भी सिद्ध हो चुकी है। प्राचीन ऋषियों ने 'ऋतम्भरा' प्रज्ञा द्वारा इस रहस्य की साङ्गोपाङ्ग गवेषणा की थी, इसीलिए हमारी दैनन्दिनी दिनचर्या में तुलसी के सेवन का पर्याप्त उपयोग पाया जाता है। प्राचीन भारत में वह कोई आर्य घर न था जिसमें कि तुलसी की वाटिका न हो। इस लघु किन्तु अलौकिक पौधे की महती उपयोगिता जानकर ऋषिजनों ने इसे धार्मिक सिंहासन पर बिठाकर सम्मानित किया था। अतएव यह पौधा ईश्वरभक्त धर्मात्माओं के निवास-स्थान का परिचायक बन गया था। उस दिन हनुमान् जी ने राक्षसपुरी लंका में सीता को खोजते हुए अचानक विभीषण के घर में गोस्वामी तुलसीदास जी के शब्दों में 'नव तुलसी के वृन्द तहँ' देखकर ही एक अपरिचित व्यक्ति में विश्वास करके उसके सामने अपना हृदय निकाल कर रख दिया था।

इस पौधे को यह सम्मान अन्धविश्वास के कारण मिल गया हो ऐसी बात भी नहीं है। 'वनस्पति विज्ञान' के जगत्प्रसिद्ध आचार्य श्री जगदीशचन्द्र वसु महोदय ने तो अभी हाल में तुलसी के सम्बन्ध में अपनी खोज का वर्णन करते हुये यहाँ तक कहा है कि तुलसी के संसर्ग से सुवासित वायु जहां तक घूमती है वहाँ तक मलेरिया आदि बीमारियों के घातक कीटाणु (Deadly Germs) नष्ट होते चले जाते हैं। यदि इस पौधे को गरीब अनाथों से लेकर महामहिम महाराजाओं तक को समान रूप से आरोग्य प्रदान करने वाला ईश्वरीय औषधालय कह दिया जाय तो अतिशयोक्ति न होगी।' इत्यादि।

और मिले हुए कज्जल आदि विशुद्ध कार्बनिक द्रव्यों के योग से इसे पान किया जाता है। इस तरह यह छाछिल तल बिना किसी कष्ट के गले के नीचे उतर जाता है और अनुपान के संयोग से इसकी वैद्युती शक्ति सुरक्षित रहती है। धार्मिक परिभाषा में इसे 'चरणामृत' कहते हैं और इसके पीने से—'अकालमृत्युहरणं सर्वव्याधिविनाशनम्'—के अनुसार अकालमृत्यु की निवृत्ति और समस्त व्याधियों का विनाश माना जाता है।

जल को धारण करने वाला बादल ही 'जलंधर' है और उस बादल में सर्वतोभाव से रहने वाली 'विद्युत्-शक्ति' ही वृन्दा है। साध्वी स्त्री का सर्वस्व जिस प्रकार उसका एकमात्र पति ही होता है इसी प्रकार मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत् का भी अनन्य आश्रय बादल ही है। यह मेघ क्षण क्षण में बड़े रूप बदलकर आकाश में विचरता है। कई बार तो यह 'कुन्द-इन्दु-धवल-देह-द्युति' बन कर एवं श्वेत गौर में नीलकण्ठ को सदा दिखाता हुआ—'भव, भव विभव पराभव कारिणी! विश्वविमोहिनी, स्वयशविहारिणी—प्रकृतिरूप पार्वती देवी को भी विमुग्ध कर डालने को उद्यत होता है। सूर्य चन्द्रादि ग्रह, नक्षत्र, तारे, सितारे और सैयारे अपनी अपनी कान्ति रूप मान्यताओं को इस चण्डचण्ड के अवरोध से मानो व्याकुलित सी देख पाते हैं। यह जलन्धर दैवी-सम्पदा रूप प्राणीमात्र के जीवन आधार जलों को आत्मसात् कर के मानो सबके जीवन को मुट्ठी में ले लेता है अतएव वे सब विचलित हो उठते हैं। परन्तु मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत् की प्रवाह धारा जब तक अविच्छिन्न रूप से

वायु का प्रत्येक प्रवाह वर्षा का कारण होता हो सो बात नहीं है। वर्तमान विज्ञानवेत्ता भी एक खास प्रकार की मानसून (Monsoon) नामक हवा को ही वृष्टिकारक बताते हैं। सो उक्त रूपक में भी वायु रूप विष्णु जलन्धर का वेश बदल कर ही वृन्दा के निकट पहुँचता है तभी उसका पति विदीर्ण होकर पृथ्वी पर गिरता है। अर्थात्—वायु का स्वाभाविक रूप बरसात का कारक नहीं यह भाव उक्त रूपक में बड़ी चातुरी से अभिव्यक्त किया है। अस्तु, वही मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत् शक्ति—(जिसे न्यायशास्त्र में—भौमदिव्योदर्याकरजभेदात्।—के अनुसार 'दिव्य अग्नि' के नाम से स्मरण किया है)—जलकणों से सम्मिश्रित होकर 'अद्भ्यः पृथ्वी, पृथिव्या ओषधयः', सिद्धान्त के अनुसार तुलसी नामक पौधे के रूप में उत्पन्न होती है अर्थात्—तुलसी के अन्दर जो अलौकिक शक्ति विद्यमान है वह परम्परा से मेघान्तर्वर्ती दिव्य अग्नि के प्रवाह से ही इसमें आई है। इस गूढ़ रहस्य को अभिव्यक्त करने के लिये श्री वेदव्यास जी ने वृन्दा का सती होकर जन्मान्तर में तुलसी वृक्ष के रूप में उत्पन्न होना दिखाया है। वृन्दा ने विष्णु भगवान् को जड़ीभूत हो जाने का शाप दिया था, सो शालिग्राम शिला वाली व्यापक वायु का ही जड़ीभूत पिण्ड है। जैसे अग्नि के साथ वायु का स्वाभाविक सम्बन्ध है और वायु के झोंकों से अग्नि की अवरुद्ध सी चिनगारी भी उत्तरोत्तर अभिवृद्ध हो जाती है

इसी प्रकार तुलसीदल में जो परम्परागत दिव्य शक्ति है वह वायुसंघात-भूत शालिग्राम शिला के संसर्ग से और भी अनन्त गुण हो जाती है, यही इसका आशय है ।

यद्यपि उस कथानक में पात्रों के नाम तक भी ऐसे चुने गये हैं कि जिनके कहने मात्र से उक्त रूपक का ढाँचा सहसा मन में बैठ जाता है, जैसे—असुर का नाम 'जलन्धर' होना ही अक्षरार्थ के अनुसार उसे मेघ सिद्ध करता है, और संजीभूत जलवृन्द की नियामक शक्ति को वृन्दा के अतिरिक्त और कुछ कहा ही क्या जा सकता है । तथापि किसी अन्यथा सिद्ध को अप्रामाणिकता के पचड़े में पड़ने का अवसर न मिल सके, एतदर्थ यहाँ तादृश प्रमाणों का कुछ संकेत करना अनावश्यक न होगा, यथा—

(क) [प्रजापतिः] तं पाप्मानं अवृश्चत् । यदवृश्चत् तस्माद्वृष्टिः । (तैत्तिरीय ३ । १० । ६ । १)

(ख) वृष्टिर्वै याज्या विद्युदेव । विद्युद्धीदं वृष्टिमन्नाद्यं संप्रयच्छति । (ऐतरेय २ । ४१)

(ग) अयं वै वर्षस्येष्टे योऽयं [वायुः] पवते । (शतपथ १ । ८ । ३ । १२)

(घ) तस्माद्यां दिशं वायुरेति तां दिशं वृष्टिरन्वेति । (शतपथ ८ । २ । ३ । ५)

अर्थात्—(क) प्रजापालक विष्णु भगवान् ने उस 'पाप्मा' नामक असुर को छेदन कर डाला । क्योंकि उसका व्रश्चन (छेदन) किया गया था अतएव इस क्रिया को वृष्टि कहते हैं (ख) यजन योग्य विद्युत् ही वस्तुतः वृष्टि है क्योंकि यह विद्युत् ही वर्षा और अन्न आदि पदार्थों के

देने वाली है । (ग) यह जो वायु स्पन्दन करता है यही वर्षा क्रिया का आधायक है । (घ) इसलिये जिस तरफ को वायु बहता है उसी तरफ पीछे २ वृष्टि जाती है ।

इस प्रकार तुलसी विटप के अलौकिक चमत्कार का परोक्षपद्धति से निर्देश करने वाला यह कथानक, 'पौराणिक-वनस्पति-विज्ञान' का ज्वलन्त उदाहरण है । इसका हम आधिभौतिक निरूपण करने के बाद अब आधिदैविक विवेचन करते हैं ।

First of all we have to understand the real Tatparya and Meaning behind Vishnu Vrinda story in Puranas . We have to remember that Stories in Puranas are nothing but personified Aakhanyan of आदिदैविक Prakaran in Vedas .Śri Mādhavācārya alias Swami Anandatirtha has quoted passages From Vedic texts and Puranas at certain places in his commentary on the Brahmasūtra and he has clearly specified:-पुराणस्योपजीव्यश्व वेद एव न खापरः ।तद्विरोधे कथं मानं तत्सत्र न भविष्यति ॥ This basis of Puranas is Veda and nothing else. As such, how an they be taken as authentic against Vedic provisions ? (घ) तस्माद्या दिशं वायुरेति तां दिशं वृष्टिरन्वेति ।

(शतपथ ८ । २ । ३।५)- इसलिये जिस तरफ को वायु बहता है उसी तरफ पीछे २ वृष्टि जाती है। Therefore, in the direction the wind blows, rain follows behind

The cloud that holds water is Jalandhar and the विद्युत residing in this cloud in its entirety is Vrinda. Just as a pious wife is devoted only to her husband, similarly, the only refuge of the cloud-borne विद्युत is the cloud itself. The cloud [Jalandhar] frequently changes shape in the sky, sometimes appearing white as snow with hints of blue, reminiscent of the goddess Parvati’s form, enticing and omnipresent, charming the universe and traversing with free will. Planets, stars, and constellations look on as this mass of clouds absorbs water, seemingly taking life in its grasp. However, as long as the flow of विद्युत [Vrinda] within the cloud[Jalandhar] remains uninterrupted, not a single drop of vapor condenses to fall to Earth.

. Following Parvati’s suggestion as Prakriti , Vishnu, as air, approaches the विद्युत [Vrinda] in the cloud as it flows in all directions. As soon as this विद्युत[Vrinda], energized by the air[Vishnu], begins to vibrate, the vapor condenses and falls to Earth in droplets. Not every air current brings rain; even modern science identifies only specific types of air currents, like the monsoon, as rain-producing. In this allegory, Air (Vishnu) has to disguise itself as a cloud to approach Vrinda . Only then does she disperse and fall to Earth, symbolizing the fact that only particular winds cause rain. The divine Vidyut within the clouds, which has been referred to in scriptures as Divya Agni derived from electric energy, mixes with water particles, following the principle “Adbhyah Prithvi, Prithvibhyah Oshadhayah” (from water comes Earth, and from Earth, the herbs), resulting in the Tulsi plant.

This is why the Tulsi plant is imbued with extraordinary powers, inherited from the divine विद्युत within clouds. To convey this mystical aspect, Vedavyasa shows Vrinda, a pure devotee, reincarnating as the Tulsi plant after her curse. Vrinda cursed Lord Vishnu to become a stone, the Shaligram, which is essentially an embodiment of condensed air. Just as air intensifies even a small spark of fire, similarly, the divine fire within Tulsi leaves is enhanced when in contact with the Shaligram, symbolizing the unlimited power of Tulsi.

According to Nirukta (10/10) the Rishis prefer to explain the Deeper Vedic Philosophical and Metaphysical meaning with the help of आख्यान and stories . Through this Vishnu Vrinda story in Shiva Purana the Science of Rainfall and Watercycle as mentioned in Shruti has been explained through आख्यान and personification and hence should be understood in its original Vedic Swaroop

Refutation-

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The [illegible],[illegible] also called [illegible], is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and dissolution, etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[illegible] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva², because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as [illegible], who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahman; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A.D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva² passages.[illegible] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva² itself, and in the two sets of editions — which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śiva²	Class A Bombay 1884 Venkaṭ. 1895–96 Vaṅga	Class B Venkaṭ. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya [illegible]
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna ch. 78	Vidyeśvara ch. 25
II. Rudra	Vidyeśvara 25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka	(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra 197
IV. [illegible]	Kailāsa 12	Śatarudra 42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra 59	Koṭirudra 43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	[illegible]	Umā/Aumā 51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga 30	Kailāsa 23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga 30	Vāyavīya

It is clear from all this that the Śiva° is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different times and ages." It is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa." Hazra, who did not include the Śiva° in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the [illegible] editions were generally the older ones, and that all other versions, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

Śrī Narayana-Tattva

Scriptures such as the Mahābhārata—particularly the Viṣṇu Sahasranāma in Anuśāsana Parva, Chapter 149—describe Śrī Nārāyaṇa Deva as being utterly free from all defects, including lust, anger, and greed. He is Hṛṣīkeśa, the supreme master of all senses, and Śuddhātmā, the Pure Soul—completely untouched by impurities, attachments, and worldly illusions. Nārāyaṇa embodies absolute truth, divine consciousness, and eternal bliss, remaining beyond all material limitations and entirely free from sexual or any other form of desire or impurity. He is sinless—pure in every act, thought, and intention. As Dharmakṛt, He not only upholds dharma but practices it perfectly to establish it in the world. As Nivṛttātmā, His nature is intrinsically free from all worldly cravings, including lust and greed, and His mind remains eternally pure.

15. Suvarna the Son of Agni, Rapes Multiple Women

📚Brahma Purana Gautami Mahatmya 58.29-34📚
Due to the fault of the mutual intermixture of the semen both the children of Agni (became lax in sexual behaviour). The son Suvarna who could assume many forms, assumed the forms of the excellent Devas and indulged in sexual intercourse with the wives of Indra, Vayu, Kubera, Varuna and the leading sages. If any lady was fond of any particular person he assumed the form of that person and indulged in amorous dalliance with that lady. In some places the son of Agni who had splendid form assumed the forms of husbands of chaste ladies and sported about with them fully satisfying (Cupid). On account of his action Suvarna became contented."

Bhavishya Purana, Pratisarga Parva, Khanda 4 Adhyaya 17, Verses 67-73 (3.4.17.67-73)
Atri took his wife Anusuya on the bank of river Ganges to fulfil his austerity and then he started meditate upon lord Brahma. Then lord Brahma, Shiva and Vishnu arrived there, Those three gods went near his wife, Being bewildered at her charming figure. Rudra holding his PENIS, Vishnu is producing the SEMEN in his body and lord Brahma with want of SEX, came in control under her… "Please satify us by providing SEX otherwise we all will give up our lives before you" Anusuya stayed numb before them being afraid due to the anger of those gods. Those gods caught her FORCEFULLY for having SEX and bodily conjugation.

early date[224]. The Pratisarga-parvan, though nominally mentioned in Bhav I, 2, 2-3, is practically a new work. It narrates stories about Adam, Noah, Yākuta and others, and speaks of Taimurlong, Nadir Shah and Akbar with their descendants. It gives the story of Jayacandra and Pṛthvirāja, preaches the glories of the worship of Satya-nārāyana, and fabricates myths about the births of Varāhamihira, Śaṃkarācārya, Rāmānuja, Nimbārka, Madhva, Jayadeva, Viṣṇusvāmin, Bhaṭṭojidīkṣita, Ānandagiri, Kṛṣṇa-caitanya, Nityānanda, Kabīra, Nānaka, Ruidāsa, and others. It even knows the British rule in India and names Calcutta and the Parliament (aṣṭa-kauśalya). Thus its contents betray its late date[225]. The

He accused on kalika purana – Kallika Purana does not come under the canto of 18 Puranas written by Ved Vyasa so I will not consider it authentic to comment on – Srimad Bhagvatam 12.7.22-25

182 L. Rocher · The Purāṇas

Among the subjects treated in the last few chapters reference should be made to a discourse on the qualifications and duties of the king, on rites such as puṣyasnāna and śakradhvajotthāna, and on the different types of sons and the necessity to have them.

The Kālikā is so much a Śākta text that it also goes under the name of Kālikā Tantra. Sporadic claims that it, rather than the Vaiṣṇava Bhāgavata, is the true and original Bhāgavata, have been dismissed by most nibandhakāras.

There is general agreement that the Kālikā originated in Kāmarūpa, or in the part of Bengal which is closest to it. There is less agreement, however, on the date of the text. After having been assigned to the fourteenth century, the year A.D. 1000 was proposed as a terminus ante quem for it. Others noticed, in the text (55.17/57.17), an allusion to king Dharmapāla of Kāmarūpa, and consequently placed the Kālikā at the end of the eleventh or the beginning of the twelfth century. In the meantime a terminus post quem had been set at A.D. 700, in view of the fact that the purāṇa is influenced by Māgha's Śiśupālavadha. Finally, Hazra proposed the tenth or the first half of the eleventh century, with the proviso that the present purāṇa is different from an earlier one, one which had only few Tantric elements, and was composed in Bengal in the course of the seventh century.

Allegations-

Now there is a claim going on regarding on Regarding Shiva Purana Uma Samhita chapter 4 slokas 16-38

Refutation-

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhaumasaṃhitā,[79] also called Auma/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and sustenance, etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[80] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as gyojaṇadomarūpin, who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahman; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A.D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[86] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions – which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Vedic Text:

1. Upanishads: Yoga Upanishad, Brahma Vidya Upanishad

2. Six Darshanas: Samkhya Karika, Yoga Sutra, Mimamsa, Brahma Sutra, Nyaya Sutra

3. Economy: Arthashastra, the best book on economy and military strategy, Arthashatra is mentioned in Nyaya Vedic Darshan

4. Law: Manusmriti

5. As an Advaitin,

I accept Advaita Vedanta books (not a direct branch of Vedic Dharma)

6. Four Vedas
+ Vyakarana: Nirukta, Nighantu, Ashtadhyayi, Mahabhashya, Brahmanas

7. Non-Vedic
Epics: Ramayana, Mahabharata (Mahabharat – includes Vidur Niti, Brahma Vidya, Raja Vidya, Bhagavad Gita……..).

Conclusion :- Only the Vedas are our true Dharma Granth; no other text holds that status. Non-dualism is metaphysics, so I love it. Whether Advaitin or non-Advaitin, hold the Vedas as your only text. Arthashastra, Vidur Niti, Yoga Sutra…. All are excellent, but the Vedas remain the Only Text.

1. Varaha Avatar: Lifted the Earth from Pure water to Life State

2. Indra vs. Vritra.

3. From The Vital Energy of Rudra (giant fire), gold came to Earth, attracted (Mohini–> Attraction) to earth

Virya in Vedas is a Yaugik Term

it means Vital Energy
For earth it is Coal Petroleum Ausadhi
“नानांवीर्या॒” ओषंधी॒र्या बिभंर्ति पृथि॒वी – Atharav Ved 12/1/2
Sun rays are Virya of Sun.
_ refer — “Tantra Vartik”

For Human The Virya (Vital Energy of Body) is Seminal Fluid

4. Chandra and Tara.

These stories are in Vedic texts (Adhidevik Akhyan) as natural events, not human forms. Puranas gave them human forms.

I believe Puranas are unrelated to Vedic Dharma. Vedic texts are extensive and Very Time Consuming Not have Time for puranas, “And most of Purana authors are unknown”

Hinduphobes Exposed! 3

Before Beginning this refutation i will share some basic facts which are very important for the readers and which have to be kept in mind by everyone

First of all let me state that in Sanatan Dharma Ishwar (God) is one and only without a second . This is evident from the following Pramans

Taittriya Samhita 1.8.6 says -एको हि रुद्रो न द्वितीयाय meaning Rudra (God) is one and only one and second to none

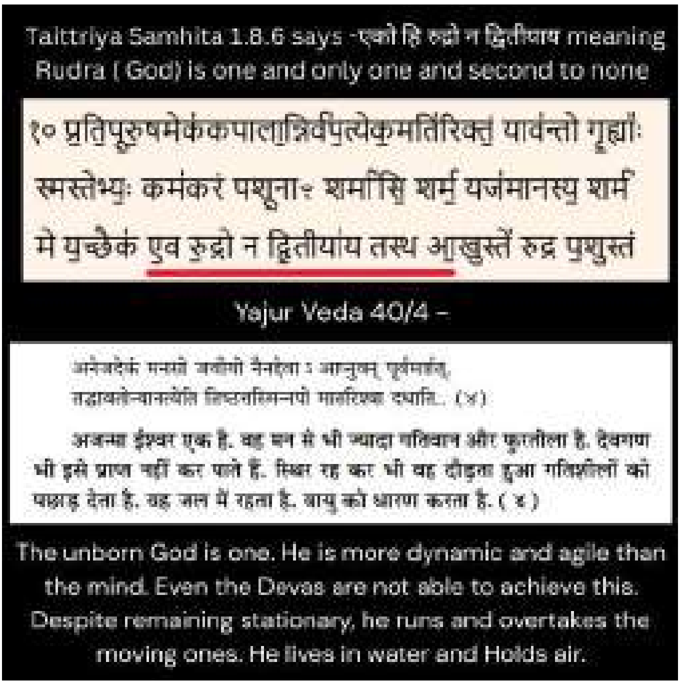
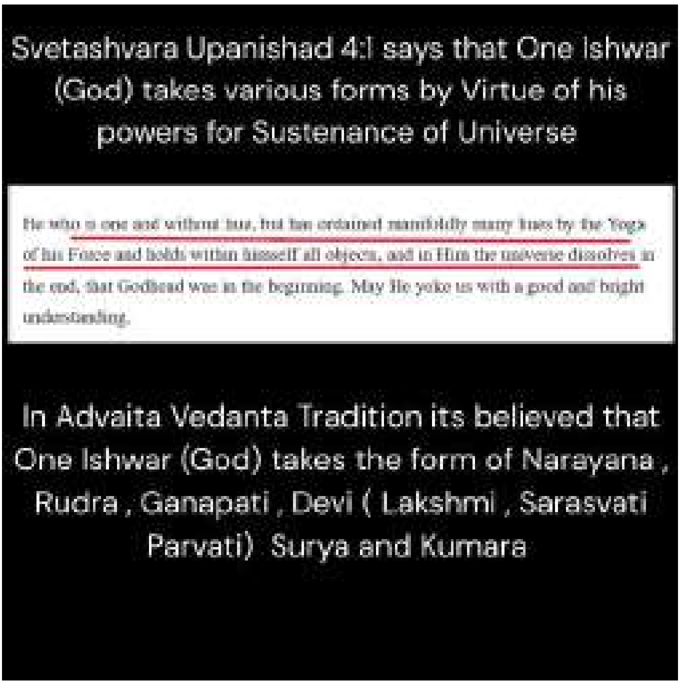
Yajur Veda 40/4 -The unborn God is one. He is more dynamic and agile than the mind. Even the Devas are not able to achieve this. Despite remaining stationary, he runs and overtakes the moving ones. He lives in water and Holds air.



Svetashvara Upanishad 4:1 says that One Ishwar (God) takes various forms by Virtue of his powers for Sustenance of Universe

He who is one and without hue, but has ordained manifoldly many hues by the Yoga of his Force and holds within himself all objects, and in Him the universe dissolves in the end, that Godhead was in the beginning. May He yoke us with a good and bright understanding.
In Advaita Vedanta Tradition its believed that One Ishwar (God) takes the form of Narayana, Rudra, Ganapati, Devi (Lakshmi, Sarasvati Parvati) Surya and Kumara



Nature of Ishwar as per Sukla Yajur Veda 40.8

वह परमपिता सर्वव्यापक, चमकीला, (दीप्तिमान), काया रहित, नाड़ियों से रहित है. वह घावों से रहित, पवित्र, पाप रहित, विद्वान्, मननशील, सर्वव्यापक व स्वयंभू (स्वयं उत्पन्न होने वाला) है. उस ने सृष्टि के आरंभ से ही सब के लिए यथायोग्य साधन सुविधाओं की व्यवस्था की है. (८)

He is पर्यगात्- Omnipresent शुक्रम् – Radiant अकायम्- Material Bodiless अव्रणम्- "Woundless" – Free from any imperfections or injuries अस्नाविरम्- Without flesh, nerves, or tissues , immaterial शुद्धम्- Pure -Untouched by impurities or defects अपापविद्धम् -"Untainted by sin" – Free from any trace of evil karma कविः with divine wisdom and foresight मनीषी-with supreme intellect परिभूः-Beyond all limits and boundaries स्वयंभूः- Self Existent याथातथ्यतः- Supreme Truth शाश्वतीभ्यः unchanging and समाभ्यः-Eternal

Acharya Uvat in his bhasya on Yajur Veda 40.8 explained

उ० स पर्यगात् । जगती । य एवमात्मानमुपास्ते स पर्यगात्परिगच्छति शुक्रं शुक्लं विज्ञानानन्दस्वभावमचिन्त्यशक्तिम् । अकायं न विद्यते कायः शरीरं यस्य स तथोक्तः । अव्रणं कायरहितत्वादेव । अस्नाविरं स्नायुरहितमकायत्वादेव शुद्धमनुपहतं त्वरजस्तमोभिरपापविद्धं क्लेशकर्मविपाकाशयैरसंस्पृष्टम् । अकायमव्रणमस्नाविरमिति पुनरुक्तान्यभ्यासे भूयांसमर्थं मन्यन्त इत्यदोषः ।

“Sa paryagāt” — He (the seeker) attains or fully realizes.

The one who worships the Self in this manner (evam ātmānam upāste) attains (parigacchati) the pure, luminous, blissful, and conscious Brahman, which is:

- Shukra/Shukla: Radiant and pure.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñānānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.
- Shuddha: Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Apāpaviddha: Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions (kleśa, karma, vipāka, āśaya).

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman’s transcendence and purity. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: “Repetition strengthens meaning.”

Thus, such a Brahman is realized (itthambhūtaṁ brahma pratipadyate).

Now, the fruit of worshiping the Self is described:

The one who is:

- A seer (kaviḥ),
- A thinker (manīṣī),
- A wise one (medhāvī),
- One who transcends all (paribhūḥ),
- Self-born (svayambhūḥ) through the power of knowledge,
- One who becomes Brahman itself through the strength of realization,

Such a person orders all things rightly, according to their true nature (yāthātathyataḥ arthān vyadadhāt). He has renounced ownership and possessiveness, and enjoys the world—both sentient and insentient—without attachment.

He performs karma not for worldly gain, but for the eternal welfare of all beings, across countless ages (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ).

Objection: Isn't karma a product of ignorance and bondage?

Answer: True—but when karma is done as a means of self-purification, it becomes a path to Brahman-realization. Therefore, even such a person attains the pure, bodiless Brahman (śukram akāyaṁ brahma).

"Thus is the fruit of one who knows the Self." He who perceives the Self in this manner attains (paryagāt) such a Brahman. What kind of Brahman?

- Shukra: Pure, luminous, and radiant.
- Shuddha: Free from impurity.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñāna-ānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.

- Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions.

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Further fruit of such realization is described:

The one who worships in this way:

- Kavi: Seer, one with deep insight.
- Manīṣī: Wise and discerning.
- Medhāvī: Possessing intellect and memory.
- Paribhūḥ: One who transcends all—by the power of knowledge, he becomes all forms.
- Svayambhūḥ: Self-born—he becomes Brahman itself.

Such a person also attains the previously described Brahman—pure, bodiless, and radiant.

Alternate interpretation of the verse:

The Self described in earlier mantras is one who pervades all (paryagāt), like space, encompassing everything. Having pervaded all, he organizes duties and responsibilities (arthān vyadadhāt) for eternal beings (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ) and for the attainment of infinite time (ananta-varṣa-prāpti), based on the true nature of karma and its results.

Qualities of Brahman:

- Shukra: Pure and luminous.
- Akāya: Without body—free from even subtle forms.
- Avraṇa: Unwounded.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins.
- Shuddha: Spotless.
- Apāpa-viddha: Untouched by sin or unrighteousness.
- Kavi: All-seeing—"There is no other seer than this," says the Upaniṣad.
- Manīṣī: All-knowing—directed by the mind.
- Paribhūḥ: One who exists above all.
- Svayambhūḥ: One who exists by himself, above all others.

He is the eternal Lord (nitya īśvaraḥ)—the one who has done all, created all.

Such a Brahman is attained by the knower of the Self.

Geeta Press Gorakhpur on Devas

इसके पश्चात् इस याज्ञवल्क्यसे शाकल्य विदग्धने पूछा, 'हे याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देवगण हैं?' तब याज्ञवल्क्यने इस आगे कही जानेवाली निविसे ही उनकी संख्याका प्रतिपादन किया। 'जितने वैश्वदेवकी निविद्में अर्थात् देवताओंकी संख्या बतानेवाले मन्त्रपदोंमें बतलाये गये हैं। वे तीन और तीन सौ तथा तीन और तीन सहस्र (तीन हजार तीन सौ छः) हैं।' [तब शाकल्यने] 'ठीक है' ऐसा कहा। फिर पूछा, 'याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देव हैं?' याज्ञवल्क्यने कहा, 'तैंतीस'। [शालक्यने] 'ठीक है' ऐसा कहा और पूछा, 'तो, याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देव हैं ?' [याज्ञवल्क्य-] 'छः।' [शाकल्यने] 'ठीक है' ऐसा कहा और फिर पूछा, 'याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देव हैं?' [याज्ञवल्क्य] 'तीन।' [शालक्यने] 'ठीक है' ऐसा कहा और पुनः पूछा, 'याज्ञवल्क्य ! कितने देव हैं?'

After this, the Vidagdha Shakalya asked Yājñavalkya, "O Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?" Then Yājñavalkya explained their number according to the Nivid that is to be stated ahead. "As many as are mentioned in the Nivid of the Vaiśvadeva—that is, in the mantra-verses that declare the number of the Devas—they are three and three hundred, and three and three thousand (i.e., three thousand three hundred and six)."

[Then Shakalya said,] "Alright," and asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

Yājñavalkya said, "Thirty-three."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and asked again, "So, Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

[Yājñavalkya replied,] "Six."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and again asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

[Yājñavalkya said,] "Three."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and once more asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

Ishwar created Devas

Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 4 Mantra 12 says

जो रुद्र देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति और ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तिका हेतु, जगत्का स्वामी और सर्वज्ञ है तथा जिसने सबसे पहले हिरण्यगर्भको अपनेसे उत्पन्न देखा था वह हमें शुद्ध बुद्धिसे संयुक्त करे ॥ १२

He who is Rudra, the originator and bestower of strength to the Devas ,
He who has become the Lord of the universe and its dissolution,
He who rules over both bipeds and quadrupeds —
May He unite us with pure and auspicious intellect

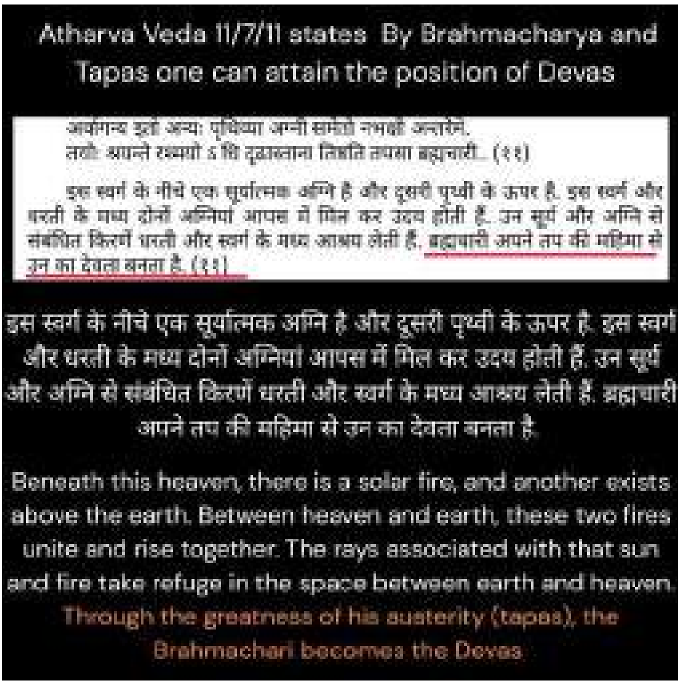
यो देवानां प्रभवश्चोद्भवश्च
विश्वाधिपो रुद्रो महर्षिः ।
हिरण्यगर्भं पश्यत जायमानं
स नो बुद्ध्या शुभया संयुनक्तु ॥ १२ ॥

जो रुद्र देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति और ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तिका हेतु, जगत्का स्वामी और सर्वज्ञ है तथा जिसने सबसे पहले हिरण्यगर्भको अपनेसे उत्पन्न देखा था वह हमें शुद्ध बुद्धिसे संयुक्त करे ॥ १२ ॥

Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can attain the postion of Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी पृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

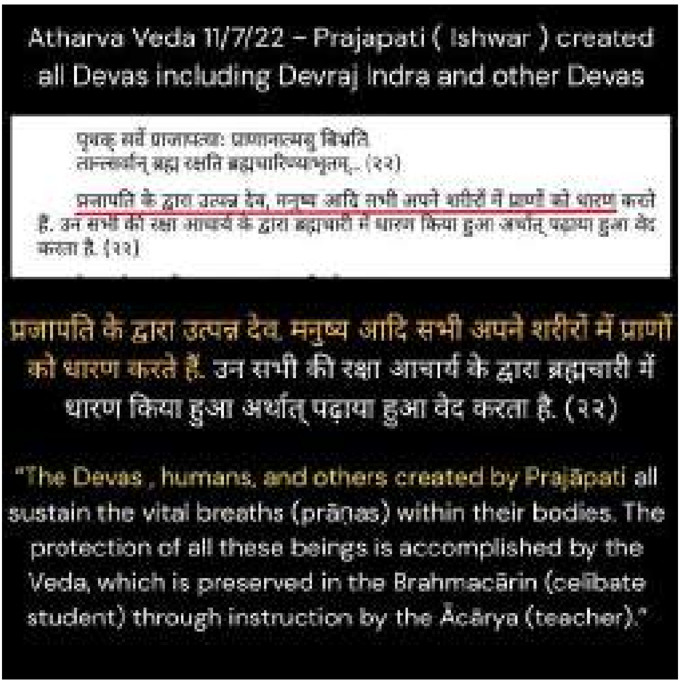
Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between earth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas



Atharva Veda 11/7/22 – Prajapati (Ishwar) created all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

प्रजापति के द्वारा उत्पन्न देव, मनुष्य आदि सभी अपने शरीरों में प्राणों को धारण करते हैं. उन सभी की रक्षा आचार्य के द्वारा ब्रह्मचारी में धारण किया हुआ अर्थात् पढ़ाया हुआ वेद करता है. (२२)

"The Devas , humans, and others created by Prajāpati all sustain the vital breaths (prāṇas) within their bodies. The protection of all these beings is accomplished by the Veda, which is preserved in the Brahmacārin (celibate student) through instruction by the Ācārya (teacher)."



Srimad Bhagavatam 3.11.24-26 tells that in every period of Brahma – Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas are born again and again and attain their position per their karma

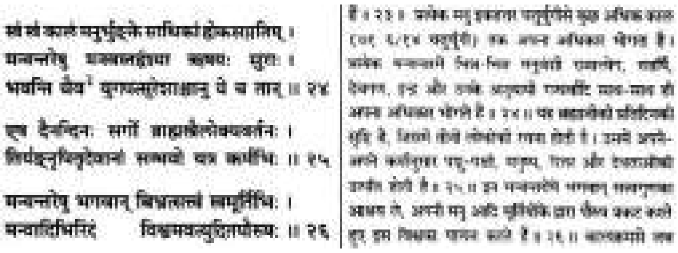
॥ प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अनुयायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ।॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर

और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Verse 24:
"Each Manu enjoys his reign for a duration slightly more than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In every Manvantara, different rulers of the Manu lineage, the Saptarishis (seven sages), groups of gods (Devas), Indra, and their attendants like the Gandharvas also enjoy their respective domains."

Verse 25:
"This is the daily creation (nitya-srishti) of Brahma, in which the three worlds are created. According to their individual karmas, various beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors (Pitṛs), and Devas are born."

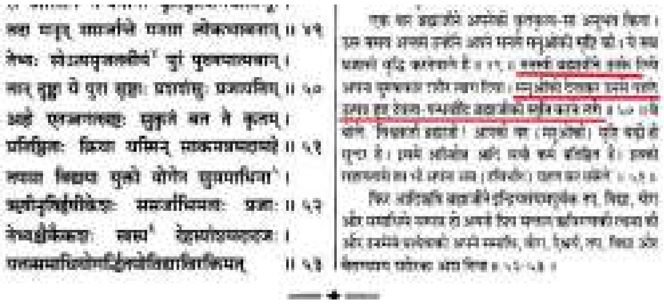
Verse 26:
"In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (goodness), assumes forms such as Manu and others to manifest His divine power (Pauruṣa) and uphold the order of the universe through protection and sustenance."



Srimad Bhagvatam 3/20/50 Geeta Press Gorakhpur

मनस्वी ब्रह्माजीने उनके लिये अपना पुरुषाकार शरीर त्याग दिया। मन्ओंको देखकर उनसे पहले उत्पन्न हुए देवता-गन्धर्वादि ब्रह्माजीकी स्त्ति करने लगे ॥ ५० ॥

"Manasvi Brahmaji gave up his masculine form for her. Seeing Manas (the mind), the Devas , Gandharvas, and others who were created before him began to praise Brahmaji.



Shri Vishnu Purana Amsa 1 Adhaya 5

श्रीमैत्रेयजी बोले- हे द्विजराज ! सर्गके आदिमे भगवान् ब्रह्माजीने पृथिवी, आकाश और जल आदिमे रहनेवाले देव, ऋषि, पितृगण, दानव, मनुष्य, तिर्यक् और वृक्षादिको जिस प्रकार रचा तथा जैसे गुण, स्वभाव और रूपवाले जगत्की रचना की वह सब आप मुझसे कहिये ॥ १-२ ॥

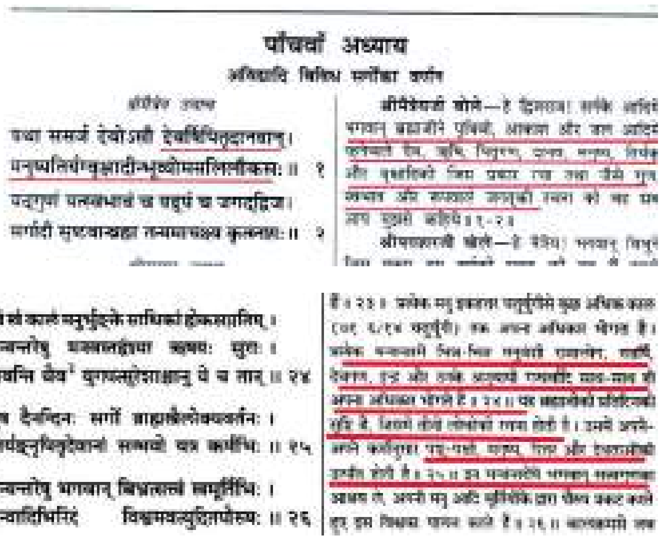
प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अन्यायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Maitreya said:
O chief among the twice-born (Brahmins), at the beginning of creation, Brahma ji created the Devas, sages, ancestors (Pitṛs), demons (Dānavas), humans, animals, birds, and trees, who dwell in the earth, sky, water, and other realms. Please describe to me how he created them, and how he gave them their qualities, natures, and forms. (Verses 1–2)

Verse 24:
Each Manu enjoys his rule for a period slightly longer than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically, 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In each Manvantara (the reign of a Manu), different kings of the lineage of that Manu, the seven great sages (Saptarishis), groups of Devas , Indra, and their followers like the Gandharvas exercise their respective authorities.

Verse 25:
This is the daily creation (naimittika sṛṣṭi) of Lord Brahma, in which the three worlds are formed. According to their individual karmas, beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors, and Devas come into existence.

Verse 26:
In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (purity), manifests his divine energy (Pauruṣa) through forms like Manu and sustains the universe.



पाँचवाँ अध्याय

Taittriya Aranyaka 5.14.8 as well as Taittriya Upanishad 2.8.1 of Krishna Yajurveda clearly says devatas such as Indra, wind god, Agni, and Yama perform their duties because they are afraid of the Supreme Brahman.

भीषाऽस्माद्वातः पवते । भीषोदेति सूर्यः । भीषाऽस्मादग्निश्चेन्द्रश्च । मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चम इति Meaning: From the fear of Him, Vatah (the wind) blows, from fear of Him the sun rises. From fear of Him the five divinities such as Agni (fire), Indra, and Mrityu (death) work.

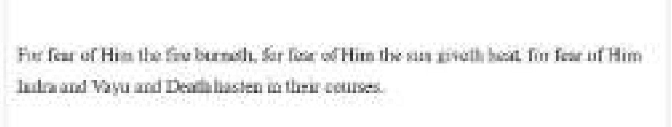
Through the fear of Him the Wind bloweth, through the fear of Him the Sun riseth, through the fear of Him Indra and Agni and Death hasten in their courses. Behold this exposition of the Bliss to which ye shall hearken. Let there be a young man, excellent & lovely in his youth, a great student; let him have fair manners and a most firm heart

Katha Upanishad 2.3.3 of Krishna Yajurveda also clearly says how devatas perform all their duties out of fear of the Supreme Brahman.

भयादस्याग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः । भयादिन्द्रश्चाग्निश्च मृत्युर्धावति पंचमः ॥

Meaning: Out of fear of God, the fire burns, the sun heats, and Indra, Vayu as well and Yama function briskly



For fear of Him the fire burneth, for fear of Him the sun giveth heat, for fear of Him Indra and Vayu and Death hasten in their courses.

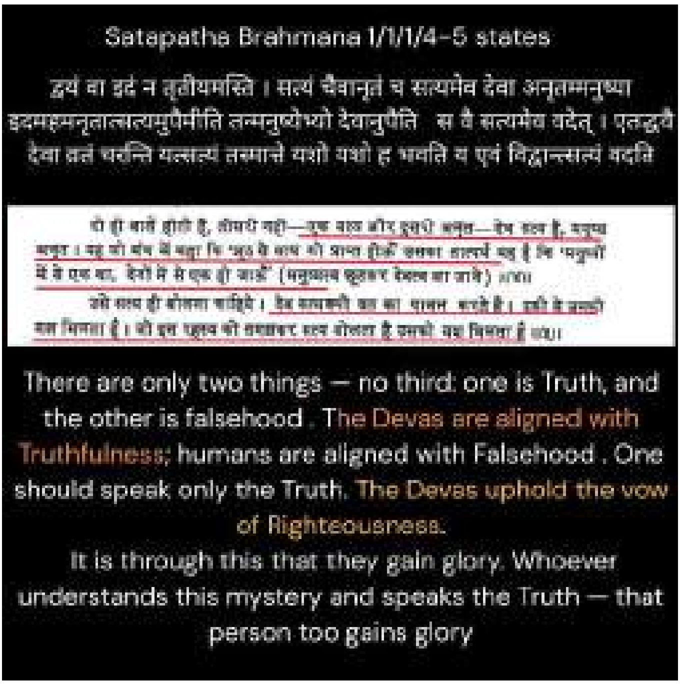
Nature and Qualities of Devas

Satapatha Brahmana 1/1/1/4-5 states

द्वयं वा इदं न तृतीयमस्ति । सत्यं चैवानृतं च सत्यमेव देवा अनृतम्मनुष्या इदमहमनृतात्सत्यमुपैमीति तन्मनुष्येभ्यो देवानुपैति स वै सत्यमेव वदेत् । एतद्धवै देवा व्रतं चरन्ति यत्सत्यं तस्मात्ते यशो यशो ह भवति य एवं विद्वान्त्सत्यं वदति

There are only two things — no third: one is Truth, and the other is falsehood . The Devas are aligned with Truthfulness; humans are aligned with Falsehood . One should speak only the Truth. The Devas uphold the vow of Righteousness.

It is through this that they gain glory. Whoever understands this mystery and speaks the Truth — that person too gains glory



Satapatha Brahmana 2/4/2/6 states

he Devas , Pitaras or animals do not violate rules. It is only some humans who do. Among humans, the one who becomes overweight does so because of inauspicious actions.And since he becomes overweight due to untruth (anṛta), he cannot move properly — his legs stagger.

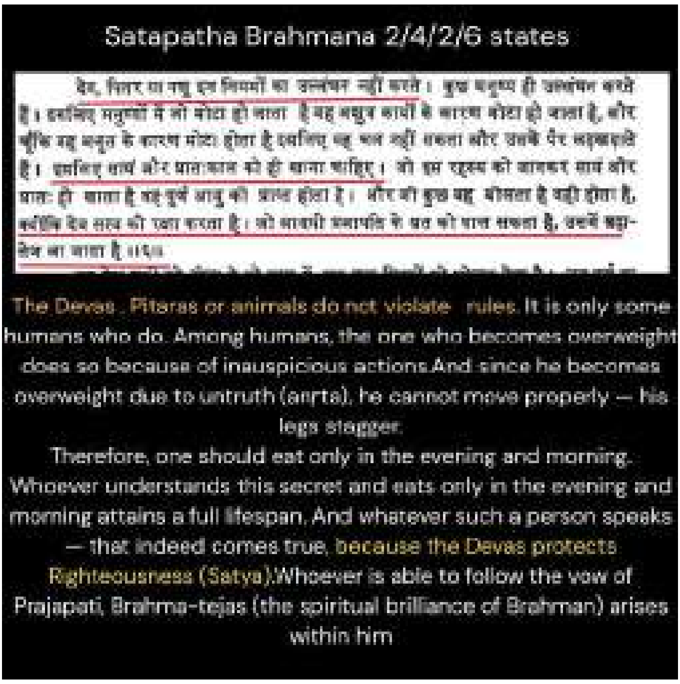
Therefore, one should eat only in the evening and morning. Whoever understands this secret and eats only in the evening and morning attains a full lifespan. And whatever such a person speaks — that indeed comes true, because the Devas protects Righteousness (Satya).Whoever is able to follow the vow of Prajapati, Brahma-tejas (the spiritual brilliance of Brahman) arises within him



Aitraya Brahmana 1.6 states

सत्यसंहिता वै देवाः ।that is the Devas are righteous

Nirukta 7.16 states देवो दानाद्वा । दीपनाद्वा । द्योतनाद्वा । द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । यो देवः सा देवता । Thus, one is called a Deva because of giving (donation), shining, illuminating, and dwelling in the heavenly realm (dyu-sthāna). The one who is a Deva is referred to as a Devatā

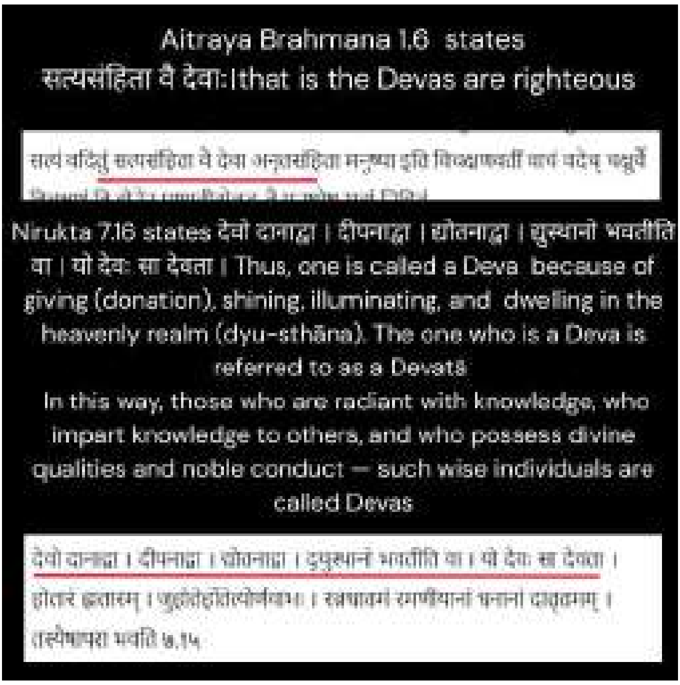
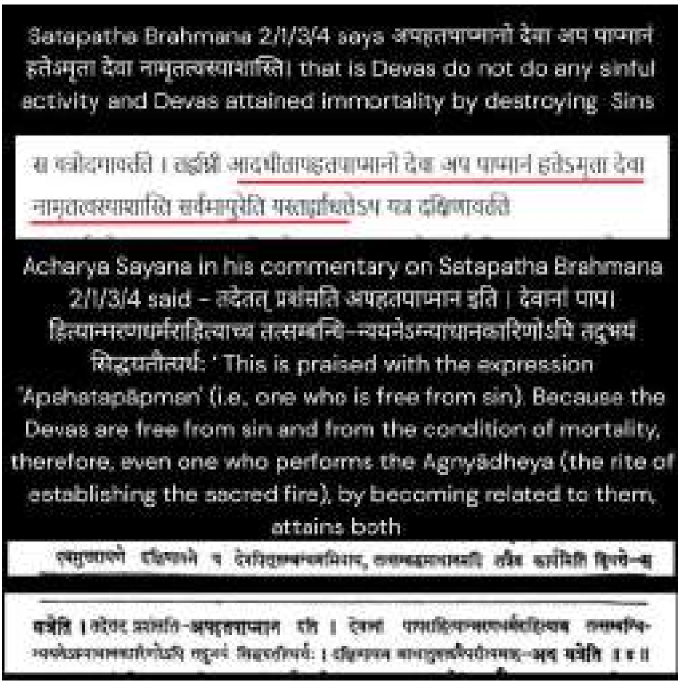
In this way, those who are radiant with knowledge, who impart knowledge to others, and who possess divine qualities and noble conduct — such wise individuals are called Devas



Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 says अपहतपाप्मानो देवा अप पाप्मानं हतेऽमृता देवा नामृतत्वस्याशास्ति। that is Devas do not do any sinful activity and Devas attained immortality by destroying Sins

Acharya Sayana in his commentary on Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 said – तदेतत् प्रशंसति अपहतपाप्मान इति । देवानां पाप। हित्यान्मरणधर्मराहित्याच्च तत्सम्बन्धि-न्ययनेऽग्न्याधानकारिणोऽपि तदुभयं सिद्धयतीत्यर्थः ' This is praised with the expression 'Apahatapāpman' (i.e., one who is free from sin). Because the Devas are free from sin and from the condition of mortality, therefore, even one who performs the Agnyādheya (the rite of establishing the sacred fire), by becoming related to them, attains both

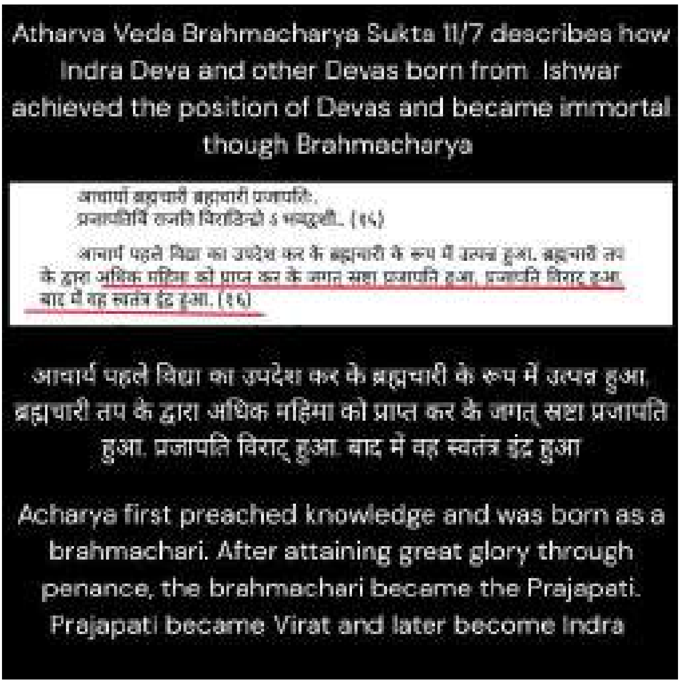


Devas follow Strict Brahmacharya

Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7 describes how Indra Deva and other Devas born from Ishwar achieved the position of Devas and became immortal through Brahmacharya

आचार्य पहले विद्या का उपदेश कर के ब्रह्मचारी के रूप में उत्पन्न हुआ. ब्रह्मचारी तप के द्वारा अधिक महिमा को प्राप्त कर के जगत् स्रष्टा प्रजापति हुआ. प्रजापति विराट् हुआ. बाद में वह स्वतंत्र इंद्र हुआ

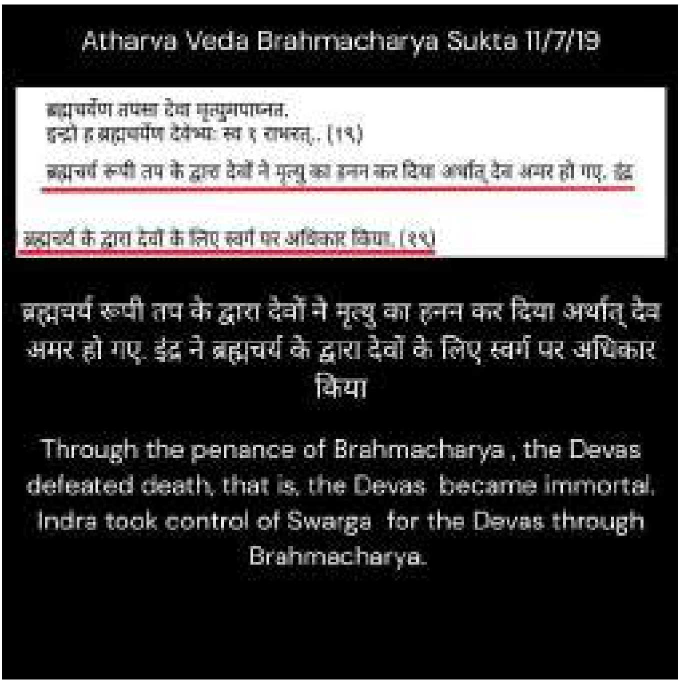
Acharya first preached knowledge and was born as a brahmachari. After attaining great glory through penance, the brahmachari became the Prajapati. Prajapati became Virat and later become Indra



Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7/19

ब्रह्मचर्य रूपी तप के द्वारा देवों ने मृत्यु का हनन कर दिया अर्थात् देव अमर हो गए. इंद्र ने ब्रह्मचर्य के द्वारा देवों के लिए स्वर्ग पर अधिकार किया

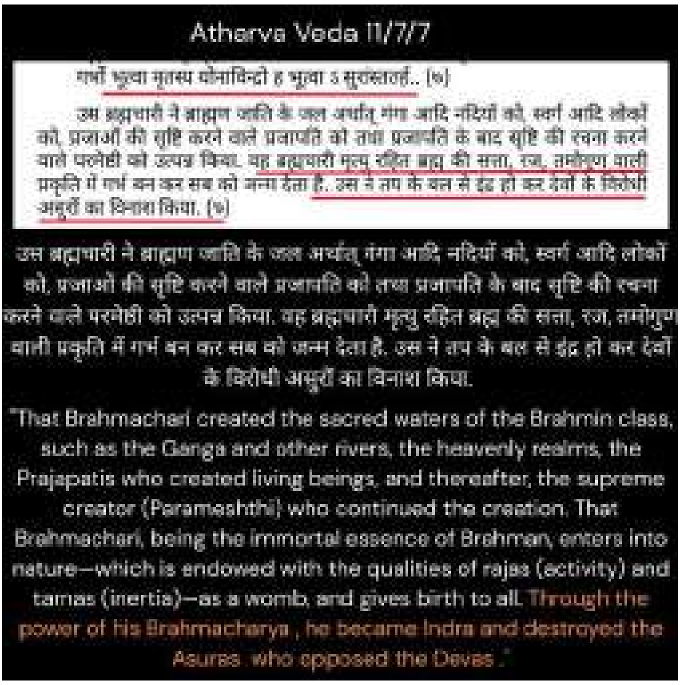
Through the penance of Brahmacharya , the Devas defeated death, that is, the Devas became immortal. Indra took control of Swarga for the Devas through Brahmacharya.



Atharva Veda 11/7/7

उस ब्रह्मचारी ने ब्राह्मण जाति के जल अर्थात् गंगा आदि नदियों को, स्वर्ग आदि लोकों को, प्रजाओं की सृष्टि करने वाले प्रजापति को तथा प्रजापति के बाद सृष्टि की रचना करने वाले परमेष्ठी को उत्पन्न किया. वह ब्रह्मचारी मृत्यु रहित ब्रह्म की सत्ता, रज, तमोगुण वाली प्रकृति में गर्भ बन कर सब को जन्म देता है. उस ने तप के बल से इंद्र हो कर देवों के विरोधी असुरों का विनाश किया.

“That Brahmachari created the sacred waters of the Brahmin class, such as the Ganga and other rivers, the heavenly realms, the Prajapatis who created living beings, and thereafter, the supreme creator (Parameshthi) who continued the creation. That Brahmachari, being the immortal essence of Brahman, enters into nature—which is endowed with the qualities of rajas (activity) and tamas (inertia)—as a womb, and gives birth to all. Through the power of his Brahmacharya , he became Indra and destroyed the Asuras who opposed the Devas .”



Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can become Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी पृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between earth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas

Atharva Veda 11/7/14 states all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas follow Strict Brahmacharya and live in Brahmacharya

ब्रह्मचर्य का पालन करने वाला पुरुष दीप्ति वाले वेदरूपी ब्रह्म को धारण करता है. उस वेद से सभी देव संबंधित हैं. देवों का निवास बना हुआ ब्रह्मचारी प्राण और अपान के बाद ज्ञान को, मन, वाणी, हृदय और मेधा को उत्पन्न करता है

A man who practices Brahmacharya attains the Brahm in the form of the Veda which is full of light. All the Devas are related to that Veda. Brahmacharya is the abode of the Devas it produces knowledge, mind, speech, heart and intelligence after Prana and Apan.

Brihaspati Raped his Brother's Wife- Mamatha

📚Shrimad Bhagavatham 9.20.36📚
When the demigod named Brhaspati was attracted by his brother's wife, Mamata, who at that time was pregnant, he desired to have sexual relations with her. The son within her womb forbade this, but Brhaspati cursed him and forcibly discharged semen into the womb of Mamata."

📚Shiva Purana 5.4.38📚
The excellent sage Brhaspati deluded by Siva's Mayã had sexual intercourse with his brother's wife and Bharadvãja was born."

📚Matsya Purana 49.17-28📚
Suta said : — Brihaspati, whilst staying on Earth, one day saw the wife of his brother, Usija, who was big with child, and addressed her thus: — " Dress thyself well and let us enjoy." She, being thus addressed, replied to Brihaspati thus : — " The embryo in my womb is mature and is already reciting the Vedas, Thy seed will also not be fruitless and thy proposal is sinful." Hearing which, Brihaspati said : — " I need not be taught morality by thee, o sweet one." After saying that, he carried out his desire by force ; when on the verge of his final enjoyment, the child from her womb cried out to Brihaspati : — " I have entered the womb first, o Brihaspati, thy seed will also not go in vain. There is no room for a second body in this womb." Brihaspati being thus addressed by the child in the womb, replied in anger : — Because on such an occasion, dear to every creature, thou preventest me from enjoyment, thou shouldst see lasting darkness [Dirghatamas]."

📚Brahmanda Purana 3.74.37-44📚
The younger brother of Usija was the priest of heaven-dwellers named Brhaspati, He had a great deal of effulgence. He approached Mamatà. Mamata who did not like Brhaspati said to him- "T am the wife of your elder rother and I am pregnant too. This child in my womb, O

Brhaspati, yells con- stantly practising the recitation of the Vedas along with their Angas (ancillary subjects). You too are Amogharetas (one whose semen never goes in vain). It does not behove you, O lord, to approach me on this occasion or in the manner you think." Though told thus clearly Brhaspati of great effulgence could not resist the passionate impulse of himself, although he was a noble soul. The righteous-souled Brhaspati did indeed have sexual intercourse with her. Even as he was discharging the seminal fluid, the child in the womb spoke to him. "Do not discharge semen O Bṛhaspati. There is no space here for two. You are one whose semen never goes in vain. But I have come here before." On being told thus, the exalted sage Bṛhaspati, became infuriated then. He cursed the son of his brother Uśija, though he was yet in the womb."

📚Devi Bhagavatam 4.15.59-64📚
Look! The Moon stole away perforce knowingly the wife of Brihaspatī; Indra, knowing what is religion stole away the wife of Gautama; Brihaspatī enjoyed forcibly the wife of his younger; and also he outraged his elder brother's wife in her pregnant state and cursed the boy in the womb…"

📚Vayu Purana 2.37.38-45📚
Not desirous of having sexual intercourse with him, Mamata spoke thus to Brhaspati : am pregnant due to my contact with your elder brother. This is the eighth (month). O Brhaspati, this great child in the womb cries much. The son of Aiija that he is, he has learned the Vedas with their six ancillaries and he repeats the Vedic Mantras. Your semen virile too is never-failing. It does not behove you to have sexual intercourse with me, O holy lord, when the period (of gestation) lapses (you may do) as you deem fit. Though emphatically told thus by her, the noble-souled Brhaspati of excessive refulgence did not restrain himself, as he was overwhelmed by passion. The virtuous-souled Brhaspati did have his sexual intercourse with her. Even as he was discharging the semen virile, the child in the womb spoke thus : Snataka (a Brahmana who just had his sacred ablution after completing his Vedic study) shall deposit his (semen virile) here. There is no space here for two. You too are one with never-failing semen virile. I have come here first. Brhaspati, the sage of divine attributes, became infuriated on being told thus. He cursed the son of Asija, his brother, who was yet in the womb: "You have spoken thus to me on an occasion coveted by all living beings. Since you have spoken thus out of delusion, you will enter a long period of darkness."

बृहस्पति और ममता

पुराणों पर एक यह भी आक्षेप किया जाया करता है कि उन में बृहस्पति का ममता से बलात्कार करना लिखा है। कहा जाता है कि बृहस्पति ने अपने बड़े भाई उतथ्य की धर्मपत्नी ममता से सगर्भावस्था में ही बार बार हटाने पर भी हठात् मैथुन किया, जब गर्भस्थ बालक ने बृहस्पति का वीर्य अन्दर न जाने दिया तो उसके बाहिर गिरते ही उससे 'भरद्वाज' मुनि की उत्पत्ति हुई, एवं बृहस्पति ने क्रुद्ध होकर गर्भस्थ बालक को जन्मान्ध हो जाने का शाप दिया, जिससे दीर्घतमा ऋषि उत्पन्न हुवे। यह कथा

वास्तविक भाव

वास्तविक भाव

उपर्युक्त दोनों स्वरूपों की तुलना करने पर प्रत्येक साक्षर इस आख्यान की वैदिकता का अच्छी तरह अनुमान कर सकता है। कई तुच्छबुद्धि जन इस कथा से नियोग भी सिद्ध करना चाहा करते हैं, परन्तु उन्हें यह विदित नहीं कि इससे तो आप के माने हुये नियोग की उल्टी धज्जियें उड़ जाती हैं। क्योंकि आपके यहां नियोग का लक्षण यही तो है कि 'सन्तान के लिए पति की आज्ञा से या उसके मरने पर किसी परपुरुष से इच्छापूर्वक भोग करना।' उक्त कथा में इन तीनों बातों का सर्वथा अभाव है। क्योंकि सन्तान तो पूर्व ही ममता के गर्भ में विद्यमान थी। पति आज्ञा का इसमें लेशमात्र भी नहीं और ममता अन्त तक इस कार्य के सर्वथा प्रतिकूल ही रही है। अतः इसे खुला व्यभिचार या बलात्कार ही कह सकते हैं। अगर आप की सम्मति में नियोग भी इसी का का नाम है तब तो आप के इस धार्मिक कृत्य पर सौ २ बार बलिहारी ! आशा है कि प्रतिवादी अब इससे नियोग सिद्ध करने का साहस नहीं दिखायेंगे। रहा इसकी वास्तविकता का विचार, सो हम वैदिक शब्दों में ही प्रकट करते हैं। वेदों में लिखा है कि—

(क) वाग्वै बृहती (शतपथ १४ । ४ । १ । २२)

(ख) पतिः पालयिता (निरुक्त अ० १० खं० २१)

अर्थात्—(क) यह वाक् ही बृहती कही जाती है। (ख) पति रक्षक को कहते हैं।

जो पुरुष का मन ही बृहस्पति कहलाता है : क्योंकि 'यन्मनसाऽभिगच्छति तद् वाचा वदति' इस श्रुति के अनुसार पहिले मन में जो भाव उत्पन्न

होता है वही पश्चात् वाणी से बोला जाता है। अतः मनः ही वाणी का पति कहला सकता है। इसका ज्येष्ठ भ्राता जीवात्मा ही उतथ्य है। 'तथ्य' शब्द का अर्थ सत्य है और 'उ' शब्द वितर्क बोधक है : अर्थात् जिसकी सत्यता में वितर्क हो वह 'उतथ्य' कहा जाता है। अतः यह जीव—'जीवरूपेण सत्य किंवा—'ब्रह्मविद् ब्रह्मैव भवति' के अनुसार ब्रह्मरूपेण सत्य है ?'—ऐसा विचार जीवात्मा के विषय में निरन्तर बना रहता है। द्वैत-अद्वैत-विशिष्टाद्वैत आदि सिद्धान्त इसी एक 'उ' के चमत्कार हैं। 'ममता' शब्द की विशेष व्याख्या करने की आवश्यकता नहीं क्योंकि प्रचलित भाषा में भी किसी वस्तु में विशेष आसक्त होना या उसमें रागाधिक्य रखना, ममत्व-ममता किंवा मामता कही जाती है, जो कि माया का ही विशेष स्वरूप है। 'दीर्घतमा' का अर्थ घोर अन्धकार है, जिसे दूसरे शब्दों में अज्ञान या मोह कहा जा सकता है। इसी प्रकार 'वीर्य' शब्द भी पराक्रम का पर्याय है। अतः आध्यात्मिक पक्ष में इसका सीधा अर्थ यही होगा कि जीवात्मा रूप उतथ्य की स्त्री ममता 'ममत्वयुक्त' रागात्मक वृत्ति के गर्भ में घोररूप दीर्घतमा थे। बृहस्पति मन ने इस वृत्ति में अपने वीर्य-सामर्थ्य का संचार करना चाहा, परन्तु जब तक ममता के गर्भ में मोह घुसा बैठा हो तब तक मानसी शक्ति का संचार होना सर्वथा कठिन है। वेद में इसी भाव को इस प्रकार प्रकट किया है—

अन्धं तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽविद्यामुपासते। (यजु: ४० । १२)

अर्थात्—जो मनुष्य अविद्या के चंगुल में फंस जाते हैं वह घोर अन्धकार को प्राप्त होते हैं। अतः मन के हजार बार प्रयत्न करने पर भी ममता-गर्भस्थ मोह मानसिक बल का प्रवेश नहीं होने देता। कदाचित् यह मनःरूप बृहस्पति यथाकथा अपने वीर्य सामर्थ्य को ममतावृत्ति के सन्निपात में भी इस्खलित करदे-फैलादे, तो उससे आत्मज्ञान रूप 'भरद्वाज' उत्पन्न होता है। क्योंकि 'आत्मज्ञान' मन और

वृत्ति इन दोनों के पारस्परिक संघर्ष का परिणाम है अतः वह 'भरद्वाज' कहा जाता है। उत्पन्न हुवे आत्मज्ञान का धर्माधिकारादि साधनों द्वारा ही परिपोषण होता है, अतः यही 'भरद्वाज' का देवताओं द्वारा रक्षित होने का अभिप्राय है। यही इस कथा का आध्यात्मिक भाव है। इतिहास पक्ष में वेदपुराणइत्यनयाध्याय के देवतावाद-अवतरणगत दिव्य चरित्रों का मनन करने से सब शंकाएं काफूर हो जायेंगी। क्योंकि मनुष्ययोनि कर्मयोनि है अर्थात् इसमें किए गये शुभाशुभ कर्म भोगने पड़ते हैं और पशु पक्षी आदि तथा देव गन्धर्व आदि भोग-योनियें हैं इनमें पूर्व जन्मकृत अशुभ और शुभ कर्मों को केवल भोगना पड़ता है, अतः सूक्ष्म दिव्यज्ञानयुक्त दिव्य शरीरधारी देवताओं के चरित्र स्थूल विकारी पांच भौतिक शरीरधारी मनुष्यों के लिए अनुकरणीय नहीं होते। इसके अतिरिक्त जहाँ यह कथा आती है वहाँ पर इसे कहीं भी धर्मसंगत नहीं कहा है। ऐतिहासिक ग्रन्थों में बुरी भली सभी प्रकार की घटनायें मिलती रहती हैं। उनसे सर्वसाधारण तादृश अनुकरण करने के लिए बाध्य हों सो बात नहीं है। हमारे विचार में यह कथा एक उपाख्यान आख्यायिका है परन्तु वेदव्यास जी ने पुराणों की विशिष्ट शैली के अनुसार इसमें ऐतिहासिक अंश को जो विनिश्चित किया है, सो विश्लेषण करने पर इतना ज्ञात पड़ता है कि विनष्ट हुवे भरतकुल का उत्तराधिकारी 'भरद्वाज' हुआ है।

रहा इसकी वास्तविकता का विचार, सो हम वैदिक शब्दों में ही प्रकट करते हैं। वेदों में लिखा है कि-

(क) वाग्वै बृहती

(शतपथ १४।४। १ । २२)

(ख) पतिः पालयिता

(निरुक्त अ० १० खं० २१)

अर्थात् (क) यह वाक् ही बृहती कही जाती है। (ख) पति रक्षक को कहते हैं। सो पुरुष का मन ही बृहस्पति कहलाता है क्योंकि 'यन्मनसाऽनुमनुते तेदू बाचा वदति' इस श्रुति के अनुसार पहिले मन में जो भाव उदित

होता है वही पश्चात् वाणी से बोला जाता है। अतः मनः ही वाणी का पति कहला सकता है। इसका ज्येष्ठ आता जीवात्मा ही उतथ्य है । 'तथ्य' शब्द का अर्थ सत्य है और 'उ' शब्द वितर्क द्योतक हैः अर्थात् जिसकी सत्यता में वितर्क हो वह 'उतथ्य' कहा जाता है। अतः यह जीव – 'जोवरूपेण सत्य किंवा 'ब्रह्मविद् ब्रह्मव भवति' के अनुसार ब्रह्मरूपेण सत्य है ?' – ऐसा विचार जीवात्मा के विषय में निरन्तर बना रहता है। द्वैत-अद्वैत विशिष्टाद्वैत आदि सिद्धान्त इसी एक 'उ' के चमत्कार हैं। 'ममता' शब्द की विशेष व्याख्या करने की आवश्यकता नहीं क्योंकि प्रचलित भाषा में भी किसी वस्तु में विशेष आसक्त होना या उसमें रागाधिक्य रखना, ममत्व-ममता किंवा मामता कही जाती है, जो कि माया का ही विशद स्वरूप है। 'दीर्घतमा' का अर्थ घोर अन्धकार है, जिसे दूसरे शब्दों में अज्ञान या मोह कहा जा सकता है। इसी प्रकार 'वीर्य' शब्द भी पराक्रम का पर्याय्य है। अतः आध्यात्मिक पक्ष में इसका सीधा अर्थ यही होगा कि जीमात्मा रूप उतथ्य की स्त्री ममता 'ममत्वयुक्त' तादृश वृत्ति के गर्भ में मोहरूप दीर्घतमा थे। बृहस्पति मन ने इस वृत्ति में अपने वीर्य-सामर्थ्य का संचार करना चाहा, परन्तु जब तक ममता के गर्भ में मोह घुसा बैठा हो तब तक मानसी शक्ति का संचार होना सर्वथा कठिन है। वेद में इसी भाव को इस प्रकार प्रकट किया है-
अन्धं तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽविद्यामुपासते । (यजुः ४० । १२)
अर्थात् – जो मनुष्य अविद्या के वंगुल में फंस जाते हैं वह घोर अन्धकार को प्राप्त होते हैं। अतः मन के हजार बार प्रयत्न करने पर भी ममता-गर्भस्थ मोह मानसिक बल का प्रवेश नहीं होने देता । कदाचित् गह मनःरूप बृहस्पति यथातथा अपने वीर्य सामर्थ्य को ममतावृत्ति के सन्निधान में भी प्रस्खलित करदे-फैलादे, तो उससे झात्मज्ञान रूप 'भरद्वाज' उत्पन्न होता है। क्योंकि 'आत्मज्ञान' मन और वृत्ति इन दोनों के पारस्परिक संघर्ष का परिणाम है अतः वह 'भरद्वाज' कहा जाता है। उत्पन्न हुवे ग्रात्मज्ञान का यमनियमादि साधनों द्वारा ही परिपोषण होता है, अतः यही 'भरद्वाज' का देवताओं द्वारा रक्षित होने का अभिप्राय है। यही इस कथा का आध्यात्मिक भाव है ।

As for its true significance, we express it using Vedic expressions:

- (a) Vāk vai Bṛhatī — "Speech indeed is called Bṛhatī." (Shatapatha Brahmana 14.4.1.22)
- (b) Patiḥ pālayitā — "A husband is the protector." (Nirukta, Chapter 10, Section 21)

Hence, the mind of a man is called Bṛhaspati, because—according to the Shruti (scriptural saying)—'What one contemplates with the mind, that alone one expresses through speech' (yan manasā anumanyate tad vācā vadati). First, the emotion arises in the mind…"

"What arises first in the mind is later expressed through speech. Therefore, the mind can be regarded as the 'husband' of speech. The 'elder' that comes from it is the jivātma (individual soul), which is referred to here as Utathya.

The word 'tathya' means 'truth,' and the prefix 'u' signifies doubt or questioning — thus, 'Utathya' refers to 'that which is questioned in its truthfulness.' In this way, constant inquiry continues about the nature of the soul — whether, being of the form of consciousness, it is truly real, or, as the Upanishadic saying goes, brahmavid brahmaiva bhavati — 'The knower of Brahman becomes Brahman.' Philosophical doctrines such as Dvaita (dualism), Advaita (non-dualism), and Vishishtadvaita (qualified non-dualism) are all intricate elaborations based on this single mysterious prefix 'u'.

The term 'Mamata' requires no special interpretation. In commonly understood language, it signifies deep attachment to or excessive fondness for something — also referred to as possessiveness or egoistic attachment, which is essentially a manifestation of Maya (illusion or cosmic delusion).

The term 'Dirghatama' means 'profound darkness,' which in other words stands for ignorance or delusion. Likewise, the term 'Virya' also means valor or potency. So, in spiritual terms, the meaning becomes clear: the soul (Utathya)'s consort Mamata, who is imbued with egoistic attachment, had in her womb a conception called Dirghatama (darkness/delusion).

The mind, symbolized by Brihaspati, wished to infuse this disposition with the power of its Virya (potency/energy). However, as long as delusion (moha) resides in the womb of Mamata (attachment), the transmission of mental or spiritual power becomes nearly impossible.

This idea is expressed in the Vedas as:
'Andham tamaḥ praviśanti ye'vidyām upāsate' —
"They enter into blinding darkness, those who worship ignorance." (Yajurveda 40.12)"

"That is — those human beings who become entangled in the snare of avidyā (ignorance) attain profound darkness. Therefore, even after countless efforts by the mind, the moha (delusion) residing in the womb of Mamata (attachment) does not allow the entry of mental or spiritual force.

Even if, by chance, the mind in the form of Bṛhaspati — out of weariness or helplessness — ends up spilling or discharging its vīrya-power (potency) in the presence of such an egoistic tendency (Mamata-vṛtti), then the result is the birth of Bharadvāja, who symbolizes ātmajñāna (self-knowledge).

Because self-knowledge is the result of the mutual struggle between the mind (manas) and the tendencies (vṛtti), it is thus called Bharadvāja. The nourishment and growth of this born self-knowledge (Bharadvāja) occur only through disciplines such as restraint and spiritual practices — and so, the idea of the 'gods protecting Bharadvāja' refers to this very nurturing process. This, then, is the spiritual essence of the story.

As for its true significance, we express it using Vedic expressions:

- (a) Vāk vai Bṛhatī — "Speech indeed is called Bṛhatī."
- (Shatapatha Brahmana 14.4.1.22)
- (b) Patiḥ pālayitā — "A husband is the protector."

Indra

📚Valmiki Ramayana 1.48.17-31📚
The thousand-eyed Indra, consort of Sachi, having found an opportunity (during the absence of the ascetic), assumed the guise of the ascetic (Gautama) and said to Ahalya: 'O most beautiful one those overtaken by passion would not await the completion of the menstrual period (favourable for copulation). O woman of fine waist I desire union with you. O Delight of the Raghus the evil-intentioned Ahalya, inclined towards the king of the celestials and knowing him to be the thousand-eyed Indra in the guise of the ascetic, consented for the union. O Foremost of men with her heart's desire fulfilled, Ahalya said: "O Chief of the celestials I'm satisfied. O Lord, quit this place: O Lord of the gods, protect yourself and also me from Gautama in all respects. Indra smilingly said to Ahalya, 'O One with lovely hips, I am gratified. I shall go away the way I have come'. O Rama he (Indra) came out of the leaf hut quickly after his union with her, apprehensive of Gautama. Subsequently, Indra beheld the great ascetic Gautama, unassailable by gods and demons, endowed with the power of asceticism, drenched with sacrificial waters, shining like flaming fire, carrying sacrificial firewood and Kusha grass and preeminent among sages, entering that leaf hut. On seeing him, the face of the Lord of the gods (Indra) turned pale with fear. Having seen the wicked Indra with a thousand-eyed in the guise of an ascetic, the gentle sage Gautama got enraged and said: 'O Wicked natured one assuming my form you have done a forbidden act. For that reason you shall he devoid of scrotum. Cursed thus out of anger by eminent Gautama, the testicles of Indra immediately dropped down on the earth. Having thus cursed Indra, he also cursed Ahalya: You will be staying here for thousands of years without food and subsisting on air, lying down in ashes, doing penance, without being seen by any living beings in this ashrama."

📚Brahmanda Purana 2.27.23📚
Formerly, the penis of Indra along with his scrotum, O sages conversant with Virtue, was made to fall down on the earth by the infuriated sage Gautama."

Refutation-

Indra is called the जार (Destroyer) of Ahalya (Night) in these sections of Shruti :

ShadVimsa Brahmana 1.1: -अहल्यायै जारोऽसी।अहलायाया ह मैत्रेय्या जार आस that is Indra is Destroyer of Ahilya

Shatpath Brahmana 3.3.4.18: -अहल्यायै जारोऽसी that is Indra (Sun) is destroyed of Ahilya (Night)

Satapatha Brahmana 4.5.9.4 says वै शुक्रो य एष तपत्येष उ एवेन्द्रस्तस्माच्छुक्राग्रान्गृह्णाति that is Sun is Indra

Taittriya Aranyaka Prapathak 1 Anuvak 12 says इन्द्राऽऽगच्छ हरिव आगच्छ मेधातिथेः । मेष वृषणश्वस्य मेने (३) । गौरावस्क-न्दिन्नहल्यायै जार that is Indra (sun) is the destroyer of Ahilya (night) and Indra comes to the sacrifice of Medhatithi

Drahyāyaṇa Śrautasūtram Patala 1 khanda 3 says इन्द्रागच्छ हरिव आगच्छ मेधातिथेर्मेषवृषणश्वस्य मेने गौरावास्कन्दिन्नहल्यायै जारकौशिकब्राह्मण गौतमब्रुवाणेति that is Indra comes to the Sacrifice of Medhatithi and Indra (Sun) is the destroyer of Ahilya (night)

In Nirukta 3.16, 3.3.4- सूर्य (Sun) is clearly called the जार (destroyer) of रात्रि (Night).

You might be wandering what is the meaning of गौतम (gautam) then? "उत्तमा गावो रश्मयो यस्य सः" That which has Excellent rays is Gautam. Here "चंद्रमा (moon) is Gautama

And Gautama means चन्द्र i.e. kaanta of Ahilya रश्मी गै उच्यते, गौ with तम meaning who shines bright. here because of Surya from whom the moon shines, has been called गौ (Gautam) The meaning that has to be taken as "Sun(Indra) is the Jaar(destroyer) of the Ahilya (night) (The wife on Chandra) ie Gautama

The sunray named Sushumna, directed toward the moon, makes it beautiful and radiant — this is a Vedic principle. That ray is called 'go', or alternatively, all rays are referred to as 'gau'.

वेद में आदित्य (सूर्य) को ही जार कहते हैं क्योंकि वह रात को जीणं परिसमाप्त खत्म करने वाला है।

The word "Indra"-proceeding from the root' Idi' which signi. fies great glory-would signify one possessed of a resplendent glory; and as such it is taken as another name of the Sun; and he is the जार that makes 'Ahalya (darkness of night) disappear (लीयमानतया रात्रेरहल्या). It cannot be interpreted as an illicit connection with a woman (न तु परस्त्रीव्यभिचारात्).

According to Ancient Acharya Kumarila Bhatta, in his commentary Tantravartika on the Mimamsa Darshan (page 189), writes that the name "Indra" refers to the Sun, and "Ahalya" refers to the night. When the Sun rises, the night is destroyed. This is why Indra is called the "Destroyer" (jar) of Ahalya. This does not mean that a deity named Indra had an illicit relationship with a woman named Ahalya. In Texts like Ramayana and Mahabharat this Scientific philosphy was adopted only in the form of a narrative and this is the real meaning of that Narrative and it should be understood within this context only

The Gautamī-māhātmya (chaps. 70-175), which was certainly composed by somebody living about the river Godāvarī, is a distinct work (purāṇam) by itself. It is called a 'highly meritorious Purāṇa' declared by Brahmā (cf. Br 175, 38 and 89). The place which it occupies in the Brahma-p. was not meant for it, because it divides the chapters on Puruṣottamakṣetra-māhātmya. The way in which chap. 176 opens, shows that it immediately followed chap. 69. Moreover, in chap. 178 there is no hint from which we may conclude that the Māhātmya was there. In Br 178, 2 the sages refer to Bhāratavarṣa (chap. 27) and Puruṣottama-kṣetra, of which, they say, Vyāsa told them elaborately, but they do not mention the Gautamī-māhātmya, which also precedes chap. 178 in our edition. So, it is clear that the Māhātmya was not originally there. In the Venk. ed. it is placed at the end. The Māhātmya was attached to the Brahma-p. later than the chapters on Orissa, for the Nāradīya-p. (I, 92), which gives the contents of the present with a discussion of Sāṃkhya and Yoga (234–245).

The Gautamīmāhātmya, also called Godāvarīmāhātmya, of which there exist several separate manuscripts and which has also been separately edited, calls itself a purāṇa, and must originally have been a distinct book. It interrupts the section on Puruṣottamakṣetra, and has been inserted exactly in the middle of the Brahma. It describes the sacred places along the Godāvarī river.

The question, both in the tradition and in modern scholarship, whether the Devībhāgavata or the Vaiṣṇava Bhāgavata is the true and original Śrīmadbhāgavata has been discussed under the Bhāgavata. It should be noted in this connection that the term Devībhāgavata appears only in the chapter colophons, and in the text of the last two skandhas; elsewhere in the text the purāṇa refers to itself either as Bhāgavata or Śrīmadbhāgavata, once as Sati (1.3.41). The text also repeatedly refers to itself as "the best of purāṇas" (purāṇottama), and declares that "there are many other purāṇas devoted to Hari and Rudra, but they are not worth one-sixteenth part of this Devībhāgavata" (12.13.25–26).

Hazra seeks arguments both for the Devībhāgavata having been composed in Bengal and outside Bengal. He therefore concludes that "the author of the Devībhāgavata was a Smārta Śākta Brahmin of Bengal and ... he migrated to Benares (probably because it was the best place of residence for a Devī-worshipper), lived there for a long time, and then wrote the Devībhāgavata."

Ramachandran dated the Devībhāgavata "not later than the 6th century A.D." based on his belief that the story of the penance of Nara and Nārāyaṇa, as related in the fourth skandha, inspired the relief in the Gupta temple at Deogarh. His arguments did not find acceptance with other scholars, and, in general, the text has been dated much later. Farquhar assigned it to the A.D. 900–1350 period. Hazra narrowed the period down to "the eleventh or twelfth century A.D." Lalye proposes a gradual growth of the text, through five different stages which cannot be dated separately; in any case the final stage must have been reached in the sixteenth century.

📚Vishnu Purana 5.13.55-61📚
The Gopīs repeatedly exclaimed, “Bravo, Kṛṣṇa!” to his song. When leading, they followed him; when returning, they encountered him; and, whether he went forwards or backwards, they ever attended on his steps. Whilst frolicking thus with the Gopīs, they considered every instant without him a myriad of years; and, prohibited in vain by husbands, fathers, brothers, they went forth at night to sport with Kṛṣṇa, the object of their affection.”

Verse 54:
A skillful Gopi, under the pretext of praising Lord Krishna’s singing, spread her arms and embraced Shri Madhusudan, kissing him lovingly.

Verse 55:
When the Lord’s arms touched the cheeks of the Gopis with tender kisses, those cheeks erupted in thrill, and sweat appeared like clouds bringing the rain of joy for the harvest of goosebumps.

Verse 56:
As Krishna sang melodies suited for the Rasa dance in a melodious voice, the Gopis responded with even louder voices, repeatedly exclaiming, “Blessed is Krishna! Blessed is Krishna!”

Verse 57:
When the Lord moved forward, the Gopis followed him behind; when he turned back, they came in front. Thus, moving with him in direct and reverse motion, they gracefully accompanied Shri Hari.

Verse 58:
Engaged in such divine Rasa play with the Gopis, every moment of separation from him felt like millions of years for them.

Verse 59:
Those Rasa-enchanted Gopis, despite being restrained by their husbands, parents, and brothers, still went out at night to enjoy pastimes with Shyamsundar in the forest.

Verse 60:
Even Shri Madhusudan, the destroyer of enemies and unfathomable soul, joyfully engaged in loving pastimes with them during the nights, honoring his youthful form.

Verse 61:
That all-pervading Lord Krishna was present within the Gopis, their husbands, and all living beings, just as air pervades everywhere as the soul of all.

Verse 62:
Just as space, fire, earth, water, air, and the self exist within all beings, in the same way, he too is immanently present in all elements of creation.

रासलीला

भगवान् कृष्ण की रासलीला से प्रायः सभी हिन्दूमात्र परिचित हैं। कुछ वैदिक हिन्दू उक्त लीला के विषय में भी अपनी कलिकल्मष-कलुषित प्रवृत्ति से विवश होकर अनावश्यक आलाप आलाप किया करते हैं, यह लीला मानो पुराणों को बदनाम करने के ठेकेदारों का अमोघ ब्रह्मास्त्र है। अपनी नाक खुद काट कर दूसरे का शकुन बिगाड़ने के शौकीन समाजी, प्रायः सभी व्याख्यानों में इस लीला का मनमाने

अर्थात्—(क) [ब्रह्मा जी ने देवताओं के प्रति कहा कि—] साक्षात् परम पुरुष भगवान् वसुदेव जी के घर में अवतार लेंगे। इस लिये हे देववृन्द! आप और आपकी स्त्रियों को भी उनके सहयोग के लिये व्रजभूमि में अपने २ अंशों से अवतीर्ण होना चाहिये। (ख) श्री सब गोपाल लोग ग्वाल वेश में छुपे हुये देवता ही थे। (ग) भगवान् कृष्ण ने सात वर्ष की छोटी सी आयु में गोवर्द्धन पर्वत को एक हाथ से उठा लिया जैसा कि कमल के फूल को एक हाथी उठा लिया करता है। [इसके अगले वर्ष में रासलीला हुई थी तब कि भगवान् की आयु आठ वर्ष की थी] (घ) भगवान् ने शरद् ऋतु की विकसित मल्लिका वाली रात्रियों को जानकर अपनी योगमाया के आश्रय से क्रीड़ा करने का विचार किया ॥१॥ स्त्रियों के मन को लुभाने वाली कलनिनादिनी

पीड़ा को दूर करने के लिये अवतीर्ण हुये हो ? हे आर्तबन्धो ! इसलिये अपने हस्तकमल हम किङ्करियों के स्तनों और सिरों पर रखिए ॥४१॥ योगेश्वर भगवान् को इस तरह उन गोपियों का करुणक्रन्दन सुनकर दया आ गई और अपने आप में ही रमण करते हुये भी वे हँसकर गोपियों को रमण कराने लगे ॥४३॥ बाहु फैलाना, लिपटाना, गले लगाना, हाथ, अलक, जंघा, नीवी (कमर के कपड़े की गांठ) और स्तनों को छूना, हँसी मसखरी, नखच्छेद देना, क्रीड़ा, कटाक्ष और मन्द मुस्कान आदि से कामोद्दीपन करते हुये भगवान् गोपियों को रमण कराने लगे ॥४६॥ इस प्रकार महात्मा कृष्ण जी से मान पाकर वे गोपियें अपने आपको भूमण्डल में सर्वाधिक सुन्दरी समझने लगीं ॥४७॥ भगवान् इनके इस सौभाग्य मद और मान को नष्ट करके कृपाभाव दिखाने के लिये तत्काल वहीं अन्तर्धान हो गये ॥ ४८ ॥ (अ) [तब विरहातुर गोपियें रो रो कर कहने लगीं कि—] हे भगवान् ! आप निश्चय ही किसी गोपी के पुत्र नहीं हैं बल्कि समस्त प्राणियों के अन्तरात्मा हैं। हे प्यारे कृष्ण ! आप तो ब्रह्मा जी की प्रार्थना से इस विश्व की रक्षा के लिये सात्वत कुल में अवतीर्ण हुए हो ॥ ४९ ॥ हे भगवन् ! आपके—शरणागत प्राणियों के पापों को दूर करने वाले लक्ष्मी के घर होते हुये भी कौतूहल गौओं के पीछे भागने वाले और विषधर कालीय सर्प के क्रूर फणों पर नृत्य करने वाले जो चरण कमल हैं उन्हें हमारी कुचाओं पर रखकर कामदेव को विनष्ट कर डालिये ॥७॥ (ब) इस तरह गोपियें गाती हुईं और अनेक प्रकार के प्रलाप करती हुईं भगवान् के दर्शनों की इच्छा से ऊँची आवाज में रोने लगीं ॥१॥ तब उन सब के बीच में मन्द २ मुस्काते हुये साक्षात् कामदेव को भी लजाने वाले भगवान् आविर्भूत हुये। जो पीताम्बर पहिने और गले में माला धारण किये हुये थे ॥ २ ॥ (स) तब वहाँ भगवान् ने अपनी परम भक्ता सुशीला गोपियों के हाथों में हाथ डालकर रासक्रीड़ा

वास्तविक भाव

हमने उक्त लीला का बार बार मनन करने पर जो अभिप्राय समझा है, पाठकों के लाभार्थ हम उसे यहां प्रकट कर देते हैं। हम यह बात पौराणिक प्रमाणों से सिद्ध कर चुके हैं कि व्रज के समस्त गोप और

गोपियें देवताओं के आंशिक अवतार थे, परन्तु मानव-स्थूल-शरीर की उपाधि से वे अपने देवत्व को भूले हुये थे। श्री भगवान् ने जिस समय रासक्रीडा का अभिनय करना चाहा तो बंशी में कामबीज 'क्लीं' मन्त्र का निनाद किया जिससे स्त्रीभावापन्न दिव्य आत्माएं जग उठीं और वे भगवान् के निकट आ पहुँचीं। यह रहस्य श्रीमद्भा० (१०।२९।३) के—

'जगौ 'कलं' वामदृशां मनोहरम्'—

—पद से व्यक्त किया है। उक्त पद में—'कलं'—क्लीं = कामबीज का निदर्शक है और 'वामदृशां मनोहरम्' का अभिप्राय—स्त्रीभावापन्न दिव्य आत्माओं पर ही उसका प्रभाव पड़ सकता था—यह बताने के लिए प्रयुक्त हुआ है। इसीलिये बंशी का शब्द सुनकर गोपियें ही भगवान् के निकट आईं थीं।

भगवान् ने यह जानने के लिये कि—'उक्त दिव्यात्माओं को अपने देवत्व का कुछ स्मरण है—या स्थूल शरीर की उपाधि से वह सर्वथा विस्मृत हो गया उनको वापिस लौट जाने का उपदेश दिया। जिसके उत्तर में गोपियों ने स्पष्ट शब्दों में बतला दिया कि 'हम तो समस्त विषयों को छोड़ कर आपके भक्त हैं और मोक्ष की इच्छा से यहां आई हैं आप ही आदिपुरुष और सबके अन्तरात्मा हो'...(यह भाव १०।२९।३१-३२) में 'संत्यज्य सर्वविषयान्'—'आद्य—आदिपुरुष' और 'मुमुक्षून्' आदि शब्दों द्वारा अभिव्यक्त किया गया है। जब गोपियों की उक्तियों से भगवान् ने अच्छी तरह जान लिया कि वे सब आत्माएं मेरी बंशी के निनाद से प्रबुद्ध हो गई हैं और इनको अब देवत्व का पूरा ज्ञान है तब भगवान् ने उनका विशुद्ध प्रेम और रासक्रीडा की अभिलाषा जानकर अपनी योगमाया के प्रभाव से उनके दो दो स्वरूप बनाए। उनमें से पहिले जो कि पांचभौतिक स्थूल शरीरावच्छिन्न स्वरूप थे उन्हें वापिस उन उन के घर में पहुंचा दिया, जिससे गोप

ग्वालों में अपनी स्त्री, माता, पत्नी आदि को घर में न देखकर किसी प्रकार की बेचैनी न हो? और दूसरे योगमायानिर्मित दिव्यात्मसम्पन्न स्वरूपों को घर में ही रहने दिया। इसके बाद जो भी लीला हुई है वह योगमायानिर्मित भगवान् के अपने ही स्वरूपों के साथ हुई है। व्यास जी ने उक्त रहस्य का संकेत करने के लिये मूलग्रन्थ में ही निम्नलिखित पद्यों का उल्लेख किया है-यथा—

(क) मन्यमानाः स्वपार्श्वस्थान् स्वान्स्वान्दारान्व्रजौकसः।
(श्री० भा० १० । ३३ । ३८)

(ख) यथार्भकः स्वप्रतिबिम्बविभ्रमः।
(श्री० भा० १० । ३३ । १७)

(ग) कृत्वा तावन्तमात्मानं यावतीर्गोपयोषितः।
(श्री० भा० १० । ३३ । २०)

(घ) पुरुषः शक्तिभिर्यथा। (श्री० भा० । १० । ३२ । १०)

अर्थात्—(क) व्रजनिवासियों ने अपनी कुटुम्बिनियों को अपने पास माना [अर्थात्—भगवान् की माया से पांचभौतिक स्थूल शरीरावच्छिन्न गोपियें नित्य की तरह विद्यमान रहीं।] (ख) जैसे बालक अपनी परछाईं से खेल करता है [इसी तरह भगवान् ने अपनी योगमाया के निर्माण की हुई दिव्यात्मसम्पन्न गोपियों से रासक्रीडा की।] (ग) भगवान् ने अपने उतने ही रूप बना लिये जितनी कि गोपियें थीं। (घ) ब्रह्म जिस तरह अपनी माया शक्तियों से विनोद किया करता है उसी तरह भगवान् ने गोपियों से रासक्रीडा की।

उपर्युक्त प्रमाणों से यह प्रतीत होता है कि जिस तरह ब्रह्मा की द्वारा वत्स और गोप चुराए जाने पर भगवान् ने अपनी योगमाया से उतने और वैसे ही ग्वाले तथा बछड़े बनाकर अपना काम जारी रखा था

किसी को कानों कान भी यह रहस्य विदित न हो सका था इसी तरह रासलीला के समय भी भगवान् ने देवात्मा-सम्पन्न एवं दिव्यशरीरा-वच्छिन्न गोपियों को तो मुक्त कर देने के लिये अपनी रासलीला में बुला लिया और इस रहस्य को गुप्त रखने के लिये नकली गोपियों को वापिस व्रज में भेज दिया ।

प्रायः देखा जाता है कि जब जिस अंशावतार का कार्य समाप्त हो जाया करता है तो भगवान् किसी बहाने से उसकी वह दिव्य शक्ति को छीन लिया करते हैं, जैसे रामावतार में शिवधनुर्भंग हो जाने के पश्चात् श्रीपरशुराम जी की अवतारी शक्ति भगवान् रामचन्द्र जी में समा गई थी, तथा भगवान् कृष्ण जी के लीलासंवरण के पश्चात् वीरशिरोमणि अर्जुन साधारण भिल्लों ग्वालों से पराजित हो गया था अर्थात्—नारायणावतार श्रीकृष्ण के तिरोहित होते ही नरावतार अर्जुन भी अपनी उस अपूर्व शक्ति से हीन हो गया था । सो इसी तरह जब देवता भी श्री ब्रह्मा जी की आज्ञानुसार केवल भगवान् कृष्ण की प्रसन्नता के लिये ही अपने २ अंशों से व्रजभूमि में अवतीर्ण हुए थे । जब भगवान् गोकुल वृन्दावन का कार्य प्रायः समाप्त कर चुके और इस दिन के बाद कंस विध्वंसादि का अवसर सामने दिखने लगा तो भगवान् को उन देवांशभूत गोप और गोपियों का व्रज में रहना अनावश्यक जान पड़ा अतः भगवान् ने अपने बालसखा गोपों को तो 'ब्रह्मवत्सहरण' लीला के बहाने वापिस ब्रह्मलोक को भेज दिया था और नकली गोप घर में रख दिये थे अर्थात् जब देवता तो इस तरह अपना कार्य समाप्त हो जाने पर पुनः अपने असली पद पर प्रतिष्ठित हो चुके थे और व्रज में नकली ग्वाले रह गये थे । शेष रहीं थीं—श्रीरीभूत देवाङ्गनायें—सो उन्हें भी भगवान् ने 'रासलीला' के बहाने वंशी के इशारे से सब कुछ समझा कर अपने पास बुला लिया और उनके स्थान में नकली गोपियों

को घर भेज दिया । इस तरह अपनी बाल लीला की समाप्ति के साथ भगवान् ने देवांशभूत गोपियों के अवतार काल का उपसंहार कर डाला था ।

परीक्षित पूछते हैं कि—भगवान् का अवतार धर्मस्थापन और अधर्मनाश के लिये हुआ है परन्तु रासक्रीडा का धर्मस्थापन और अधर्मनाशरूप अवतार कार्य से कोई सम्बन्ध नहीं है अर्थात्—यह तो केवल बालक्रीडा = विनोद मात्र है । सो आप्तकाम = 'पूर्णकाम' परमात्मा को अपने अनेक रूप बनाकर खेल करने की क्या आवश्यकता थी ?—विनोद मात्र के लिये भगवान् का 'परदाराभिमर्शन' = (—(परस्य परमात्मनो दारास्तच्छिष्यो या मायाशक्तयस्तासामभिमर्शनं बलादाश्लेषणमिति 'बृहद्भक्ततोषिणी' टीकाकारः) आप्तकामता के 'प्रतीप'—प्रतिकूल है—इसका क्या अभिप्राय है ? परीक्षित के प्रश्न का सार यह है कि रासलीला भगवान् का बालविनोद है परन्तु 'आप्तकाम' को विनोदार्थ मायाश्रयण की क्या आवश्यकता थी ? यदि धर्मस्थापना और अधर्मनाशन के लिये मायाश्रयण किया जाता तो वह अवतार-धर्म के अनुरूप होता परन्तु खेल कूद के लिये अपने अनेक रूप बनाने का क्या अभिप्राय ? इस प्रश्न के उत्तर में शुकदेव जी ने समझाया कि—भगवान् का विनोदमात्र के लिये योगमायाश्रयण करना, धर्मस्थापन और अधर्मनाशनरूप अवतार-धर्म का व्यतिक्रम अवश्य है परन्तु ईश्वरावतारों का केवल क्रीडार्थ भी ऐसा करना देखा गया है, जो दोषावह नहीं ।

पूर्णकाम परमात्मा को माया-द्वारा से सृष्टि की उत्पत्ति, पालन और संहार आदि करने की क्या आवश्यकता है और सृष्टि-उत्पादक-विनाशक रूप 'पूर्णकामता' विरुद्ध ईश्वरेच्छा का क्या अभिप्राय है ? इस जिज्ञासा का उत्तर वेद में इस प्रकार दिया है कि—

न तस्य कार्यं करणं च विद्यते ।
स्वाभाविकी ज्ञानबलक्रिया च ॥ (श्वेताश्वतर ६।८)

अर्थात्—सृष्टि का उत्पादन और विनाश आदि करने में ईश्वर का कोई खास प्रयोजन नहीं है किन्तु यह उसकी स्वाभाविक चेष्टा है ।

यहाँ (वेद में) यह उत्तर दिया गया है कि ईश्वर का स्वाभाविक कार्य 'पूर्णकामता' का बाधक नहीं हो सकता । श्रीमद्भागवत में भी परीक्षित का यही प्रश्न था कि भगवान् को आप्तकाम होते हुये भी [illegible] से अनेक रूप बनाकर खेल करने की क्या आवश्यकता थी ? जिसका वेदानुमोदित यही उत्तर दिया गया है कि ईश्वरावतारों का विनोदार्थ भी [illegible] करना स्वाभाविक है अतएव वह पूर्णकामता का बाधक नहीं हो सकता । जिस प्रकार परमात्मा के लिये स्वेच्छा से उत्पादित सृष्टि की स्थितिपालादि बन्धन के कारण नहीं, इसी प्रकार ईश्वरावतारों के लिये स्वेच्छा से किये हुये क्रीडादि भी बन्धन नहीं हो सकते । यह है परीक्षित के प्रश्न और शुकदेव जी के उत्तर का समन्वय ।

(d) Knowing that the nights of the autumn season were full of blooming jasmine, the Lord thought of playing with the shelter of his Yogamaya. ॥1॥ He played the Kaninadini flute which attracts the hearts of women. ॥3॥ (On hearing this, the women of Braja) All the enchanted Gopis whose souls had been stolen by Krishna did move away even after being stopped by their husbands, fathers, brothers and relatives. The Gopis who were confined in their houses who did not get time to go out due to their love for the Lord, immediately left their virtuous bodies and became free. ॥6॥11॥ The eloquent Lord, knowing that the women of Braj had come to Him, said in heart-pleasing words, ॥17॥ O Braj beauties! It is a dark night and many dreadful creatures live in this forest, therefore all of you should return to Braj. No woman should stay here. ॥16॥ Because serving the husband with pure feelings is the ultimate duty of women. ॥24॥ And the kind of love and devotion that is generated in me by listening, watching, meditating and singing, does not happen by staying close. Therefore, return to your homes immediately.

Therefore, return to your homes immediately. ॥27॥ (Hearing these words of the Lord, the Gopis said that) O Lord! You are not being served in this way. It is not appropriate to speak harsh words to us We are your devotees who have left all the worldly pleasures and have come to your feet for shelter, so do not rebuke us. Rather, just as the Supreme Soul, the Supreme Being, keeps the seekers of liberation under His protection, similarly, you also take us under your protection. ॥31॥ You are certainly the loving soul pervading all the embodied beings. ॥32॥ The fire of lust that is burning in our hearts by seeing you and hearing the sound of your loving flute, please quench it by watering it with the flow of your love. Otherwise, dear Krishna! We all, burnt by the flames of this fire of separation, will merge (die) here at your feet while meditating on you. ॥35॥ You are undoubtedly the protector of the gods, the Supreme Being, and you have incarnated to remove the pain of the people of Braj. Oh dear ones! Therefore, please place Your lotus hands on the breasts and heads of us Kikri girls. II 41 II Hearing the pitiful cries of the Gopis, the Lord Yogeshwara felt pity and while He was engaged in His own pleasure, smilingly, He began to make the Gopis enjoy His pleasure. II43 II Stretching His arms, embracing them, touching their hands, hair, thighs, Nivi (knot of the waist cloth) and breasts, laughing, joking, pinching their nails, caressing, taunting and smiling, etc., arousing them with such grace and sensuality, the Lord began to make the Gopis enjoy His pleasure. 46. Having thus gained respect from the great soul Krishna, the Gopis began to consider themselves the most beautiful women on earth. II47 II To destroy their pride and arrogance of good fortune and to show His mercy, the Lord immediately disappeared from there. 48.न खलु गोषिकानन्दनो भवा-,नखिलदेहिनामन्तरात्मदृक् ।। विखनसाथितो विश्वगुप्तये, सख ! उदेयिवान्सात्वतां कुले ।। ४ ।। प्रणतदेहिनां पापकर्शनं, तृणचरानुगं श्रीनिकेतनम् ।।फणिफणार्पितं ते पदाम्बुजं, कृरणु कुचेषु नः कृन्धि हृच्छयम् ।।७।।(श्रीमद्भागवत १० । ३१।४)

Then the lovelorn Gopis started weeping and saying, O Lord! You are definitely not the son of any Gopi but the conscience of all living beings. O dear Krishna! You have incarnated n on the prayers of Lord Brahma to protect this world. 46. O Lord! You are the lotus feet which remove the sins of those who surrender to you, who despite being the husband of Lakshmi run after cows due to devotion and dance on the cruel hoods of the poisonous Kaliya serpent, place them on our shoulders and destroy Kamadev. 7.

In this manner the Gopis started singing and blabbering in various ways and started crying loudly with the desire to see the Lord. Then the Lord who could put even Kaamdev to shame appeared in the midst of them smiling softly. He was wearing yellow clothes and had a garland around his neck.

The gopas, bewildered by Maya, considered their women to be very close to them, so they could not blame the Lord's character in any way.

(d) Knowing that the nights of the autumn season were full of blooming jasmine, the Lord thought of playing with the shelter of his Yogamaya. ॥1॥ He played the Kaninadini flute which attracts the hearts of women. ॥3॥ (On hearing this, the women of Braja) All the enchanted Gopis whose souls had been stolen by Krishna did move away even after being stopped by their husbands, fathers, brothers and relatives. The Gopis who were confined in their houses who did not get time to go out due to their love for the Lord, immediately left their virtuous bodies and became free. ॥6॥11॥ The eloquent Lord, knowing that the women of Braj had come to Him, said in heart-pleasing words, ॥17॥ O Braj beauties! It is a dark night and many dreadful creatures live in this forest, therefore all of you should return to Braj. No woman should stay here. ॥16॥ Because serving the husband with pure feelings is the ultimate duty of women. ॥24॥ And the kind of love and devotion that is generated in me by listening, watching, meditating and singing, does not happen by staying close. Therefore, return to your homes immediately.

॥27॥ (Hearing these words of the Lord, the Gopis said that) O Lord! You are not being served in this way. It is not appropriate to speak harsh words to us We are your devotees who have left all the worldly pleasures and have come to your feet for shelter, so do not rebuke us. Rather, just as the Supreme Soul, the Supreme Being, keeps the seekers of liberation under His protection, similarly, you also take us under your protection. ॥31॥ You are certainly the loving soul pervading all the embodied beings. ॥32॥ The fire of lust that is burning in our hearts by seeing you and hearing the sound of your loving flute, please quench it by watering it with the flow of your love. Otherwise, dear Krishna! We all, burnt by the flames of this fire of separation, will merge (die) here at your feet while meditating on you. ॥35॥ You are undoubtedly the protector of the gods, the Supreme Being, and you have incarnated to remove the pain of the people of Braj. Oh dear ones! Therefore, please place Your lotus hands on the breasts and heads of us Kikri girls.

II41II Hearing the pitiful cries of the Gopis, the Lord Yogeshwara felt pity and while He was engaged in His own pleasure, smilingly, He began to make the Gopis enjoy His pleasure. II43II Stretching His arms, embracing them, touching their hands, hair, thighs, Nivi (knot of the waist cloth) and breasts, laughing, joking, pinching their nails, caressing, taunting and smiling, etc., arousing them with such grace and sensuality, the Lord began to make the Gopis enjoy His pleasure. 46. Having thus gained respect from the great soul Krishna, the Gopis began to consider themselves the most beautiful women on earth. II 47II To destroy their pride and arrogance of good fortune and to show His mercy, the Lord immediately disappeared from there. 48.

Then the lovelorn Gopis started weeping and saying, O Lord! You are definitely not the son of any Gopi but the conscience of all living beings. O dear Krishna! You have incarnated n on the prayers of Lord Brahma to protect this world. 46. O Lord! You are the lotus feet which remove the sins of those who surrender to you, who despite being the husband of Lakshmi run after cows due to devotion and dance on the cruel hoods of the poisonous Kaliya serpent, place them on our shoulders and destroy Kamadev. 7.

The gopas, bewildered by Maya, considered their women to be very close to them, so they could not blame the Lord's character in any way.

The most important part and understanding the real meaning of Rasleela

वास्तविक भाव

For the benefit of the readers, we are revealing the meaning of the above mentioned Leela as we have understood it after reciting it repeatedly. We have already proved with evidence that all the gopas and the hermits of Braj were were partial incarnations of the Devas , but they had forgotten their divinity due to the status of human-physical bodies. So when the Lord wanted to perform the Raas Leela, he played the Kaambeej mantra 'Kleem' on the flute, due to which the divine souls with feminine feelings awoke and came near the Lord. This secret is given in Shrimadbhaga (10.26.3) – 'जगौ 'कलं' वामदृशां मनोहरम्' –

It is expressed in a verse. In the said verse 'Kalam' indicates the seed of love and 'Vaamdrisham Manoharam' means that it could have its effect only on the divine souls having feminine feelings. That is why only the gopis came near the Lord on hearing the sound of the flute.

In order to know whether the above mentioned divine souls remember their divinity or have forgotten it completely due to the status of the gross body, Krishna advised them to return. In reply to which the gopis clearly told that 'we are surrendered devotees leaving all worldly pleasures and have come here with the desire of salvation' You are also the original person and the inner soul of all… (This Bhaav 10.26.31-32) has been expressed by the words like 'Santyajya Sarvavishiyan' – 'Bhakt – Original person' and 'Mumukshu' etc. When Krishna understood well from the words of the gopis that all these souls have been enlightened by the sound of my flute and now they have full knowledge of divinity, then knowing their pure love and desire for Raas Leela, Krishna created two forms of them with the effect of his Yogamaya. The first ones who were of the five elements were sent back to their respective homes so that the cowherds may not feel uneasy seeing their mother, wife etc. not at home.

And the other divine soul-like forms created by Yogamaya were allowed to stay at home. After this, whatever Leela happened, it happened with the God's own forms created by Yogamaya. Vyas has mentioned the following words in the original text itself to indicate the above mentioned secret – as – (क) मन्यमानाः स्वपार्श्वस्थान् स्वान्स्वान्दरान्ब्रजौकसः । (थी० भा० १० । ३३।३८) – a) The residents of Braj considered their family members to be with them [meaning – due to the illusion of Krishna the gopis who were of the five elements and had physical bodies remained present as usual . (ख) यथार्भकः स्वप्रतिविम्वविभ्रमः ।

(श्री० भा० १० १ ३३ । १७)- Just as a child plays with his shadow [in the same way the Lord played Raas Leela with the divine Gopis created by His Yogamaya].(ग) कृत्वा तावन्तमात्मानं यावतीर्ब्रजयोषितः ।

Just like Brahm plays with his magical powers, in the same way Krishna played Raas Leela with the Gopis.

From the above mentioned evidences, it can be seen that just as when Brahma Ji stole the calves and cowherds, Krishna created the same number of cowherds and calves through his Yogmaya and continued the same work. This secret could not be known to anyone even by hearsay. Similarly, during the Raasleela also, the Lord called the divine soul-endowed and divine body-bound Gopis to his Raasleela in order to free them and give them salvation and sent the fake Gopis back to Braj to keep this secret hidden.It is often seen that when the work of an incarnation is over, Shri Hari snatches away his divine power on some pretext, like in Rama avatar, after Shiva's Dhanush was broken, the incarnational power of Shri Parashuram ji was absorbed in Lord Ramchandra ji, and after the Leelasamvaran of Lord Krishna ji, Veershiro-Mani Arjun was defeated by ordinary unarmed cowherds, that is – after the departure of Narayan avatar Shri Krishna, Naravatar Arjun also became devoid of his unique power.

So in the same way, all the Devas also incarnated in Braj Bhoomi with their parts only for the happiness of Lord Krishna as per the order of Shri Brahma ji. When Krishna had almost finished the work of Gokul Vrindavan and after ten days the opportunity of destruction of Kansa was visible, then krishna felt that the stay of those gopas and gopis who were the incarnations of Devas in Braj was unnecessary. So Krishna sent his childhood friend gopas back to Brahmaloka on the pretext of 'Brahmavatsahan' leela and kept fake gopas at home, that is, all the Devas were reinstated in their real positions after their work was over and fake cowherds were left in Vraj. What remained were the gopi-based celestial maidens – so Krishna called them to himself on the pretext of 'Raasleela' by explaining everything with the gesture of the flute and in their place fake gopis were kept . He sent them home. In this way, with the end of his childhood leela, Krishna had concluded the period of the incarnation of the gopis who were the incarnations of the deities.

परीक्षित के प्रश्न का समन्वय

When it was confirmed in the above manner that Krishna did not touch any other woman in Raasleela but played with his own divine forms created by his Yogmaya, then naturally the curiosity arises that in such a situation what will be the relevance of the above question of Parikshit? So, this is also discussed. Parikshit asks that – Krishna has incarnated for the establishment of Dharma and destruction of Adharma, but Raasleela has no connection with the work of establishment of Dharma and destruction of Adharma, i.e. – this is only Babkrida = mere entertainment. So, what is the need to play with the Aptakama 'Purnakama' God by making His many forms? – 'Pardarabhimarshan' of God just for the sake of fun (- (Parasya Paramatmano Dararupinyo or Maya Shaktyasta Sambhimarshanam Baladashrayanmiti 'Brihadbhaktatoshini' Commentator:) 'Pratip' of Aptakamata – is unfavorable – what is the meaning of this? The essence of Parikshit's question is this. Rasleela is Krishna's childhood entertainment, but what was the need of Mayashrayan for the sake of fun?

If Maya-shrayan was done for establishment of Dharma and destruction of Adharma, then it would have been in ccordance with the Dharma of incarnation, but what is the meaning of creating many forms for fun? In answer to this question, Shukdev Ji explained that Brahm taking shelter of Yog-Maya only for destruction is definitely a violation of the Dharma of incarnation in the form of establishment of Dharma and destruction of Adharma, but it has been seen that the incarnations of God do this only for fun, which is not faulty. What is the need for the Paramatma to take shelter of Maya and create, maintain and destroy the universe, etc. and what is the meaning of God's will against 'full-favour' in the form of creation-destruction of the universe? The answer to this question has been given in the Vedas in this way that– न तस्य कार्य करणं च विद्यते । स्वाभाविकी ज्ञानबलक्रिया च ।। (श्वेताश्वतर ६।८) – That is, God has no specific purpose in creating and destroying the universe, but this is his natural effort.

Here (in the Vedas) it is answered that God's natural work cannot be an obstacle to 'purna-kamata'. In Shrimad Bhagwat also, Parikshit had the same question that despite being completely आप्तकाम, what was the need for God to take shelter of Yog-maya and play by taking many forms? To which the Veda-approved answer is given that it is natural for God's incarnations to take shelter of Maya for fun, and hence it cannot be an obstacle to 'purna-kamata'. Just as for God, the existence of the universe created by his own will cannot be a bondage, similarly, for the incarnations of God, the games done by his own cannot be a bondage. This is the coordination of Parikshit's question and Shukdev's answer.

महर्षि वेदव्यास जी ने ब्रह्मवैवर्त पुराण (ब्रहाखण्ड अध्याय ४) में रासलीला का सम्बन्ध सृष्टि रचना के आरम्भिक रहस्यों से भी सम्बद्ध किया है। श्रीकृष्ण जी को केन्द्रीभूत ब्रह्मा और गोगियों को प्रकृति की विभिन्न शक्तियों की प्रतिमूर्ति मानकर इनके संघर्ष से ही सृष्टि का प्रादुर्भाव माना है। हम पीछे इसी अध्याय में 'जल में बीर्यस्खलन' शीर्षक के नीचे – उक्त रूपक पर कुछ पंक्तियें लिख आये हैं अतः पिष्टपेषण करना व्यर्थ है। केवल एतावन्मात्र संकेत करना अनावश्यक न होगा जब स्वयं पुराणकर्ता व्यास जी महाराज ही स्थानान्तर में उक्त लीला का रूपक प्रायः अर्थ लगाते हैं तब सर्वसाधारण को भी अपनी रुचि के अनुसार आध्यात्मिक आदि सुसम्बद्ध तात्पर्थों के मनन करने में क्या हर्ज ही सकता है ?

Maharishi Ved Vyas Ji has also related the Raas Leela to the initial mysteries of the creation of the universe . Considering Shri Krishna Ji as the Param Brahm and the Gopis as the image of various powers of Prakriti , the universe is believed to have originated from their conflict that is Rasleela

If Maya-shrayan was done for establishment of Dharma and destruction of Adharma, then it would have been in accordance with the Dharma of incarnation, but what is the meaning of creating many forms for fun? In answer to this question, Shukdev Ji explained that Brahm taking shelter of Yog-Maya only for destruction is definitely a violation of the Dharma of incarnation in the form of establishment of Dharma and destruction of Adharma, but it has been seen that the incarnations of God do this only for fun, which is not faulty. What is the need for the Paramatma to take shelter of Maya and create, maintain and destroy the universe, etc. and what is the meaning of God's will against 'full-favour' in the form of creation-destruction of the universe? The answer to this question has been given in the Vedas in this way that-- न तस्य कार्य करणं च विद्यते । स्वाभाविकी ज्ञानबलक्रिया च ॥ (श्वेताश्वतर ६।८) – That is, God has no specific purpose in creating and destroying the universe, but this is his natural effort.

Here (in the Vedas) it is answered that God's natural work cannot be an obstacle to 'purna-kamata'. In Shrimad Bhagwat also, Parikshit had the same question that despite being completely आप्तकाम, what was the need for God to take shelter of Yog-maya and play by taking many forms? To which the Veda-approved answer is given that it is natural for God's incarnations to take shelter of Maya for fun, and hence it cannot be an obstacle to 'purna-kamata'. Just as for God, the existence of the universe created by his own will cannot be a bondage, similarly, for the incarnations of God, the games done by his own cannot be a bondage. This is the coordination of Parikshit's question and Shukdev's answer.

महर्षि वेदव्यास जी ने ब्रह्मवैवर्त पुराण (ब्रहाखण्ड अध्याय ४) में रासलीला का सम्बन्ध सृष्टि रचना के आरम्भिक रहस्यों से भी सम्बद्ध किया है। श्रीकृष्ण जी को केन्द्रीभूत ब्रह्मा और गोगियों को प्रकृति की विभिन्न शक्तियों की प्रतिमूर्ति मानकर इनके संघर्ष से ही सृष्टि का प्रादुर्भाव माना है। हम पीछे इसी अध्याय में 'जल में बीर्यस्खलन' शीर्षक के नीचे – उक्त रूपक पर कुछ पंक्तियें लिख आये हैं अतः पिष्टपेषण करना व्यर्थ है। केवल एतावन्मात्र संकेत करना अनावश्यक न होगा जब स्वयं पुराणकर्ता व्यास जी महाराज ही स्थानान्तर में उक्त लीला का रूपक प्रायः अर्थ लगाते हैं तब सर्वसाधारण को भी अपनी रुचि के अनुसार आध्यात्मिक आदि सुसम्बद्ध तात्पर्थों के मनन करने में क्या हर्ज ही सकता है ?

Maharishi Ved Vyas Ji has also related the Raas Leela to the initial mysteries of the creation of the universe . Considering Shri Krishna Ji as the Param Brahm and the Gopis as the image of various powers of Prakriti , the universe is believed to have originated from their conflict that is Rasleela

From the above evidences the allegations of परस्त्रीसंबंध on Yogeshwar Shree Krishna stands debunked . Bhagwan Shree Krishna is embodiment of Dharma . He himself condemned परस्त्री स्पर्श

स्त्रियोंके प्रति आसक्ति, जुआ खेलना, शिकार खेलनेका शौक और मद्यपान – ये चार प्रकारके भोग कामनाजनित दुःख बताये गये हैं, जिनके कारण मनुष्य अपने धन-ऐश्वर्यसे भ्रष्ट हो जाता है। शास्त्रोंके निपुण विद्वान् सभी परिस्थितियोंमें इन चारोंको निन्दनीय मानते हैं; परंतु द्यूतक्रीडाको तो जूएके दोष जाननेवाले लोग विशेषरूपसे निन्दनीय समझते हैं ।। ७-८ ।।

Shree Krishna Uvach – "Attachment to women, gambling, fondness for hunting, and drinking Alchohol —these four kinds of indulgences, arising from desire, are said to be causes of suffering, due to which a man is ruined in terms of wealth and prosperity. Scholars well-versed in the scriptures consider all four of these to be blameworthy under any circumstance;

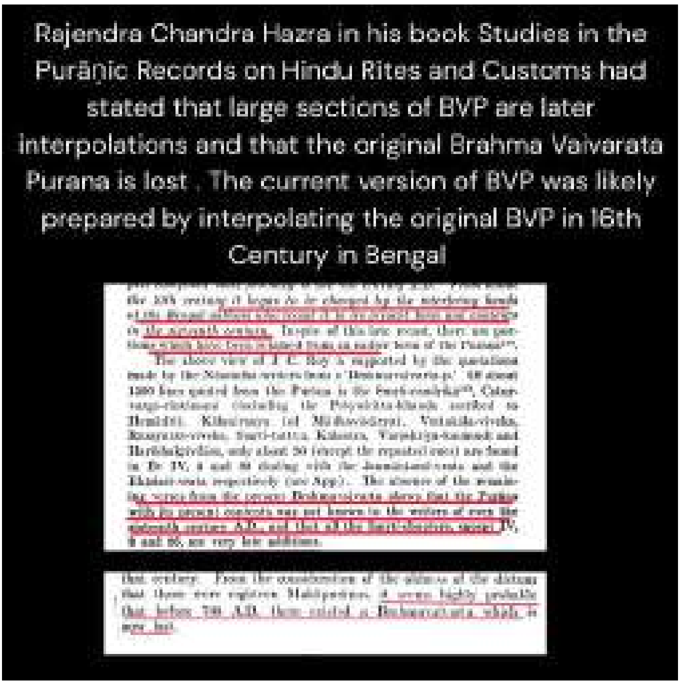
Mohini. Thereafter Mohini started jeering Brahma. Mohini said.- O virtuous one, the one whose mind is influence with simply the move of a damsel and who enjoys her company dragging her towards him, is known as the best of persons. The one who enjoys the company of a damsel after she expressed plainly her desire, he is called to he a mediocre person. The one who rejects a passionate damsel in a secluded place after having been approached by her again and again he falls into the hell after death and becomes unadorable in the universe. He is deprived of the glory, his beauty fades away and the intelligence also leaves him he becomes impotent. Therefore O lord of the universe I am drowning in the ocean of passion which is terrible and difficult to cross, you serve as the sailor and protect me to cross it. Therefore you get up immediately. You bestow me the invaluable gem of your love-sport because I am always devoted to you."

Refutation-

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

📚Shiva Purana 5.4.34📚
O dear sage, listen to me. I shall tell you about Vaisyanâtha, the incarnation of Siva, the supreme soul that yields great bliss. Formerly, in Nandigrama there was a prostitute known as Mahananda. She was very beautiful and a devotee of Siva. Once Siva assumed the form of a merchant and visited her house to test her. He had assumed the auspicious form of a devotee...The beautiful prostitute worshipped and welcomed the visitor with great joy. She made him sit with great respect....During the night she had her sexual union with the merchant who behaved like a libertine. She then went to sleep on the couch brilliant with a soft bed."

Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said –
O Devi! Not causing harm to any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder (Grihastha Ashrama). (Verse 25)

Maintaining these duties of household life —
Staying away from relations with another's wife, protecting entrusted goods and the honor of women, not taking anything without giving in return, and renouncing meat and alcohol — these are five types (aspects) of Dharma that lead to happiness.

Each of these Dharmic principles has many branches.
Those who consider Dharma to be supreme should certainly follow this virtuous and meritorious path

Allegations-

Shiva Purana, Satarudra Samhita 3, Chapter 26, verses 1-31 "O dear sage, listen to me. I shall tell you about Vaiśyanātha, the incarnation of Śiva, the supreme soul that yields great bliss. Formerly, in Nandigrāma there was a prostitute known as Mahānandā. She was very beautiful and a devotee of Śiva. Once Śiva assumed the form of a merchant and visited her house to test her. He had assumed the auspicious form of a devotee...The beautiful prostitute worshipped and welcomed the visitor with great joy. She made him sit with great respect....During the night she had her sexual union with the merchant who behaved like a libertine. She then went to sleep on the couch brilliant with a soft bed." Tr. J.L. Shastri Shiva in order "to test" the devotion of a couple, went to their house as a Brahmin guest, the husband Sudarshana had advised his wife to treat their guests well as guests are equivalent to Shiva. Finding that Sudarshana was not in the house,

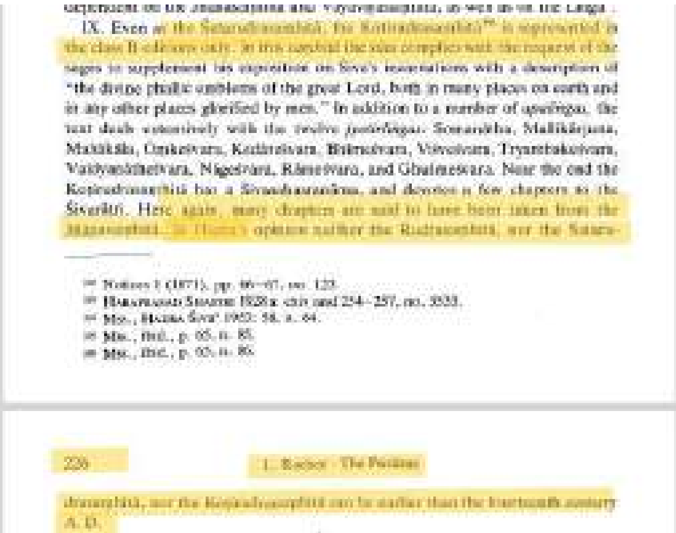
Refutation-

He has alleged on Satrudra Samhita of Shiva Purana .

According to R.C. Hazra and Ludo Rocher, the Śatarudra Saṁhitā, along with the Rudra Saṁhitā and Koṭirudra Saṁhitā, is a much later addition to the Śiva Purāṇa and cannot be dated earlier than the 14th century CE.



IX. Even as the Śatarudrasaṃhitā, the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā[128] is represented in the class B editions only. ... "the divine phallic emblems of the great Lord, both in many places on earth and in any other places glorified by men." In addition to a number of upaliṅgas, the text deals extensively with the twelve jyotirliṅgas: Somanātha, Mallikārjuna, Mahākāla, Oṃkāreśvara, Kedāreśvara, Bhīmeśvara, Viśveśvara, Tryambakeśvara, Vaidyanātheśvara, Nāgeśvara, Rāmeśvara, and Ghuśmeśvara. Near the end the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā has a Śivasahasranāma, and devotes a few chapters to the Śivarātri. Here again, many chapters are said to have been taken from the ... In Hazra's opinion neither the Rudrasaṃhitā, nor the Śatarudrasaṃhitā, nor the Koṭirudrasaṃhitā can be earlier than the fourteenth century A.D.

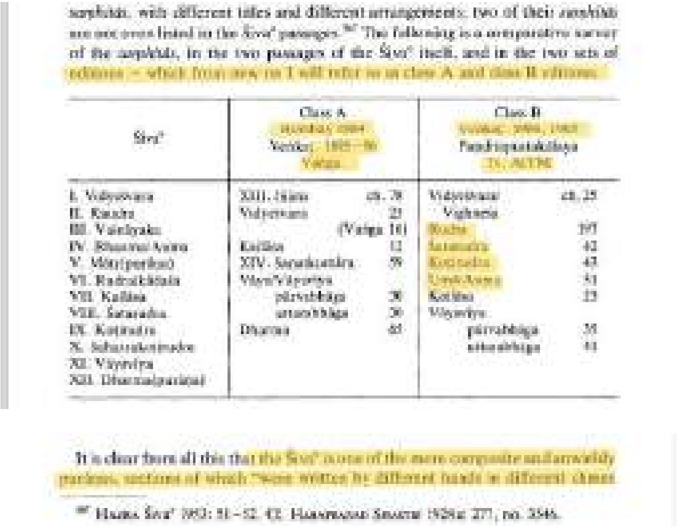
The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Śatarudra Saṁhitā.



saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śivaº passages.[96] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śivaº itself, and in the two sets of editions — which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

Śivaº	Class A Bombay 1884 Venkaṭ. 1895–96 Vaṅga.		Class B Venkaṭ. 1906, 1965 Paṇḍitapustakālaya [illegible]
I. Vidyeśvara	XIII. Jñāna	ch. 78	Vidyeśvara	ch. 25
II. Rudra	Vidyeśvara	25	Vighneśa
III. Vaināyaka		(Vaṅga 16)	Rudra	197
IV. Bhaumā/Umā	Kailāsa	12	Śatarudra	42
V. Mātṛ(purāṇa)	XIV. Sanatkumāra	59	Koṭirudra	43
VI. Rudraikādaśa	Vāyu/Vāyavīya		Umā	51
VII. Kailāsa	pūrvabhāga	35	Kailāsa	23
VIII. Śatarudra	uttarabhāga	30	Vāyavīya
IX. Koṭirudra	Dharma	65	pūrvabhāga	35
X. Sahasrakoṭirudra			uttarabhāga	41
XI. Vāyavīya
XII. Dharma(purāṇa)

It is clear from all this that the Śivaº is one of the more composite and unwieldy purāṇas, sections of which "were written by different hands in different climes and ages." It is also evident that "there were different traditions regarding the text of the Śiva-purāṇa."[97] Hazra, who did not include the Śivaº in his volume on the mahāpurāṇas, later published an extensive and comparative study of the various saṃhitās, which is repeatedly referred to in these pages. He came to the conclusion that the saṃhitās contained in the class A editions were generally the older ones, and that all other sections, manuscripts of which are rare, and the contents of which largely depend on the earlier saṃhitās as well as on other purāṇas, are more recent. In view of the great disparity between the two sets of editions, I will follow the order of the saṃhitās as set forth in the purāṇa itself.

[96] Hazra Śivaº 1953: 51–52. Cf. Haraprasad Shastri 1928a: 277, no. 2346.

जो वेदोंके भी वेद, उत्तम वस्तुओंमें भी परम उत्तम, तेजके भी तेज, तपके भी तप, शान्त पुरुषोंमें भी परम शान्त, कान्तिकी भी कान्ति, जितेन्द्रियोंमें भी परम जितेन्द्रिय, बुद्धिमानोंकी भी बुद्धि, देवताओंके भी देवता, ऋषियोंके भी ऋषि, यज्ञोंके भी यज्ञ, कल्याणोंके भी कल्याण, रुद्रोंके भी रुद्र, प्रभावशाली ईश्वरोंकी भी प्रभा (ऐश्वर्य), योगियोंके भी योगी तथा कारणोंके भी कारण हैं। जिनसे सम्पूर्ण लोक उत्पन्न होते और फिर उन्हींमें विलीन हो जाते हैं, जो सम्पूर्ण भूतोंके आत्मा हैं, उन्हीं अमित तेजस्वी भगवान् शिवके एक हजार आठ नामोंका वर्णन मुझसे सुनिये। पुरुषसिंह! इसका श्रवणमात्र करके आप अपनी सम्पूर्ण कामनाओंको प्राप्त कर लेंगे ।। २५-३० ।।

The one who is the Vedas among the Vedas, the supreme among the entities, the brightest among the luminous, the most ascetic among the ascetics, the most peaceful among the serene beings, the most radiant among the radiant, the most self-controlled among the self-controlled, the most intelligent among the wise, the Deva among Devas, the sage among sages, the sacrifice among sacrifices, the auspicious among the auspicious, the Rudra among Rudras, the powerful among the powerful , the supreme yogi among yogis, the cause of all causes—He is the Supreme Lord Shiva, who pervades all worlds and into whom everything ultimately dissolves.

In Mahabharat 13/141/25-26 Maheshwar Shiva himself told to avoid the contact of other men wives as a sign of Dharma

Shri Maheshwara (Lord Shiva) said –
O Devi! Not causing harm to any living being, speaking the truth, showing compassion to all creatures, controlling the mind and senses, and giving charity according to one's capacity — these are the noble duties of a householder (Grihastha Ashrama). (Verse 25)

Maintaining these duties of household life —
Staying away from relations with another's wife, protecting entrusted goods and the honor of women, not taking anything without giving in return, and renouncing meat and alcohol — these are five types (aspects) of Dharma that lead to happiness.
Each of these Dharmic principles has many branches.
Those who consider Dharma to be supreme should certainly follow this virtuous and meritorious path.

श्रीमहेश्वर उवाच

अहिंसा सत्यवचनं सर्वभूतानुकम्पनम्।
शमो दानं यथाशक्ति गार्हस्थ्यो धर्म उत्तमः ॥ २५ ॥

श्रीमहेश्वरने कहा—देवि! किसी भी जीवकी हिंसा न करना, सत्य बोलना, सब प्राणियोंपर दया करना, मन और इन्द्रियोंपर काबू रखना तथा अपनी शक्तिके अनुसार दान देना गृहस्थ-आश्रमका उत्तम धर्म है ॥ २५ ॥

(उक्त गृहस्थ-धर्मका पालन करना,) परायी स्त्रीके संसर्गसे दूर रहना, धरोहर और स्त्रीकी रक्षा करना, बिना दिये किसीकी वस्तु न लेना तथा मांस और मदिराको त्याग देना—ये धर्मके पाँच भेद हैं, जो सुखकी प्राप्ति करानेवाले हैं। इनमेंसे एक-एक धर्मकी अनेक शाखाएँ हैं। धर्मको श्रेष्ठ माननेवाले मनुष्योंको चाहिये कि वे पुण्यप्रद धर्मका पालन अवश्य करें ॥

📚Padma Purana 1.56.1-10📚
Formerly, Śarva (i.e. Śaṅkara), having seen youthful and beautiful women of Gandharvas, Kinnaras and human beings, and with his mind set on them, pretended to be intent on practising penance, and with a spell dragged them far away into the sky. Then the great lord, the conqueror of the god of love, having fashioned a very delightful cottage, sported (there) with them. In the meanwhile, Gaurī's mind became excited. By means of meditation she saw the lord of the world, sporting with women. Knowing his intention she became angry. Then taking the form of Kṣemaṅkarī, she entered (the sky), and saw, far away in a lonely region of the sky, Hara (i.e. Śiva), whose lustre was like that of the god of love, who was in the midst of beautiful women, who, the best man, was bright, who, having again and again embraced the women, was sporting with them, who was kissing them excessively, and who was tormented by the passion of love.

Refutation-

Rc Hazra in his book Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs page no 120 said that the chapters after chapter 43 in Shristi khanda (including chapter 56) are later interpolations into Padma Purana and was composed likely after the Satanic Islamic Muhammadans established their rule in India . So this chapter is a later interpolation and not part of Padma Purana originally

(5) SṚṢṬI-KHAṆḌA.* This Khaṇḍa, which is assigned the fifth place in our edition, is really the first of the set. This position of the Khaṇḍa is betrayed by the mode of its beginning as well as by the sequence and contents of the five Parvans given in chap. 1.

This Khaṇḍa, as we have it now, can be rightly divided into two parts:

(1) chaps. 1-43 (verses 1-97)

and (2) chaps. 43 (verses 98 ff.) to the end.

It will be seen hereinafter that the chapters of the second part were added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. Hence the chapters of the first part, which are of earlier date, are examined first.

* The Sṛṣṭi-khaṇḍa in Bengal Mss. consists only of 46 (or according to Aufrecht, 45) chapters. The corresponding chapters in a Bengal Ms. (No. 1681, D. U. Mss Lib.) of this Khaṇḍa and the AnSS ed. are given below:

upon them, it is difficult to say anything about the lower limit. Chapters 48 (verses 98 ff.) to the end, which, according to our division, form the second part of the work, are not found in the Bengal Mss. So their comparatively late date can be well understood. These chapters were written and added to the Sṛṣṭi-kh. after the Muhammadans had established kingdoms in India. These foreigners have been called kings[63] and scornfully described more than once under the names 'Turuṣka', 'Mleccha' and 'Yavana'[64]. The descriptions are undoubtedly aimed at the Muhammadans who 'polluted' the society and the land of the Hindus by their contact and slaughter of cows. Hence the date of composition of this part of the Sṛṣṭi-kh. can by no means be placed earlier than 1000 A.D. Such a late date is supported by the contents also, which are replete with Tantric elements. The Āgamas have many times been mentioned as authorities along with the Vedas and the Purāṇas; the Tulasī plant has been glorified in highly extravagant language; and so on. As Hemādri quotes

* In connection with the quotations the following stories of the Padma-p. have been mentioned in the Adbhutasāgara:

Soma

📚Shiva Purana 5.4.22📚
The moon (Soma) deluded by Siva's Māyā became lustful and abducted the wife of Brhaspati and had his sexual union with her. But he was finally saved by Brhaspati himself."

📚Shrimad Bhagavatam 9.14.4📚
After conquering the three worlds [the upper, middle and lower planetary systems], Soma, the moon-god, performed a great sacrifice known as the Rājasūya-yajña. Because he was very much puffed up, he forcibly kidnapped Bṛhaspati's wife, whose name was Tārā."

📚Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 80.1-22 📚
Sri Krsna said- In earlier times, Tara, the wife of teacher Brhaspati was quite youthful, adorned with gem-studded ornaments, clad in extremely fine garments, was quite chaste, having a developed pelvic region, wearing a serene smile on her face, quite charming, beautiful and good looking... She after taking a bath in the river Mandakini was adorned with wet garment. With her mind devoted to the feet of her husband, as soon as she was about to leave for her home, the moon was infatuated with passion at the sight of her beautiful figure and fainted. O lord of Vraja, this moon fainted on the fourth day of the bright fortnight and he retained consciousness. Mounted on the chariot he forcibly carried Tara holding her with her hand. Tara said- O moon you leave me, O blemish for the gods, leave me alone. I happen to be the wife of your teacher and also the daughter of a Brâhmana, I have always been chaste and virtuous. One has to earn the sin of hundred Brahmahatyas by cohabiting with the wife of a teacher. If the wife of a teacher happens to be the daughter of a Brähmana and a chaste one, cohabiting with her cams the sins of a thousand Brahmahatyas.

वास्तविक भाव

स्वर्गीय श्री पं० कालूराम जी शास्त्रा ने उक्त आख्यान का निम्न-लिखित
ाध्यात्मिक भाव प्रकट किया है-

'यहां पर गुरु को बृहस्पति के नाम से याद किया गया है, और आल्हादयुक्त शिष्य को चन्द्रमा कहा है। गुरु विद्या में रमण करता है, इस विद्या को गुरुपत्नी लिखा है, वह साधारण नहीं है, वह तारा है, 'तार-यति संसार-सागरात् या सा तारा – विद्या'– संसार सागर से जो पार उतारती है उस विद्या का नाम तारा है। शिष्य गुरु को विद्या को ग्रहण कर लेता है, उस विद्या से शिष्य के अन्तःकरण में ज्ञान पैदा होता है उस ज्ञान को यहाँ पर 'बुध' लिखा है। जब शिष्य को ज्ञान पैदा हो जाता है तब उसको विद्या की आवश्यकता नहीं रहती अतएव वह विद्या फिर गुरु के पास चली जाती है। यह चन्द्र तारा की कथा का आध्या-त्मिक भाव है ।

The late Shri Pt. Kaluram Ji Shastri expressed the following spiritual interpretation of the aforementioned narrative:

"Here, the Guru is referred to by the name Brihaspati, and the joyful disciple is symbolized as the Moon (Chandra). The Guru delights in knowledge (vidya), which is described as the Guru's consort. This is no ordinary consort—it is Tara, meaning that which liberates: 'Tārayati saṁsāra-sāgarāt yā sā tārā – vidyā'—Tara is that knowledge which helps one cross the ocean of worldly existence.

The disciple receives this knowledge from the Guru, and through this knowledge, wisdom arises within the disciple's heart. This awakened wisdom is referred to here as 'Budha' (Mercury). Once the disciple attains true knowledge, he no longer requires the external form of that knowledge; hence, the knowledge (Tara) returns to the Guru.

This is the spiritual interpretation of the story of Chandra and Tara.

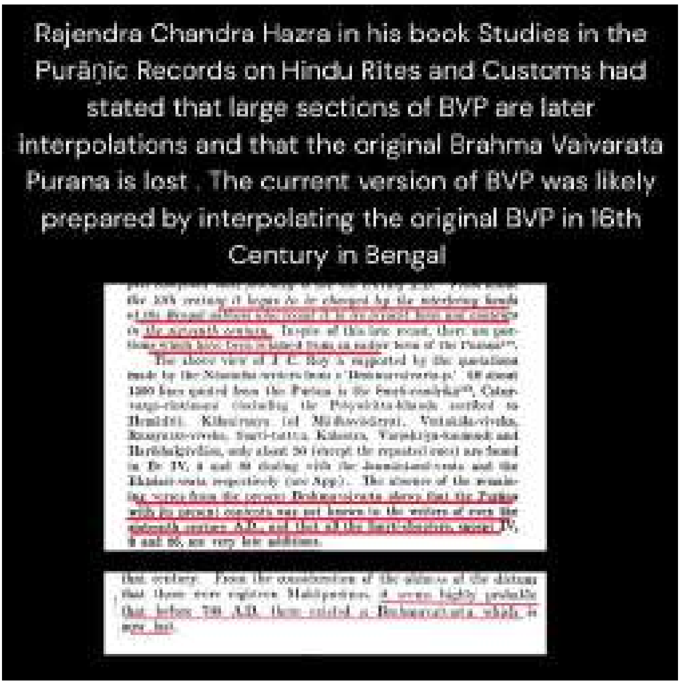
Regarding Brahma Viavarta Purana Krishna Janma Khanda 80.1-22

Rajendra Chandra Hazra in his book Studies in the Purāṇic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs had stated that large sections of BVP are later interpolations and that the original Brahma Vaivarata Purana is lost. The current version of BVP was likely prepared by interpolating the original BVP in 16th Century in Bengal.



Archaelogical survey of India prepared a critical edition of Brahma Vaivarat Purana based on the different manuscripts found all over India and prepared a critical edition in which they removed all those interpolated chapters and portions. I am providing the link of Critical edition Brahma Vaivarata Purana Volume 1 and 2 translated by Ram Sharma Acharya QR code provided here

📚Valmiki Ramayana 4.66.10-20📚
She who took birth as the daughter of great souled monkey chief Kunjara, on assuming a human physique, putting on caparisons of amazing garlands, dressed in silken clothing, and shining forth with rarity of her beauty and nubility, at one time ambled on the top of a mountain like a streak of lightning athwart a black-cloud of rainy season. When she is strolling on the mountaintop Air-god has slowly lifted up that broad-eyed lady's auspicious and ochry silk apparel with red rouches. Then the Air-god beheld her well-twinned, thickset, roundish thighs, and even the paired off plumpish reasts, and her beautiful face which is well proportioned in its build. Just on catching the sight of that gorgeous one, whose pelvic-girdle is fat and ample and who is slender-waisted, and who by all her limbs is pristine, the Air-god is enamoured. He that Air-god who is ensorcelled by Love-god in all of his limbs, though he is limbless and existing in thin air, embraced that immaculate lady with both of his far-flung arms, as he lost his heart for her. But she that conscientious lady perplexedly said this sentence in that matter of invisible hugging, 'who wishes to despoil my vow of one-man-one-wife. On listening the words of Anjana the Air-god spoke this in reply, 'oh, high-hipped one, I don't dishonour you, hence let there be no fear in your heart, for I am the all-permeating Air-god. By which reason I embraced you and impregnate myself within you, by that reason you are impregnated in a supersensory manner, thereby you will beget a valiant son endowed with intellect. An admirably brave, and a bravely dazzling, and a dazzlingly forceful, and a forcefully overpowering son will be there, also thus, he will be a coequal of mine in flying off and jumping up...' Thus, the Air-god said to Anjana. Oh, arcane monkey Hanuma, when Air-god said so to her, oh, ambidextrous one, your mother is gratified, and then, oh, bullish fly-jumpers, your mother very well divined you in a cave."

Whereas the definition of Adultery says adultery noun

adul·tery (ə-ˈdəl-t(ə-)rē) plural adulteries

Synonyms of adultery >

: voluntary sexual intercourse between a married person and someone other than that person's current spouse or partner also : an act of adultery

And Nowhere Valmiki Ramayana says Vayu Deva Violated Anjana Devi . I don't understand how these Halala Putras claim Adultery here . Halala Putras seem to have very less brain and intelligence

Coming to Allegations on Shiva Purana 5.4.20

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhavasaṃhitā,[79] also called Ānanda/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and manvantaras, etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

[illegible]

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[87] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as [illegible], who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahman; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A.D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

Allegations-

Vishnu raped Vrinda (Tulasi)

📚Skanda Purana 2.4.21.17-30📚
I am your beloved and innocent wife. Why don't you speak to me now? You were the conqueror of the three worlds. Devas and Gandharvas along with Viṣṇu have been defeated by you. How did it happen that you have now been killed by a mere ascetic? After lamenting thus, Vṛndā spoke these words to the sage: O excellent sage, O storehouse of mercy, resuscitate this my lover and lord. You alone are capable of bringing him back to life, O sage, I believe. On hearing these words of hers, the sage said with a smile: He has been killed in battle by Rudra. He cannot be made alive once again. Still, out of sympathy for you, I shall make him alive. After saying this, the Brāhmaṇa vanished. By that time, the son of the Ocean embraced Vṛndā and kissed her face with great mental pleasure and satisfaction. Vṛndā too was extremely delighted in her mind on seeing her husband once again. Staying within the forest in his company for many days, she sported about. Once at the conclusion of the sexual intercourse, she saw him in the form of Viṣṇu. Rebuking him angrily Vṛndā spoke these words: Fie upon your conduct, O Hari, you commit adultery! I know now well that you are a fake ascetic. The two, your own gatekeepers, who were shown to me by you by means of Māyā will be born as Rākṣasas. They will abduct your wife. You will wander in forest, miserable due to the separation from your wife. Do wander along with this Lord of serpents, who has now been your disciple. After saying this, Vṛndā entered fire, though Viṣṇu whose mind was attached to her, tried to prevent her."

📚Shiva Purana 2.5.23.38-45📚
On seeing her husband, Vṛndā too was delighted. She forgot her sorrow. She considered everything a dream. Delighted in the heart and with all the dormant passions kindled up, she sported with him for many days in the middle of that forest. Once at the end of the sexual intercourse she realised that it was Viṣṇu. Vṛndā rebuked him angrily and spoke thus. Fie n this misdeed of Viṣṇu in outraging the modesty of another man's wife. I have now realised you as the wielder of illusion, appearing in the guise of an ascetic. O Vyāsa, saying thus in great anger she showed her brilliant powers as a staunch chaste lady by cursing Viṣṇu. "O base foe of the Daityas, defiler of other people's virtue, O wicked one, take this curse from me, greater in force than all persons. The two persons whom you made to appear in front of me shall become Rākṣasas and abduct your wife. You will be distressed on account of separation from your wife roaming about with Śeṣa 'lord of snakes' who posed as your disciple here. You will seek the help of monkeys in the forest."

📚Devi Bhagavatam Purana 9.24.14-22📚
O Dear! Full one Samvatsara the war lasted betwixt us. All the Daityas were killed. Then Brahmā Himself came and mediated. Peace, then, was brought about and by the command of Brahmā, I gave over to the Devas their rights. When I returned to my home, Śiva went back to His Śivaloka. Thus saying, Hari, the Lord of the world, slept and then engaged in sexual intercourse with her. But the chaste Tulasī, finding this time her experience quite different from what She used to enjoy before, argued all the time within herself and at last questioned him :– Who are you? O Magician! By spreading your magic, you have enjoyed me. As you have taken my chastity, I will curse you. Bhagavān Nārāyaṇa, hearing Tulasī's words and being afraid of the curse, assumed His real beautiful figure. The Devī then saw the Eternal Lord of the Devas before her. He was of a deep blue colour like fresh rain-clouds and with eyes like autumnal lotuses and with playful Līlās equivalent to tens and tens of millions of Love personified and adorned with jewels and ornaments. His face was smiling and gracious; and he wore his yellow-coloured robe. The love-stricken Tulasī, seeing That Lovely Form of Vāsudeva, immediately fell senseless; and at the next moment, regaining consciousness, she began to speak."

📚Shiva Purana 2.5.41.1-39📚
Vyasa said:- "How did the lord Nārāyaṇa manage to deposit his semen in the vaginal passage of Tulasī? Please narrate the same…It was in the guise of Śaṅkhacūḍa that he indulged in sexual dalliance with his wife…Very near the entrance to Tulasī's palace he caused the drum Dundubhi to be beaten and cries of victory to be raised. He thus made the beautiful woman wake up. On hearing it that chaste lady was highly delighted. Eagerly she peeped through the window into the high way. Knowing that her husband had returned she observed all auspicious rites and offered monetary gifts to the brahmins. She then beautified herself. After decending from the chariot, Viṣṇu who assumed the guise of Śaṅkhacūḍa by deceptive art for the sake of carrying out the task of the gods went to the apartment of the queen…My dear wife, we fought continuously for a year. O lovely woman, all the Asuras were destroyed. Brahmā made us come to a peace. At the bidding of Brahmā the powers of authority were re-assigned to the gods. I have returned home…Then out of joy Viṣṇu indulged in sexual intercourse. That lady began to suspect on observing a change in her happiness, endearment and attraction and asked him "who are you? Who are you? Tell me quickly. I have been enjoyed by you deceptively. My modesty has been outraged. Hence I am going to curse you." On hearing the words of Tulasī, Viṣṇu became afraid of the curse. O Brahmin, sportively he re-assumed his own real beautiful form. On seeing the characteristic signs she guessed that it was Viṣṇu. Infuriated by the violation of her chastity she said. "O Viṣṇu, you are ruthless. Your mind is likea rock. Since my chastity has been outraged my husband is doomed. O wicked one, being ruthless you are like a rock. Hence due to my curse you will become a rock. Those who call you ocean of mercy are erring. There is no doubt. How was a devotee killed for another man's sake, even without any offence?" After saying this, the chaste beloved of Śaṅkhacūḍa, Tulasī lamented again and again in the excess of her grief. On seeing her crying, Viṣṇu remembered lord Śaṅkara, Parameśvara, by whom the universe is deluded. Then Śaṅkara, favourably disposed to his devotees appeared in front of them. He was bowed to and eulogised humbly by Viṣṇu. On seeing Viṣṇu distressed and the beloved lady lamenting, Śiva kind to the poor tactfully enlightened both of them."

आधिभौतिक

'पद्म-पुराण' में इस आख्यायिका का जो कथानक (Plot) अङ्कित किया है वह भौतिक विज्ञान से सम्बन्ध रखता है। तुलसी नामक प्रसिद्ध औषधि विविधजात्य अनेक ज्वरों एवं मलेरिया के कीटाणुओं (Germs) को समूल नष्ट कर देती है यह बात आजकल की नई खोज से भी सिद्ध हो चुकी है। प्राचीन ऋषियों ने 'जलन्धर' कथा द्वारा इस रहस्य की साङ्गोपाङ्ग गवेषणा की थी, इसीलिए हमारी दैनन्दिनी दिनचर्या में तुलसी के सेवन का पर्याप्त उपयोग पाया जाता

है। प्राचीन भारत में वह कोई आर्य घर न था जिसमें कि तुलसी की वाटिका न हो। इस लघु किन्तु अलौकिक पौधे की महती उपयोगिता जानकर ऋषिजनों ने इसे धार्मिक सिंहासन पर बिठाकर सम्मानित किया था। अतएव यह पौधा ईश्वरभक्त धर्मात्माओं के निवास-स्थान का परिचायक बन गया था। उस दिन हनुमान् जी ने राक्षसपुरी लंका में सीता को खोजते हुए अचानक विभीषण के घर में गोस्वामी तुलसीदास जी के शब्दों में 'नव तुलसी के वृन्द तहँ' देखकर ही एक अपरिचित व्यक्ति में विश्वास करके उसके सामने अपना हृदय निकाल कर रख दिया था।

इस पौधे को यह सम्मान अन्धविश्वास के कारण मिल गया हो ऐसी बात भी नहीं है। 'वनस्पति विज्ञान' के जगत्प्रसिद्ध आचार्य श्री जगदीशचन्द्र वसु महोदय ने तो अभी हाल में तुलसी के सम्बन्ध में अपनी खोज का वर्णन करते हुये यहाँ तक कहा है कि तुलसी के संसर्ग से सुवासित वायु जहाँ तक घूमती है वहाँ तक मलेरिया आदि बीमारियों के घातक कीटाणु (Deadly Germs) नष्ट होते चले जाते हैं। यदि इस पौधे को गरीब घनाओं से लेकर महामहिम महाराजाओं तक को समान रूप से आरोग्य प्रदान करने वाला ईश्वरीय औषधालय कह दिया जाय तो अतिशयोक्ति न होगी।' इत्यादि।

और घिसे हुए चन्दन आदि विशुद्ध कार्बनिक द्रव्यों के मेल से इसे पान किया जाता है। इस तरह यह अविच्छिन्न दल बिना किसी कष्ट के गले के नीचे उतर जाता है और अनुपान के संयोग से इसकी वैद्युती शक्ति सुरक्षित रहती है। धार्मिक परिभाषा में इसे 'चरणामृत' कहते हैं और इसके पीछे से—'अकालमृत्युहरणं सर्वव्याधिविनाशनम्'—के अनुसार अकालमृत्यु की निवृत्ति और समस्त व्याधियों का विनाश माना जाता है।

जल को धारण करने वाला बादल ही 'जलंधर' है और उस बादल में सर्वतोभाव से रहने वाली 'विद्युत्-शक्ति' ही वृन्दा है। साध्वी स्त्री का सर्वस्व जिस प्रकार उसका एकमात्र पति ही होता है इसी प्रकार मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत् का भी अनन्य आश्रय बादल ही है। वह मेघ क्षण क्षण में नये २ रूप बदलकर आकाश में विचरता है। कई बार तो यह 'कुन्द-इन्दु-तुषार-धवल-देह-द्युति' धारण कर एवं नील रंग में नीलकण्ठ को सदा लिजाता हुआ—'अज, गज विपिन पराजय कारिणी! विश्वविमोहिनी, स्वच्छविहारिणी—प्रकृतिरूप पार्वती देवी को भी विमुग्ध कर डालने को उद्यत होता है। सूर्य चन्द्रादि ग्रह, नक्षत्र, तारे, सितारे और सँवारे अपनी अपनी कान्ति रूप बालाओं को इस घनघमण्ड के प्रतिरोध से मानो व्याकुलित सी देख पाते हैं। यह जलन्धर दैवी-सम्पदा रूप प्राणीमात्र के जीवन आधार जलों को आत्मसात् कर के मानो उनके जीवन को मुट्ठी में ले लेता है अतएव वे सब विचलित हो उठते हैं। परन्तु मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत् की प्रवाह धारा जब तक अविच्छिन्न रूप से

प्रवाहित होती है तब तक वाष्पभूत जलन्धर का एक कण भी पृथ्वी पर नहीं टपक सकता। अतएव पार्वती रूप प्रकृति के परामर्श से व्यापनशील वायुरूप विष्णु—तरलता से प्रवाहित होता हुआ मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युद् रूप वृन्दा का सर्वतोभावेन सत्वर्दन करता है, बस! इस वायु के संसर्ग से ज्योंही मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युद् में स्पन्दन-क्रिया का संचार हुआ कि वाष्पभूत जलसंघ सिमट सिमट कर क्रमशः पृथ्वी पर गिर जाता है।

वायु का प्रत्येक प्रवाह वर्षा का कारण होता है, यह बात नहीं है। वर्तमान विज्ञानवेत्ता भी एक खास प्रकार की मानसून (Monsoon) नामक हवा को ही वृष्टिकारक बताते हैं। सो उक्त रूपक में भी वायु रूप विष्णु जलन्धर का वेश बदल कर ही वृन्दा के निकट पहुँचता है तभी उसका पति विदीर्ण होकर पृथ्वी पर गिरता है। अर्थात्—वायु का स्वाभाविक रूप बरसात का कारक नहीं यह भाव उक्त रूपक में बड़ी चातुरी से अभिव्यक्त किया है। अस्तु, वही मेघान्तर्वर्ती विद्युत शक्ति—(जिसे न्यायशास्त्र में—भौमदिव्यौदर्याकरजभेदात्। —के अनुसार 'दिव्य अग्नि' के नाम से स्मरण किया है)—जलकणों से संमिश्रित होकर 'अद्भ्यः पृथ्वी, पृथ्व्योषधयः', सिद्धान्त के अनुसार तुलसी नामक पौधे के रूप में उत्पन्न होती है अर्थात्—तुलसी के अन्दर जो अलौकिक शक्ति विद्यमान है वह परम्परा से मेघान्तर्वर्ती दिव्य अग्नि के प्रवाह से ही इसमें आई है। इस गूढ़ रहस्य को अभिव्यक्त करने के लिये श्री वेदव्यास जी ने वृन्दा का सती होकर जन्मान्तर में तुलसी वृक्ष के रूप में उत्पन्न होना दिखाया है। वृन्दा ने विष्णु भगवान् को जड़ीभूत हो जाने का शाप दिया था, सो शालिग्राम शिला वाली व्यापक वायु का ही जड़ीभूत पिण्ड है। जैसे अग्नि के साथ वायु का स्वाभाविक सम्बन्ध है और वायु के झोंकों से अग्नि की अवश्य सी चिनगारी भी ज्वालीभूत अभिवृद्ध हो जाती है

यद्यपि इस कथानक में पात्रों के नाम तक भी ऐसे चुने गये हैं कि जिनके कहने मात्र से उक्त रूपक का ढाँचा सहसा मन में बैठ जाता है, जैसे—असुर का नाम 'जलन्धर' होना ही अक्षरार्थ के अनुसार उसे मेघ सिद्ध करता है, और संघीभूत जलवृन्द की नियामक शक्ति को वृन्दा के अतिरिक्त और कुछ कहा ही क्या जा सकता है। तथापि किसी अन्यथा सिद्ध को अप्रामाणिकता के चक्कर में पड़ने का अवसर न मिल सके, एतदर्थ यहाँ तादृश प्रमाणों का कुछ संकेत करना अनावश्यक न होगा, यथा—

(क) [प्रजापतिः] तं पाप्मानं मवृश्चत्। यदवृश्चत् तस्माद्वृष्टिः। (तैत्तिरीय ३। १०। ६। १)

(ख) वृष्टिर्वै याज्या विद्युदेव। विद्युद्धीदं वृष्टिमन्नाद्यं संप्रयच्छति। (ऐतरेय २। ४१)

(ग) अयं वै वर्षस्येष्टे योऽयं [वायुः] पवते।

(शतपथ १। ८। ३। १२)

(घ) तस्माद्या दिशं वायुरेति तां दिशं वृष्टिरन्वेति।

(शतपथ ८। २। ३। ५)

अर्थात्—(क) प्रजापालक विष्णु भगवान ने उस 'पाप्मा' नामक असुर को छेदन कर डाला। क्योंकि उसका व्रश्चन (छेदन) किया गया था अतएव इस क्रिया को वृष्टि कहते हैं (ख) यजन योग्य विद्युत् ही वस्तुतः वृष्टि है क्योंकि यह विद्युत् ही वर्षा और अन्न आदि पदार्थों के

देने वाली है । (ग) यह जो वायु स्पन्दन करता है यही वर्षा क्रिया का आधायक है । (घ) इसलिये जिस तरफ को वायु बहता है उसी तरफ पीछे २ वृष्टि जाती है ।

इस प्रकार तुलसी विटप के अलौकिक चमत्कार का परोक्षपद्धति से निर्देश करने वाला यह कथानक, 'पौराणिक-वनस्पति-विज्ञान' का ज्वलन्त उदाहरण है । इसका हम आधिभौतिक निरूपण करने के बाद अब आधिदैविक विवेचन करते हैं ।

First of all we have to understand the real Tatparya and Meaning behind Vishnu Vrinda story in Puranas . We have to remember that Stories in Puranas are nothing but personified Aakhanyan of आदिदैविक Prakaran in Vedas .Śri Mādhavācārya alias Swami Anandatirtha has quoted passages From Vedic texts and Puranas at certain places in his commentary on the Brahmasūtra and he has clearly specified:-पुराणस्योपजीव्यश्व वेद एव न खापरः ।तद्विरोधे कथं मानं तत्सत्र न भविष्यति ॥ This basis of Puranas is Veda and nothing else. As such, how an they be taken as authentic against Vedic provisions ? Traditional Sri Vaishanva Acharya in his grantha Purana Digdarshan also explained the same thing and explained आदिदैविक and real meaning of Puranic Stories based on Vedas – Reference – Purana Digdarshan Page 432

(तैत्तिरीय ३ । १० ।६।१)- प्रजापालक विष्णु भगवान् ने उस 'पाप्मा' नामक असुर को छेदन कर डाला। क्योंकि उसका व्रश्चन (छेदन था अतएव इस क्रिया को वृष्टि कहते हैं

"Lord Vishnu, the protector of beings, pierced (or severed) the demon named 'Pāpmā'. Since this act was a cutting (vṛścana), therefore this act is called 'vṛṣṭi' (rain). (ख) वृष्टिर्वै याज्या विद्य देव । विद्युद्धीदं वृष्टिमन्नाद्य संप्रयच्छति ।

(ऐतरेय २ । ४१)- यजन योग्य किया गया विद्युत् ही वस्तुतः वृष्टि है क्योंकि यह विद्युत् ही वर्षा और अन्न आदि पदार्थों के देने वाली है।"The विद्युत् that is made suitable for sacrifice is in fact rain itself, because it is this very Vidyut that provides rain and substances like food

(ग) अयं वै वर्षस्येष्टयै योयं [वायुः] पवते । (शतपथ १।८।३।१२) – यह जो वायु स्पन्दन करता है यही वर्षा क्रिया का आधायक है। This air that vibrates is the very basis of the process of rainfall

(घ) तस्माद्या दिशं वायुरेति तां दिशं वृष्टिरन्वेति ।

(शतपथ ८ । २ । ३।५)- इसलिये जिस तरफ को वायु बहता है उसी तरफ पीछे २ वृष्टि जाती है। Therefore, in the direction the wind blows, rain follows behind

The cloud that holds water is Jalandhar and the विद्युत residing in this cloud in its entirety is Vrinda. Just as a pious wife is devoted only to her husband, similarly, the only refuge of the cloud-borne विद्युत is the cloud itself. The cloud [Jalandhar] frequently changes shape in the sky, sometimes appearing white as snow with hints of blue, reminiscent of the goddess Parvati's form, enticing and omnipresent, charming the universe and traversing with free will. Planets, stars, and constellations look on as this mass of clouds absorbs water, seemingly taking life in its grasp. However, as long as the flow of विद्युत [Vrinda] within the cloud[Jalandhar] remains uninterrupted, not a single drop of vapor condenses to fall to Earth.

. Following Parvati's suggestion as Prakriti , Vishnu, as air, approaches the विद्युत [Vrinda] in the cloud as it flows in all directions. As soon as this विद्युत[Vrinda], energized by the air[Vishnu], begins to vibrate, the vapor condenses and falls to Earth in droplets. Not every air current brings rain; even modern science identifies only specific types of air currents, like the monsoon, as rain-producing. In this allegory, Air (Vishnu) has to disguise itself as a cloud to approach Vrinda . Only then does she disperse and fall to Earth, symbolizing the fact that only particular winds cause rain. The divine Vidyut within the clouds, which has been referred to in scriptures as Divya Agni derived from electric energy, mixes with water particles, following the principle "Adbhyah Prithvi, Prithvibhyah Oshadhayah" (from water comes Earth, and from Earth, the herbs), resulting in the Tulsi plant.

This is why the Tulsi plant is imbued with extraordinary powers, inherited from the divine विद्युत within clouds. To convey this mystical aspect, Vedavyasa shows Vrinda, a pure devotee, reincarnating as the Tulsi plant after her curse. Vrinda cursed Lord Vishnu to become a stone, the Shaligram, which is essentially an embodiment of condensed air. Just as air intensifies even a small spark of fire, similarly, the divine fire within Tulsi leaves is enhanced when in contact with the Shaligram, symbolizing the unlimited power of Tulsi.

According to Nirukta (10/10) the Rishis prefer to explain the Deeper Vedic Philosophical and Metaphysical meaning with the help of आख्यान and stories . Through this Vishnu Vrinda story in Shiva Purana the Science of Rainfall and Watercycle as mentioned in Shruti has been explained through आख्यान and personification and hence should be understood in its original Vedic Swaroop

Allegations–

11. Sage Kandu

📚Brahma Purana 69.58-87📚
On hearing her words the sage lost his courage. He was dubed. Taking that damsel by her hand he entered his hermitage. O excellent brahmins, then Cupid, Spring, Breeze became satisfied. They returned to heaven…It was the physical form of a blooming youth of sixteen years…It was lovely and capable of enjoying all pleasures. On seeing his vim and vigour she was excessively surprised saying —“Wonderful, indeed, is the power of penance.’’ She rejoiced much. O excellent sages, eschewing his rites of holy bath, prayer during dusk and dawn, repetitione of holy names, sacrifices, study of the Vedas, worship of deities, observances of holy rites, fasts, and meditation he sported with her day and night with great joy…With his mind drawn to sexual pleasures he was not aware of the passing time. Twilights, nights, days, fortnights, months, seasons and years sped on. O brahmins, clever in secret amorons dalliance, that lady of fine buttocks, skilled in engaging conversation diverted his mind with various lustful emotions. The sage Kandu engaged himself in vulgar sexual intercourse with her. Many hundreds of years he stayed with her in the valley of the Mandara mountain….“O timid lady, even as I was engaged in dalliance with you, what period of time did pass by?” Pramloca said : “Nine hundred, seven years, six months and three days have passed off till date”.”

Coming to Allegations on Shiva Purana 5.4.20 , Shiva Purana 5.4.32-33 and Shiva Purana 5.4.34

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The Bhasmamahātmya[?] also called Auma/Umāsaṃhitā, is represented in the class B editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and maintenance etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[?] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as [illegible], who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahma; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasaṃbhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A.D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

saṃhitās, with different titles and different arrangements; two of their saṃhitās are not even listed in the Śiva° passages.[?] The following is a comparative survey of the saṃhitās, in the two passages of the Śiva° itself, and in the two sets of editions — which from now on I will refer to as class A and class B editions.

PARASHAR-SATYAVATI SAMAGAM

Now one may still raise an objection on Satyavati-Parashar Samagam in Mahabharat

Mahabharat Adi Parva Adhaya 63 Geeta Press Gorakhpur

वह रूप और सत्त्व (सत्य)-से संयुक्त तथा समस्त सद्गुणोंसे सम्पन्न होनेके कारण 'सत्यवती' नामसे प्रसिद्ध हुई। मछेरोंके आश्रयमें रहनेके कारण वह पवित्र मुसकानवाली कन्या कुछ कालतक मत्स्यगन्धा नामसे ही विख्यात रही। वह पिताकी सेवाके लिये यमुनाजीके जलमें नाव चलाया करती थी। एक दिन तीर्थयात्राके उद्देश्यसे सब ओर विचरनेवाले महर्षि पराशरने उसे देखा। वह अतिशय रूप-सौन्दर्यसे सुशोभित

थी। सिद्धोंके
हृदयमें भी उसे पानेकी अभिलाषा जाग उठती थी ।। ६८-७० ।।

She became renowned by the name Satyavati because she was united with beauty (rupa) and sattva (truth or purity), and was endowed with all noble qualities.
Because she lived among the fishermen, that sacred-smiling maiden was for some time also known as Matsyagandha ("the one with the smell of fish").
She used to row a boat in the waters of the Yamuna River in service of her father.
One day, the great sage Parashara, who was wandering in all directions for pilgrimage purposes, saw her.
She was adorned with extraordinary beauty and charm.
Even in the hearts of the Siddhas (perfected beings), a desire to attain her would arise.

Her smile was exceedingly enchanting, and her cheeks shone with the beauty of a plantain (banana) blossom.
Seeing that divine maiden Vasukumari, the supremely wise sage Parashara expressed his desire to unite with her. (Verse 71)

He said,
"O beautiful one, unite with me."
She replied,
"O revered one! Look—on both banks of the river, many sages are standing, and they are watching us.
In such a situation, how can our union take place?"

Upon hearing this, the powerful sage Parashara created a mist (fog) through his yogic power. (Verse 73)
As a result, the entire region was enveloped in darkness.
Seeing this mystical mist created by the sage, the ascetic maiden was both astonished and filled with modesty (shyness). (Verse 74)

O best of the twice-born (Brahmins)! Once my maidenhood is defiled, how can I return to my home?
O wise and noble sage! If the purity of my maidenhood is stained, I shall not wish to live.
O Lord! Please reflect upon this well and do whatever you think is appropriate.” (Verses 76–77)

Matsyagandha Satyavati remained a taintless virgin even after uniting with Parashar due to Parashar boon

सत्यवतीके ऐसा कहनेपर मुनिश्रेष्ठ पराशर प्रसन्न होकर बोले- 'भीरु ! मेरा प्रिय कार्य करके भी तुम कन्या ही रहोगी। भामिनि! तुम जो चाहो, वह मुझसे वर माँग लो। शुचिस्मिते! आजसे पहले कभी भी मेरा अनुग्रह व्यर्थ नहीं गया है' ।

महर्षिके ऐसा कहनेपर सत्यवतीने अपने शरीरमें उत्तम सुमन होनेका वरदान माँगा। भगवान् पराशरने इस भूतलपर उसे वह मनोवांछित वर दे दिया ।। ८० ।

Hearing Satyavati’s words, the great sage Parashara, pleased, said:

"O timid one! Even after fulfilling my desire, you shall remain a virgin.
O beautiful lady! Ask me for any boon you wish.
O pure-smiling one! Never before has my blessing ever gone in vain."

Upon hearing this from the sage, Satyavati asked for a boon that her body should emit a divine, pleasant fragrance like that of fine flowers.

The revered Parashara granted her this desired boon on this very earth. (Verse 80)

Why did Rishi Parashar Unite With Satyavati ?

Rishi Parashara united with Satyavati for a divine purpose — to bring forth Krishna Dwaipayana Vyasa, the sage destined to expand the branches (Shakhas) of the Vedas, compose the Mahabharata, compile the Puranas, and lay the foundation for the Gṛhyasūtras and other Kalpasūtras becoming one of the most important persons in the history of Sanatan Dharma

इस प्रकार परम उत्तम वर पाकर हर्षोल्लाससे भरी हुई सत्यवतीने महर्षि पराशरका संयोग प्राप्त किया और तत्काल ही एक शिशुको जन्म दिया। यमुनाके द्वीपमें अत्यन्त शक्तिशाली पराशरनन्दन व्यास प्रकट हुए ।। ८३-८४ ।।

उन्होंने मातासे यह कहा- 'आवश्यकता पड़नेपर तुम मेरा स्मरण करना। मैं अवश्य दर्शन दूँगा।' इतना कहकर माताकी आज्ञा ले व्यासजीने तपस्यामें ही मन लगाया

Having received such an excellent boon, Satyavati, filled with joy and delight, united with the great sage Parashara, and immediately gave birth to a child.
On an island in the Yamuna River, Vyasa, the immensely powerful son of Parashara, was born. (Verses 83–84)

He said to his mother:
"Whenever you are in need, remember me—I will surely appear before you."
Saying this and taking his mother's blessing, Vyasa devoted himself to a life of austerity and meditation.

The wise Dvaipayana (Vyasa) observed that with each passing Yuga, one leg (pāda) of Dharma was gradually disappearing.
He saw that human beings' lifespan and strength were declining, and the condition of the age had become greatly degraded.
Witnessing all this, and out of compassion for the Vedas and the Brahmins, he undertook the division and expansion of the Vedas.
Therefore, he became renowned by the name Vyasa (the one who compiles or categorizes). (Verses 87–88)

Refutation-

According to R.C. Hazra, the Uma Saṁhitā of the Shiva Purāṇa is a very late addition. He notes that it draws heavily from the Jñāna Saṁhitā, which itself is dated to around 950 CE. Based on this, it can be reasonably inferred that the Uma Saṁhitā was incorporated into the Shiva Purāṇa sometime after the 10th century CE.

IV. The [illegible],[79] also called [illegible], is represented in the [illegible] editions only. The text introduces Kṛṣṇa on a visit to Kailāsa and performing penance there to Śiva, in order to obtain a son. He meets Upamanyu, and requests him to tell him about the greatness of Śiva. Upamanyu complies, and praises Śiva and his trident; he extols Śiva's power to save his devotees from hell. This discussion leads into several chapters on different types of sins, and on the description of hell and the suffering in it. Ways to avoid this suffering include gifts of food, performing penance, listening to the purāṇas, etc. The saṃhitā subsequently describes the seven dvīpas of the earth, and other component parts of the universe. It ends with discourses on a variety of topics, such as the development of man, from the foetus, through childhood, youth, marriage, old age, etc.; creation and [illegible] etc. In Hazra's opinion the text borrows most of its chapters from the Jñānasaṃhitā.

[illegible]

XIII. The Jñānasaṃhitā[illegible] has already been referred to on several occasions in this description of the Śiva°, because, in Hazra's opinion, other saṃhitās borrowed verses and even chapters from it. The text recognizes the Vedas as the highest authority, but it was Śiva, as [illegible], who communicated them to Viṣṇu. Śiva shall be worshiped with Vedic mantras, even though the saṃhitā does not, therefore, reject the authority of the Tantras and eventual Śiva worship with Āgamic rather than Vedic mantras. The nirguṇa Śiva is identical with the parabrahman; in his saguṇa form he manifests himself as Rudra. Prakṛti was born from Śiva's wish, and, from her, were born the other gods including Brahmā and Viṣṇu. This saṃhitā, like some of those discussed earlier, strongly encourages liṅga worship as the ideal way to worship Śiva himself. It urges worship under the guidance of a competent teacher; worship will lead to bhakti, then to jñāna, and, ultimately, to vijñāna, i.e. the realization that the only real thing is Śiva. Hazra points out that the text was influenced by the Kumārasambhava, Raghuvaṃśa, and Kirātārjunīya. He surmises that it may have been composed in Benares, by someone who was also familiar with the banks of the Narmadā, not before A.D. 950.

The Śiva Purāṇa, as a whole, is one of the most composite and unwieldy Purāṇas, having been composed and expanded by different authors over various periods. There exist two primary versions: the Bombay 1884, Venkat 1895–96, and Venga Manuscript (Class A); and the Venkat 1906, 1965 Pandita Pustakalaya Manuscript (Class B). According to R.C. Hazra, the sections found in the Class A Manuscript are older and more authentic, whereas those in the Class B Manuscript (Including Uma Samhita) are very recent compositions . Most significantly, the older and more authentic Class A Manuscript does not contain the Uma Saṁhitā.

Explaining the Basic Concept of God in Sanatan Dharma

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

First of all In Sanatan Dharma Ishwar (God) is one and only without a second . This is evident from the following Pramanas

Taittriya Samhita 1.8.6 says -एको हि रुद्रो न द्वितीयाय meaning Rudra (God) is one and only one and second to none

"In the beginning, my dear, this universe was Being (Sat) alone, one only without a second. Some say that in the beginning this was non-being (asat) alone, one only without a second; and from that non-being, being was born."

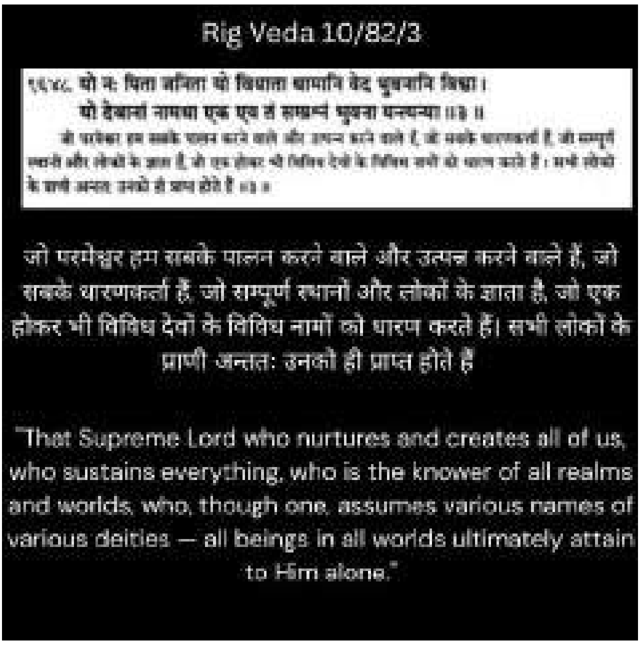
Rig Veda 10/82/3
जो परमेश्वर हम सबके पालन करने वाले और उत्पन्न करने वाले हैं, जो सबके धारणकर्ता हैं, जो सम्पूर्ण स्थानों और लोकों के ज्ञाता है, जो एक होकर भी विविध देवों के विविध नामों को धारण करते हैं। सभी लोकों के प्राणी अन्ततः उनको ही प्राप्त होते हैं

"That Supreme Lord who nurtures and creates all of us, who sustains everything, who is the knower of all realms and worlds, who, though one, assumes various names of various deities — all beings in all worlds ultimately attain to Him alone."



Rig Veda 10.114.5

क्रांतदर्शी विद्वान् परमात्मारूपी एक ही पक्षी को अनेक प्रकार के वचनों से वर्णित करते हैं. वे यज्ञों में भांति-भांति के छंदों की रचना करते हैं तथा सोमरस के बारह पात्रों को स्थापित करते हैं

The far-seeing sages describe the one Supreme Soul, symbolized as a single bird, in various kinds of speech. In the sacrifices, they compose diverse meters (chhandas) and establish the twelve vessels of Soma.

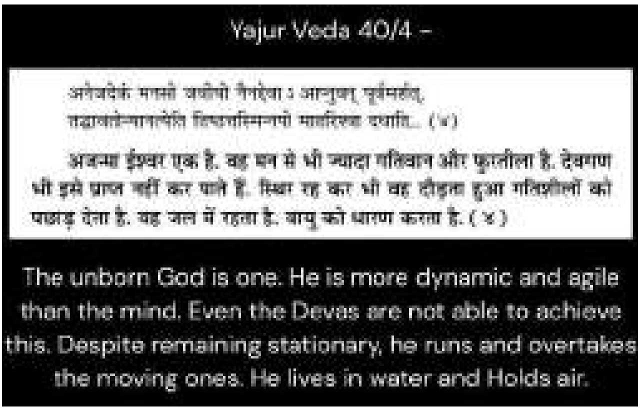
Yajur Veda 40/4 –

अजन्मा ईश्वर एक है. वह मन से भी ज्यादा गतिवान और फुरतीला है. देवगण भी इसे प्राप्त नहीं कर पाते हैं. स्थिर रह कर भी वह दौड़ता हुआ गतिशीलों को पछाड़ देता है. वह जल में रहता है. वायु को धारण करता है

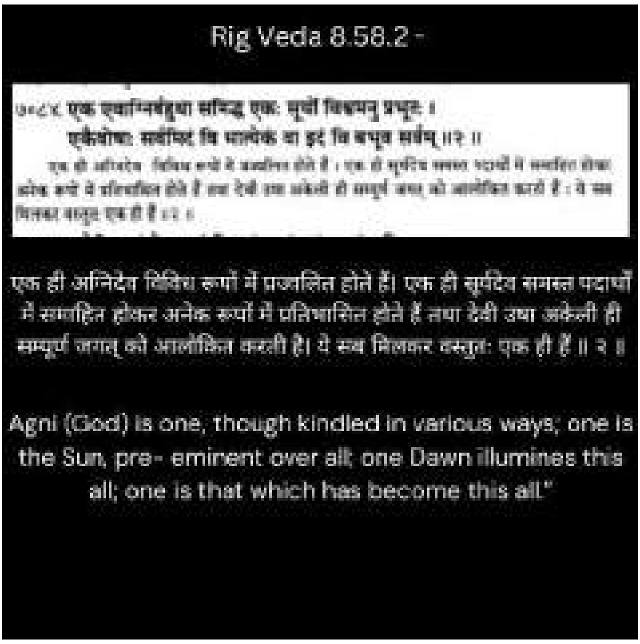
The unborn God is one. He is more dynamic and agile than the mind. Even the Devas are not able to achieve this. Despite remaining stationary, he runs and overtakes the moving ones. He lives in water and Holds air.



Rig Veda 8.58.2 –

एक ही अग्निदेव विविध रूपों में प्रज्वलित होते हैं। एक ही सूर्यदेव समस्त पदार्थों में समाहित होकर अनेक रूपों में प्रतिभासित होते हैं तथा देवी उषा अकेली ही सम्पूर्ण जगत् को आलोकित करती है। ये सब मिलकर वस्तुतः एक ही हैं ॥ २ ॥

Agni (God) is one, though kindled in various ways; one is the Sun, pre-eminent over all; one Dawn illumines this all; one is that which has become this all."



Shvetashvatara Upanishad 6.11

Shvetashvatara Upanishad Chpater 3 Mantra 2

He who protects and controls the worlds by His own powers, He-Rudra – is indeed one only. There is no one beside Him who can make Him the second. O men, He is present inside the hearts of all beings. After projecting and maintaining all the worlds, He finally withdraws them into Himself.

Shvetashvatara Upanishad Chapter 3 Mantra 3

Though God, the creator of heaven and earth, is one only, yet He is the real owner of all the eyes, faces, hands and feet in this universe. It is He who inspires [1] them all to do their respective duties in accordance with the knowledge, past actions and tendencies[3] of the various beings (with whom they appear to be associated).

There is naught higher than or different from Him; naught greater or more minute than Him. Rooted in His own glory He stands like a tree, one without a second and immovable. By that Being the whole universe is filled.

Svetashvara Upanishad 4:1 says that One Ishwar (God) takes various forms by Virtue of his powers for Sustenance of Universe

He who is one and without hue, but has ordained manifoldly many hues by the Yoga of his Force and holds within himself all objects, and in Him the universe dissolves in the end, that Godhead was in the beginning. May He yoke us with a good and bright understanding.

Brihadaranyaka 2:3:1 says one Brahman has but two modes formless(amurta) as well as in from from(murta), mortal and immortal, limited and unlimited, defined and undefined.

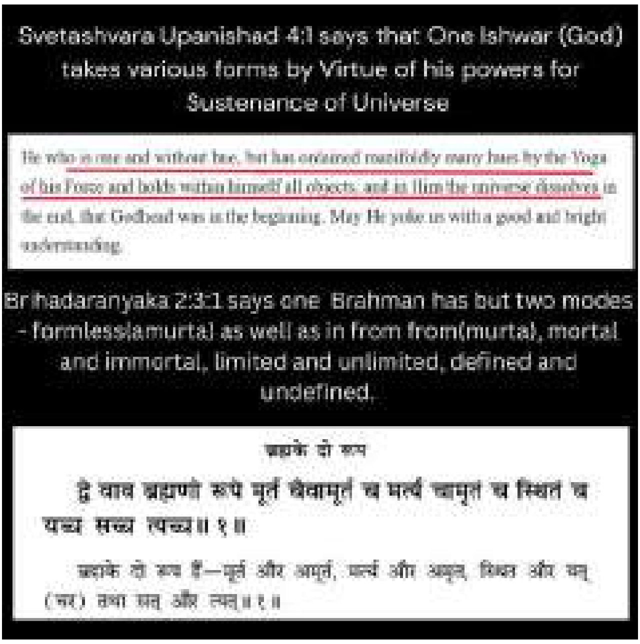
ब्रह्मके दो रूप हैं- मूर्त और अमूर्त, मर्त्य और अमृत, स्थित और यत् (चर) तथा सत् और त्यत् ॥ १ ॥



Shvetashvatara Upanishad Chapter 3 Mantra 1

It is the self-same One who exists alone at the time of creation and dissolution of the universe, that assumes manifold powers and appears as the Divine Lord by virtue of His inscrutable power of Maya. He it is that protects all the worlds and controls all the various forces working therein. Those who realize this Being become immortal.

यः who एकः one एव only सर्गे at the time of creation संभवे at the time of dissolution च and, यः who एकः one आत्मयया by his incrutable power of Māyā ईशनीभिः with innumerable powers ईशते appears as the Divine Lord, सः He ईशनीभिः (शक्तिभिः) having innumerable forces working therein सर्वान् all लोकान् worlds ईशते controls. ये who एतत् this विदुः know, ते they अमृताः immortal भवन्ति become.

It is the self-same One who exists alone at the time of creation and dissolution of the universe, that assumes manifold powers and appears as the Divine Lord by virtue of His inscrutable power of Māyā. He it is that protects all the worlds and controls all the various forces working therein. Those who realize this Being become immortal.

Shvetashvatara Upanishad Chapter 4 Mantra 14

One attains infinite peace when one realizes that Blissful One who is subtler than the subtlest, who creates the world in the midst of chaos, who assumes various forms, and who is the only one that encompasses the universe.

One attains infinite peace when one realizes that Blissful One who is subtler than the subtlest, who creates the world in the midst of chaos, who assumes various forms, and who is the only one that encompasses the universe.

Rig Veda 1/164/46 states –

एक ही सरूप परमेश्वर का विद्वज्जन (विभिन्न गुणों एवं स्वरूपों के आधार पर) विविध प्रकार से वर्णन करते हैं। उसी (परमात्मा) को (ऐश्वर्य सम्पन्न होने पर) इन्द्र, (हितकारी होने से) मित्र, (श्रेष्ठ होने से)

वरुण तथा (प्रकाशक होने से) अग्नि कहा गया है। वह (परमात्मा) भली प्रकार पालन कर्ता होने से सुपर्ण तथा गरुत्मान्

The wise describe the one and same Supreme Being in various ways, based on different qualities and forms. That very (Supreme Soul), when endowed with sovereignty, is called Indra; as a benefactor, Mitra; as the most exalted, Varuna; and as the illuminator, Agni. That (Supreme Being), being an excellent protector, is also called Suparna and Garutmān.

In Advaita Vedanta Tradition its believed that One Ishwar (God) takes the form of Narayana , Rudra , Ganapati , Shakti (Lakshmi , Sarasvati Parvati) and Surya

Geeta Press Gorakhpur writes in the beginning of the book “पंचदेव-अथर्वशीर्ष-संग्रह “

पंचदेवों- गणेश, शिव, शक्ति, विष्णु एवं सूर्यके क्रमशः पाँच अथर्वशीर्ष हैं- गणपत्यथर्वशीर्षम्, ोवाथर्वशीर्षम्, देव्यथर्वशीर्षम्, नारायणाथर्वशीर्षम्

एवं सूर्याथर्वशीर्षम् ।
समस्त देवी-देवताओंके उपर्युक्त पंचदेवोंमें अन्तर्भूत होनेसे किसी भी स्वरूपका उपासक अपने इष्टदेवकी सर्वोत्कृष्टताका गूढ़ रहस्य सम्बन्धित अथर्वशीर्षके माध्यमसे जानकर उनकी कृपाका भाजन बन जाता है। प्रत्येक अथर्वशीर्षमें अपने देवको ही सर्वोत्कृष्ट, सर्वनियन्ता और परब्रह्म बताया गया है। इससे कुछ पाठक प्रथमदृष्ट्या भ्रमित भी हो सकते हैं, परंतु यह गूढ़ बात है। वस्तुतः परब्रह्म परमेश्वर ही पंचदेवोंके रूपोंमें व्यक्त हैं तथा सम्पूर्ण चराचरमें भी वे ही व्याप्त हैं-'एको देवः सर्वभूतेषु गूढः.... ॥' (श्वेताश्वतर० ६। ११) साधक अपनी-अपनी प्रकृति और रुचिके अनुसार ही इन पंचदेवोंमें किसी एक देवको अपना इष्ट मानकर उनकी आराधना करके अधिक सहजतासे भगवत्प्राप्ति कर पाता है, उसके लिये वही स्वरूप सर्वश्रेष्ठ

The five principal deities—Ganesha, Shiva, Shakti, Vishnu, and Surya—each have a corresponding Atharvashirsha: Ganapatyatharvashirsham, Shivatharvashirsham, Devyatharvashirsham, Narayanaatharvashirsham, and Suryatharvashirsham.

In our scriptures, these five deities are revered as manifestations of the Supreme Brahman. Hence, there is a tradition of choosing one among these five as one’s Ishta Devata (chosen deity) and worshipping them accordingly. Worshippers of Ganesha are called Ganapatyas, of Shiva

Shaivas, of Shakti Shaktas, of Vishnu Vaishnavas, and of Surya Sauras.

Since all other deities are encompassed within these five, a devotee—regardless of the specific form they worship—can realize the supreme greatness of their chosen deity through the profound teachings of the respective Atharvashirsha. Each Atharvashirsha describes its deity as the highest, the ultimate controller, and as Parabrahman (Supreme Reality).

This might initially confuse some readers, but this concept is deeply philosophical. In truth, the Supreme God (Parabrahman) is manifest in the forms of these five deities, and He pervades all of creation—"Eko Devaḥ Sarva Bhūteṣu Gūḍhaḥ..." (Shvetashvatara Upanishad 6.11).

Thus, a seeker, according to their own nature and preference, chooses one of these deities as their Ishta and, through devotion, can more easily attain God-realization. For that devotee, that very form becomes the supreme one.

पंचदेवों—गणेश, शिव, शक्ति, विष्णु एवं सूर्यके क्रमशः पाँच अथर्वशीर्ष हैं—गणपत्यथर्वशीर्षम्, शिवाथर्वशीर्षम्, देव्यथर्वशीर्षम्, नारायणाथर्वशीर्षम् एवं सूर्याथर्वशीर्षम्।

There are various references in Shruti and Mahabharat and other Scriptures where Narayana , Shiva , Ganapati , Shakti and Surya is described as Param Brahm

Nature of Ishwar as per Shruti

वह परमपिता सर्वव्यापक, चमकीला, (दीप्तिमान), काया रहित, नाड़ियों से रहित है. वह घावों से रहित, पवित्र, पाप रहित, विद्वान्, मननशील, सर्वव्यापक व स्वयंभू (स्वयं उत्पन्न होने वाला) है. उस ने सृष्टि के आरंभ से ही सब के लिए यथायोग्य साधन सुविधाओं की व्यवस्था की है. (८)

“He is the Supreme Father, all-pervading, radiant (luminous), without a physical body, and without veins. He is without wounds, pure, sinless, wise, contemplative, omnipresent, and self-existent (self-born). Since the beginning of creation, He has arranged appropriate means and facilities for all beings.

He is पर्यगात्- Omnipresent शुक्रम् – Radiant अकायम्- Material Bodiless अव्रणम्- “Woundless” – Free from any imperfections or injuries अस्नाविरम्- Without flesh, nerves, or tissues , immaterial शुद्धम्- Pure -Untouched by impurities or defects अपापविद्धम् -“Untainted by sin” – Free from any trace of evil karma कविः with divine wisdom and foresight मनीषी-with supreme intellect परिभूः-Beyond all limits and boundaries स्वयंभूः- Self Existent याथातथ्यतः- Supreme Truth शाश्वतीभ्यः unchanging and समाभ्यः-Eternal “Sa paryagāt” — He (the seeker) attains or fully realizes.

The one who worships the Self in this manner (evam ātmānam upāste) attains (parigacchati) the pure, luminous, blissful, and conscious Brahman, which is:

- Shukra/Shukla: Radiant and pure.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñānānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.
- Shuddha: Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Apāpaviddha: Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions (kleśa, karma, vipāka, āśaya).

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence and purity. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Thus, such a Brahman is realized (itthambhūtaṁ brahma pratipadyate).

Now, the fruit of worshiping the Self is described:

The one who is:

- A seer (kaviḥ),
- A thinker (manīṣī),
- A wise one (medhāvī),
- One who transcends all (paribhūḥ),
- Self-born (svayambhūḥ) through the power of knowledge,
- One who becomes Brahman itself through the strength of realization,

Such a person orders all things rightly, according to their true nature (yāthātathyataḥ arthān vyadadhāt). He has renounced ownership and possessiveness, and enjoys the world —both sentient and insentient— without attachment.

He performs karma not for worldly gain, but for the eternal welfare of all beings, across countless ages (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ).

Objection: Isn't karma a product of ignorance and bondage?

Answer: True—but when karma is done as a means of self-purification, it becomes a path to Brahman-realization. Therefore, even such a person attains the pure, bodiless Brahman (śukram akāyaṁ brahma).

"Thus is the fruit of one who knows the Self." He who perceives the Self in this manner attains (paryagāt) such a Brahman. What kind of Brahman?

- Shukra: Pure, luminous, and radiant.
- Shuddha: Free from impurity.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñāna-ānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.

- Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions.

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Further fruit of such realization is described:

The one who worships in this way:

- Kavi: Seer, one with deep insight.
- Manīṣī: Wise and discerning.
- Medhāvī: Possessing intellect and memory.
- Paribhūḥ: One who transcends all—by the power of knowledge, he becomes all forms.
- Svayambhūḥ: Self-born—he becomes Brahman itself.

Such a person also attains the previously described Brahman—pure, bodiless, and radiant.

Alternate interpretation of the verse:

The Self described in earlier mantras is one who pervades all (paryagāt), like space, encompassing everything. Having pervaded all, he organizes duties and responsibilities (arthān vyadadhāt) for eternal beings (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ) and for the attainment of infinite time (ananta-varṣa-prāpti), based on the true nature of karma and its results.

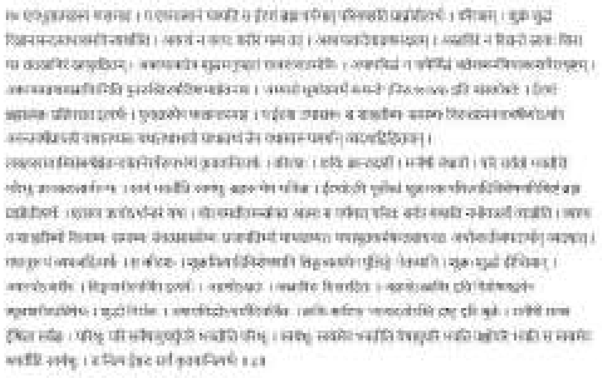
Qualities of Brahman:

- Shukra: Pure and luminous.
- Akāya: Without body—free from even subtle forms.
- Avraṇa: Unwounded.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins.
- Shuddha: Spotless.
- Apāpa-viddha: Untouched by sin or unrighteousness.
- Kavi: All-seeing—"There is no other seer than this," says the Upaniṣad.
- Manīṣī: All-knowing—directed by the mind.
- Paribhūḥ: One who exists above all.
- Svayambhūḥ: One who exists by himself, above all others.

He is the eternal Lord (nitya īśvaraḥ)—the one who has done all, created all.

Such a Brahman is attained by the knower of the Self.



Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 6 Mantra 19 says

He who at the beginning of creation projected Brahma (Universal Consciousness), who delivered the Vedas unto him, who constitutes the supreme bridge of immortality, who is partless, free from actions, tranquil, faultless, taintless, and resembles the fire that has con-sumed its fuel, - seeking liberation I go for refuge to that Effulgent One, whose light turns the understanding towards the Atman.

He who at the beginning of creation projected Brahmā (Universal Consciousness), who delivered the Vedas unto him, who constitutes the supreme bridge of immortality, who is partless, free from actions, tranquil, faultless, taintless, and resembles the fire[1] that has consumed its fuel,—seeking liberation I go for refuge to that Effulgent One, whose light turns the understanding towards the Ātman.

Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 1 Mantra 10

CHAPTER ONE 33

Matter is perishable, but God is imperishable and immortal. He, the only God, rules over the perishable matter and individual souls. By meditating on him, by uniting with Him, and by becoming one with Him, there is cessation of all illusion in the end.

Svetasvatara Upanishad Chapter 2 Mantra 15

When the Yogin realizes the truth of Brah-man, through the perception of the truth of Atman in this body as a self-luminous entity, then, knowing the Divinity as unborn, eternal and free from all the modifications of Prakṛti, he is freed from all sins.

यदात्मतत्त्वेन तु ब्रह्मतत्त्वं

यदा when युक्तः the Yogin दीपोपमेन resembling a light आत्मतत्त्वेन by the truth of Ātman ब्रह्मतत्त्वम् the truth of Brahman प्रपश्येत् sees, (तदा then) अजम् unborn ध्रुवम् eternal सर्वतत्त्वैः विशुद्धम् free from all the modifications of Prakṛti देवम् the Divinity ज्ञात्वा realizing, सर्वपापैः from all sins विमुच्यते is freed.

When the Yogin realizes the truth of Brahman, through the perception of the truth of Ātman in this body as a self-luminous entity, then, knowing the Divinity as unborn, eternal and free from all the modifications of Prakṛti, he is freed from all sins.

Svetasvatara Upanishad Chapter 4 Mantra 2

That Itself is the fire, That is the sun, That is the air, That is the moon, That is also the starry firmament, That is the Brahman, That is the waters, That is Prajāpati.

NOTES-This Mantra is very important; it shows that the various gods that we meet with in the Vedas, such as Agni (fire), Aditya (sun) and the rest represent the same Being; therefore there is no reason to con-sider that the Vedic religion advocates the worship of different gods. The Mantra occurs in the Samhita portion also.

तदेवाग्निस्तदादित्यस्तद्वायुस्तदु चन्द्रमाः ।
तदेव शुक्रं तद् ब्रह्म तदापस्तत् प्रजापतिः ॥ २ ॥

तत् एव that Itself अग्निः is Agni (fire) तत् आदित्यः That is the sun, तत् वायुः That is the air, तत् उ चन्द्रमाः That is the moon, तत् एव शुक्रम् That is also the starry firmament, तत् ब्रह्म That is the Brahman (Hiraṇyagarbha), तत् आपः That is the waters, तत् प्रजापतिः That is the Prajāpati.

That Itself is the fire, That is the sun, That is the air, That is the moon, That is also the starry firmament, That is the Brahman, That is the waters, That is Prajāpati.

Svetasvatara Upanishad Chapter 2 Mantra 18

Salutations to the Divinity who is in the fire, who is in the water, who is in the plants, who is in the trees, who has pervaded the whole universe.

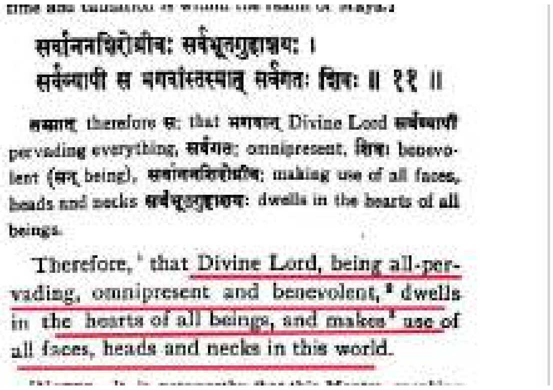
has entered, यः who ओषधीषु in the plants, यः who वनस्पतिषु in the trees, तस्मै देवाय to that God नमः नमः salutations.

Salutations to the Divinity who is in the fire, who is in the water, who is in the plants, who is in the trees, who has pervaded the whole universe.

Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 3 Mantra 11

Therefore, that Divine Lord, being all-per-vading, omnipresent and benevolent, 2 dwells in the hearts of all beings, and makes use of all faces, eads and necks in this world



सर्वाननशिरोग्रीवः सर्वभूतगुहाशयः ।
सर्वव्यापी स भगवांस्तस्मात् सर्वगतः शिवः ॥ ११ ॥

तस्मात् therefore सः that भगवान् Divine Lord सर्वव्यापी pervading everything, सर्वगतः omnipresent, शिवः benevolent (सन् being), सर्वाननशिरोग्रीवः making use of all faces, heads and necks सर्वभूतगुहाशयः dwells in the hearts of all beings.

Therefore,[1] that Divine Lord, being all-pervading, omnipresent and benevolent,[2] dwells in the hearts of all beings, and makes[3] use of all faces, heads and necks in this world.

Rig Veda 1.156.1-5

Rig Veda 1/156/1

भवा मित्रो न शेव्यो घृतासुतिर्विभूतद्युम्न एवया उ सप्रथाः. अधा ते विष्णो विदुषा चिदर्ध्यः स्तोमो यज्ञश्च राध्यो हविष्मता.. (१)

हे विष्णु ! तुम मित्र के समान सुखकर्त्ता, घृत की आहुति के पात्र, अधिक अन्नयुक्त, रक्षणकर्त्ता एवं सबसे अधिक स्वस्थ हो, इसलिए तुम्हारी स्तुतियां ज्ञानी यजमानों द्वारा बार-बार वृद्धि करने योग्य हैं. तुम्हारा यज्ञ हव्यसंपन्न यजमान द्वारा पूर्ण करने योग्य है.

O Vishnu! You are like a friend who brings happiness, worthy of the oblation of clarified butter (ghee), abundant in food, the protector, and the most healthy among all. Therefore, your praises are deserving of being constantly increased by the wise sacrificers. Your sacrifice is to be completed by a yajamāna (sacrificer) endowed with sacred offerings.

Rig Veda 1/156/2

यो जातमस्य महतो महि ब्रवत्सेदु श्रवोभिर्युज्यं चिदभ्यसत्.. (२)
जो लोग नित्य, जगत्कर्त्ता, नवीनतम तथा स्वयं उत्पन्न विष्णु को हव्य देते हैं एवं जो इस महापुरुष के पूज्य

जन्म वृत्तांत को कहते हैं, वे ही इनका सामीप्य पाते हैं. (२)

Those who offer oblations to Vishnu — the eternal, creator of the universe, ever-new, and self-born — and those who narrate the venerable and divine birth-story of this great being, they alone attain nearness to Him.

Rig Veda 1/156/3

तमु स्तोतारः पूर्व्यं यथा विद ऋतस्य गर्भं जनुषा पिपर्तन. आस्य जानन्तो नाम चिद्विवक्तन महस्ते विष्णो सुमतिं भजामहे.. (३)
हे स्तोताओ ! प्राचीन एवं यज्ञ के गर्भ रूप विष्णु को तुम जैसा जानते हो, उन्हें उसी प्रकार स्वयं प्रसन्न करो एवं उनका नाम जानकर भली-भांति कीर्तन करो. हे महान् विष्णु ! हम तुम्हारी स्तुति की सेवा करते हैं. (३)

O chanters of hymns! Worship Vishnu — ancient and the womb of the sacrifice — exactly as you know Him. Please Him in that same manner, and by knowing His name, perform His praise with devotion. O great Vishnu! We render service through our hymns of praise to You.

Rig Veda 1/156/4

तमस्य राजा वरुणस्तमश्विना क्रतुं सचन्त मारुतस्य वेधसः. दाधार दक्षमुत्तममहर्विदं व्रजं च विष्णुः सखिवाँ अपोर्णते.. (४)
तेजस्वी वरुण एवं अश्विनीकुमार ऋत्विजों वाले यजमान के यज्ञरूप विष्णु की सेवा करते हैं. यजमान आदि की मित्रता से युक्त विष्णु उत्तम एवं स्वर्गोत्पादक बल को धारण करते हैं एवं मेघ को बरसने के लिए आवरणरहित करते हैं. (४)

The radiant Varuṇa and the twin Ashvins serve Vishnu, who is the embodiment of the yajña (sacrifice), along with the officiating priests of the yajamāna. Associated with the friendship of the yajamāna and others, Vishnu upholds excellent and heaven-yielding strength and removes the covering from the cloud so that it may pour rain.

Rig Veda 1/156/5

आ यो विवाय सचथाय दैव्य इन्द्राय विष्णुः सुकृते सुकृत्तरः. वेधा अजिन्वत्त्रिषधस्थ आर्यमृतस्य भागे यजमानमाभजत्.. (५)
जो विष्णु दिव्य एवं शोभन फलदाताओं में श्रेष्ठ होते हुए उत्तम कर्म करने वाले इंद्र के साथ मिलकर यज्ञ की सहायता करने के लिए आते हैं, वे ही अभिमत फलदाता एवं तीनों लोकों में स्थित विष्णु आने वाले यजमान को प्रसन्न करते थे एवं उसे यज्ञ का भाग देते थे.

That Vishnu, though divine and supreme among givers of beautiful fruits (results), comes together with Indra — the performer of noble deeds — to aid the sacrifice. He alone, the bestower of desired fruits and the one who resides in all three worlds, used to delight the coming yajamāna and grant him his portion of the sacrificial offering.

Rig Veda 7/99/1-2

परो मात्रया तन्वा वृधान न ते महित्वमन्वश्नुवन्ति.
उभे ते विद्म रजसी पृथिव्या विष्णो देव त्वं परमस्य वित्से.. (१)
हे विष्णु ! शब्द, स्पर्श आदि पंचतन्मात्राओं से अतीत तुम्हारा शरीर जब वामन अवतार के समय बढ़ता है, तब तुम्हारी महिमा कोई नहीं जान सकता. हम तुम्हारे दो लोकों अर्थात् धरती एवं अंतरिक्ष को जानते हैं, पर परम लोक को तुम ही जानते हो. (१)

O Vishnu! Your form, which transcends the five subtle elements — sound, touch, form, taste, and smell — becomes immeasurable when it expands during your Vāmana incarnation. At that moment, no one can comprehend your greatness. We are aware of your two realms — the Earth and the mid-space — but the highest realm is known only to you.

न ते विष्णो जायमानो न जातो देव महिम्नः परमन्तमाप. उदस्तभ्ना नाकमृष्वं बृहन्तं दाधर्थ प्राचीं ककुभं पृथिव्याः.. (२)
हे विष्णुदेव ! धरती पर जन्म प्राप्त एवं भविष्य में उत्पन्न होने वालों में कोई भी तुम्हारी महिमा का अंत नहीं पा सकता. तुमने दर्शनीय एवं विशाल स्वर्गलोक ऊपर धारण किया है. तुमने पृथ्वी की पूर्व दिशा को ी धारण किया है. (२)

O Lord Vishnu! Among those born on Earth and those who will be born in the future, no one can reach the limit of your greatness. You have upheld the vast and glorious heavenly realm above, and you have also sustained the eastern direction of the Earth.

नारायणसायुज्यमवाप्नोति श्रीमन्नारायणसायुज्य-मवाप्नोति य एवं वेद ॥ ५ ॥ इत्युपनिषत् ॥

सनातन पुरुष भगवान् नारायणने संकल्प किया- 'मैं जीवोंकी सृष्टि करूँ।' (अतः उन्हींसे सबकी उत्पत्ति हुई है।) नारायणसे ही समष्टिगत प्राण उत्पन्न होता है, उन्हींसे मन और सम्पूर्ण इन्द्रियाँ प्रकट होती हैं। आकाश, वायु, तेज, जल तथा सम्पूर्ण विश्वको धारण करनेवाली पृथ्वी-इन सबकी नारायणसे ही उत्पत्ति होती है। नारायणसे ब्रह्मा उत्पन्न होते हैं। नारायणसे रुद्र प्रकट होते हैं। नारायणसे इन्द्रका जन्म होता है। नारायणसे प्रजापति उत्पन्न होते हैं। नारायणसे ही बारह आदित्य प्रकट हुए हैं। ग्यारह रुद्र, आठ वसु ·और सम्पूर्ण छन्द (वेद) नारायणसे ही उत्पन्न होते हैं, .ारायणसे ही प्रेरित होकर वे अपने-अपने कार्यमें

प्रवृत्त होते हैं और नारायणमें ही लीन हो जाते हैं। यह ऋग्वेदीय उपनिषद्का कथन है ॥ १ ॥
भगवान् नारायण नित्य हैं। ब्रह्मा नारायण हैं। शिव भी नारायण हैं। इन्द्र भी नारायण हैं। काल भी नारायण हैं। दिशाएँ भी नारायण हैं। विदिशाएँ (दिशाओंके बीचके कोण) भी नारायण हैं। ऊपर भी नारायण हैं। नीचे भी नारायण हैं। भीतर और बाहर भी नारायण हैं। जो कुछ हो चुका है तथा जो कुछ हो रहा है और होनेवाला है, यह सब भगवान् नारायण ही हैं। एकमात्र नारायण ही निष्कलंक, निरंजन, निर्विकल्प, अनिर्वचनीय एवं विशुद्ध देव हैं, उनके सिवा दूसरा कोई नहीं है। जो इस प्रकार जानता है, वह विष्णु ही हो जाता है, वह विष्णु ही हो जाता है। यह यजुर्वेदीय उपनिषद्का प्रतिपादन है ॥ २ ॥
सबसे पहले 'ॐ' इस अक्षरका उच्चारण करे, इसके बाद 'नमः' पदका, फिर अन्तमें 'नारायणाय' इस पदका उच्चारण करे। 'ॐ' यह एक अक्षर है। 'नमः' ये दो अक्षर हैं। 'नारायणाय' ये पाँच अक्षर हैं। यह 'ॐ नमो नारायणाय' पद भगवान् नारायणका अष्टाक्षरमन्त्र है। निश्चय ही जो मनुष्य भगवान् नारायणके इस अष्टाक्षरमन्त्रका जप करता है, वह उत्तम कीर्तिसे युक्त हो पूरी आयुतक जीवित रहता है। जीवोंका आधिपत्य, धनकी वृद्धि, गौ आदि पशुओंका स्वामित्व- ये सब भी उसे प्राप्त होते हैं। तदनन्तर वह अमृतत्वको प्राप्त होता है, अमृतत्वको प्राप्त होता है (अर्थात् भगवान् नारायणके अमृतमय परमधाममें जाकर परमानन्दका अनुभव करता है)। यह सामवेदीय उपनिषद्का कथन है ॥ ३ ॥
आत्मानन्दमय ब्रह्मपुरुष प्रणवस्वरूप है; 'अ' 'उ' 'म'- ये उसकी मात्राएँ हैं। ये अनेक हैं; इनका ही सम्मिलित रूप 'ॐ' इस प्रकार हुआ है। इस प्रणवका जप करके योगी जन्म-मृत्युरूप संसार-बन्धनसे मुक्त हो जाता है। 'ॐ नमो नारायणाय' इस मन्त्रकी उपासना करनेवाला साधक वैकुण्ठधाममें जायगा। वह वैकुण्ठधाम विज्ञानघन पुण्डरीक (कमल) है; अतः इसका स्वरूप विद्युत्के समान परम प्रकाशमय है। देवकीनन्दन भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण ब्रह्मण्य (ब्राह्मणप्रिय) हैं। भगवान् मधुसूदन ब्रह्मण्य हैं। पुण्डरीक (कमल) के सदृश नेत्रोंवाले भगवान् विष्णु ब्रह्मण्य हैं। अच्युत विष्णु ब्रह्मण्य हैं। सम्पूर्ण भूतोंमें स्थित एक ही नारायणदेव कारणपुरुष हैं। वे ही कारणरहित परब्रह्म ैं। यह अथर्ववेदीय उपनिषद्का प्रतिपादन है ॥ ४ ॥

प्रातःकाल इस उपनिषद्का पाठ करनेवाला पुरुष रात्रिमें किये हुए पापका नाश कर डालता है। सायंकालमें इसका पाठ करनेवाला मनुष्य दिनमें किये हुए पापका नाश कर डालता है। सायंकाल और प्रातःकाल दोनों समय पाठ करनेवाला साधक पहलेका पापी हो तो भी निष्पाप हो जाता है। दोपहरके समय भगवान् सूर्यकी ओर मुख करके पाठ करनेवाला मानव पाँच महापातकों और उपपातकोंसे सर्वथा मुक्त हो जाता है। सम्पूर्ण वेदोंके पाठका पुण्यलाभ करता है। वह भगवान् श्रीनारायणका सायुज्य प्राप्त कर लेता है; जो इस प्रकार जानता है, वह श्रीमन्नारायणका सायुज्य प्राप्त कर लेता है ॥ ५ ॥ इस प्रकार यह ब्रह्मविद्या है।

The eternal supreme being, Lord Narayana, made a resolve: “I shall create living beings.” Thus, everything originates from Him. From Narayana arises the collective life force, the mind, and all senses. The elements—ether, air, fire, water, and the earth that sustains the entire world—emanate from Narayana. From Narayana, Brahma is born. From Narayana, Rudra emerges. Indra is born from Narayana. The progenitors (Prajapatis) arise from Narayana. The twelve Adityas (solar deities) also manifest from Narayana. The eleven Rudras, the eight Vasus, and all Vedic meters (Chhandas) originate from Him. Inspired by Narayana, they engage in their respective duties, and in the end, they dissolve into Narayana Himself. This is the declaration of the Rigvedic Upanishad. (1)

Lord Narayana is eternal. Brahma is Narayana. Shiva is Narayana. Indra is Narayana. Time itself is Narayana. The irections are Narayana. The intermediate directions are Narayana. Above is Narayana. Below is Narayana. Within and outside is Narayana. Everything that has happened, is happening, and will happen—all of it is Narayana. Narayana alone is flawless, pure, beyond duality, indescribable, and supremely divine. There is no other besides Him. Whoever realizes this becomes Vishnu Himself, becomes Vishnu Himself. This is the teaching of the Yajurvedic Upanishad. (2)

First, one should pronounce the sacred syllable "Om," followed by "Namah," and then "Narayanaaya." "Om" is a single syllable. "Namah" consists of two syllables. "Narayanaaya" has five syllables. Thus, "Om Namo Narayanaya" is the sacred eight-syllable mantra of Lord Narayana. Indeed, whoever chants this mantra of Lord Narayana gains supreme glory and lives a full lifespan. They attain dominion over living beings, increase in wealth, and acquire ownership of cows and other animals. Thereafter, they attain immortality—immortality in the sense of reaching the divine, blissful realm of Lord Narayana. This is the pronouncement of the Samavedic Upanishad. (3)

The blissful Supreme Being, the essence of Brahman, exists in the form of Pranava (Om). Its components are "A," "U," and "M." These are many, and together they form "Om." By meditating upon this Pranava, a yogi becomes free from the bondage of birth and death. A evotee who worships through the mantra "Om Namo Narayanaya" shall ascend to Vaikuntha—the divine abode. That Vaikuntha realm, a luminous lotus of pure knowledge, is radiant like lightning. Lord Krishna, son of Devaki, is devoted to the Brahman (spiritually enlightened ones). The slayer of Madhu (Madhusudana) is devoted to Brahman. Vishnu, whose eyes resemble lotus petals, is devoted to Brahman. Acyuta, the unfailing Vishnu, is devoted to Brahman. The one Supreme Lord Narayana resides in all beings as their cause. He alone is the causeless, transcendent Brahman. This is the teaching of the Atharvavedic Upanishad. (4)

One who recites this Upanishad in the morning destroys sins committed at night. One who recites it in the evening eradicates sins committed during the day. If a person chants it both morning and evening, they become completely free from sins, even if previously sinful. By chanting it at midday facing the sun, one becomes entirely liberated from five great sins and subsidiary sins. The merit obtained equals the chanting of the entire Vedas. Ultimately, they attain the divine union with Lord Narayana. Whoever realizes this attains union with Lord Narayana. (5)

४–नारायणाथर्वशीर्षम्

[अथर्वशीर्षोंकी परम्परामें नारायणाथर्वशीर्षका वैशिष्ट्य है, क्योंकि जहाँ इसे कृष्णयजुर्वेदीयपरम्पराके उपनिषदोंमें परिगणित किया गया है, वहीं इसमें चारों वेदों ऋक्, यजुः, साम तथा अथर्ववेदका उपदेश-सार 'शिर' (मस्तक)—रूपमें वर्णित है। इसमें भगवान् नारायणसे ही सभीकी उत्पत्ति तथा सभी रूपोंमें उन्हींकी अभिव्यक्ति बतायी गयी है। भगवान् नारायणके अष्टाक्षर मन्त्र 'ॐ नमो नारायणाय' का उपदेश भी इस लघुकाय अथर्वशीर्षमें बताया गया है। इस अथर्वशीर्षका पाठ करनेसे चारों वेदोंके पाठका फल प्राप्त होता है। इसके पाठसे मनुष्य सभी पापोंसे मुक्त हो जाता है, यह इसकी फलश्रुतिमें बताया गया है। इस अथर्वशीर्षके पाठसे अन्तमें भगवान् सायुज्यपद सायुज्य भी प्राप्त हो जाता है। इस महत्त्वपूर्ण अथर्वशीर्षको यहाँ सानुवाद प्रस्तुत किया जा रहा है—]

दृढ़ अंग वाले, बहुरूप, तेजस्वी एवं पीले रंग वाले रुद्र चमकीले तथा सोने के बने आभूषणों से सुशोभित हैं. संपूर्ण भुवनों के स्वामी एवं भर्ता रुद्र का बल कभी अलग नहीं होता. (९)

हे पूज्य रुद्र ! तुम बाण और धनुष धारण करते हो. हे पूजा योग्य ! तुमने पूजनीय एवं बहुरूप वाले हार को धारण किया है. तुम इस विस्तृत संसार की रक्षा करते हो. तुम्हारी अपेक्षा अधिक शक्तिशाली कोई नहीं है. (१०)

हे स्तोता! प्रसिद्ध, रथ पर बैठे हुए, युवा, पशु के समान भयानक, शत्रुनाशक तथा उग्र रुद्र की स्तुति करो. हे रुद्र ! हम स्तुतिकर्त्ताओं की रक्षा करो. तुम्हारी सेना हमारे अतिरिक्त अन्य लोगों का संहार करे. (११)

Rudra, who has a firm and strong body, is multiform, radiant, and yellow-hued. He is adorned with shining and golden ornaments. The Lord and sustainer of all the worlds, Rudra's strength never diminishes or separates from him.

O worshipful Rudra! You bear a bow and arrows. O worthy of veneration! You have adorned yourself with a sacred and multiform garland. You protect this vast universe. There is none more powerful than you.

O chanter of hymns! Praise Rudra, who is renowned, youthful, seated on a chariot, fearsome like a wild beast, destroyer of enemies, and fierce. O Rudra! Protect us who sing your praises. May your army bring destruction upon others, not upon us.

He has nothing to achieve for Himself, nor has He any organ of action. No one is seen equal or superior to Him. His great power alone is described in the Vedas to be of various kinds, and His knowledge, strength and action are described as inherent in Him.

Shree Krishna Uvach –

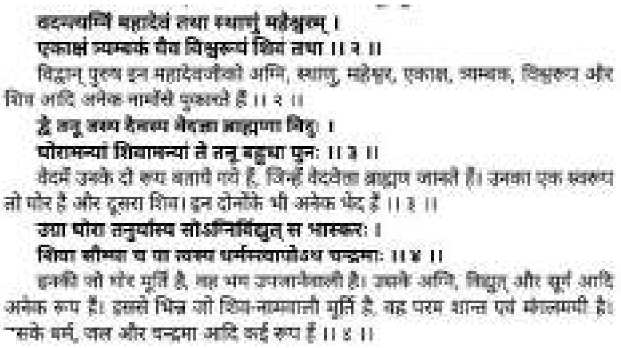
वेदमें उनके दो रूप बताये गये हैं, जिन्हें वेदवेत्ता ब्राह्मण जानते हैं। उनका एक स्वरूप तो घोर है और दूसरा शिव। इन दोनोंके भी अनेक भेद हैं ।। ३ ।।

इनकी जो घोर मूर्ति है, वह भय उपजानेवाली है। उसके अग्नि, विद्युत् और सूर्य आदि अनेक रूप हैं। इससे भिन्न जो शिव-नामवाली मूर्ति है, वह परम शान्त एवं मंगलमयी है। उसके धर्म, जल और चन्द्रमा आदि कई रूप हैं ।। ४ ।।

Verse 2:
The wise call this great Lord Mahadev by many names—Agni, Sthanu, Maheshwara, Ekaksha (the one-eyed), Tryambaka (the three-eyed), Vishvarupa (the cosmic form), and Shiva, among others.

Verse 3:
The Vedas describe two forms of Him, known to the learned Brahmanas. One of His forms is fierce (ghora), and the other is auspicious (Shiva). Even these two have many variations.

Verse 4:
His fierce form is terrifying and gives rise to fear. It has many manifestations such as fire (Agni), lightning (Viduyt), and the sun (Surya).
In contrast, His form named Shiva is supremely peaceful and auspicious. It manifests as righteousness (Dharma), water (Jala), the moon (Chandra), and many more.



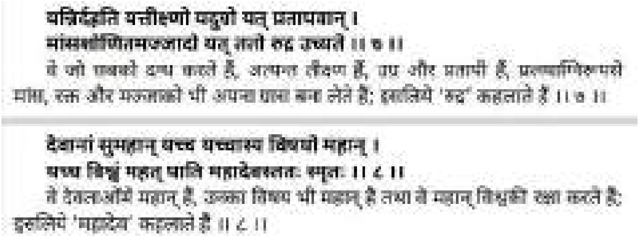
वदन्त्यग्निं महादेवं तथा स्थाणुं महेश्वरम् ।
एकाक्षं त्र्यम्बकं चैव विश्वरूपं शिवं तथा ।। २ ।।
विद्वान् पुरुष इन महादेवजीको अग्नि, स्थाणु, महेश्वर, एकाक्ष, त्र्यम्बक, विश्वरूप और शिव आदि अनेक नामोंसे पुकारते हैं ।। २ ।।
द्वे तनू तस्य देवस्य वेदज्ञा ब्राह्मणा विदुः ।
घोरामन्यां शिवामन्यां ते तनू बहुधा पुनः ।। ३ ।।
वेदमें उनके दो रूप बताये गये हैं, जिन्हें वेदवेत्ता ब्राह्मण जानते हैं। उनका एक स्वरूप तो घोर है और दूसरा शिव। इन दोनोंके भी अनेक भेद हैं ।। ३ ।।
उग्रा घोरा तनुर्यास्य सोऽग्निर्विद्युत् स भास्करः ।
शिवा सौम्या च या त्वस्य धर्मस्त्वापोऽथ चन्द्रमाः ।। ४ ।।
इनकी जो घोर मूर्ति है, वह भय उपजानेवाली है। उसके अग्नि, विद्युत् और सूर्य आदि अनेक रूप हैं। इससे भिन्न जो शिव-नामवाली मूर्ति है, वह परम शान्त एवं मंगलमयी है। उसके धर्म, जल और चन्द्रमा आदि कई रूप हैं ।। ४ ।।

वे जो सबको दग्ध करते हैं, अत्यन्त तीक्ष्ण हैं, उग्र और प्रतापी हैं, प्रलयाग्निरूपसे मांस, रक्त और मज्जाको भी अपना ग्रास बना लेते हैं; इसलिये 'रुद्र' कहलाते हैं ।। ७ ।।

वे देवताओंमें महान् हैं, उनका विषय भी महान् है तथा वे महान् विश्वकी रक्षा करते हैं; इसलिये 'महादेव' कहलाते हैं ।। ८ ।।

Verse 7:
He who burns all, who is extremely sharp, fierce, and full of radiance—who, in the form of the fire of dissolution (Pralayagni), —He is therefore called "Rudra."

Verse 8:
He is great among the gods, His domain is great, and He protects the vast universe; hence, He is called "Mahadeva" (the Great God).



यन्निर्दहति यत्तीक्ष्णो यदुग्रो यत् प्रतापवान् ।
मांसशोणितमज्जादो यत् ततो रुद्र उच्यते ।। ७ ।।

वे जो सबको दग्ध करते हैं, अत्यन्त तीक्ष्ण हैं, उग्र और प्रतापी हैं, प्रलयाग्निरूपसे मांस, रक्त और मज्जाको भी अपना ग्रास बना लेते हैं; इसलिये 'रुद्र' कहलाते हैं ।। ७ ।।

देवानां सुमहान् यच्च यच्चास्य विषयो महान् ।
यच्च विश्वं महत् पाति महादेवस्ततः स्मृतः ।। ८ ।।

वे देवताओंमें महान् हैं, उनका विषय भी महान् है तथा वे महान् विश्वकी रक्षा करते हैं; इसलिये 'महादेव' कहलाते हैं ।। ८ ।।

अथवा उनकी जटाका रूप धूम्र वर्णका है, इसलिये उन्हें 'धूर्जट' कहते हैं। सब प्रकारके कर्मोंद्वारा सब लोगोंकी उन्नति करते हैं और सबका कल्याण चाहते हैं; इसलिये इनका नाम 'शिव' है

ये ऊर्ध्वभागमें स्थित होकर देहधारियोंके प्राणोंका नाश करते हैं। सदा स्थिर रहते हैं और जिनका लिंग-विग्रह सदा स्थिर रहता है। इसलिये ये 'स्थाणु' कहलाते हैं ।। १० ।।

Verse 9:
Alternatively, because His matted hair (jata) is of a smoky color (Dhumra Varna), He is called "Dhurjati". He promotes the upliftment of all beings through all kinds of actions and desires the welfare of all; therefore, His name is "Shiva".

Residing in the upper region, He destroys the life-force (prāṇa) of embodied beings. He remains ever-unchanging, and His Liṅga-form (symbolic form) is eternally stable; therefore, He is called "Sthāṇu" (the immovable one).

धूम्ररूपं च यत्तस्य धूर्जटीत्यत उच्यते ।
समेधयति यन्नित्यं सर्वान् वै सर्वकर्मभिः ॥ ९ ॥
मनुष्यान् शिवमन्विच्छंस्तस्मादेष शिवः स्मृतः ।

अथवा उनकी जटाका रूप धूम्र वर्णका है, इसलिये उन्हें 'धूर्जटि' कहते हैं। सब प्रकारके कर्मोंद्वारा सब लोगोंकी उन्नति करते हैं और सबका कल्याण चाहते हैं; इसलिये इनका नाम 'शिव' है ॥ ९½ ॥

दहत्यूर्ध्वं स्थितो यच्च प्राणान् नृणां स्थिरश्च यत् ॥ १० ॥
स्थिरलिङ्गश्च यन्नित्यं तस्मात् स्थाणुरिति स्मृतः ।

ये ऊर्ध्वभागमें स्थित होकर देहधारियोंके प्राणोंका नाश करते हैं। सदा स्थिर रहते हैं और जिनका लिंग-विग्रह सदा स्थिर रहता है। इसलिये वे 'स्थाणु' कहलाते हैं ॥ १०½ ॥

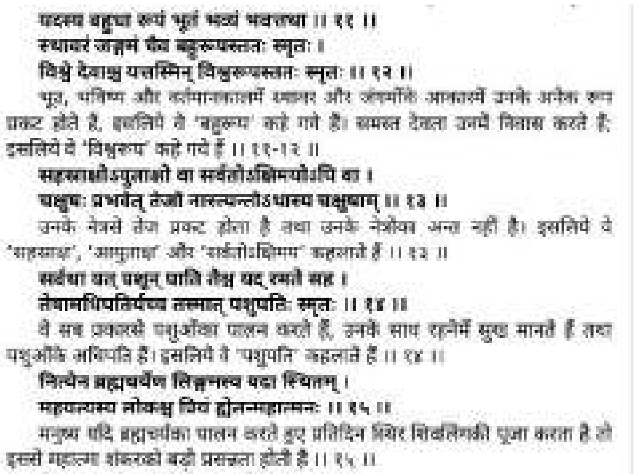
Verses 11–12:
In the past, present, and future, His many forms manifest in both the stationary and the moving beings; hence, He is called "Bahurupa" (the One with many forms). All the deities reside within Him; therefore, He is known as "Vishvarupa" (the Universal Form).

Verse 13:
From His eyes radiates brilliance, and His eyes are infinite. Therefore, He is called "Sahasraksha" (Thousand-eyed), "Ayutaksha" (Ten-thousand-eyed), and "Sarvato'kshimaya" (He whose eyes are everywhere).

Verse 14:
He nurtures all beings in every way, finds joy in being among animals, and is the Lord over them. Therefore, He is called "Pashupati" (Lord of all creatures).

Verse 15:

If a person observes celibacy (brahmacharya) and daily worships the steady Shiva Linga, then the great soul Shankara (Shiva) becomes immensely pleased.



यदस्य बहुधा रूपं भूतं भव्यं भवत्तथा ।। ११ ।।
स्थावरं जङ्गमं चैव बहुरूपस्ततः स्मृतः ।
विश्वे देवाश्च यत्तस्मिन् विश्वरूपस्ततः स्मृतः ।। १२ ।।

भूत, भविष्य और वर्तमानकालमें स्थावर और जंगमोंके आकारमें उनके अनेक रूप प्रकट होते हैं, इसलिये वे 'बहुरूप' कहे गये हैं। समस्त देवता उनमें निवास करते हैं; इसलिये वे 'विश्वरूप' कहे गये हैं ।। ११-१२ ।।

सहस्राक्षोऽयुताक्षो वा सर्वतोऽक्षिमयोऽपि वा ।
चक्षुषः प्रभवत् तेजो नास्त्यन्तोऽथास्य चक्षुषाम् ।। १३ ।।

उनके नेत्रसे तेज प्रकट होता है तथा उनके नेत्रोंका अन्त नहीं है। इसलिये वे 'सहस्राक्ष', 'अयुताक्ष' और 'सर्वतोऽक्षिमय' कहलाते हैं ।। १३ ।।

सर्वथा यत् पशून् पाति तैश्च यद् रमते सह ।
तेषामधिपतिर्यच्च तस्मात् पशुपतिः स्मृतः ।। १४ ।।

वे सब प्रकारसे पशुओंका पालन करते हैं, उनके साथ रहनेमें सुख मानते हैं तथा पशुओंके अधिपति हैं। इसलिये वे 'पशुपति' कहलाते हैं ।। १४ ।।

नित्येन ब्रह्मचर्येण लिङ्गमस्य यदा स्थितम् ।
महयन्त्यस्य लोकाश्च प्रियं ह्येतन्महात्मनः ।। १५ ।।

मनुष्य यदि ब्रह्मचर्यका पालन करते हुए प्रतिदिन स्थिर शिवलिंगकी पूजा करता है तो इससे महात्मा शंकरको बड़ी प्रसन्नता होती है ।। १५ ।।

वे प्राणियोंके शरीरोंमें रहनेवाले और उनके मृत्युरूप हैं तथा वे ही प्राण-अपान आदि वायुके रूपसे देहके भीतर निवास करते हैं ।। २० ।।

उनके बहुत-से भयंकर एवं उद्दीप्त रूप हैं, जिनकी जगत्में पूजा होती है। विद्वान् ब्राह्मण ही उन सब रूपोंको जानते हैं ।। २१ ।।

उनकी महत्ता, व्यापकता तथा दिव्य कर्मोंके अनुसार देवताओंमें उनके बहुत-से यथार्थ नाम प्रचलित हैं ।। २२ ।।

वेदके शतरुद्रिय प्रकरणमें उनके सैकड़ों उत्तम नाम हैं, जिन्हें वेदवेत्ता ब्राह्मण जानते हैं। महर्षि व्यासने भी उन महात्मा शिवका उपस्थान (स्तवन) बताया है ।। २३ ।।

Verse 20:

He dwells within the bodies of living beings and manifests as their very death. He also resides within the body in the form of the life-breaths such as Prāṇa and Apāna (vital airs).

Verse 21:

He has many terrifying and radiant forms that are worshipped throughout the world. The wise Brāhmaṇas alone truly understand all these forms.

Verse 22:
Based on His greatness, vastness, and divine deeds, many true and meaningful names of His are known among the gods.

Verse 23:
In the Shatarudriya section of the Vedas, there are hundreds of His excellent names, which are known to Vedic scholars. The great sage Vyāsa has also composed hymns in praise of that great soul, Shiva.

विषयस्थः शरीरेषु स मृत्युः प्राणिनामिह ।
स च वायुः शरीरेषु प्राणापानशरीरिणाम् ।। २० ।।

वे प्राणियोंके शरीरोंमें रहनेवाले और उनके मृत्युरूप हैं तथा वे ही प्राण-अपान आदि वायुके रूपसे देहके भीतर निवास करते हैं ।। २० ।।

तस्य घोराणि रूपाणि दीप्तानि च बहूनि च ।
लोके यान्यस्य पूज्यन्ते विप्रास्तानि विदुर्बुधाः ।। २१ ।।

उनके बहुत-से भयंकर एवं उद्दीप्त रूप हैं, जिनकी जगत्में पूजा होती है। विद्वान् ब्राह्मण ही उन सब रूपोंको जानते हैं ।। २१ ।।

नामधेयानि देवेषु बहून्यस्य यथार्थवत् ।
निरुच्यन्ते महत्त्वाच्च विभुत्वात् कर्मभिस्तथा ।। २२ ।।

उनकी महत्ता, व्यापकता तथा दिव्य कर्मोंके अनुसार देवताओंमें उनके बहुत-से यथार्थ नाम प्रचलित हैं ।। २२ ।।

वेदे चास्य विदुर्विप्राः शतरुद्रीयमुत्तमम् ।
व्यासेनोक्तं च यच्चापि उपस्थानं महात्मनः ।। २३ ।।

वेदके शतरुद्रिय प्रकरणमें उनके सैकड़ों उत्तम नाम हैं, जिन्हें वेदवेत्ता ब्राह्मण जानते हैं। महर्षि व्यासने भी उन महात्मा शिवका उपस्थान (स्तवन) बताया है ।। २३ ।।

ये सम्पूर्ण लोकोंको उनकी अभीष्ट वस्तु देनेवाले हैं। यह महान् विश्व उन्हींका स्वरूप बताया गया है। ब्राह्मण और ऋषि उन्हें सबसे ज्येष्ठ कहते हैं ।। २४ ।।

वे देवताओंमें प्रधान हैं, उन्होंने अपने मुखसे अग्निको उत्पन्न किया है। वे नाना प्रकारकी ग्रह-बाधाओंसे ग्रस्त प्राणियोंको दुःखसे छुटकारा दिलाते हैं ।। २५ ।।

पुण्यात्मा और शरणागतवत्सल तो वे इतने हैं कि शरणमें आये हुए किसी प्राणीका त्याग नहीं करते। वे ही मनुष्योंको आयु, आरोग्य, ऐश्वर्य, धन और सम्पूर्ण कामनाएँ प्रदान करते हैं और वे ही पुनः उन्हें छीन लेते हैं ।। २६३ ।।

Verse 24:
He is the giver of desired blessings to all the worlds. This vast universe is said to be His very form. The Brāhmaṇas and sages consider Him the foremost of all.

Verse 25:
He is the chief among the gods and has produced Agni (fire) from His own mouth. He delivers beings afflicted by various planetary afflictions (graha-bādhas) from their suffering.

Verse 26:
He is righteous and deeply compassionate toward those who seek refuge. He never abandons anyone who surrenders to Him. It is He who grants human beings long life, health, prosperity, wealth, and all their desires — and it is He who also takes them away again.

प्रदाता सर्वलोकानां विश्वं चाप्युच्यते महत् ।

इन्द्र आदि देवताओंके पास उन्हींका दिया हुआ ऐश्वर्य बताया जाता है। तीनों लोकोंके शुभाशुभ कर्मोंका फल देनेके लिये वे ही सदा तत्पर रहते हैं ।। २७ ।

समस्त कामनाओंके अधीश्वर होनेके कारण उन्हें 'ईश्वर' कहते हैं और महान् लोकोंके ईश्वर होनेके कारण उनका नाम 'महेश्वर' हुआ है ।। २८ ।।

उन्होंने नाना प्रकारके बहुसंख्यक रूपोंद्वारा इस सम्पूर्ण लोकको व्याप्त कर रखा है। उन महादेवजीका जो मुख है, वही समुद्रमें वडवानल है ।। २९ ।।

Verse 27:
The prosperity possessed by Indra and the other gods is said to have been granted by Him alone. He is ever ready to bestow the results of good and bad actions throughout the three worlds.

Verse 28:
Because He is the Lord over all desires, He is called "Ishvara"; and because He is the Supreme Lord of all great worlds, He is known as "Maheshvara."

Verse 29:
He has pervaded this entire universe through countless diverse forms. The very mouth of that great Lord Mahadeva is the submarine fire (Vadavanala) in the ocean.

सांख्यशास्त्रके विद्वान् पर, प्रधान, पुरुष, अधिष्ठाता और ईश्वर कहकर सदा जिनका गुणगान करते हैं, योगीजन जिनके चिन्तनमें लगे रहते हैं, विद्वान् पुरुष जिन्हें जगत्की उत्पत्ति और विनाशका कारण समझते हैं, देवताओं, असुरों और मुनियोंमें भी जिनसे श्रेष्ठ दूसरा कोई नहीं है, उन अजन्मा, अनादि, अनन्त, अनघ और अत्यन्त सुखी, प्रभावशाली ईश्वर महादेवजीकी मैं शरण लेता हूँ'

I take refuge in the unborn, eternal, infinite, sinless, and supremely blissful Lord Mahadeva, who is praised by the scholars of Sankhya philosophy as the Supreme, the Purusha (the ultimate person), the Adhisthata (the presiding deity), and Ishvara (the supreme Lord).

He is the cause of the creation and destruction of the world, and is the one whom the yogis constantly meditate upon. Among the gods, demons, and sages, there is none superior to Him.

यं पठन्ति सदा सांख्याश्चिन्तयन्ति च योगिनः ।
परं प्रधानं पुरुषमधिष्ठातारमीश्वरम् ॥ ४ ॥
उत्पत्तौ च विनाशे च कारणं यं विदुर्बुधाः ।
देवासुरमुनीनां च परं यस्मान्न विद्यते ॥ ५ ॥
अजं तमहमीशानमनादिनिधनं प्रभुम् ।
अत्यन्तसुखिनं देवमनघं शरणं व्रजे ॥ ६ ॥

'सांख्यशास्त्रके विद्वान् पर, प्रधान, पुरुष, अधिष्ठाता और ईश्वर कहकर सदा जिनका गुणगान करते हैं, योगीजन जिनके चिन्तनमें लगे रहते हैं, विद्वान् पुरुष जिन्हें जगत्की उत्पत्ति और विनाशका कारण समझते हैं, देवताओं, असुरों और मुनियोंमें भी जिनसे श्रेष्ठ दूसरा कोई नहीं है, उन अजन्मा, अनादि, अनन्त, अनघ और अत्यन्त सुखी, प्रभावशाली ईश्वर महादेवजीकी मैं शरण लेता हूँ' ॥ ४—६ ॥

इतना कहते ही तण्डिने उन तपोनिधि, अविकारी, अनुपम, अचिन्त्य, शाश्वत, ध्रुव, निष्कल, सकल, निर्गुण एवं सगुण ब्रह्मका दर्शन प्राप्त किया, जो योगियोंके परमानन्द, अविनाशी एवं मोक्षस्वरूप हैं ।। ७-८ ।।

वे ही मनु, इन्द्र, अग्नि, मरुद्गण, सम्पूर्ण विश्व तथा ब्रह्माजीकी भी गति हैं। मन और इन्द्रियोंके द्वारा उनका ग्रहण नहीं हो सकता। वे अग्राह्य, अचल, शुद्ध, बुद्धिके द्वारा अनुभव करने योग्य तथा मनोमय हैं ।। ९ ।।

Verses 7-8:
As soon as he uttered these words, Tandini attained the vision of that Supreme, unchanging, unparalleled, incomprehensible, eternal, unshakable, formless yet with form, the absolute Brahman, who is the source of supreme bliss for yogis, imperishable, and the embodiment of liberation (moksha).

Verse 9:
He is the motion of Manu, Indra, Agni, the Maruts (wind gods), the entire universe, and even Brahma. He cannot be grasped by the mind or the senses. He is beyond perception, immovable, pure, experiencable only through intellect, and is also the essence of the mind.

योगिनां परमानन्दमक्षरं मोक्षसंज्ञितम् ॥ ८ ॥

इतना कहते ही तण्डिने उन तपोनिधि, अविकारी, अनुपम, अचिन्त्य, शाश्वत, ध्रुव, निष्कल, सकल, निर्गुण एवं सगुण ब्रह्मका दर्शन प्राप्त किया, जो योगियोंके परमानन्द, अविनाशी एवं मोक्षस्वरूप हैं ॥ ७-८ ॥

मृत्यु, यम, अग्नि, संहारके लिये वेगशाली काल, कालके परम कारण तथा सनातन काल भी – ये महादेव ही हैं ।। ५१ ।

Verse 50:
Night and day are His ears and eyes, the fortnights and months are His head and arms, the seasons are His virility, penance is His patience, and the year is His secret sense, thighs, and feet.

Verse 51:
Death, Yama (the god of death), Agni (fire), the swift-moving time of destruction, the ultimate cause of time, and eternal time—these are all aspects of Mahadeva.

Shri Shiva Stuti from Srimad Bhagvatam Book 8 Chapter 7

21. Oh God of gods! Oh Supreme God! Oh Creator, the very soul of beings! Be pleased to save us who have sought shelter in you, from the poison that is burning the three worlds.

22. You alone are the Almighty Ruler capable of cau-sing bondage and emancipation of the whole worlds, the wise

23. adore you as such, and as the father (or preceptor) who removes the afflictions of those who seek refuge in you.

24. Oh all pervading Lord! When you, through your own Potency consisting of three gunas, undertake to create, preserve and destroy the universe, Oh self-seeing perfect Lord, you assume (severally) the appellations Brahmā, Vişnu and Śiva.

25. You are that Supreme mysterious Brahman, the creator of beings, of the higher (gods) and the lower order (sub-human beings). You are the supreme soul who appear as the universe by means of your various powers (such as Sattva, Rajas and Tamas). Hence you are the Controller and Master of the Universe.

26. You are the source of the Word (Vedas) and (hence you stand self-revealed); you are the prime cause of the uni-verse (viz. the principle mahat), the soul (the cosmic ego or ahaṁkāra); the three gunas (viz. sattva, rajas and tamas) which bring forth the Vital airs (prāras), cognitive and conative sense-organs (indriyas) and the material object (dravya) and the essential nature (Sva-bhāva) of everything, you are the Time spirit (causing commotion and imbalance of gunas), the will to create (kratu), the Truth, the (cosmic) Order, the righteousness. The śāstras declare that Pradhana constituting of the three gunas is based on (and supported by) you, (or the Pranava consisting of three syllables AUM reveals vou) *

27. Oh Creator of the universe! Fire which represents, gods in its person (as the distributor of sacrificial offerings to gods) is your mouth; the wise know that the earth is your lotus-like feet; Time is the motion, the cardinal points, the ears, and Varuna (the Lord of waters) the palate, of you who are the soul (the Inner controller) of all gods.

28. The sky represents your navel; the wind, your breath, the sun, your eyes, water, (your semen; the support of all jīvas (individual souls) elevated (like that of god Brahmā) and ordinary (like those of sub-human beings), is your ego; Soma or the Moon-god, your mind, and the heavens, your head.

29. The seas symbolize your abdomen, the mountains your bones; all plants and herbs your hair; the Vedic metres seven humours in your body; the dharma as enunciated in the Vedas your heart, Oh embodiment of the three Vedas.

30. Oh Lord! the five upanisads[1] (the sacred hymns or mantras known as Tatpuruşa, Aghora, Sadyojāta, Vāmadeva, and Iśāna) from which the collection of thirty eight mantras evolve, denote your (five) faces; that self-effulgence constitu-ting the supreme principle which is designated as Siva is your (real) absolute state.

31. Your shadow is seen in the waves of unrighteous-ness (such as hypocrisy, covetousness (by which destruction is caused; your (three) eyes are sattva, rajas and tamas (which bring about the creation of the universe); Oh Lord, the eter-nal Veda mainly composed in meters (like Gayatri, Trişṭubh) stand for your glance; for you are the omniscient[1] pro-pounder of the śāstric lore.

32. Oh Lord of mountains! Your supreme effulgence where the modes of Prakrti like sattva, rajas and tamas have no place, and which is nothing but the supreme Brahman trans-cending all distinctions and differentiations, is absolutely inacessible to all the guardian deities of various spheres and to Brahmā, Vişnu[2] and Indra.

33. That you destroyed Kama (the god of Love), the sacrifice (of Daksa), Tripuras the three cities (constructed by Maya) subdued the god of death, consumed the (Hala-hala) poison (which is as good as consumed as you are certain to drink it up just now) and killed innumerable trouble-makers of living beings, is not so much praiseworthy, on your part, as your unawareness of the razing down of this universe-your own creation by the sparks emanating from the fire in your own (third) eye (you remaining absorbed in deep meditation) 3

34. Shameless are they who talk nonsense that you are always accompanied by (your consort) Uma of whom you are (excessively) enamoured, though (actually) the pair of your feet are contemplated in their hearts by the world's precep-tors who are absorbed in the spiritual bliss of the soul. (They are certainly brazen-faced) who (glibly) prate that you are a ferocious and murderous denizen of the funeral-place when you are a performer of austere penance (as an ideal to the sages)! Never can such (people lost to shame) understand your sportive ways.

35. Even god Brahmā and others are incapable of accurately comprehending your essential nature, much less are they able to praise you who are all-pervading and transcenden-tal to Prakrti (The primordialnature) lying beyond the causal relation. How is it possible for us (the recentmost) creation of the creations (like Marici and others) of Brahmā to extol you? The prayer offered by us (to the best of our ability) is kimited to our (meagre) capacity[1].

36. Oh Supreme Lord! What we behold is only your (apparent) visible form, but not the trancendental one. (We however, consider ourselves blessed even with this). Though your activities are unmanifest, this manifestation of yours is meant for the weal (and protection) of the world.

21. Oh God of gods ! Oh Supreme God ! Oh Creator, the very soul of beings ! Be pleased to save us who have sought shelter in you, from the poison that is burning the three worlds.

Rig Veda Devi Suktam 10/125

Rig Veda 10/125/1

वाणी देवी कहती है- मैं रुद्रों, वसुओं, आदित्यों एवं सभी देवों के साथ विचरण करती हूं. मैं मित्र, वरुण, इंद्र, अग्नि एवं अश्विनीकुमारों को धारण करती हूं. (१)

Vani Devi speaks – I move with the Rudras, the Vasus, the Ādityas and all the Devas . I support Mitra, Varuṇa, Indra, Agni, and the twin Ashvins

Rig Veda 10/125/2

मैं पत्थर से पीसे जाने वाले सोम, त्वष्टा, पूषा एवं भग को धारण करती हूं. मैं हव्य धारण करने वाले, देवों को शोभन हवि देने वाले एवं सोमरस निचोड़ने वाले यजमान को धन देती हूं. (२)

I uphold the sacred Soma pressed with stones, as well as Tvaṣṭṛ, Pūṣan, and Bhaga.
I support the ritual fire that bears oblations, the sacrificer who offers the beautiful havis, and the one who extracts Soma-juice."

Rig Veda 10/125/3

मैं राष्ट्र की स्वामिनी, धन देने वाली, ज्ञान वाली एवं यज्ञोपयोगी वस्तुओं में सर्वोत्तम हूं. देवों ने मुझे अनेक स्थानों में धारण किया है. मेरा आधार विशाल है. मैं अनेक प्राणियों में आविष्ट हूं. (३)

I am the queen of this universe, the bestower of wealth, knower of all things, and supreme among the objects of worship in yajña (sacrifices). The Devas have established me in many places. My presence pervades all beings.

Rig Veda 10/125/4

मेरी सहायता से ही प्राणी अन्न खाते हैं, देखते हैं, सांस लेते हैं एवं कही हुई बात सुनते हैं. मुझे न मानने वाले क्षीण हो जाते हैं. हे सखा! सुनो, मैं तुम्हें श्रद्धा करने योग्य बात बताती हूं. (४)

It is through me that beings eat food, see, breathe, and hear spoken words.
Those who do not acknowledge me are diminished.
O friend! Listen, I speak to you words worthy of reverence.

Rig Veda 10/125/5

जो व्यक्ति देवों एवं मानवों द्वारा सेवित है, उसे मैं ही उपदेश देती हूं. मैं जिसे चाहती हूं, उसे शक्तिशाली, स्तोता, ऋषि एवं बुद्धिमान् बना देती हूं. (५)

I am the one who teaches the chosen, those who are honored by Devas and men.
Whomever I choose, I empower — making them mighty, a sage, a seer, and wise

Rig Veda 10/125/6

मैं ब्रह्मद्वेषी त्रिपुर राक्षस को मारने के लिए ही रुद्र के धनुष का विस्तार करती हूं. मैं ही लोगों के कल्याण के लिए युद्ध करती हूं एवं द्यावा-पृथिवी में व्याप्त हूं. (६)

It was I who extended Rudra's bow for slaying the hater of Brahman — the demon Tripura.
I am the one who creates battles for the welfare of the people and pervade the heavens and earth.

Rig Veda 10/125/7

मैं द्यौ को उत्पन्न करती हूं. आकाश परमात्मा का मस्तक है. मेरा स्थान सागर के जल में है. वहीं से मैं सारे संसार में विस्तृत होती हूं एवं अपने विशाल शरीर से इस द्युलोक का स्पर्श करती हूं. (७)

I created the sky, and the celestial space is the head of the Supreme Being.
My dwelling is in the oceanic waters.
From there I spread throughout the world and touch the heavens with my vast body.

Rig Veda 10/125/8

मैं ही सब भुवनों का निर्माण करती हुई वायु के समान चलती हूं. मेरी महिमाएं ऐसी हैं कि धरती और द्युलोक से भी बड़ी हूं. (८)

I roam the worlds creating all beings like the wind.
My greatness is such that I surpass both heaven and earth

इस अथर्वशीर्षका जो अध्ययन करता है, उसे पाँचों अथर्वशीर्षोंके जपका फल प्राप्त होता है। इस अथर्वशीर्षको बिना जाने ही जो प्रतिमास्थापन आदि करता है, वह सैकड़ों लाख जप करके भी अर्चासिद्धि नहीं प्राप्त करता। अष्टोत्तरशत (१०८ बार) जप (इत्यादि) इसकी पुरश्चरणविधि है। जो इसका दस बार पाठ करता है, वह उसी क्षण पापोंसे मुक्त हो जाता है और महादेवीके प्रसादसे बड़े दुस्तर संकटोंको पार कर जाता है ॥ २६ ॥
इसका सायंकालमें पाठ करनेवाला दिनमें किये हुए पापोंका नाश करता है, प्रातः कालमें पाठ करनेवाला रात्रिमें किये हुए पापोंका नाश करता है। सायं तथा ातः दोनों समय पाठ करनेवाला निष्पाप होता है

मध्यरात्रिमें तुरीय * सन्ध्याके समय जप करनेसे वाक्सिद्धि प्राप्त होती है। नयी प्रतिमापर जप करनेसे देवतासान्निध्य प्राप्त होता है। प्राणप्रतिष्ठाके समय जप करनेसे प्राणोंकी प्रतिष्ठा होती है। भौमाश्विनी (अमृतसिद्धि) योगमें महादेवीकी सन्निधिमें जप करनेसे महामृत्युसे तर जाता है। जो इस प्रकार जानता है, वह महामृत्युसे तर जाता है। इस प्रकार यह ब्रह्मविद्या है।

All the gods approached the Divine Mother with humility and asked, “O Mahadevi, who are you?” (1)

She replied, “I am the embodiment of Brahman. From me, both the tangible and intangible universe, consisting of nature and the supreme consciousness, has arisen.” (2)

“I am both joy and sorrow. I am knowledge and ignorance. I am the Brahman, which must be known, and the non-Brahman as well. I am the five elemental principles (Mahabhutas), both in their manifest and unmanifest forms. This entire visible world is none other than me.” (3)

“I am both the Vedas and what lies beyond the Vedas. I am wisdom and ignorance. I am both the unborn and the born—both nature and that which transcends it. I exist above, below, and in every direction.” (4)

“I move through the forms of Rudras, Vasus, Adityas, and Vishwedevas. I nourish Mitra and Varuna, Indra and Agni, and both the Ashwin twins.” (5)

“I uphold Soma, Tvashtri, Pusha, and Bhaga. I sustain Vishnu, Brahma, and Prajapati, whose strides encompass the three worlds.” (6)

“I provide wealth to the yajamana (sacrificial patron) who offers divine oblations and Soma-juice. I am the supreme ruler of the universe, the bestower of riches to devotees, the essence of Brahman, and the foremost among those worthy of worship. I create the cosmos upon the foundation of my true nature. My presence dwells within the intellect that perceives the self. Whoever realizes this attains divine prosperity.” (7)

We seek refuge in Goddess Durga, who shines like fire, is radiant with penance, and grants the fruits of karma. O Goddess, destroyer of demons, we bow to you! (9)

The divine beings who embody life itself have manifested the resplendent speech (Vaikhari Vani), which is spoken in diverse ways by many creatures. Like the divine wish-fulfilling cow Kamadhenu, this sacred speech brings joy, nourishment, and strength. May the supreme Goddess, who is pleased by the finest praises, come near us! (10)

We bow to Bhagavati, the destroyer of time itself, the sacred energy praised in the Vedas—Vishnu’s power, Skanda’s mother (Shiva’s Shakti), Saraswati (Brahma’s Shakti), the divine mother Aditi, and Daksha’s daughter (Sati). She is the remover of sins and the bringer of auspiciousness. (11)

We know Mahalakshmi, and we meditate upon her, the embodiment of all divine energies. May she guide us toward righteousness! (12)

O Daksha! Your daughter Aditi gave birth, and from her emerged divine beings blessed with immortality and well-being. (13)

The primordial knowledge of the universal Mother consists of sacred syllables: Ka (desire), Ee (womb), Kamala (Lakshmi), La (Indra's Vajra), Heem (hidden knowledge), Ha (breath of life), Sa (divine essence), Ka (Vayu, the wind), Ha (clouds), La (Indra), Hreem (mystic syllable), Sa, Ka, La, and Heem (Maya, the cosmic illusion). She is the cosmic essence in the form of Brahman itself. (14)

She is the supreme power of the divine, the enchantress of the universe. She holds the noose, goad, bow, and arrows. She is Shri Mahavidya, the great wisdom. Whoever realizes this transcends sorrow. (15)

O Bhagavati! We bow to you. O Mother, protect us in every way! (16)

The sage who envisioned this mantra declares: She is the eight Vasus, the eleven Rudras, and the twelve Adityas. She is both the Vishwedevas who partake of Soma and those who do not. She is the Yatudhans (a type of demon), Asuras, Rakshasas, Pisachas, Yakshas, and Siddhas. She is Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas, the three fundamental qualities. She manifests as Brahma, Vishnu, and Rudra. She is Prajapati, Indra, and Manu. She exists as planets, constellations, and stars. She embodies time in its various divisions—Kalas and Kashthas. We continually bow to the sin-destroying, giver of worldly pleasures and liberation, invisible, victorious, flawless, refuge-giving, auspicious, and benevolent Goddess. (17)

The divine syllable (seed mantra) of the Goddess is formed by the "Ha" sound of space, combined with "Ee", adorned with "Ra", the sacred fire, and crowned by the half-moon symbol (∘). This mantra fulfills all desires. Thus, the wise ones, whose minds are pure, meditate upon this single sacred syllable "Hreem", filled with supreme bliss and vast knowledge.

This mantra is revered as the Devi Pranava—like "Om," it is deeply meaningful. In essence, it represents will, knowledge, and action, non-duality, eternity, existence-consciousness-bliss (Sat-Chit-Ananda), harmonized unity, and the dynamic radiance of Shiva-Shakti. (18-19)

The sacred Navarna mantra (nine-letter mantra) consists of the divine syllables: "Aim" (speech), "Hreem" (illusion), "Kleem" (Brahma's desire), followed by the sixth consonant "Cha", the shape-bearing "Cha", the radiance of "Ma" (the Sun), "U" (the right ear), and the nasal "Mum". The third consonant "Da", merged with Narayana ("A"), "Ya" (air), the lower "Ai", and "Vichche"—this divine mantra grants bliss and unity with Brahman to the devotees. (20)

Meaning of this mantra: “O Goddess Mahasaraswati, the embodiment of pure consciousness! O Mahalakshmi, the essence of truth! O Mahakali, the form of supreme bliss! We always meditate upon you to attain Brahmavidya (the supreme knowledge). O Chandika, who manifests as Mahakali, Mahalakshmi, and Mahasaraswati, we bow to you. Please free us by untying the knots of ignorance, which bind us like a rope!”

I worship the Goddess who resides in the heart-lotus, radiant like the morning sun, holding the noose and the goad, appearing enchanting, bestowing boons and protection. She has three eyes, wears red garments, and fulfills the desires of devotees like Kamadhenu, the wish-fulfilling celestial cow. (21)

I bow to the Mahadevi, the one who destroys great fears, calms immense troubles, and embodies supreme compassion! (22)

She is beyond the comprehension of Brahma and others, hence called Ajñeyā (unknowable). She has no end, hence called Anantā (limitless). She is unseen, hence Alakṣyā (invisible). She has no birth, hence Ajā (unborn). She is Ekā (the singular one), yet manifests in countless forms, hence Naikā (many-formed). Thus, she is Ajñeyā, Anantā, Alakṣyā, Ajā, Ekā, and Naikā. (23)

Among all mantras, she exists as Matrika (the primordial letters), in words as knowledge, in wisdom as transcendental consciousness, and in emptiness as the witness of the void. She is none other than Durga

I bow to Goddess Durga, who is beyond comprehension, the destroyer of evil deeds, and the one who liberates beings from the vast ocean of worldly existence. Afraid of this world, I take refuge in her. (25)

Whoever studies this Atharvashirsha (sacred hymn) attains the merits of chanting all five Atharvashirshas. However, one who performs rituals such as idol installation without knowing this hymn does not achieve divine fulfillment, even after countless repetitions. The prescribed ritual involves 108 recitations for spiritual purification. Whoever chants it ten times immediately becomes free from sins and, by Mahadevi's grace, overcomes formidable troubles. (26)

Reciting it in the evening purges sins committed during the day, while chanting it in the morning cleanses sins from the night. One who recites it both morning and evening remains free of sins. Chanting it at midnight, during the sacred Turiya Sandhya (fourth state of consciousness), bestows mastery over speech. Reciting it before a new idol invokes the deity's presence, and chanting it during Pranapratishtha (life consecration) establishes the divine energy within the idol.

Performing the chant in the sacred Bhaumashvini Yoga (nectar-estowing moment), in the presence of Mahadevi, ensures liberation from untimely death. Whoever understands this gains freedom from death itself. Thus, this sacred teaching is Brahmavidya (the supreme knowledge of the divine).

मध्यरात्रिमें तुरीय* सन्ध्याके समय जप करनेसे वाक्सिद्धि प्राप्त होती है। नयी प्रतिमापर जप करनेसे देवतासांनिध्य प्राप्त होता है। प्राणप्रतिष्ठाके समय जप करनेसे प्राणोंकी प्रतिष्ठा होती है। भौमाश्विनी (अमृतसिद्धि) योगमें महादेवीकी सांनिध्यमें जप करनेसे महामृत्युसे तर जाता है। जो इस प्रकार जानता है, वह महामृत्युसे तर जाता है। इस प्रकार यह ब्रह्मविद्या है।

Bhavani Stuti by Shri Shankaracharya

हे भवानी! औरोंकी तो बात ही क्या, अखिल सृष्टिके रचयिता प्रजापति ब्रह्माजी अपने चारों मुखोंसे भी तुम्हारी स्तुति नहीं कर सकते; त्रिपुरहर शङ्कर पाँच मुख रहते हुए भी इस विषयमें मूक होकर रह जाते हैं, छः मुखवाले कार्तिकेय भी मन मारकर बैठ जाते हैं। इन सबकी कौन कहे, हजार मुखवाले शेषजी भी मन मसोसकर रह जाते हैं, परन्तु तुम्हारी स्तुति नहीं कर पाते। कोई करे भी तो कैसे? तुम्हारे गुणोंका थाह पावे तब न। फिर मेरे-जैसे जीवोंकी तो सामर्थ्य ही क्या जो इस काममें हाथ डालनेका दुःसाहस करे

'हे शरणार्थियोंको शरण देनेवाली! तुम्हें छोड़कर जितने दूसरे देवता हैं वे अपने हाथोंसे ही अभय और वरदानका काम लेते हैं, इसीसे तो उन्होंने अपने हाथोंमें अभय और वरद मुद्रा धारण कर रखी है। तुम्हीं एक ऐसी हो जो इन दोनों ही मुद्राओंके धारण करनेका स्वाँग नहीं रचतीं। रचने भी क्यों लगीं, तुम्हें इसकी आवश्यकता ही क्या है? तुम्हारे दोनों चरण ही आश्रितोंको सब प्रकारके भयोंसे मुक्त करने तथा उन्हें इच्छित फलसे अधिक देनेमें समर्थ हैं। तुम्हारे हाथ सदा शत्रुसंहारके काममें ही लगे रहते हैं। भक्तोंके लिये तो तुम्हारे चरण ही पर्याप्त हैं।'

'हे शैलेन्द्रतनये! शास्त्र एवं सन्त यह कहते हैं कि तुम्हारे पलक मारते ही यह संसार प्रलयके गर्भमें लीन हो जाता है और पलक खोलते ही यह फिरसे प्रकट हो जाता है, संसारका बनना और बिगड़ना तुम्हारे लिये एक पलकका खेल है। तुम्हारे एक बार पलक घाड़नेसे जो यह संसार खड़ा हो गया है वह

एकबारगी नष्ट न हो जाय, मालूम होता है, इसीलिये तुम कभी पलक गिराती नहीं, सदा निर्निमेष दृष्टिसे अपने भक्तोंकी ओर निहारती रहती हो।'

'हे शिवे ! अधखिले नीलकमलके समान कान्तिवाले अपने विशाल नेत्रोंसे तुम्हारे सुरमुनिदुर्लभ चरणोंसे बहुत दूर पड़े हुए मुझ दीनपर भी अपने कृपापीयूषकी वर्षा करो। तुम्हारे ऐसा करनेसे मैं तो कृतार्थ हो जाऊँगा और तुम्हारा कुछ बिगड़ेगा नहीं; क्योंकि तुम्हारी कृपाका भण्डार अटूट है, मुझपर कुछ छोटे डाल देनेसे उसका दिवाला नहीं निकलेगा। फिर तुम इतनी कंजूसी किसलिये करती हो, क्यों नहीं मुझे एक बार ही सदाके लिये निहाल कर देती। चन्द्रमा अपनी शीतल किरणोंसे सभी जगह समानरूपसे अमृतवर्षा करता है। उसकी दृष्टिमें एक वीरान जंगल और किसी राजाधिराजकी गगनचुम्बिनी अट्टालिकामें कोई अन्तर नहीं है। फिर तुम्हीं मुझ दीनपर क्यों नहीं करतीं, मुझसे इतना अलगाव क्यों कर रखा है? क्या इस प्रकारका वैभव तुम्हें शोभा देता है? नहीं, नहीं, कदापि नहीं। अब कृपया शीघ्र इस दीनको अपनाकर अपने शीतल चरणतलमें आश्रय दो, जिससे यह सदाके लिये तुम्हारा क्रीतदास बन जाय, तुम्हें छोड़कर दूसरी ओर कभी भूलकर भी न ताके।'

घी, दूध, अंगूर अथवा शहदका स्वाद कैसा है और उनके स्वादमें क्या-क्या अन्तर है- इसे हम शब्दोंद्वारा अलग-अलग करके किसी प्रकार भी नहीं समझा सकते, चाहे हम कितने ही पण्डित और शब्दशास्त्री क्यों न हों। इसका तो हम रसनेन्द्रियके द्वारा अनुभव ही कर सकते हैं, दूसरेको समझा नहीं सकते। इसी प्रकार, हे देवि! तुम्हारी अनुपम छविका कोई वर्णन नहीं कर सकता; वह तो केवल परमशिवके प्रत्यक्षका ही विषय है। सौन्दर्यकी तो बात ही क्या, तुम्हारे और और गुणोंका भी कोई वर्णन नहीं कर सकता। वेद और उपनिषद् भी हार मान जाते हैं और 'नेति, नेति' कहकर ही अपना पिण्ड छुड़ाते हैं।'

'संसारमें लोग अनेक प्रकारके गुणोंसे युक्त, पत्तोंवाली लताका ही आदरपूर्वक सेवन करते हैं; परन्तु मेरा अपना मत तो यह है कि जगत्‌में सब लोगोंको अपर्णा (बिना पत्तोंकी बेल अर्थात् देवी पार्वती, जो इस नामसे प्रसिद्ध हैं) का ही सेवन करना चाहिये, जिनके ।सर्गसे पुराना स्थाणु (ठूँठ अर्थात् देवाधिदेव महादेव,

'हे देवि ! मुझ शरणागतपर शीघ्र ही अपने कृपाकटाक्षका निक्षेप कर मुझे कृतकृत्य करो। माना कि मेरे आचरण साधुओंके से नहीं हैं, किन्तु मैं तुम्हारी शरणमें तो चला आया हूँ। क्या शरणमें आये हुएकी तुम्हें उपेक्षा करनी चाहिये? यदि शरणमें चले आनेपर भी शरणार्थीके सम्बन्धमें तुम यह विचार करोगी कि उसके आचरण उत्तम हैं या नहीं और मुझ जैसे मन्द आचरणवालोंसे बेरुखीका बर्ताव करोगी तो फिर तुममें और दूसरे देवताओंमें अन्तर ही क्या रहा? कल्पवृक्षके नीचे चले जानेपर भी यदि किसीकी इच्छा पूरी न हो तो फिर उसमें और साधारण वृक्षोंमें क्या अन्तर है? कल्पवृक्षका धर्म ही है अर्थार्थीकी कामनाको पूर्ण करना। फिर तुम अपने धर्मको कैसे छोड़ सकती हो। तुम्हें अपने विरदकी रक्षाके लिये ही मेरी बाँह पकड़नी होगी, मुझे अपनी शरणमें लेना होगा। यदि मेरा परित्याग करती हो तो साथ-ही-साथ अपनी शरणागतवत्सलताका बाना भी छोड़ना होगा।'

'हे उमे! हे लम्बोदरजननि ! मुझे तुम्हारे चरणकमलोंका ही पूरा-पूरा भरोसा है, अन्य किसी देवताका सहारा नहीं है। फिर भी तुम्हारा हृदय यदि मेरे प्रति दयार्द्र नहीं होता तो मैं अवलम्बहीन किसकी शरणमें जाऊँगा। सब ओरसे मुँह मोड़कर तो तुम्हारा आश्रय ग्रहण किया है, तुम्हीं यदि मुझे दुत्कार दोगी तो फिर मुझे कौन अपनी शरणमें लेगा। अतः मुझ निराश्रयको आश्रय देना ही होगा।'

'पारसमणिका स्पर्श पाते ही लोहा तत्काल सोना बन जाता है और नालेका गन्दा पानी भी जगत्पावनी गङ्गाजीकी धारामें मिलकर स्वयं जगत्पावन हो जाता है। फिर अनेक प्रकारके पापोंसे कलुषित हुआ मेरा न क्या तुम्हारे प्रेमको प्राप्त करके भी निर्मल नहीं

होगा, अवश्य होगा।' महात्मा सूरदासजीने भी अपने एक पदमें इसी प्रकारके उद्गार प्रकट किये हैं। वे कहते हैं-

उनके उपासकोंको इच्छित फलकी प्राप्ति हो ही, ऐसा नियम नहीं है। क्योंकि प्रथम तो वे सर्वसमर्थ नहीं हैं, वे अपनी-अपनी शक्तिके अनुसार ही अपने उपासकोंकी इच्छाको पूर्ण कर सकते हैं। अपनी सामर्थ्यसे अधिक वे नहीं दे सकते। फिर जो कुछ भी वे देते हैं उसके लिये मूल्य भी पूरा-पूरा वसूल करते हैं। मूल्य पूरा अदा न करनेसे अथवा साधनमें किसी प्रकारकी त्रुटि रह जानेपर अथवा विधिमें वैगुण्य होनेसे वे इच्छित फल, सामर्थ्य होनेपर भी, नहीं देते। तुम्हारी बात कुछ दूसरी ही है। तुम तो अपने भक्तोंको उनकी इच्छासे अधिक भी दे सकती हो।' किसी भक्तने अपने भगवान्‌के प्रति कहा है-

सामर्थ्यको न जानकर तुमसे बहुत छोटी-छोटी चीजें माँग बैठते हैं, किन्तु तुम इतनी दयालु हो कि हमें आशातीत फल प्रदान करती हो। तुम सर्वज्ञ हो, अतः हमारी आवश्यकताओंको भलीभाँति समझकर हमारे लिये जो उचित होता है वही करती हो। और देवता तो हमारी सांसारिक इच्छाओंको पूर्ण करके ही अपने कर्तव्यकी इतिश्री समझ लेते हैं, किन्तु तुम हमारी सांसारिक कामनाओंको भी पूर्ण करती हो और साथ ही-साथ अपनी विमल भक्ति भी देती हो। गीतामें भगवान्ने भी कहा है- 'मद्भक्ता यान्ति मामपि'। ब्रह्मादिक पूर्वजोंने तुममें और अन्य देवताओंमें यही अन्तर बताया है। इसीलिये मेरा मन रात-दिन तुम्हारा ही चिन्तन करता रहता है, तुम्हींसे लौ लगाये हुए है। हे परमेश्वरि! अब जैसा उचित समझो करो। चाहे तारो चाहे मारो, मैं तो तुम्हारी ही शरणमें पड़ा हूँ। तुम्हें छोड़कर कहाँ जाऊँ, किसकी शरण लूँ? मुझ जैसे अधमोंको और कहाँ ठिकाना है। आश्रयहीनको आश्रय देनेवाला तुमसे बढ़कर कहाँ पाऊँगा, तुम्हीं बताओ।

'कैलासमें तुम्हारा घर है, जो सारी समृद्धियोंकी खान है तथा जहाँकी शोभाको स्वर्गादि लोक भी नहीं पा सकते; ब्रह्मा और इन्द्र आदि देवगण, जिनसे बढ़कर इस संसारमें कोई नहीं है, बन्दीजनोंकी भाँति तुम्हारी विरदावलीका बखान करते रहते हैं; सारी त्रिलोकी तुम्हारा कुटुम्ब है, तुम्हारी दृष्टिमें कोई पराया है ही

नहीं; आठों सिद्धियाँ हाथ जोड़े तुम्हारे दरवाजेपर खड़ी रहती हैं और तुम्हारी आज्ञाकी प्रतीक्षा करती रहती हैं। स्वयं देवाधिदेव महादेव, जो सारे संसारके स्वामी हैं और साक्षात् परब्रह्मस्वरूप हैं, तुम्हारे प्राणपति हैं और नगाधिराज हिमालय तुम्हारे पिता हैं। तुम्हारी महिमाकी भला कौन समता कर सकता है?'

'यहाँ यह प्रश्न हो सकता है कि स्वयं महादेवजीके पास तो एक फूटी कौड़ी भी नहीं है। बूढ़े बैलपर तो वे सवारी करते हैं, भाँग धतूरा खाते हैं, कभी-कभी हलाहल भी चढ़ा जाते हैं, नंग-धड़ंग दिगम्बरवेशमें रहते हैं, श्मशानमें विचरते रहते हैं, विषधर साँपोंको अपने अंगोंमें लिपटाये रहते हैं और भस्मसे अपने शरीरको सजाये रखते हैं। स्वयं उनका तो यह हाल है, जो जगजाहिर है; फिर उनके घरमें इतनी समृद्धि कहाँसे आयी। यह सब तुम्हारा हो प्रभाव है, तुम्हारी ही महिमा है।'

जो भगवान् शङ्कर अखिल ब्रह्माण्डके संहारमें स्वभावसे ही रत हैं और जो श्मशानमें रहते हैं तथा चिता-भस्म रमाये रहते हैं उन्होंने समस्त भूमण्डलपर कृपा करके भयङ्कर हलाहलको गलेमें धारण कर लिया-यह हे मङ्गलमयि । तुम्हारे ही साथ रहनेका फल है; नहीं तो सारे संसारको ग्रसनेवाले महाकालरूप भगवान्में इतनी दया कहाँसे आती?

O Bhavani! What can be said of others—even Brahma, , cannot fully praise you with all four of his mouths. Tripurahara Shankara, despite having five faces, remains silent in this matter. Kartikeya, with six faces, resigns himself in contemplation. And what of Shesha, the serpent with a thousand mouths? Even he cannot fathom your glory and remains in awe. How can anyone offer praises when your virtues are beyond comprehension? Only one who grasps the infinite depths of your greatness could attempt such a task. Then, how can a mere mortal like me dare to venture into this?

O refuge of those who seek protection! Unlike other gods who raise their hands in gestures of fearlessness and boon-granting, you do not assume such forms. Why would you? You do not need these symbols, for your divine feet alone grant freedom from fear and bestow blessings beyond imagination upon all who take refuge in you. Your hands are ever occupied with destroying enemies, while for devotees, your feet alone are sufficient as their ultimate sanctuary.

O daughter of the king of mountains! The scriptures and saints declare that with just a blink of your eyes, the universe dissolves into the cosmic womb of destruction, and with another blink, it emerges once again into existence. For you, the creation and dissolution of the cosmos are but the play of an instant. However, the world you created with a single blink must not vanish all at once—perhaps that is why you never close your eyes and remain ever watchful over your devotees with an unblinking gaze of compassion.

O Shiva! With eyes as radiant as half-opened blue lotuses, shower your divine nectar of compassion upon this helpless being who lies far from the sacred feet revered even by sages and gods. If you bestow your grace upon me, I shall be eternally fulfilled, and it will not diminish your boundless reservoir of mercy. Your infinite grace cannot be exhausted by granting even a small portion to me. Then why do you hesitate? Why not bless me once and for all?

The moon showers its cool nectar-like rays equally upon all places—whether a desolate forest or the towering palace of a mighty king. It sees no difference between them. Then why do you not extend your mercy upon me? Why do you keep yourself distant from me? Does such exclusivity suit you? No, absolutely not. Please accept me without delay, grant me refuge beneath your soothing feet, so that I may become your eternal servant, never again seeking anyone else, even by mistake.

Just as no scholar, no matter how learned, can truly explain the taste of ghee, milk, grapes, or honey through words alone—since their essence can only be experienced—likewise, O Devi, your unparalleled beauty cannot be described. It is solely a matter of direct realization by Lord Shiva. Not only your beauty, but even your divine attributes cannot be fully expressed. The Vedas and Upanishads themselves admit defeat, ultimately concluding with "Neti, Neti" (not this, not this), acknowledging their inability to define your limitless greatness.

In this world, people worship many virtues found in lush leafy creepers (symbolizing various divine paths), but my belief is that all should devote themselves to Aparna—the leafless vine, Goddess Parvati, who is renowned by this name. Her divine presence transforms the ancient motionless Stanu—Lord Mahadev, the eternal deity, who, being beyond change and action, is referred to as the immovable one. Only when united with Shakti (divine energy) does Sadashiva manifest in active, dynamic form, making salvation and spiritual realization possible. Without this union, even the supreme Nirguna (attributeless) Brahman remains beyond reach, unable to bestow blessings.

O Devi! Quickly cast your merciful glance upon this humble seeker and bless me. I admit that my conduct is not as pure as the sages', yet I have come seeking refuge in you. Should you reject someone who has surrendered at your feet? If you begin assessing whether a seeker is worthy based on their actions and deny grace to those of weak character, then how would you be any different from other gods?

If a person sits beneath the celestial Kalpavriksha (wish-fulfilling tree) and their desires remain unfulfilled, then what sets it apart from an ordinary tree? The very nature of Kalpavriksha is to grant wishes. Likewise, how can you abandon your sacred duty? To uphold your divine reputation, you must take my hand and offer me shelter. If you forsake me, you must also forsake the title of Sharanagata-Vatsala (protector of those who surrender).

O Uma, Mother of Ganesha! My only hope is in your lotus feet—I have no reliance on any other deity. If your heart does not soften toward me, then where shall I go for refuge? I have turned away from everything and placed my faith in you alone. If even you reject me, then who will accept me?

Therefore, you must grant shelter to this helpless soul.

Just as a mere touch of the Philosopher’s Stone (Parasmani) transforms iron into gold, and even the filthy waters of a stream become pure upon merging with the holy Ganges, surely my mind—polluted with sins—shall also be purified when it attains your divine love!

The fulfillment of desires by deities is not guaranteed for their devotees. Firstly, they are not omnipotent; they can grant wishes only within the limits of their power. They cannot give beyond their capacity. Moreover, whatever they grant comes at a price—they demand full payment through proper rituals. If there is any shortcoming in devotion, an error in practice, or a flaw in the ritual, then even if the deity has the power to grant a wish, they may withhold it.

But you are different. You give more than what is asked to your devotees. As one devotee said:

“Not knowing your divine capability, we ask for insignificant things, but you are so merciful that you grant us far more than our expectations. Since you are omniscient, you understand our needs and do what is truly best for us. Other gods merely fulfill worldly desires and consider their duty complete, but you satisfy our material wishes while also blessing us with your pure devotion.”

Even in the Bhagavad Gita, the Lord declared: “Madbhakta yanti mam api” (“My devotees attain me”). The great sages have always distinguished between you and other deities. That is why my heart is devoted to you—day and night, I think only of you. Do what you deem appropriate, O Supreme Goddess! Whether you save me or destroy me, I am surrendered at your feet. Where else can I go? Who else can I seek refuge in? Who else but you can shelter the abandoned and forsaken?"

Your abode is Kailash, the treasure of all prosperity, whose splendor even the heavens cannot match. Brahma, Indra, and all divine beings, who hold supremacy over the universe, sing your praises like humble poets. The three worlds are your family; for you, no one is a stranger. The eight Siddhis (mystical powers) stand at your doorstep with folded hands, waiting for your command. Even Mahadev himself, the eternal master of creation and dissolution, is your beloved, and the majestic Himalayas, the king of mountains, is your father. Who could possibly match your greatness?

Here, one might question—Lord Shiva himself possesses nothing. He rides an old bull, consumes bhang and dhatura, sometimes even drinks deadly poison. He roams around naked in smashanas (cremation grounds), with venomous serpents coiled around his body, adorning himself with ashes. His appearance is well-known—then where does all the wealth of Kailash come from? It is solely your divine presence that manifests abundance and grandeur in his realm. It is your majesty that elevates Shiva's dwelling into a celestial kingdom.

Shankar, the one naturally inclined toward destruction, who resides in cremation grounds, who adorns himself with funeral ashes, held the terrifying halahala poison in his throat—only because of you, O Auspicious One! Without your presence, where would compassion arise in the fierce and all-consuming Mahakala?

गणेश्वर ! आप चौंसठ कोटि विद्याओंके दाता तथा
.वताओंके आचार्य बृहस्पतिको भी विद्या-प्रदानका

कार्य पूर्ण करनेवाले हैं। कठको अभीष्ट विद्या देनेवाले भी आप ही हैं। (अथवा आप कठोपनिषद्रूपा अभीष्ट विद्याके दाता हैं।) आप द्विरद हैं, कवि हैं और कवियोंकी बुद्धिके स्वामी हैं; मैं आपको प्रणाम करता हूँ।

आप ही अपने स्वामी एवं प्रधान हैं। बड़े-बड़े विघ्नोंके नाथ हैं। स्वेच्छासे रचित ब्रह्माण्डसमूहके स्वामी और रक्षक भी आप ही हैं। आप दक्षिणास्यके प्रभु एवं विद्यादाता हैं। आप कवि हैं एवं कवियोंके लिये बुद्धिनाथ हैं; मैं आपको प्रणाम करता हूँ।

विभो ! आप व्यास-शिष्य आदि विद्याविशिष्ट प्रियजनोंको अनेक विद्या प्रदान करनेवाले और सबके आदि पुरुष हैं। महाशाक्त-मन्त्रकी दीक्षाके गुरु एवं श्रेष्ठ वस्तु प्रदान करनेवाले आप कवि एवं कवियोंके बुद्धिनाथको मैं प्रणाम करता हूँ।

जो विधाता (ब्रह्माजी) को 'वेदत्रयी' के नामसे प्रसिद्ध मुख्य वेदोंका, महाविष्णुको योगका, शंकरको आगमोंका और सूर्यदेवको विद्याके रहस्यका उपदेश देते हैं, उन कवियोंके बुद्धिनाथ एवं कवि गणेशजीको मैं नमस्कार करता हूँ।

महाबुद्धि-देवीके पुत्रके प्रति गजाननके माहात्म्यसे युक्त तथा निज ज्ञानशक्तिसे सम्पन्न एक पुराणका उपदेश देनेवाले गणेशको, जो कवि एवं कवियोंके बुद्धिनाथ हैं, मैं प्रणाम करता हूँ।

जो वेदान्तके सारतत्त्व, अपने तेजसे अनेक असुरोंका संहार करनेवाले, सिद्धि-लक्ष्मी एवं बुद्धिको दाराके रूपमें अंगीकार करनेवाले और परात्पर ब्रह्मस्वरूप हैं; देवताओंका समुदाय जिनका शरीर है तथा जो गण-समुदायके अधीश्वर हैं, उन कवि एवं कवियोंके बुद्धिनाथ गणेशको मैं नमस्कार करता हूँ।

जो ज्ञानानन्दस्वरूप, मुनियोंके ध्येय तथा गुणातीत हैं; धरा एवं स्वानन्दलोक आदिका निवास जिन्हें प्रिय है; उन ईश्वर, सुरेश्वर, कवि तथा कवियोंके बुद्धिनाथ गणेशको मैं प्रणाम करता हूँ।

जो अनेकानेक भक्तजनोंको भव सागरसे पार करनेवाले हैं; लाल कमलके फूलोंका हार धारण करते ; परम निर्गुण हैं; विश्वात्मक सद्ब्रह्म जिनका रूप

है; 'तत्त्वमसि' आदि महावाक्योंके समूहका तात्पर्य जिनका श्रीविग्रह है, उन कवि एवं कवियोंके बुद्धिनाथ गणेशको मैं नमस्कार करता हूँ।

जो भक्ति-भावसे युक्त हो तीनों संध्याओंके समय गजाननका स्मरण करते हुए इस 'कव्यष्टक' का पाठ करते हैं, वे गणेशजीके कृपा-प्रसादसे कवित्व, सुन्दर एवं अद्भुत वाक्यार्थ तथा मानव जीवनके चरम लक्ष्य मोक्षको प्राप्त कर लेते हैं।

O Lord Ganesha! You are the giver of sixty-four crore forms of knowledge. Even Brihaspati, the preceptor of the gods, completes his task of imparting wisdom because of you. You grant the desired knowledge to seekers and are also the giver of the wisdom found in the Katha Upanishad. You are the great elephant, the poet, and the master of intellect among poets. I bow to you.

You are your own master and chief. You are the lord of great obstacles, the sovereign and protector of the cosmic realms, which you create at will. You are the deity of the right side and the bestower of wisdom. You are a poet and the guardian of intellect among poets. I bow to you.

O Almighty! You grant various forms of knowledge to disciples of Vyasa and other worthy beings. You are the primordial being, the guru of great Shakti mantras, and the bestower of supreme gifts. To you—the poet and master of intellect among poets—I offer my salutations.

You impart the sacred Vedic wisdom to Brahma, the secrets of Yoga to Mahavishnu, the truths of Agamas to Shiva, and the mysteries of divine knowledge to Surya (the Sun god). I bow to Ganesha, the poet and master of wisdom among poets.

You, the son of the goddess of supreme intelligence, have revealed a great Purana filled with your divine glory and profound spiritual wisdom. O Ganesha—the poet and intellectual guide among poets—I bow to you.

You are the essence of Vedanta, the destroyer of countless demons with your divine radiance. You have embraced Siddhi, Lakshmi, and Buddhi as your consorts, and you are the eternal Brahman beyond all limits. The gods form your body, and you are the lord of all celestial hosts. O poet and master of wisdom, Lord Ganesha, I bow to you.

You are the embodiment of blissful knowledge, the ultimate goal of sages, and beyond all qualities. You cherish the earth and the divine realms of self-realization. O Lord of the gods, King of all celestial beings, the poet and master of intellect among poets—I bow to you.

You liberate countless devotees from the ocean of worldly suffering, adorning yourself with garlands of red lotus flowers. You are the supreme Nirguna (attributeless) Brahman, the cosmic reality pervading the universe. Your divine form embodies the meaning of Mahavakyas like "Tat Tvam Asi" (Thou art That). O poet and master of wisdom, Lord Ganesha, I bow to you.

Those who faithfully recite this Kavya Ashtaka during the three sacred junctions of the day while meditating upon Lord Ganesha receive his divine grace. They attain poetic excellence, profound meaning in speech, and ultimately the highest goal of human life—liberation (moksha).

हरिः ॐ। अब सूर्यदेवसम्बन्धी अथर्वांगिरस मन्त्रोंका व्याख्यान करेंगे। इसके ब्रह्मा ऋषि हैं। गायत्री छन्द है। आदित्य देवता हैं। 'हंसः' 'सोऽहं' अग्निनारायणयुक्त बीज है। हल्लेखा शक्ति है। वियदादि सृष्टिसे संयुक्त कीलक है। चारों प्रकारके पुरुषार्थोंकी सिद्धिमें इस मन्त्रका विनियोग किया जाता है।
छः स्वरोंपर आरूढ़ बीजके साथ, छः अंगोंवाले, लाल कमलपर स्थित, सात घोड़ोंवाले रथपर सवार, हिरण्यवर्ण, चतुर्भुज तथा चारों हाथोंमें क्रमशः दो कमल तथा वर और अभयमुद्रा धारण किये, कालचक्रके प्रणेता श्रीसूर्य-नारायणको जो इस प्रकार जानता है, निश्चयपूर्वक वही ब्रह्मवेत्ता है।
जो प्रणवके अर्थभूत सच्चिदानन्दमय और भूः, भुवः एवं स्वः रूपसे त्रिभुवनमय हैं, सम्पूर्ण जगत्की सृष्टि करनेवाले उन भगवान् सूर्यदेवके सर्वश्रेष्ठ तेजका हम ध्यान करते हैं, जो हमारी बुद्धियोंको प्रेरणा प्रदान करें। भगवान् सूर्यनारायण सम्पूर्ण जंगम और स्थावर जगत्के आत्मा हैं, निश्चयपूर्वक सूर्यदेवसे ही ये भूत

उत्पन्न होते हैं। सूर्यदेवसे यज्ञ, बादल, अन्न (बल-वीर्य) एवं आत्मा (चेतना) का आविर्भाव होता है। हे आदित्य ! आपको हमारा नमस्कार है। आप ही केवल कर्मकर्ता हैं, आप ही प्रत्यक्ष ब्रह्म हैं, आप ही प्रत्यक्ष विष्णु हैं, आप ही प्रत्यक्ष रुद्र हैं। आप ही प्रत्यक्ष ऋग्वेद हैं। आप ही प्रत्यक्ष यजुर्वेद हैं, आप ही प्रत्यक्ष सामवेद हैं। आप ही प्रत्यक्ष अथर्ववेद हैं। आप ही समस्त छन्दस्वरूप हैं। आदित्यसे वायु उत्पन्न होती है। आदित्यसे भूमि उत्पन्न होती है। आदित्यसे जल उत्पन्न होता है। आदित्यसे ज्योति (अग्नि) उत्पन्न होती है, आदित्यसे आकाश और दिशाएँ उत्पन्न होती हैं। आदित्यसे देवता उत्पन्न होते हैं। आदित्यसे वेद उत्पन्न होते हैं। निश्चय ही ये आदित्यदेवता ही इस ब्रह्माण्ड-मण्डलको तपाते (गर्मी प्रदान करते) हैं। वे आदित्य ब्रह्म हैं। आदित्य ही अन्तःकरण अर्थात् मन, बुद्धि, चित्त एवं अहंकाररूप हैं। आदित्य ही व्यान, समान, उदान, अपान और प्राण-इन पाँचों प्राणोंके रूपमें विराजते हैं। आदित्य ही श्रोत्र, त्वचा, चक्षु, रसना एवं घ्राण-इन पाँच इन्द्रियोंके रूपमें क्रियाशील हैं। आदित्यदेव ही वाक्, पाणि, पाद, पायु एवं उपस्थ – ये पाँचों कर्मेन्द्रिय भी हैं। आदित्य ही शब्द, स्पर्श, रूप, रस और गन्ध – ये ज्ञानेन्द्रियोंके पाँच विषय हैं। आदित्य ही वचन, आदान, गमन, मलत्याग एवं आनन्द-ये कर्मेन्द्रियोंके पाँच विषय हैं। आनन्दमय, ज्ञानमय एवं विज्ञानमय आदित्यदेव ही हैं। मित्रदेवता एवं सूर्यदेवको नमस्कार है। प्रभो! (आप) मृत्युसे मेरी रक्षा करें। दीप्तिमान् मन्त्र है। 'सूर्यः' यह दो अक्षरोंका मन्त्र है। 'आदित्यः' इस मन्त्रमें तीन अक्षर हैं। इन सबको मिलाकर सूर्यनारायणका अष्टाक्षर महामन्त्र- 'ॐ घृणिः सूर्य आदित्योम्' बनता है। [यही अथर्वांगिरस सूर्यमन्त्र है।]

इस मन्त्रका जो प्रतिदिन जप करता है, वही ब्रह्मवेत्ता होता है, वही ब्राह्मण होता है। सूर्यनारायणकी ओर मुख करके इसे जपनेसे महाव्याधिके भयसे मुक्त हो जाता है। उसका दारिद्र्य नष्ट हो जाता है। अभक्ष्यभक्षणसे पवित्र होता है, अगम्यगमनसे पवित्र होता है। पतितसम्भाषणके दोषसे पवित्र होता है। असत्यभाषणके दोषसे पवित्र होता है। मध्याह्नमें सूर्यकी ओर मुख करके इसका जप करे। इस प्रकार करनेसे मनुष्य सद्यः उत्पन्न पाँच महापातकोंसे छूट जाता है। यह सावित्री विद्या है, इसकी जिस किसी ापात्रसे कुछ भी प्रशंसा (परिचर्चा) न करे। जो

महाभाग इसका प्रातःकाल पाठ करता है, वह भाग्यवान् हो जाता है। उसे गौ इत्यादि पशुओंका लाभ होता है, वह वेदके अभिप्रायको जाननेवाला होता है। इसका त्रिकाल जप करनेसे सैकड़ों यज्ञोंका फल प्राप्त होता है। जो सूर्यदेवके हस्त नक्षत्रमें रहते समय (अर्थात् आश्विन मासमें) इसका जप करता है, वह महामृत्युसे तर जाता है। जो इस प्रकारसे जानता है, वह महामृत्युसे तर जाता है। इस प्रकार यह ब्रह्मविद्या है।

Hariḥ Om. Now we shall expound upon the Atharvāṅgiras Mantras related to Sūryadeva (the Sun God).

The seer (ṛṣi) of these mantras is Brahmā.
The metre (chandas) is Gāyatrī.
The deity (devatā) is Āditya (the Sun).
The seed (bīja) is "Haṁsaḥ" and "So'ham", united with Agni-Nārāyaṇa.
Hallekhā is the shakti (power).
The seal (kīlaka) is union with the creation beginning from space (viyadādi sṛṣṭi).
This mantra is employed for the fulfillment of all four human pursuits (puruṣārthas)—Dharma, Artha, Kāma, Mokṣa.

He who realizes Śrī Sūrya-Nārāyaṇa in this form:

- Established on a six-syllabled seed (bīja)
- Accompanied by six limbs (aṅgas)
- Seated on a red lotus
- Riding a chariot drawn by seven horses
- Of golden complexion (hiraṇyavarṇa)
- With four arms, holding in them:

    - Two lotuses
    - The gestures of boon-giving (vara-mudrā) and protection (abhaya-mudrā)
- The initiator of the Wheel of Time (kālacakra)

—He alone is, without doubt, a knower of Brahman (brahmavettā).

We meditate upon the Supreme Light of Lord Sūrya (the Sun God)—
Who is of the nature of Sat-Chit-Ānanda (Existence-Consciousness-Bliss) and embodies Pranava (Om),
Who manifests as Bhūḥ, Bhuvaḥ, and Svaḥ (the three worlds),
And who is the creator of the entire universe.
May that glorious radiance of Sūryadeva inspire and guide our intellects.

Lord Sūryanārāyaṇa is indeed the soul of all that moves and is still.
Certainly, all beings are born from Sūryadeva.
From Sūryadeva arise:

- Yajña (sacrifices),
- Clouds,
- Food (strength and vitality), and
- Ātman (consciousness).

O Āditya, we offer our salutations to you!

You alone are the true Karta (Doer of all actions).
You alone are the manifest Brahman,
You are the visible Viṣṇu,
You are the visible Rudra.

You are the manifest form of the Ṛgveda,
The Yajurveda,
The Sāmaveda,
And the Atharvaveda.
You are the essence of all metres (chandas).

From Āditya are born:

- The wind (vāyu),
- The earth (bhūmi),
- The waters (jala),
- The light (agni),
- The sky and directions,
- The deities, and
- The Vedas themselves.

It is surely Ādityadeva who illuminates and heats this universe.
He is Brahman.
Āditya is the very inner being (antaḥkaraṇa)—
The mind (manas), intellect (buddhi), memory (citta), and ego (ahaṅkāra).
Āditya manifests as the five vital airs: Prāṇa, Apāna, Vyāna, Samāna, and Udāna.

He is also the five sense organs:

- Hearing (śrotra),
- Touch (tvacā),
- Sight (cakṣus),
- Taste (rasanā),
- Smell (ghrāṇa).

And the five organs of action:

- Speech (vāk),
- Hands (pāṇi),

- Feet (pāda),
- Excretory organ (pāyu),
- Reproductive organ (upastha).

Āditya also exists as the five objects of the senses:

- Sound (śabda),
- Touch (sparśa),
- Form (rūpa),
- Taste (rasa),
- Smell (gandha).

And the five functions of action:

- Speaking,
- Grasping,
- Walking,
- Elimination, and
- Enjoyment.

Ādityadeva is full of bliss, knowledge, and higher wisdom.
Salutations to Mitra (another form of the Sun) and Sūryadeva.
O Lord, protect me from death.

This is a resplendent mantra.

- The word "Sūryaḥ" consists of two syllables.
- The word "Ādityaḥ" consists of three syllables.
- Together with the rest, the eight-syllabled supreme mantra of Sūryanārāyaṇa is:

> "ॐ घृणिः सूर्य आदित्योम्"
> ("Om Ghṛṇiḥ Sūrya Ādityom")

This is indeed the Atharvāṅgiras Sūrya Mantra.

He who chants this mantra daily becomes a knower of Brahman (brahmavettā), he alone is truly a Brāhmaṇa.

By chanting it while facing Lord Sūryanārāyaṇa, one becomes free from the fear of terrible diseases.
His poverty is destroyed.
He becomes purified even if he has consumed forbidden food,
He is purified from the sin of going to impure places,
Purified from the sin of conversing with the fallen,
And purified from the sin of speaking falsehood.

It should be chanted at midday, facing the Sun.
Doing so, one is instantly freed from the five great sins (mahāpātakas) committed unknowingly.

This is the Sāvitrī Vidyā (knowledge of Savitṛ, the Sun deity).
One should never discuss or praise it before an unworthy person.

He who is highly fortunate and recites it in the morning becomes truly blessed.
He gains wealth in the form of cows and other animals,
He becomes a knower of the inner meaning of the Vedas.

By chanting it three times a day (morning, noon, and evening),
One gains the fruits of performing undreds of yajñas (sacrifices).

He who chants it during the Hasta constellation (when the Sun is in Hasta Nakṣatra, typically in the month of Āśvina, i.e., September–October), Crosses over even great death (mahāmṛtyu).
Indeed, he who knows and practices it thus, transcends great death.

In this way, this is indeed Brahmavidyā—the knowledge of the Supreme Reality.

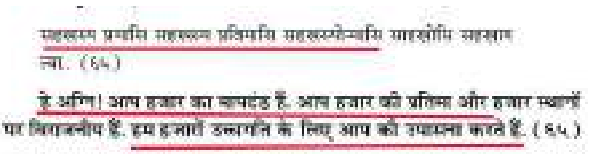
Next i will answer an Objection that Murti Puja is Avedic and nowhere attested in Vedas

Yajur Veda 15.65 states सहस्त्रस्य प्रमासि सहस्रस्य प्रतिमासि meaning Ishwar (Agni) has Sahastra Forms and Sahastra Pratima . Thus Murti Puja is definitely Vedic and attested in Shruti

हे अग्नि ! आप हजार का मापदंड हैं. आप हजार की प्रतिमा और हजार स्थानों पर विराजनीय हैं. हम हजारों उच्चगति के लिए आप की उपासना करते हैं. (



सहस्रस्य प्रमासि सहस्रस्य प्रतिमासि सहस्रस्योन्मासि साहस्रोऽसि सहस्राय त्वा. (६५)

Śāstra-s say that Brahm is formless & unknowable. As it is difficult to meditate on abstract, so we meditate by imagining an idol.

Garuda Mahapurana, Achara Kanda, Chapter 44, Translation by Jyotirvid Radhikaramana, Chaukhamba Krishnadas Academy, Varanasi, Vikram Samvat 2080, pages 134–135

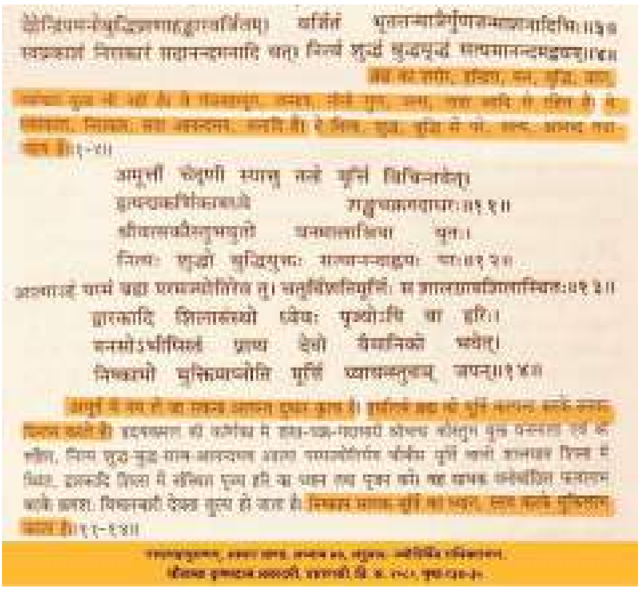
ब्रह्म का शरीर, इन्द्रिय, मन, बुद्धि, प्राण, अहंकार कुछ भी नहीं है। वे पंचमहाभूत, तन्मात्र, तीनों गुण, जन्म, नाश आदि से रहित हैं। वे स्वप्रकाश, निराकार, सदा आनन्दमय, अनादि हैं। वे नित्य, शुद्ध, बुद्धि से परे, सत्य, आनन्द तथा अद्वय हैं।॥१-४॥

अमूर्त में मन ले जा सकना अत्यन्त दुष्कर कृत्य है। इसलिये ब्रह्म की मूर्ति कल्पना करके उनका चिन्तन करते हैं। हृदयकमल की कर्णिका में शंख-चक्र-गदाधारी श्रीवत्स कौस्तुभ युक्त वनमाला एवं श्री सहित, नित्य शुद्ध-बुद्ध-सत्य-आनन्दमय आत्मा परमज्योतिर्मय चौबीस मूर्त्ति वाली शालग्राम शिला में स्थित, द्वारकादि शिला में संस्थित पूज्य हरि का ध्यान तथा पूजन करे। वह साधक मनोवांछित फललाभकरके क्रमशः विमानचारी देवता तुल्य हो जाता है। निष्काम साधक मूर्ति का ध्यान, स्तव करके मुक्तिलाभकरता है।।११-१४।।

Verses 1–4:
Brahman (the Absolute Reality) has no body, senses, mind, intellect, vital breath, or ego. It is beyond the five great elements (Panchamahabhutas), the subtle elements (Tanmatras), the three gunas (qualities), birth and destruction. It is self-luminous, formless, eternally blissful, and without beginning. It is eternal, pure, beyond intellect, truth itself, blissful, and non-dual.

Verses 11–14:

To direct the mind toward the formless (Amurta) is an extremely difficult task. Therefore, we imagine a form (Murti) of Brahman and meditate upon it. One should contemplate and worship Lord Hari (Vishnu), situated in the heart's lotus center (Hridaya Kamala), bearing conch, discus, and mace, adorned with the mark of Śrīvatsa, the Kaustubha gem, the forest garland (Vanamala), and accompanied by Śrī (Lakshmi), the eternal, pure, conscious, truthful, blissful Self—radiant with supreme light —manifest in the Shalagrama stone with twenty-four forms, and established in the sacred Dwaraka stone.



Then the question arises who are Indra , Varuna , Mitra etc deities in Shruti and Other Scriptures and who are Devas

Nirukta 7.16 states देवो दानाद्वा । दीपनाद्वा । द्योतनाद्वा । द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । यो देवः सा देवता । Thus, one is called a Deva because of giving (donation), shining, illuminating, and dwelling in the heavenly realm (dyu-sthāna). The one who is a Deva is referred to as a Devatā

In this way, those who are radiant with knowledge, who impart knowledge to others, and who possess divine qualities and noble conduct — such wise individuals are called Devas

After this, the Vidagdha Shakalya asked Yājñavalkya, "O Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?" Then Yājñavalkya explained their number according to the Nivid that is to be stated ahead. "As many as are mentioned in the Nivid of the Vaiśvadeva—that is, in the mantra-verses that declare the number of the Devas—they are three and three hundred, and three and three thousand (i.e., three thousand three hundred and six).”

Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can attain the postion of Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी पृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between arth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas

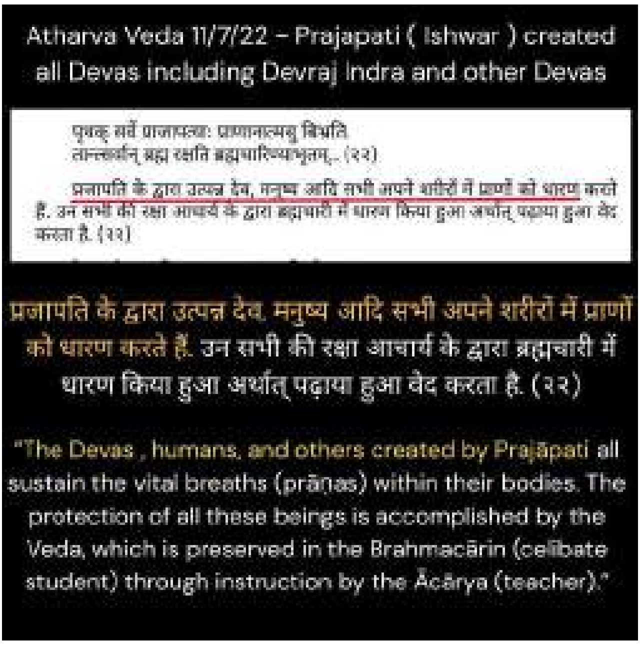
Atharva Veda 11/7/22 – Prajapati (Ishwar) created all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

प्रजापति के द्वारा उत्पन्न देव, मनुष्य आदि सभी अपने शरीरों में प्राणों को धारण करते हैं. उन सभी की रक्षा आचार्य के द्वारा ब्रह्मचारी में धारण किया हुआ अर्थात् पढ़ाया हुआ वेद करता है. (२२)

“The Devas , humans, and others created by Prajāpati all sustain the vital breaths (prāṇas) within their bodies. The protection of all these beings is accomplished by the Veda, which is preserved in the Brahmacārin (celibate student) through instruction by the Ācārya (teacher).”



Srimad Bhagavatam 3.11.24-26 tells that in every period of Brahma – Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas are born again and again and attain their position per their karma

॥ प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अनुयायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ।॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Verse 24:
"Each Manu enjoys his reign for a duration slightly more than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In every Manvantara, different rulers of the Manu lineage, the Saptarishis (seven sages), groups of gods (Devas), Indra, and their attendants like the Gandharvas also enjoy their respective domains."

Verse 25:
“This is the daily creation (nitya-srishti) of Brahma, in which the three worlds are created. According to their individual karmas, various beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors (Pitṛs), and Devas are born.”

Verse 26:
“In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (goodness), assumes forms such as Manu and others to manifest His divine power (Pauruṣa) and uphold the order of the universe through protection and sustenance.”

Shri Vishnu Purana Amsa 1 Adhaya 5

श्रीमैत्रेयजी बोले- हे द्विजराज ! सर्गके आदिमे भगवान् ब्रह्माजीने पृथिवी, आकाश और जल आदिमे रहनेवाले देव, ऋषि, पितृगण, दानव, मनुष्य, तिर्यक् और वृक्षादिको जिस प्रकार रचा तथा जैसे गुण, स्वभाव और रूपवाले जगत्की रचना की वह सब आप मुझसे कहिये ॥ १-२ ॥

प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अन्यायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Maitreya said:
O chief among the twice-born (Brahmins), at the beginning of creation, Brahma ji created the Devas, sages, ancestors (Pitṛs), demons (Dānavas), humans, animals, birds, and trees, who dwell in the earth, sky, water, and other realms. Please describe to me how he created them, and how he gave them their qualities, natures, and forms. (Verses 1–2)

Verse 24:
Each Manu enjoys his rule for a period slightly longer than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically, 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In each Manvantara (the reign of a Manu), different kings of the lineage of that Manu, the seven great sages (Saptarishis), groups of Devas , Indra, and their followers like the Gandharvas exercise their respective authorities.

Verse 25:
This is the daily creation (naimittika sṛṣṭi) of Lord Brahma, in which the three worlds are formed. According to their individual karmas, beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors, and Devas come into existence.

Verse 26:
In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (purity), manifests his divine energy (Pauruṣa) through forms like Manu and sustains the universe.

Taittriya Aranyaka 5.14.8 as well as Taittriya Upanishad 2.8.1 of Krishna Yajurveda clearly says devatas such as Indra, wind god, Agni, and Yama perform their duties because they are afraid of the Supreme Brahman.

भीषाऽस्माद्वातः पवते । भीषोदंति सूर्यः ।
भीषाऽस्मादग्निंश्चेन्द्रश्च । मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चंम इति
Meaning: From the fear of Him, Vatah (the wind) blows, from fear of Him the sun rises. From fear of Him the five divinities such as Agni (fire), Indra, and Mrityu (death) work.

Through the fear of Him the Wind bloweth, through the fear of Him the Sun riseth; through the fear of Him Indra and Agni and Death hasten in their courses. Behold this exposition of the Bliss to which ye shall hearken. Let there be a young man, excellent and lovely in his youth, a great student; let him have fair manners and a most firm heart

Katha Upanishad 2.3.3 of Krishna Yajurveda also clearly says how devatas perform all their duties out of fear of the Supreme Brahman.
भयादस्याग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः ।
भयादिन्द्रश्चाग्निश्च मृत्युर्धावति पंचमः ॥
Meaning: Out of fear of God, the fire burns, the sun heats, and Indra, Vayu as well and Yama function briskly

> For fear of Him the fire burneth, for fear of Him the sun giveth heat, for fear of Him Indra and Vayu and Death hasten to their courses.

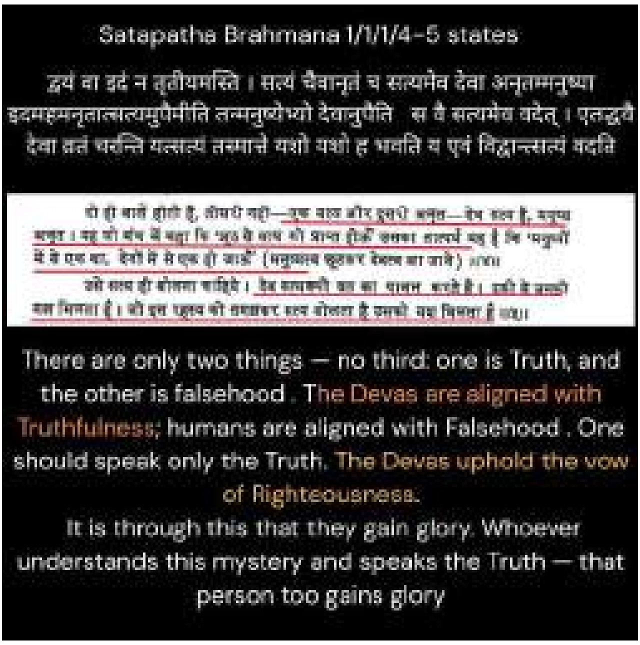
Satapatha Brahmana 1/1/1/4-5 states

द्वयं वा इदं न तृतीयमस्ति । सत्यं चैवानृतं च सत्यमेव देवा अनृतम्मनुष्या इदमहमनृतात्सत्यमुपैमीति तन्मनुष्येभ्यो देवानुपैति स वै सत्यमेव वदेत् । एतद्धवै देवा व्रतं चरन्ति यत्सत्यं तस्मात्ते यशो यशो ह भवति य एवं विद्वान्त्सत्यं वदति

There are only two things — no third:
ne is Truth, and the other is falsehood

. The Devas are aligned with Truthfulness; humans are aligned with Falsehood . One should speak only the Truth. The Devas uphold the vow of Righteousness.

It is through this that they gain glory. Whoever understands this mystery and speaks the Truth — that person too gains glory



Satapatha Brahmana 2/4/2/6 states

he Devas , Pitaras or animals do not violate rules. It is only some humans who do. Among humans, the one who becomes overweight does so because of inauspicious actions.And since he becomes overweight due to untruth (anṛta), he cannot move properly — his legs stagger.

Therefore, one should eat only in the evening and morning. Whoever understands this secret and eats only in the evening and morning attains a full lifespan. And whatever such a person speaks — that indeed comes true, because the Devas protects ighteousness (Satya).Whoever is able to follow the vow of Prajapati, Brahma-tejas (the spiritual brilliance of Brahman) arises within him

Aitraya Brahmana 1.6 states

सत्यसंहिता वै देवाः।that is the Devas are righteous

Nirukta 7.16 states देवो दानाद्वा । दीपनाद्वा । द्योतनाद्वा । द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । यो देवः सा देवता । Thus, one is called a Deva because of giving (donation), shining, illuminating, and dwelling in the heavenly realm (dyu-sthāna). The one who is a Deva is referred to as a Devatā

In this way, those who are radiant with knowledge, who impart knowledge to others, and who possess divine qualities and noble conduct — such wise individuals are called Devas

Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 says अपहतपाप्मानो देवा अप पाप्मानं हतेऽमृता देवा नामृतत्वस्याशास्ति। that is Devas do not do any sinful activity and Devas attained immortality by destroying Sins

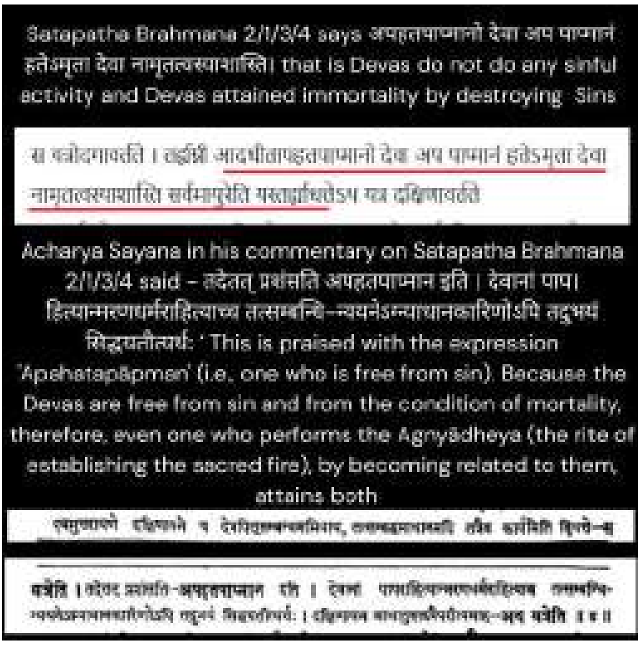
Acharya Sayana in his commentary on Satapatha Brahmana 2/1/3/4 said – तदेतत् प्रशंसति अपहतपाप्मान इति । देवानां पाप। हित्यान्मरणधर्मराहित्याच्च तत्सम्बन्धि- न्ययनेऽग्न्याधानकारिणोऽपि तदुभयं सिद्धयतीत्यर्थः ’ This is praised with the expression ‘Apahatapāpman’ (i.e., one who is free from sin). Because the Devas are free from sin and from the condition of mortality, therefore, even one who performs the Agnyādheya (the rite of establishing the sacred fire), by becoming related to them, attains both

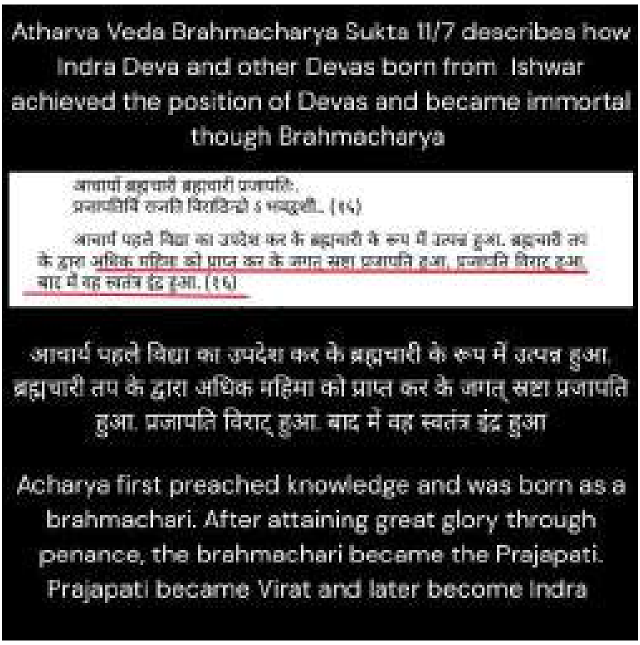


Devas follow Strict Brahmacharya

Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7 describes how Indra Deva and other Devas born from Ishwar achieved the position of Devas and became immortal though Brahmacharya

आचार्य पहले विद्या का उपदेश कर के ब्रह्मचारी के रूप में उत्पन्न हुआ. ब्रह्मचारी तप के द्वारा अधिक महिमा को प्राप्त कर के जगत् स्रष्टा प्रजापति हुआ. प्रजापति विराट् हुआ. बाद में वह स्वतंत्र इंद्र हुआ

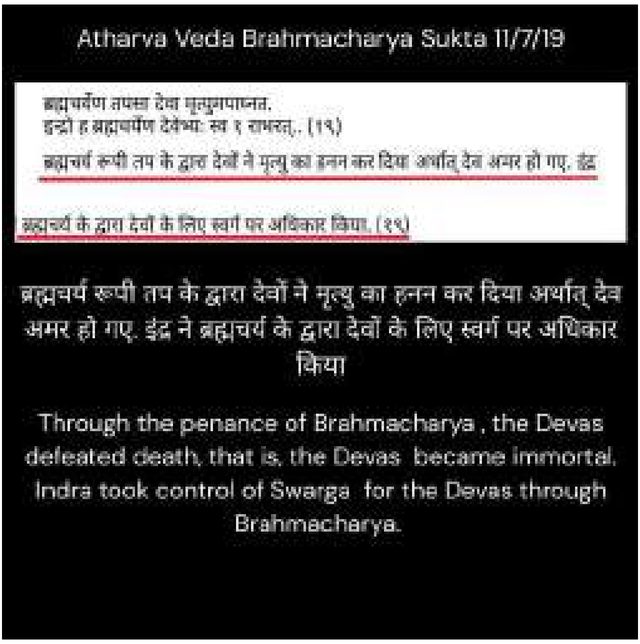
Acharya first preached knowledge and was born as a brahmachari. After attaining great glory through penance, the brahmachari became the Prajapati. Prajapati became Virat and later become Indra



Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7/19

ब्रह्मचर्य रूपी तप के द्वारा देवों ने मृत्यु का हनन कर दिया अर्थात् देव अमर हो गए. इंद्र ने ब्रह्मचर्य के द्वारा देवों के लिए स्वर्ग पर अधिकार किया

Through the penance of Brahmacharya , the Devas defeated death, that is, the Devas became immortal. Indra took control of Swarga for the Devas through Brahmacharya.

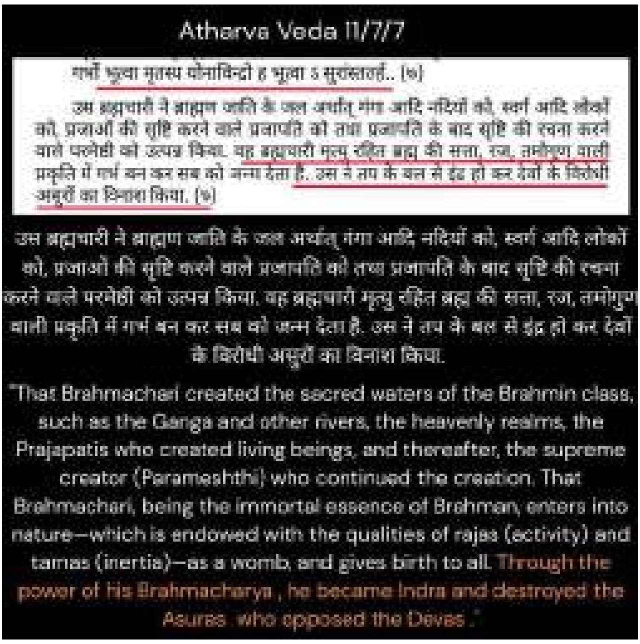


Atharva Veda 11/7/7

उस ब्रह्मचारी ने ब्राह्मण जाति के जल अर्थात् गंगा आदि नदियों को, स्वर्ग आदि लोकों को, प्रजाओं की

सृष्टि करने वाले प्रजापति को तथा प्रजापति के बाद सृष्टि की रचना करने वाले परमेष्ठी को उत्पन्न किया. वह ब्रह्मचारी मृत्यु रहित ब्रह्म की सत्ता, रज, तमोगुण वाली प्रकृति में गर्भ बन कर सब को जन्म देता है. उस ने तप के बल से इंद्र हो कर देवों के विरोधी असुरों का विनाश किया.

“That Brahmachari created the sacred waters of the Brahmin class, such as the Ganga and other rivers, the heavenly realms, the Prajapatis who created living beings, and thereafter, the supreme creator (Parameshthi) who continued the creation. That Brahmachari, being the immortal essence of Brahman, enters into nature—which is endowed with the qualities of rajas (activity) and tamas (inertia)—as a womb, and gives birth to all. Through the power of his Brahmacharya , he became Indra and destroyed the Asuras who opposed the Devas .”



Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can become Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी ृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों

अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between earth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas

Atharva Veda 11/7/14 states all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas follow Strict Brahmacharya and live in Brahmacharya

ब्रह्मचर्य का पालन करने वाला पुरुष दीप्ति वाले वेदरूपी ब्रह्म को धारण करता है. उस वेद से सभी देव संबंधित हैं. देवों का निवास बना हुआ ब्रह्मचारी प्राण और अपान के बाद ज्ञान को, मन, वाणी, हृदय और मेधा को उत्पन्न करता है

A man who practices Brahmacharya attains the Brahm in the form of the Veda which is full of light. All the Devas re related to that Veda. Brahmacharya is the abode of the Devas it produces knowledge, mind, speech, heart and intelligence after Prana and Apan.

All these Rules and Restrictions like behaving free from sin , Non-violence, celibacy, truth, simplicity, absence of anger, renunciation of fault-finding, restraint of the senses and not to gossip and keeping senses under control and behaving friendly with everyone, forgiving and avoiding intoxicants, meat, perfumes, garlands, and pleasurable foods, as well as all fermented substances and violence towards living beings and avoiding contact with Parstree are part of Brahmacharya and practiced by all Devas including Devraj Indra as part of their vow of Brahmacharya which gives them their powers and Devatva

Atharva Veda Brahmacharya Sukta 11/7 – ब्रह्मचर्य रूपी तप के द्वारा देवों ने मृत्यु का हनन कर दिया अर्थात् देव अमर हो गए. इंद्र ने ब्रह्मचर्य के द्वारा देवों के लिए स्वर्ग पर अधिकार किया . Through the penance of Brahmacharya , the Devas defeated death, that is, the Devas became immortal. Indra took control of Swarga for the Devas through Brahmacharya.

Yajur Veda 36.17 –

May the sky be peaceful; may the mid-space be peaceful; may the earth be peaceful; may the waters be peaceful; may the annual plants be peaceful; may the forests be peaceful;may all the bounties of Nature be peaceful; may the knowledge be peaceful; may all the things be peaceful; may there be peace and peace only; may such a peace come to me.

Response to Vedakbhed and Hindu script . Refutation of Weak Gods in Hinduism

Written by Rohan Saini in Uncategorized

This entire article is a response and rebuttal to the blogs called VedKaBhed and Hinduscript regarding their claims of " Weak Gods in Hinduism".

Before reading this article I suggest everyone to read my previous article on the Basic Concept of God in Sanatan Dharma which is very imp to understand before debunking these allegations

Explaining the Basic Concept of God in Sanatan Dharma

First of all In Sanatan Dharma Ishwar (God) is one and only without a second . This is evident from the following Pramanas Taittriya Samhita 1.8.6 says -एको हि रुद्रो न द्वितीयाय meaning Rudra (God) is one and only one and second to none Chandogya Upanishad 6/2/1 – सदेव सोम्येदमग्र आसीदेकमेवाद्वितीयम् । तद्धैक आहुरसदेवेदमग्र … Continue reading

Allegations-

1. Gods Were Born

1. Gods Were Born

📚Atharva Veda 10.7.25
Great, verily, are those Gods who sprang from non-existence into life. Further, men say that that one part of Skambha is nonentity."

📚Rig Veda 10.129.6
Who verily knows and who can here declare it, whence it was born and whence comes this creation? The Gods are later than this world's production. Who knows then whence it first came into being?"

📚Atharva Veda 10.7.25📚
Great, verily, are those Gods who sprang from non-existence into life. Further, men say that that one part of Skambha is nonentity."

📚Rig Veda 10.129.6📚
Who verily knows and who can here declare it, whence it was born and whence comes this creation? The Gods are later than this world's production. Who knows then whence it first came into being?"

2. Gods Had To Attain Immortality

It is said that Vedic deities were mortal so in order to attain immortality, they drank the Soma,

📚Rig Veda 9.106.8📚
Thy drops that swim in water have exalted Indra to delight: The Gods have drunk thee up for immortality."

Immortality was also bestowed by other deities,

📚Atharva Veda 4.14.1📚
The Goat was verily produced from Agni. Through sorrow he beheld, at first, his father. Through him at first the Gods attained to godhead, and, meet for sacrifices, were exalted."

📚Rig Veda 10.167.1📚
This pleasant meath, O Indra, is effused for thee: thou art the ruling Lord of beaker and of juice Bestow upon us wealth with many hero sons: thou, having glowed with Fervour, wonnest heavenly light."

3. Gods Suffering From Illness

Gods suffer from various diseases and disabilities,

📚Atharva Veda 7.53.1📚
As thou, Brihaspati, from the curse hast saved us, from dwelling yonder in the realm of Yama, The Asvins, leeches of the Gods, O Agni, have chased Death far from us with mighty powers."

According to the Satapatha Brahmana, Indra is said to have suffered from Jaundice and was treated with Soma,

📚Satapatha Brahmana 1.6.4.9📚
In the same way as the Soma stalk becomes strong (by being touched or sprinkled with water), so he (Indra) became strong (by the Soma being mixed with boiled milk) and overcame that evil, the jaundice..."

According to the Atharva Veda, Varuna is said to have experienced impotence, and his virility was later restored by Gandharvas,

📚Atharva Veda 4.4.1-8📚
Thee, the plant, which the Gandharva dug up for Varuna, when his virility had decayed, thee, that causest strength, we dig up. Ushas (Aurora), Sûrya, (the sun), and this charm of mine; the bull Pragâpati (the lord of creatures) shall with his lusty fire arouse him! This herb shall make thee so very full of lusty strength, that thou shalt, when thou art excited, exhale heat as a thing on fire! The fire of the plants, and the essence of the bulls shall arouse him! Do thou, O Indra, controller of bodies, place the lusty force of men into this person! Thou (O herb) art the first-born sap of the waters and also of the plants. Moreover thou art the brother of Soma, and the lusty force of the antelope buck! Now, O Agni, now, O Savitar, now, O goddess Sarasvatî, now, O Brahmanaspati, do thou stiffen the pasas as a bow! I stiffen thy pasas as a bowstring upon the bow. Embrace thou (women) as the antelope buck the gazelle with ever unfailing (strength)! The strength of the horse, the mule, the goat and the ram, moreover the strength of the bull bestow upon him, O controller of bodies (Indra)."

Refutation-

All the references quoted by him are talking about Devas and not about Ishwar

Nirukta 7.16 states देवो दानाद्वा । दीपनाद्वा । द्योतनाद्वा । द्युस्थानो भवतीति वा । यो देवः सा देवता । Thus, one is called a Deva because of giving (donation), shining, illuminating, and dwelling in the heavenly realm (dyu-sthāna). The one who is a Deva is referred to as a Devatā

In this way, those who are radiant with knowledge, who impart knowledge to others, and who possess divine qualities and noble conduct — such wise individuals are called Devas

After this, the Vidagdha Shakalya asked Yājñavalkya, "O Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?" Then Yājñavalkya explained their number according to the Nivid that is to be stated ahead. "As many as are mentioned in the Nivid of the Vaiśvadeva—that is, in the mantra-verses that declare the number of the Devas—they are three and three hundred, and three and three thousand (i.e., three thousand three hundred and six)."

[Then Shakalya said,] "Alright," and asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

Yājñavalkya said, "Thirty-three."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and asked again, "So, Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

[Yājñavalkya replied,] "Six."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and again asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

[Yājñavalkya said,] "Three."

[Shakalya said,] "Alright," and once more asked, "Yājñavalkya! How many Devas are there?"

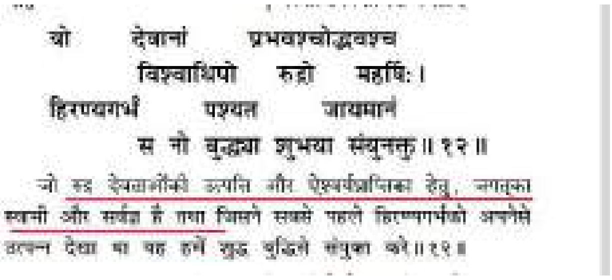
Ishwar created Devas

Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 4 Mantra 12 says

जो रुद्र देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति और ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तिका हेतु, जगत्का स्वामी और सर्वज्ञ है तथा जिसने सबसे पहले हिरण्यगर्भको अपनेसे उत्पन्न देखा था वह हमें शुद्ध बुद्धिसे संयुक्त करे ॥ १२

He who is Rudra, the originator and bestower of strength to the Devas ,
He who has become the Lord of the universe and its dissolution,
He who rules over both bipeds and quadrupeds —
May He unite us with pure and auspicious intellect



यो देवानां प्रभवश्चोद्भवश्च

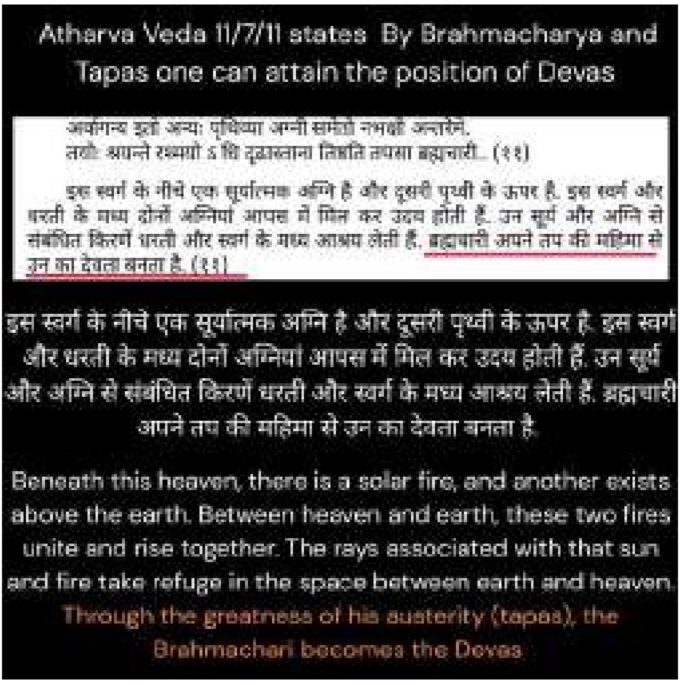
जो रुद्र देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति और ऐश्वर्यप्राप्तिका हेतु, जगत्‌का स्वामी और सर्वज्ञ है तथा जिसने सबसे पहले हिरण्यगर्भको अपनेसे उत्पन्न देखा था वह हमें शुद्ध बुद्धिसे संयुक्त करे ॥ १२ ॥

Atharva Veda 11/7/11 states only By Brahmacharya one can attain the postion of Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

इस स्वर्ग के नीचे एक सूर्यात्मक अग्नि है और दूसरी पृथ्वी के ऊपर है. इस स्वर्ग और धरती के मध्य दोनों अग्नियां आपस में मिल कर उदय होती हैं. उन सूर्य और अग्नि से संबंधित किरणें धरती और स्वर्ग के मध्य आश्रय लेती हैं. ब्रह्मचारी अपने तप की महिमा से उन का देवता बनता है.

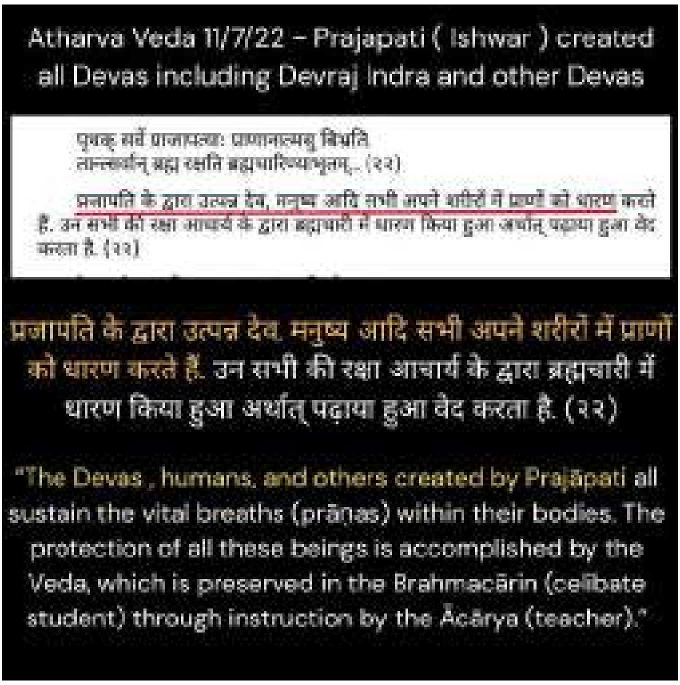
Beneath this heaven, there is a solar fire, and another exists above the earth. Between heaven and earth, these two fires unite and rise together. The rays associated with that sun and fire take refuge in the space between earth and heaven. Through the greatness of his austerity (tapas), the Brahmachari becomes the Devas



Atharva Veda 11/7/22 – Prajapati (Ishwar) created all Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas

प्रजापति के द्वारा उत्पन्न देव, मनुष्य आदि सभी अपने शरीरों में प्राणों को धारण करते हैं. उन सभी की रक्षा आचार्य के द्वारा ब्रह्मचारी में धारण किया हुआ अर्थात् पढ़ाया हुआ वेद करता है. (२२)

“The Devas , humans, and others created by Prajāpati all sustain the vital breaths (prāṇas) within their bodies. The protection of all these beings is accomplished by the Veda, which is preserved in the Brahmacārin (celibate student) through instruction by the Ācārya (teacher).”



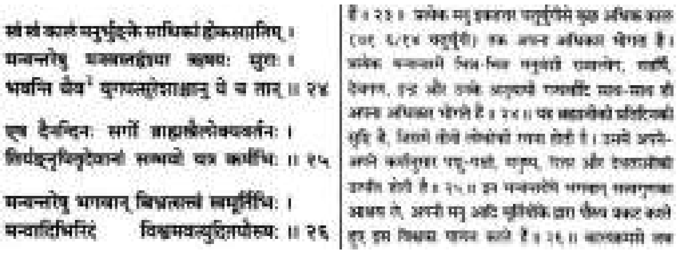
Srimad Bhagavatam 3.11.24-26 tells that in every period of Brahma – Devas including Devraj Indra and other Devas are born again and again and attain their position per their karma

॥ प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अनुयायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ।॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Verse 24:
"Each Manu enjoys his reign for a duration slightly more than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In every Manvantara, different rulers of the Manu lineage, the Saptarishis (seven sages), groups of gods (Devas), Indra, and their attendants like the Gandharvas also enjoy their respective domains."

Verse 25:
"This is the daily creation (nitya-srishti) of Brahma, in which the three worlds are created. According to their individual karmas, various beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors (Pitṛs), and Devas are born."

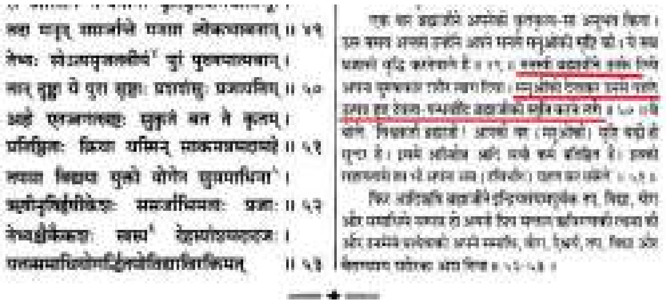
Verse 26:
"In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (goodness), assumes forms such as Manu and others to manifest His divine power (Pauruṣa) and uphold the order of the universe through protection and sustenance."



Srimad Bhagvatam 3/20/50 Geeta Press Gorakhpur

मनस्वी ब्रह्माजीने उनके लिये अपना पुरुषाकार शरीर त्याग दिया। मन्ओंको देखकर उनसे पहले उत्पन्न हुए देवता-गन्धर्वादि ब्रह्माजीकी स्त्ति करने लगे ॥ ५० ॥

“Manasvi Brahmaji gave up his masculine form for her. Seeing Manas (the mind), the Devas , Gandharvas, and others who were created before him began to praise Brahmaji.



Shri Vishnu Purana Amsa 1 Adhaya 5

श्रीमैत्रेयजी बोले- हे द्विजराज ! सर्गके आदिमे भगवान् ब्रह्माजीने पृथिवी, आकाश और जल आदिमे रहनेवाले देव, ऋषि, पितृगण, दानव, मनुष्य, तिर्यक् और वृक्षादिको जिस प्रकार रचा तथा जैसे गुण, स्वभाव और रूपवाले जगत्की रचना की वह सब आप मुझसे कहिये ॥ १-२ ॥

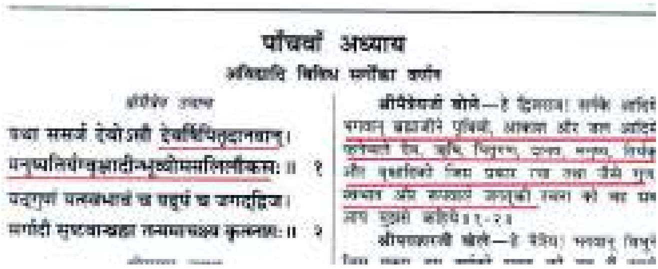
प्रत्येक मनु इकहत्तर चतुर्युगीसे कुछ अधिक काल (७१ ६/१४ चतुर्युगी) तक अपना अधिकार भोगता है। प्रत्येक मन्वन्तरमें भिन्न-भिन्न मनुवंशी राजालोग, सप्तर्षि, देवगण, इन्द्र और उनके अन्यायी गन्धर्वादि साथ-साथ ही अपना अधिकार भोगते हैं ॥ २४ ॥ यह ब्रह्माजीकी प्रतिदिनकी सृष्टि है, जिसमें तीनों लोकोंकी रचना होती है। उसमें अपने-अपने कर्मानुसार पशु-पक्षी, मनुष्य, पितर और देवताओंकी उत्पत्ति होती है ॥ २५ ॥ इन मन्वन्तरोंमें भगवान् सत्त्वगुणका आश्रय ले, अपनी मनु आदि मूर्तियोंके द्वारा पौरुष प्रकट करते हुए इस विश्वका पालन करते हैं॥ २६

Maitreya said:
O chief among the twice-born (Brahmins), at the beginning of creation, Brahma ji created the Devas, sages, ancestors (Pitṛs), demons (Dānavas), humans, animals, birds, and trees, who dwell in the earth, sky, water, and other realms. Please describe to me how he created them, and how he gave them their qualities, natures, and forms. (Verses 1–2)

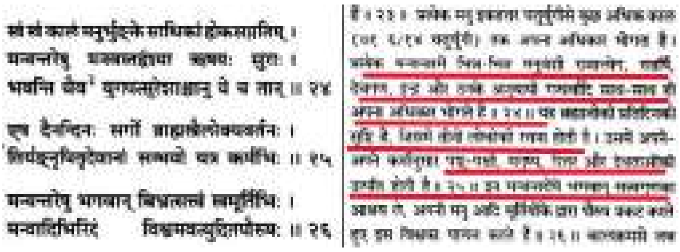
Verse 24:
Each Manu enjoys his rule for a period slightly longer than seventy-one Chaturyugas (specifically, 71 6/14 Chaturyugas). In each Manvantara (the reign of a Manu), different kings of the lineage of that Manu, the seven great sages (Saptarishis), groups of Devas , Indra, and their followers like the Gandharvas exercise their respective authorities.

Verse 25:
This is the daily creation (naimittika sṛṣṭi) of Lord Brahma, in which the three worlds are formed. According to their individual karmas, beings such as animals, birds, humans, ancestors, and Devas come into existence.

Verse 26:
In these Manvantaras, the Lord, taking refuge in the quality of Sattva (purity), manifests his divine energy (Pauruṣa) through forms like Manu and sustains the universe.

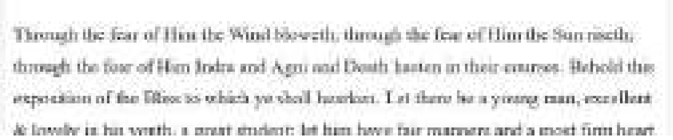


पाँचवाँ अध्याय



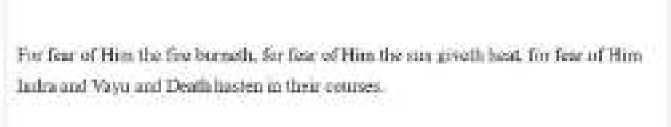
Taittriya Aranyaka 5.14.8 as well as Taittriya Upanishad 2.8.1 of Krishna Yajurveda clearly says devatas such as Indra, wind god, Agni, and Yama perform their duties because they are afraid of the Supreme Brahman.

भीषाऽस्माद्वातः पवते । भीषोदंति सूर्यः । भीषाऽस्मादग्निंश्वेन्दृश्च । मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चंम इति
Meaning: From the fear of Him, Vatah (the wind) blows, from fear of Him the sun rises. From fear of Him the five divinities such as Agni (fire), Indra, and Mrityu (death) work.



Through the fear of Him the Wind bloweth, through the fear of Him the Sun riseth; through the fear of Him Indra and Agni and Death hasten in their courses. Behold this exposition of the Bliss to which ye shall hearken. Let there be a young man, excellent & lovely in his youth, a great student; let him have fair manners and a most firm heart

Katha Upanishad 2.3.3 of Krishna Yajurveda also clearly says how devatas perform all their duties out of fear of the Supreme Brahman.
भयादस्याग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः । भयादिन्द्रश्चाग्निश्च मृत्युर्धावति पंचमः ॥
Meaning: Out of fear of God, the fire burns, the sun heats, and Indra, Vayu as well and Yama function briskly.



For fear of Him the fire burneth, for fear of Him the sun giveth heat, for fear of Him Indra and Vayu and Death hasten in their courses.

So it must be clear from these that Devas are totally different from Ishwar . Devas are created by Ishwar and all Devas work under the fear of Ishwar . In every creation of Brahma ji Devas are born again and again and attain their position as per their Karma

In Sanatan Dharma Ishwar (God) is one and only without a second . This is evident from the following Pramanas

Taittriya Samhita 1.8.6 says -एको हि रुद्रो न द्वितीयाय meaning Rudra (God) is one and only one and second to none

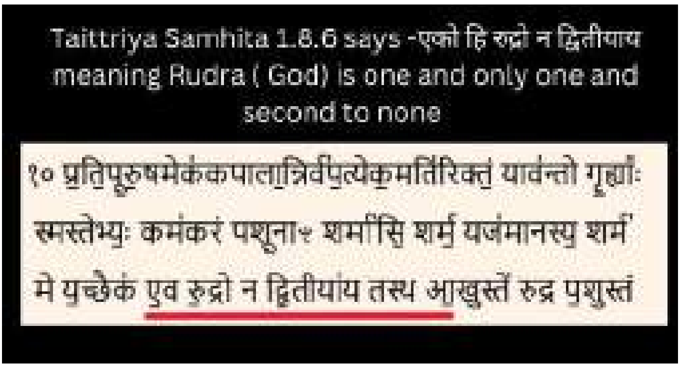
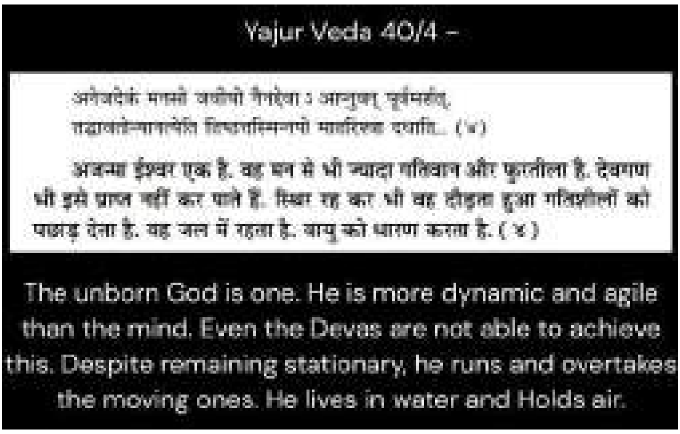


Yajur Veda 40/4 –

अजन्मा ईश्वर एक है. वह मन से भी ज्यादा गतिवान और फुरतीला है. देवगण भी इसे प्राप्त नहीं कर पाते हैं. स्थिर रह कर भी वह दौड़ता हुआ गतिशीलों को पछाड़ देता है. वह जल में रहता है. वायु को धारण करता है

The unborn God is one. He is more dynamic and agile than the mind. Even the Devas are not able to achieve this. Despite remaining stationary, he runs and overtakes the moving ones. He lives in water and Holds air.



Shvetashvatara Upanishad 6.11

God, who is one only, is hidden in all beings. He is all-pervading, and is the inner self of all creatures. He presides over all actions, and all beings reside in Him. He is the witness, and He is the Pure Consciousness free from the three Gunas of Nature.

God, who is one only, is hidden in all beings. He is all-pervading, and is the inner self of all creatures. He presides over all actions, and all beings reside in Him. He is the witness, and He is the Pure Consciousness free from the three Guṇas[1] of Nature.

Shvetashvatara Upanishad Chapter 1 Mantra 3

Practising the method of meditation, they realized that Being who' is the God of religion, the Self of philosophy and the Energy of science; who exists as the self-luminous power in everyone; who is the source of the intellect, emotions and will; who is one without a second; who presides over all the causes enu-merated above, beginning with time and ending with the individual soul; and who had been incomprehensible because of the limitations of their own intellect.

In Advaita Vedanta Tradition its believed that One Ishwar (God) takes the form of Narayana , Rudra , Ganapati , Shakti (Lakshmi , Sarasvati Parvati) and Surya

Geeta Press Gorakhpur writes in the beginning of the book "पंचदेव-अथर्वशीर्ष-संग्रह "

पंचदेवों- गणेश, शिव, शक्ति, विष्णु एवं सूर्यके क्रमशः पाँच अथर्वशीर्ष हैं- गणपत्यथर्वशीर्षम्, शिवाथर्वशीर्षम्, देव्यथर्वशीर्षम्, नारायणाथर्वशीर्षम् एवं सूर्याथर्वशीर्षम् ।
अपने शास्त्रोंमें इन पंचदेवोंकी मान्यता पूर्णब्रह्मके रूपमें है, इसीलिये इन पंचदेवोंमेंसे किसी एकको अपना इष्ट बनाकर उपासना करनेकी पद्धति है। गणपतिके उपासक गाणपत्य, शिवके उपासक शैव, शक्तिके उपासक शाक्त, विष्णुके उपासक वैष्णव तथा सूर्यके उपासक सौर कहे जाते हैं।
समस्त देवी-देवताओंके उपर्युक्त पंचदेवोंमें अन्तर्भूत होनेसे किसी भी स्वरूपका उपासक अपने इष्टदेवकी सर्वोत्कृष्टताका गूढ़ रहस्य सम्बन्धित अथर्वशीर्षके माध्यमसे जानकर उनकी कृपाका भाजन बन जाता है। प्रत्येक अथर्वशीर्षमें अपने देवको ही सर्वोत्कृष्ट, सर्वनियन्ता और परब्रह्म बताया गया है। इससे कुछ पाठक प्रथमदृष्ट्या भ्रमित भी हो सकते हैं, परंतु यह गूढ़ बात है। वस्तुतः परब्रह्म परमेश्वर ही पंचदेवोंके रूपोंमें व्यक्त हैं तथा सम्पूर्ण चराचरमें भी वे ही व्याप्त हैं-'एको देवः सर्वभूतेषु गूढः.... ॥' (श्वेताश्वतर० ६।११) साधक अपनी-अपनी प्रकृति और रुचिके अनुसार ही इन पंचदेवोंमें किसी एक देवको अपना इष्ट मानकर उनकी आराधना करके अधिक सहजतासे भगवत्प्राप्ति कर पाता है, उसके लिये वही स्वरूप सर्वश्रेष्ठ

The five principal deities—Ganesha, Shiva, Shakti, Vishnu, and Surya—each have a corresponding Atharvashirsha: Ganapatyatharvashirsham, Shiv and Suryatharvashirsham.

In our scriptures, these five deities are revered as manifestations of the Supreme Brahman. Hence, there is a tradition of choosing one among these five as one's Ishta Devata (chosen deity) and worshipping them accordingly. Worshippers of Ganesha are called Ganapatyas, of Shiva Shaivas, of Shakti Shaktas, of Vishnu Vaishnavas, and of Surya Sauras.

Since all other deities are encompassed within these five, a devotee—regardless of the specific form they worship—can realize the supreme greatness of their chosen deity through the profound teachings of the respective Atharvashirsha. Each Atharvashirsha describes its deity as the highest, the ultimate controller, and as Parabrahman (Supreme Reality).

This might initially confuse some readers, but this concept is deeply philosophical. In truth, the Supreme God (Parabrahman) is manifest in the forms of these five deities, and He pervades all of creation—"Eko Devaḥ Sarva Bhūteṣu Gūḍhaḥ..." (Shvetashvatara Upanishad 6.11).

Thus, a seeker, according to their own nature and preference, chooses one of these deities as their Ishta and, through devotion, can more easily attain God-realization. For that devotee, that very form becomes the supreme one.

पंचदेवों—गणेश, शिव, शक्ति, विष्णु एवं सूर्यके क्रमशः पाँच अथर्वशीर्ष हैं—गणपत्यथर्वशीर्षम्, शिवाथर्वशीर्षम्, देव्यथर्वशीर्षम्, नारायणाथर्वशीर्षम् एवं सूर्याथर्वशीर्षम्।

Nature of Ishwar as per Shruti

वह परमपिता सर्वव्यापक, चमकीला, (दीप्तिमान), काया रहित, नाड़ियों से रहित है. वह घावों से रहित, पवित्र, पाप रहित, विद्वान्, मननशील, सर्वव्यापक व स्वयंभू (स्वयं उत्पन्न होने वाला) है. उस ने सृष्टि के आरंभ से ही सब के लिए यथायोग्य साधन सुविधाओं की व्यवस्था की है. (८)

"He is the Supreme Father, all-pervading, radiant (luminous), without a physical body, and without veins. He is without wounds, pure, sinless, wise, contemplative, omnipresent, and self-existent (self-born). "Sa paryagāt" — He (the seeker) attains or fully realizes.

The one who worships the Self in this manner (evam ātmānam upāste) attains (parigacchati) the pure, luminous, blissful, and conscious Brahman, which is:

- Shukra/Shukla: Radiant and pure.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñānānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.
- Shuddha: Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Apāpaviddha: Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions (kleśa, karma, vipāka, āśaya).

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence and purity. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Thus, such a Brahman is realized (itthambhūtaṁ brahma pratipadyate).

Now, the fruit of worshiping the Self is described:

The one who is:

- A seer (kaviḥ),
- A thinker (manīṣī),
- A wise one (medhāvī),
- One who transcends all (paribhūḥ),
- Self-born (svayambhūḥ) through the power of knowledge,
- One who becomes Brahman itself through the strength of realization,

Such a person orders all things rightly, according to their true nature (yāthātathyataḥ arthān vyadadhāt). He has renounced ownership and possessiveness, and enjoys the world—both sentient and insentient—without attachment.

He performs karma not for worldly gain, but for the eternal welfare of all beings, across countless ages (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ).

Objection: Isn't karma a product of ignorance and bondage?

Answer: True—but when karma is done as a means of self-purification, it becomes a path to Brahman-realization. Therefore, even such a person attains the pure, bodiless Brahman (śukram akāyaṁ brahma).

"Thus is the fruit of one who knows the Self." He who perceives the Self in this manner attains (paryagāt) such a Brahman. What kind of Brahman?

- Shukra: Pure, luminous, and radiant.
- Shuddha: Free from impurity.
- Of the nature of knowledge and bliss (vijñāna-ānanda-svabhāva).
- Possessing inconceivable power (acintya-śakti).
- Akāya: Bodiless—having no physical form.
- Avraṇa: Woundless—cannot be injured.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins—free from physiological structure.
- Pure and untouched by the three guṇas (sattva, rajas, tamas).
- Unpierced by sin—unaffected by afflictions, karma, its results, or latent impressions.

The repetition of akāya, avraṇa, asnāvira is not redundant—it emphasizes Brahman's transcendence. As Yāska says in Nirukta 10.42: "Repetition strengthens meaning."

Further fruit of such realization is described:

The one who worships in this way:

- Kavi: Seer, one with deep insight.
- Manīṣī: Wise and discerning.
- Medhāvī: Possessing intellect and memory.
- Paribhūḥ: One who transcends all—by the power of knowledge, he becomes all forms.
- Svayambhūḥ: Self-born—he becomes Brahman itself.

Such a person also attains the previously described Brahman—pure, bodiless, and radiant.

Alternate interpretation of the verse:

The Self described in earlier mantras is one who pervades all (paryagāt), like space, encompassing everything. Having pervaded all, he organizes duties and responsibilities (arthān vyadadhāt) for eternal beings (śāśvatībhyaḥ samābhyaḥ) and for the attainment of infinite time (ananta-varṣa-prāpti), based on the true nature of karma and its results.

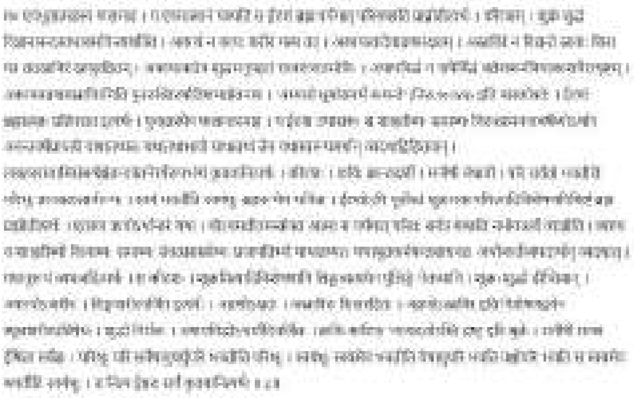
Qualities of Brahman:

- Shukra: Pure and luminous.
- Akāya: Without body—free from even subtle forms.

- Avraṇa: Unwounded.
- Asnāvira: Without sinews or veins.
- Shuddha: Spotless.
- Apāpa-viddha: Untouched by sin or unrighteousness.
- Kavi: All-seeing—"There is no other seer than this," says the Upaniṣad.
- Manīṣī: All-knowing—directed by the mind.
- Paribhūḥ: One who exists above all.
- Svayambhūḥ: One who exists by himself, above all others.

He is the eternal Lord (nitya īśvaraḥ)—the one who has done all, created all.

Such a Brahman is attained by the knower of the Self.



Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 6 Mantra 19 says

He who at the beginning of creation projected Brahma (Universal Consciousness), who delivered the Vedas unto him, who constitutes the supreme bridge of immortality, who is partless, free from actions, tranquil, faultless, taintless, and resembles the fire that has consumed its fuel, -seeking liberation I go for refuge to that Effulgent One, whose light turns the understanding towards the Atman.

Svetasvatara Upanishad Chapter 2 Mantra 15

When the Yogin realizes the truth of Brah-man, through the perception of the truth of Atman in this body as a self-luminous entity, then, knowing the Divinity as unborn, eternal and free from all the modifications of Prakṛti, he is freed from all sins.

CHAPTER TWO 55

When the Yogin realizes the truth of Brahman, through the perception of the truth of Ātman in this body as a self-luminous entity, then, knowing the Divinity as unborn, eternal and free from all the modifications of Prakṛti, he is freed from all sins.

Svetasvatara Upanishad Chapter 4 Mantra 2

That Itself is the fire, That is the sun, That is the air, That is the moon, That is also the starry firmament, That is the Brahman, That is the waters, That is Prajāpati.

NOTES-This Mantra is very important; it shows that the various gods that we meet with in the Vedas, such as Agni (fire), Aditya (sun) and the rest represent the same Being; therefore there is no reason to con-sider that the Vedic religion advocates the worship of different gods. The Mantra occurs in the Samhita portion also.

Svetasvatara Upanishad Chapter 2 Mantra 18

Salutations to the Divinity who is in the fire, who is in the water, who is in the plants, who is in the trees, who has pervaded the whole universe.

Svetasvatara Upanishad chapter 3 Mantra 11

Therefore, that Divine Lord, being all-per-vading, omnipresent and benevolent, 2 dwells in the hearts of all beings, and makes use of all faces, heads and necks in this world

सर्वाननशिरोग्रीवः सर्वभूतगुहाशयः ।
सर्वव्यापी स भगवांस्तस्मात् सर्वगतः शिवः ॥ ११ ॥

तस्मात् therefore सः that भगवान् Divine Lord सर्वव्यापी pervading everything, सर्वगतः omnipresent, शिवः benevolent (सन् being), सर्वाननशिरोग्रीवः making use of all faces, heads and necks सर्वभूतगुहाशयः dwells in the hearts of all beings.

Therefore,[1] that Divine Lord, being all-pervading, omnipresent and benevolent,[2] dwells in the hearts of all beings, and makes[3] use of all faces, heads and necks in this world.

Allegations-

Krishna was killed by a hunter

📚Vishnu Purana 5.37📚
Respecting the words of the Brahman, the imprecation of Durvásas, the illustrious Krishńa sat engaged in thought, resting his foot upon his knee. Then came there a hunter, named Jará, whose arrow was tipped with a blade made of the piece of iron of the club, which had not been reduced to powder; and beholding from a distance the foot of Krishńa, he mistook it for part of a deer, and shooting his arrow, lodged it in the sole. Approaching his mark, he saw the four-armed king, and, falling at his feet, repeatedly besought his forgiveness, exclaiming, "I have done this deed unwittingly, thinking I was aiming at a deer! Have pity upon me, who am consumed by my crime; for thou art able to consume me!" Bhagavat replied, "Fear not thou in the least. Go, hunter, through my favour, to heaven, the abode of the gods." As soon as he had thus spoken, a celestial car appeared, and the hunter, ascending it, forthwith proceeded to heaven. Then the illustrious Krishńa, having united himself with his own pure, spiritual, inexhaustible, inconceivable, unborn, undecaying, imperishable, and universal spirit, which is one with Vásudeva, abandoned his mortal body and the condition of the threefold qualities."

Refutation-

Did Bhagwan Shree Krishna face birth and death in his Avatar ?

Mahabharat Anushasan Parva Adhaya 149 – Bhimsa Pitamah says that Bhagvan Shree Hari (Shree krishna) is devoid of Birth and death
अनादिनिधनं विष्णुं सर्वलोकमहेश्वरम् । लोकाध्यक्षं स्तुवन् नित्यं सर्वदुःखातिगो भवेत् ।। ६ ।।
उस जन्म-मत्य आदि छः भाव-विकारोंसे रहित, सर्वव्यापक, सम्पूर्ण लोकोंके महेश्वर, लोकाध्यक्ष देवकी निरन्तर स्तुति करनेसे मनुष्य सब दुःखोंसे पार हो जाता है ।। ६ ।।
"By ceaselessly praising that Lord of all worlds – who is free from the six modifications like birth and death, who is all-pervading, and the Supreme Lord of all realms and beings a person transcends all sorrows."

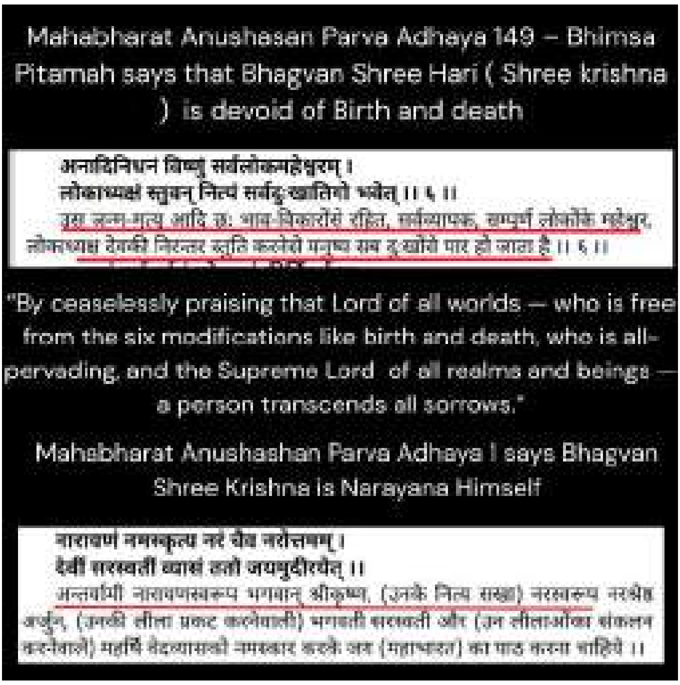
Mahabharat Anushashan Parva Adhaya 1 says Bhagvan Shree Krishna is Narayana (Ishwar) Himself

नारायणं नमस्कृत्य नरं चैव नरोत्तमम् । देवीं सरस्वतीं व्यासं ततो जयमुदीरयेत् ।।
अन्तर्यामी नारायणस्वरूप भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण, (उनके नित्य सखा) नरस्वरूप नरश्रेष्ठ अर्जुन, (उनकी लीला प्रकट करनेवाली) भगवती सरस्वती और (उन लीलाओंका संकलन करनेवाले) महर्षि वेदव्यासको नमस्कार करके जय (महाभारत) का पाठ करना चाहिये ।

One should begin the reading of the Mahabharata by bowing to Lord Shri Krishna, the omnipresent Narayana, Arjuna, his eternal friend in human form, Goddess Saraswati who reveals his divine plays, and Sage Vedavyasa who compiled them.



Subaala Upanishad, Khanda 7 says Shri Hari (Shree Krishna) is death and life himself. Death cannot touch him

Mahabharat Anushasan Parva Adhaya 149 – Bhimsa Pitamah says that Bhagvan Shree Krishna is devoid of Birth and death

भीष्मजीने कहा- बेटा! स्थावर-जंगमरूप संसारके स्वामी, ब्रह्मादि देवोंके देव, देश-काल और वस्तुसे अपरिच्छिन्न, क्षर-अक्षरसे श्रेष्ठ पुरुषोत्तमका सहस्रनामोंके द्वारा निरन्तर तत्पर रहकर गुण-संकीर्तन करनेसे पुरुष सब दुःखोंसे पार हो जाता है ।। ४ ।।

तथा उसी विनाशरहित पुरुषका सब समय भक्तिसे युक्त होकर पूजन करनेसे, उसीका ध्यान करनेसे तथा स्तवन एवं नमस्कार करनेसे पूजा करनेवाला सब दुःखोंसे छूट जाता है ।। ५ ।।

उस जन्म-मत्य आदि छः भाव-विकारोंसे रहित, सर्वव्यापक, सम्पूर्ण लोकोंके महेश्वर, लोकाध्यक्ष देवकी निरन्तर स्तुति करनेसे मनुष्य सब दुःखोंसे पार हो जाता है ।। ६ ।।

Verse 4:
Bhishma said – "O dear one! By constantly and sincerely engaging in the glorification of the Supreme Being — who is the Lord of both the immovable (stable) and movable (living) worlds, the God of gods including Brahma, beyond the limitations of space, time, and matter, and superior to both the perishable (kṣara) and the imperishable (akṣara) — through His thousand names, a person crosses over all sorrows."

Verse 5:
"And by worshipping that indestructible Supreme Being with constant devotion, by meditating upon Him, by singing His praises, and by offering prostrations, the devotee becomes free from all sorrows."

Verse 6:
"By ceaselessly praising that Lord of all worlds — who is free from the six modifications like birth and death, who is all-pervading, and the Supreme Lord (Maheshwara) of all realms and beings — a person transcends all sorrows."

In the Sri Vishnu Sahasranama, found in the Anushasan Parva Adhayay 149 of the Mahabharata, Bhagwan Shree Krishna is referred to as ११९ अमृतः-कभी न मरनेवाले (Name 119)

"The immortal one – the eternal being who never dies."

४२ अनादिनिधनः-जन्म-मृत्युसे रहित, (Name 42)

"The one who has no beginning and no end – beyond and without birth and death."

१९८ अमृत्युः-मृत्युसे रहित (Name 198)

“The one beyond death – free from mortality.”

As per Srimad Bhagvatam Canto 11 Adhaya 31 during his departure he merely disappeared and did not leaveany material body, because he did not possess any material body

5. Beholding god Brahmā (the grand-sire of the universe) and other celestials who were his own glorious manifestations, that all-pervading Lord concentrated his mind on the Supreme Self and closed his lotus eyes in samādhi (meditation) with a view to avoid the expected requests of the gods to visit their respective regions.
6. By the technical Yogic process called Agneyi whereby the Yogi concentrates his mind on fire and burns down his body, the Lord did not consume with fire his world-enchanting form which was very auspicious for concentration and meditation (and was the support of the world) but entered with his body his own realm[1]

Now, one may think that in the Mausala Parva of the Mahaabhaarata, and the Vishnu Puraana (Khanda 5, Adhyaaya 38) and Srimad Bhagvatam Arjuna is said to have found the bodies of Shri Krshna and Shri Balaraama, and performed their funeral rites. However, it is not so, because this too has been explained by Shripaada Madhvacharya Mahabharat Tatparya Nirnaya Adyaya 2

Shri Hari does not have a material body. He is birthless deathless and cannot be injured by anyone. When he falls uncounsious his skin ruptures he leaves his body and reaches Vaikuntha these things have been enacted by Hari as a magician showing magic. In Spite of possessing a spiritual body, He created another physical body and, after giving it up, rested it on the ground and left for Vaikunta. Arjuna arrived there as per the words of Daruka (Sri Krishna's charioteer) and cremated it.

Allegations-

Rama is said to have died by committing suicide,

📚Valmiki Ramayana 7.110📚
When he had proceeded about six miles, the Pride of the Raghus beheld the sacred waters of the Sarayu flowing westwards, eddying and rippling in their course, and he went on further to the GopratARAKA Ghata, his subjects thronging round him on all sides. At that momemnt, as Kakutsth was preparing to ascent to heaven. Brahma, the Grandsire of the World, surrounded by the Gods and the illustrious Rishis adorned with jewels, appeared seated in their aerial chariots, and the whole firmament glowed with a transcendent splendour...Thereafter to the sound of a myriad instruments and the singing of the Gandharvas and Apsaras, Rama stepped into the waters, whereupon the Grandsire, from on high, uttered these words: 'Hail O Vishnu! Hail O Raghava! With thy God-like brothers, now enter thine eternal abode! Return to thien body if thou so desirest, O Long-armed warrior! Occupy the realm of Vishnu or the shining ether…Hearing these words of the Grandsire, the supremely virtuous Rama formed his resolution and entered Vishnu's abode in his body with his younger brothers…"

📚Valmiki Ramayana 7.110📚
At that time, whosoever entered the water of the Sarayu River, yielding up their lives gladly, their eyes suffused with tears of ecstasy, and, having abandoned their bodies, took their places in a celestial chariot. As for those in animal form, who entered the waters of the Sarayu in hundreds, they ascended to the Third Heaven in divinely resplendent bodies…"

Refutation-

Although the Uttarakanda of the Valmiki Ramayana is highly disputed, with ongoing debates about its authenticity as a part of the original composition, even if we choose to accept it, Sripad Madhvacharya's explanation in his Mahabharata Tatparya Nirnaya, Chapter 2, remains valid and relevant in this context.

Mahabharta Tataparya Nirnaya Adhaya 2

Sri Hari is not son of Vasudeva and others

'naayam dasharathaajjaato na caapi jamadagnita:
The Lord who is master of all is not the son of Vasudeva; He never grows in the womb; In Rama roopa He was not born from Dasaratha neither was He born from Jamadagni as Parasurama.
Special Notes:

1. The Lord does not possess defects such as birth like ordinary beings

Lord does not have defects like birth and death

'jaayate naiva kutraapi mriyate kuta eva tu I
'na vadhyo muhyate naayam badhyate naiva kenacit I kuto duhkam swatantrasya nityaanandaikaroopina:' II78II '
He is not born to anybody. Therefore where is the question of death for Him? He cannot be slayed by anyone. He cannot be made unconscious and he cannot be bound by anybody. How can there be any sorrow for Him who is independent and who is blissful always.

Special Notes:

1. We read several descriptions such as Sri Hari is born to Vasudeva. He grows in the womb of Devaki. As Rama he is born to Dasharatha. He was killed by the arrow of the hunter in Krishnavatara. He fell unconscious to Narakasura's arrows. However Lord Hari is independent. None is independent to harm Him in anyway. He is also always full of bliss. There is no question of sorrow for Him. Therefore all these happenings are only to deceive the wicked souls and to bring joy to the good souls.
2. God is stated as born in His avataras in the Puranas. Really speaking He is not born in the ordinary sense. He manifests. His births are 'aavirbhaava' and not called birth.

About Hari's misleading ways

Although the Lord is the master of the entire creation, He keeps working constantly like a helpless man.

Special Notes:

1. During His avataras it is found that God was charioteer to Arjuna, begged alms from Bali, bowed to Narada, performed sandhyavandana etc. as though he was an ordinary human. He also pined for Sita and went in search for her. However He is the indweller of all and controls all. He protects the good from the evil. He is not bound by any 'karmas'. Thus these are only play acts which are performed by him to mislead the evil minded persons.
2. The word 'hi' is used here indicating that the Lord is not bound by any karmas as emphasized by the shruthis etc.
   The way Lord Hari misleads evil minded demons

The way Lord Hari misleads evil minded demons

He does not recognise Himself. He experiences sorrows like falling unconscious; goes in search for Sita; He gets bound by Indrajith's Nagapasha are all play acts for misleading asuras.

He falls unconscious by getting hurt with weapons; His skin ruptures and begins to bleed; due to ignorance He enquires from others; He leaves His body and reaches heavenly abode. These have been enacted by Sri Hari, who is omnipotent, as a magician showing things that do not exist.

Devatas were aware they were was playacts.
Special Notes:

1. Sri Krishna fell unconscious to Narakasura's arrow. He was hurt by Bheeshma's arrows and blood flowed out of his ruptured skin. In order to run away from Jarasandha he enquired about an hiding place from Parasurama. He made things appear as real like a magician although He is omnipotent. Asuras got deceived. They thought Krishna to be an ordinary human and went to 'tamas.' However devatas knew it was a playact of the Lord. Lord's every manifestation is 'aprakruta' Beyond the qualities of Prakruthi

Sri Hari's manifestations never have 'prakruthik' body. It is blemishless and complete with all positive attributes. It only appears to be otherwise to mislead the evil minded. Sometimes good people also get misled for special reasons. It is intended to equalize their merits according to their capacity. It is only a play for the Lord.
Special Notes:

1. This sloka establishes the fact that the Lord's manifested forms are 'aprakruta' like His original Moola roopa.
2. The earlier sloka said that devatas do not get misled by Sri Hari's playact. It is true. However sometimes devatas also get mis guided. It is done intentionally by Sri Hari. This is because they would have performed meritorious deeds which fetch those merits beyond their innate capacity. This has to be cut because they can be blessed with Mukti only at the appropriate time. Therefore their merits get dissolved by their wrong conception of Sri Hari's misleading acts. Vishnu Tatva Vinirnaya says,
   Asuraanaamatyantam tama: praaptaye pareshaam vilambhaaya
   Asuras attain 'tamas' quickly by wrong conception about God. For those who have earned more religious merits than their innate capacity, to delay their 'moksha.'

Sri Hari is not son of Vasudeva and others

Sripad Madhvacharya elaborates on Shri Rama's departure from Earth and His return to Vaikuntha in the Ram Rajya section (Adhyaya 9) of his Mahabharata Tatparya Nirnaya.

Bharata Shatrugna held Chakra and Shanka

Bharata who is 'Chakraabhimani' held the 'chakra' and walked on Shri Rama's right side. Shatrugna who was 'abhimaani of Shanka' walked to His left holding the best of conchs. In front were groups of Devas headed by Brahma and deities presiding over the Vedas along with the sacred 'Pranava Om' while the entire world followed behind Shri Rama who was going to His abode.

On the left were men and on the right monkeys

With the heavenly ministrels (Gandharvas) singing, being praised by the Devas and rishis with Vedas and showered with flowers; and being gazed without even blinking by all the beings with devotion, He proceeded to His own Abode where He is served by Sesha, Garuda and others devoutly.

The Lord gradually ascended as He was extolled in detail by Brahma, Rudra, Garuda, Sesha and others. All those who followed Him assumed heavenly bodies.

Thus, it becomes evident that neither Shri Rama nor His brothers experienced death rather, they ascended directly to Vaikuntha amidst hymns, divine songs, and showers of celestial flowers.

Shree Krishna Tattva Vimarsha

First of all we will try to Understand Shree Krishna Tattva from Mahabharat

Mahabaharat Anushashan Parva Adhaya 147 – Shree Krishna Balaram Stuti and Mahima by Shri Maheshwar Shiva

महेश्वरने कहा- मुनिवरो ! भगवान् सनातन पुरुष श्रीकृष्ण ब्रह्माजीसे भी श्रेष्ठ हैं। वे श्रीहरि जाम्बूनद नामक सुवर्णके समान श्याम कान्तिसे युक्त हैं। बिना बादलके आकाशमें उदित सूर्यके समान तेजस्वी हैं ।। २ ।।

उनकी भुजाएँ दस हैं, वे महान् तेजस्वी हैं, देवद्रोहियोंका नाश करनेवाले श्रीवत्सभूषित भगवान् हृषीकेश सम्पूर्ण देवताओंद्वारा पूजित होते हैं ।। ३ ।।

ब्रह्माजी उनके उदरसे और मैं उनके मस्तकसे प्रकट हुआ हूँ। उनके सिरके केशोंसे नक्षत्रों और ताराओंका प्रादुर्भाव हुआ है। रोमावलियोंसे देवता और असुर प्रकट हुए हैं ।। ४ ।।

समस्त ऋषि और सनातन लोक उनके श्रीविग्रहसे उत्पन्न हुए हैं। वे श्रीहरि स्वयं ही सम्पूर्ण देवताओंके गृह और ब्रह्माजीके भी निवासस्थान हैं ।। ५ ।।

इस सम्पूर्ण पृथ्वीके स्रष्टा और तीनों लोकोंके स्वामी भी वे ही हैं। वे ही चराचर प्राणियोंका संहार भी करते हैं ।। ६ ।।

वे देवताओंमें श्रेष्ठ, देवताओंके रक्षक, शत्रुओंको संताप देनेवाले, सर्वज्ञ, सबमें ओतप्रोत, सर्वव्यापक तथा सब ओर मुखवाले हैं ।। ७ ।।

वे ही परमात्मा, इन्द्रियोंके प्रेरक और सर्वव्यापी महेश्वर हैं। तीनों लोकोंमें उनसे बढ़कर दूसरा कोई नहीं है ।। ८ ।।

वे ही सनातन, मधुसूदन और गोविन्द आदि नामोंसे प्रसिद्ध हैं। सज्जनोंको आदर देनेवाले वे भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण महाभारत-युद्धमें समस्त राजाओंका संहार करायेंगे ।। ९ ।।

वे देवताओंका कार्य सिद्ध करनेके लिये पृथ्वीपर मानव-शरीर धारण करके प्रकट हुए हैं। उन भगवान् त्रिविक्रमकी शक्ति और सहायताके बिना सम्पूर्ण देवता भी कोई कार्य नहीं कर सकते ।। १० ।।

संसारमें नेताके बिना देवता अपना कोई भी कार्य करनमें असमर्थ हैं और ये भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण सब प्राणियोंके नेता हैं। इसलिये समस्त देवता उनके चरणोंमें मस्तक झुकाते हैं ।। ११ ।।

देवताओंकी रक्षा और उनके कार्यसाधनमें संलग्न रहनेवाले वे भगवान् वासुदेव ब्रह्मस्वरूप हैं। वे ही ब्रह्मर्षियोंको सदा शरण देते हैं। ब्रह्माजी उनके शरीरके भीतर अर्थात् उनके गर्भमें बड़े सुखके साथ रहते हैं। सदा सुखी रहनेवाला मैं शिव भी उनके श्रीविग्रहके भीतर सुखपूर्वक निवास करता हूँ ।। १२-१३ ।।

सम्पूर्ण देवता उनके श्रीविग्रहमें सुखपूर्वक निवास करते हैं। वे कमलनयन श्रीहरि अपने गर्भ (वक्षःस्थल) में लक्ष्मीको निवास देते हैं। लक्ष्मीके साथ ही वे रहते हैं ।। १४ ।

शार्ङ्गधनुष, सुदर्शनचक्र और नन्दक नामक खड्ग – उनके आयुध हैं। उनकी ध्वजामें सम्पूर्ण नागोंके शत्रु गरुड़का चिह्न सुशोभित है। वे उत्तम शील, शम, दम, पराक्रम, वीर्य, सुन्दर शरीर, उत्तम दर्शन, सुडौल आकृति, धैर्य, सरलता, कोमलता, रूप और बल आदि सद्गुणोंसे सम्पन्न हैं। सब प्रकारके दिव्य और अद्भुत अस्त्र-शस्त्र उनके पास सदा मौजूद रहते हैं ।। १५-१७ ।।

वे योगमायासे सम्पन्न और हजारों नेत्रोंवाले हैं। उनका हृदय विशाल है। वे अविनाशी, वीर, मित्रजनोंके प्रशंसक, ज्ञाति एवं बन्धु-बान्धवोंके प्रिय, क्षमाशील,

अहंकाररहित, ब्राह्मणभक्त, वेदोंका उद्धार करनेवाले, भयातुर पुरुषोंका भय दूर करनेवाले और मित्रोंका आनन्द बढ़ानेवाले हैं ।। १८-१९ ।।

वे समस्त प्राणियोंको शरण देनेवाले, दीन-दुखियोंके पालनमें तत्पर, शास्त्रज्ञानसम्पन्न, धनवान्, सर्वभूतवन्दित, शरणमें आये हुए शत्रुओंको भी वर देनेवाले, धर्मज्ञ, नीतिज्ञ, नीतिमान्, ब्रह्मवादी और जितेन्द्रिय हैं ।। २०-२१ ।।

परम बुद्धिसे सम्पन्न भगवान् गोविन्द यहाँ देवताओंकी उन्नतिके लिये प्रजापतिके शुभमार्गपर स्थित हो मनुके धर्म-संस्कृत कुलमें अवतार लेंगे। महात्मा मनुके वंशमें मनुपुत्र अंग नामक राजा होंगे। उनसे अन्तर्धामा नामवाले पुत्रका जन्म होगा

उसका छोटा पुत्र शूर नामसे विख्यात होगा। वे सभी यदुवंशी विख्यात पराक्रमी, सदाचार और सद्गुणसे सुशोभित, यज्ञशील और विशुद्ध आचार-विचारवाले होंगे। उनका कुल ब्राह्मणोंद्वारा सम्मानित होगा। उस कुलमें महापराक्रमी, महायशस्वी और दूसरोंको सम्मान देनेवाले क्षत्रिय-शिरोमणि शूर अपने वंशका विस्तार करनेवाले वसुदेव नामक पुत्रको जन्म देंगे, जिसका दूसरा नाम आनकदुन्दुभि होगा। उन्हींके पुत्र चार भुजाधारी भगवान् वासुदेव होंगे ।। ३०-३२ ।।

भगवान् वासुदेव दानी, ब्राह्मणोंका सत्कार करनेवाले, ब्रह्मभूत और ब्राह्मणप्रिय होंगे। वे यदुकुलतिलक श्रीकृष्ण मगधराज जरासंधकी कैदमें पड़े हुए राजाओंको बन्धनसे छुड़ायेंगे ।। ३३ ।।

वे पराक्रमी श्रीहरि पर्वतकी कन्दरा (राजगृह) – में राजा जरासंधको जीतकर समस्त राजाओंके द्वारा उपहृत रत्नोंसे सम्पन्न होंगे ।। ३४ ।।

वे इस भूमण्डलमें अपने बल-पराक्रमद्वारा अजेय होंगे। विक्रमसे सम्पन्न तथा समस्त राजाओंके भी राजा होंगे ।। ३५ ।।

नीतिवेत्ता भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण शूरसेन देश (मथुरा-मण्डल) में अवतीर्ण होकर वहाँसे द्वारकापुरीमें जाकर रहेंगे और समस्त राजाओंको जीतकर सदा इस पृथ्वीदेवीका पालन करेंगे ।। ३६ ।।

आपलोग उन्हीं भगवान्‌की शरण लेकर अपनी वाङ्मयी मालाओं तथा श्रेष्ठ पूजनोपचारोंसे सनातन ब्रह्माकी भाँति उनका यथोचित पूजन करें ।। ३७ ।।

जो मेरा और पितामह ब्रह्माजीका दर्शन करना चाहता हो, उसे प्रतापी भगवान् वासुदेवका दर्शन करना चाहिये ।। ३८ ।।

तपोधनो ! उनका दर्शन हो जानेपर मेरा ही दर्शन हो गया, अथवा उनके दर्शनसे देवेश्वर ब्रह्माजीका दर्शन हो गया ऐसे समझो, इस विषयमें मुझे कोई विचार नहीं करना है अर्थात् संदेह नहीं है ।। ३९ ।।

जिसपर कमलनयन भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण प्रसन्न होंगे, उसके ऊपर ब्रह्मा आदि देवताओंका समुदाय प्रसन्न हो जायगा ।। ४० ।।

मानवलोकमें जो भगवान् श्रीकृष्णकी शरण लेगा, उसे कीर्ति, विजय तथा उत्तम स्वर्गकी प्राप्ति होगी ।। ४१ ।।

इतना ही नहीं, वह धर्मोंका उपदेश देनेवाला साक्षात् धर्माचार्य एवं धर्मफलका भागी होगा। अतः धर्मामा पुरुषोंको चाहिये कि वे सदा उत्साहित रहकर देवेश्वर भगवान् वासुदेवको नमस्कार करें ।। ४२ ।।

उन सर्वव्यापी परमेश्वरकी पूजा करनेसे परम धर्मकी सिद्धि होगी। वे महान् तेजस्वी देवता हैं। उन पुरुषसिंह श्रीकृष्णने प्रजाका हित करनेकी इच्छासे धर्मका अनुष्ठान करनेके लिये करोड़ों ऋषियोंकी सृष्टि की है। भगवान्‌के उत्पन्न किये हुए वे सनत्कुमार आदि ऋषि गन्धमादन पर्वतपर सदा तपस्यामें संलग्न रहते हैं। अतः द्विजवरो ! उन प्रवचन-कुशल, धर्मज्ञ वासुदेवको सदा प्रणाम करना चाहिये ।। ४३-४५ ।।

वे भगवान् नारायण हरि देवलोकमें सबसे श्रेष्ठ हैं। जो उनकी वन्दना करता है, उसकी वे भी वन्दना करते हैं। जो उनका आदर करता है, उसका वे भी आदर करते

हैं। इसी प्रकार अर्चित होनेपर वे भी अर्चना करते और पूजित या प्रशंसित होनेपर वे भी पूजा या प्रशंसा करते हैं ।। ४६ ।।

श्रेष्ठ ब्राह्मणो ! जो प्रतिदिन उनका दर्शन करता है, उसकी ओर वे भी कृपादृष्टि करते हैं। जो उनका आश्रय लेता है, उसके हृदयमें वे भी आश्रय लेते हैं तथा जो उनकी पूजा करता है, उसकी वे भी सदा पूजा करते हैं ।। ४७ ।।

उन प्रशंसनीय आदि देवता भगवान् महाविष्णुका यह उत्तम व्रत है, जिसका साधु पुरुष सदा आचरण करते आये हैं ।। ४८ ।।

सनातन देवता हैं, अतः इस त्रिभुवनमें देवता भी सदा उन्हींकी पूजा करते हैं। जो उनके अनन्य भक्त हैं, वे अपने भजनके अनुरूप ही निर्भय पद प्राप्त करते हैं ।। ४९ ।

द्विजोंको चाहिये कि वे मन, वाणी और कर्मसे सदा उन भगवान्‌को प्रणाम करें और यत्नपूर्वक उपासना करके उन देवकीनन्दनका दर्शन करें ।। ५० ।।

मुनिवरो ! यह मैंने आपलोगोंको उत्तम मार्ग बता दिया है। उन भगवान् वासुदेवका सब प्रकारसे दर्शन कर लेनेपर सम्पूर्ण श्रेष्ठ देवताओंका दर्शन करना हो जायगा ।। ५१ ।।

मैं भी महावराहरूप धारण करनेवाले उन सर्वलोक-पितामह जगदीश्वरको नित्य प्रणाम करता हूँ ।। ५२ ।

हम सब देवता उनके श्रीविग्रहमें निवास करते हैं। अतः उनका दर्शन करनेसे तीनों देवताओं (ब्रह्मा, विष्णु और शिव) का दर्शन हो जाता है, इसमें संशय नहीं है ।। ५३ ।।

उनके बड़े भाई कैलासकी पर्वतमालाओंके समान श्वेत कान्तिसे प्रकाशित होनेवाले हलधर और बलरामके नामसे विख्यात होंगे। पृथ्वीको धारण करनेवाले शेषनाग ही बलरामके रूपमें अवतीर्ण होंगे ।। ५४ ।।

बलदेवजीके रथपर तीन शिखाओंसे युक्त दिव्य सुवर्णमय तालवृक्ष ध्वजके रूपमें सुशोभित होगा ।। ५५ ।।

सर्वलोकेश्वर महाबाहु बलरामजीका मस्तक बड़े-बड़े फनवाले विशालकाय सर्पोंसे घिरा हुआ होगा ।। ५६ ।।

उनके चिन्तन करते ही सम्पूर्ण दिव्य अस्त्र-शस्त्र उन्हें प्राप्त हो जायँगे। अविनाशी भगवान् श्रीहरि ही अनन्त शेषनाग कहे गये हैं ।। ५७ ।।

पूर्वकालमें देवताओंने गरुड़जीसे यह अनुरोध किया कि 'आप हमें भगवान् शेषका अन्त दिखा दीजिये।' तब कश्यपके बलवान् पुत्र गरुड़ अपनी सारी शक्ति लगाकर भी उन परमात्मदेव अनन्तका अन्त न देख सके ।। ५८ ।।

वे भगवान् शेष बड़े आनन्दके साथ सर्वत्र विचरते हैं और अपने विशाल शरीरसे पृथिवीको आलिंगनपाशमें बाँधकर पाताललोकमें निवास करते हैं ।। ५९ ।।

जो भगवान् विष्णु हैं, वे ही इस पृथ्वीको धारण करनेवाले भगवान् अनन्त हैं। जो बलराम हैं वे ही श्रीकृष्ण हैं, जो श्रीकृष्ण हैं वे ही भूमिधर बलराम हैं ।। ६० ।।

वे दोनों दिव्य रूप और दिव्य पराक्रमसे सम्पन्न पुरुषसिंह बलराम और श्रीकृष्ण क्रमशः चक्र एवं हल धारण करनेवाले हैं। तुम्हें उन दोनोंका दर्शन एवं सम्मान करना चाहिये ।। ६१ ।।

तपोधनो! आपलोगोंपर अनुग्रह करके मैंने भगवान्‌का पवित्र माहात्म्य इसलिये बताया है कि आप प्रयत्नपूर्वक उन यदुकुलतिलक श्रीकृष्णकी पूजा करें

Maheshwar said—O sages! The eternal Supreme Lord Shri Krishna is even greater than Lord Brahma. He, Shri Hari, is adorned with a dark complexion, shining like Jambu-nada gold. He is as radiant as the sun rising in a cloudless sky. (Verse 2)

He has ten arms and is immensely powerful. Shri Vatsa-adorned Lord Hrishikesha, the destroyer of the enemies of the gods, is worshiped by all the deities. (Verse 3)

Lord Brahma emerged from His abdomen, and I was born from His head. The stars and constellations came from His hair, while gods and demons arose from His bodily hairs. (Verse 4)

All sages and eternal worlds have originated from His divine form. He, Shri Hari, is Himself the dwelling place of all deities and even of Lord Brahma. (Verse 5)

He alone is the creator of this entire earth and the ruler of all three worlds. He also brings about the annihilation of all living beings, both moving and non-moving. (Verse 6)

He is the greatest among the gods, the protector of the deities, the tormentor of enemies, all-knowing, pervading everything, omnipresent, and having faces in all directions. (Verse 7)

He is the Supreme Soul, the motivator of the senses, and the all-pervading Maheshwara. There is no one greater than Him in all three worlds. (Verse 8)

He is eternal and well-known by names such as Madhusudan and Govinda. The Lord Shri Krishna, who honors the righteous, will orchestrate the destruction of all kings in the great war of Mahabharata. (Verse 9)

The Lord has incarnated in human form on Earth to fulfill the duties of the gods. Without the power and assistance of Lord Trivikrama, even the deities themselves cannot accomplish anything. (Verse 10)

In the world, without a leader, the gods are unable to carry out their tasks, and Lord Krishna is the leader of all beings. Therefore, all the deities bow their heads at His feet. (Verse 11)

Lord Vasudeva, who protects the gods and aids in their endeavors, is the embodiment of Brahman. He always grants refuge to the divine sages. Lord Brahma resides blissfully within His body, within His womb. Lord Shiva, who is ever joyful, also dwells comfortably within His divine form. (Verses 12-13)

All gods reside blissfully within His divine body. Lotus-eyed Lord Hari grants Goddess Lakshmi residence in His chest and always remains with her. (Verse 14)

His divine weapons include the Sharnga bow, the Sudarshana chakra, and the Nandaka sword. His flag bears the emblem of Garuda, the enemy of all serpents. He is endowed with virtues such as supreme character, self-control, restraint, valor, strength, beauty, noble appearance, perfect form, patience, simplicity, gentleness, radiance, and power. He always possesses all kinds of divine and miraculous weapons. (Verses 15-17)

He is adorned with Yogamaya and has thousands of eyes. His heart is vast. He is eternal, heroic, a praiser of friends, beloved to his kith and kin, forgiving, free from arrogance, devoted to the Brahmins, the preserver of the Vedas, the remover of fear for the fearful, and the source of joy for his friends. (Verses 18-19)

He is the refuge of all beings, always eager to protect the poor and suffering, knowledgeable in scriptures, wealthy, worshiped by all creatures, even granting blessings to enemies who seek shelter with Him. He is righteous, wise, moral, a knower of Brahman, and a master of His senses. (Verses 20-21)

The supremely intelligent Lord Govinda will incarnate in the righteous lineage of Manu, following the auspicious path set by the progenitors for the upliftment of the gods. In the lineage of the great Manu, his son will be King Anga, from whom a son named Antardhama will be born. (Verse 30)

His younger son will be known as Shura. All the Yadavas born in his lineage will be renowned for their valor, righteousness, noble qualities, devotion to yajnas, and purity of conduct. Their dynasty will be honored by Brahmins. In that lineage, the mighty, highly illustrious, and respectful Kshatriya chief, Shura, will give birth to Vasudeva, who will expand his dynasty. Vasudeva is also known as Anakadundubhi. His son will be the four-armed Supreme Lord Vasudeva. (Verses 31-32)

Lord Vasudeva will be generous, a respecter of Brahmins, enlightened, and beloved of the Brahmins. He, the foremost among the Yadavas, will free the kings imprisoned by the Magadhan ruler Jarasandha. (Verse 33)

The mighty Lord Hari will conquer Jarasandha in the mountain caves (Rajagriha) and will be adorned with gems offered by all the kings. (Verse 34)

On this earth, He will be invincible through His power and valor, possessing supreme prowess and becoming the ruler over all kings. (Verse 35)

The wise Lord Krishna will descend in the land of Shurasena (Mathura region), later establishing Himself in Dwarka, where He will defeat all rulers and protect the Earth goddess eternally. (Verse 36)

All of you should take refuge in Him and worship the eternal Brahman appropriately through your verbal offerings and supreme ritual honors. (Verse 37)

Whoever wishes to behold me or Grandfather Brahma should first behold the mighty Lord Vasudeva. (Verse 38)

O ascetics! By seeing Him, one attains the vision of me as well, or perceives Lord Brahma, the lord of gods. There is no doubt in my mind about this truth. (Verse 39)

Whoever pleases the lotus-eyed Lord Krishna will also receive the favor of Lord Brahma and the other gods. (Verse 40)

In the mortal realm, those who take refuge in Lord Krishna will attain glory, victory, and the supreme heaven. (Verse 41)

Not only that, but they will become preachers of righteousness, true guides of Dharma, and recipients of divine rewards. Therefore, righteous men should always be enthusiastic in offering salutations to Lord Vasudeva, the Lord of the gods. (Verse 42)

Worshiping the all-pervading Supreme Lord leads to the ultimate realization of Dharma. He is the brilliantly radiant deity. The lion among men, Shri Krishna, has created millions of sages with the intent of upholding Dharma for the welfare of the people. The sages such as Sanatkumara, who were created by Him, continuously practice severe penance on Mount Gandhamadana. Therefore, O eminent Brahmins! You should always bow to Lord Vasudeva, who is proficient in divine discourse and a knower of Dharma. (Verses 43-45)

Lord Narayana Hari is the highest deity in the celestial realms. Whoever offers Him praise receives His praise in return. Whoever reveres Him is revered by Him as well. Similarly, if He is worshiped, He worships in return, and if honored, He bestows honor upon others. (Verse 46)

O noble Brahmins! Those who behold Him daily receive His gracious gaze. Those who take refuge in Him find Him residing within their hearts. Those who worship Him are eternally worshiped by Him in return. (Verse 47)

The praiseworthy Supreme Lord Mahavishnu has always upheld this sacred vow, followed by virtuous souls through the ages. (Verse 48)

Being the eternal deity, He is worshiped by the gods throughout the three worlds. His devoted followers attain fearless status in accordance with their devotion. (Verse 49)

The Brahmins should continuously offer their obeisances to Him with mind, speech, and actions, and strive diligently to behold the divine form of the beloved son of Devaki. (Verse 50)

O sages! I have revealed to you the supreme path. By beholding Lord Vasudeva in all ways, one gains the vision of the greatest gods. (Verse 51)

I, too, offer my daily salutations to the universal grandfather and supreme ruler, who once assumed the form of the mighty boar. (Verse 52)

All deities reside within His divine form. Therefore, by seeing Him, one also attains the vision of the three supreme deities —Brahma, Vishnu, and Shiva—without doubt. (Verse 53)

His elder brother, Haladhara, known as Balarama, will shine with a radiant white aura like the peaks of Mount Kailasa. Lord Sheshanaga, the one who upholds the Earth, will incarnate as Balarama. (Verse 54)

On Baladeva's chariot, a divine golden palm tree flag marked with three crests will be splendidly displayed. (Verse 55)

The mighty Lord Balarama, the supreme lord of all realms, will have His head surrounded by enormous, hooded serpents. (Verse 56)

Upon contemplation, all celestial weapons will become available to Him instantly. The indestructible Lord Hari is none other than the infinite Sheshanaga. (Verse 57)

In ancient times, the gods requested Garuda to reveal the end of Lord Shesha. Despite exerting all his power, the mighty son of Kashyapa, Garuda, was unable to perceive the limit of the Supreme Lord Ananta. (Verse 58)

Lord Sesha joyfully moves about, enveloping the Earth with His massive coils and residing in the netherworld. (Verse 59)

Lord Vishnu Himself is the divine form of Ananta, the one who upholds the Earth. Lord Balarama and Lord Krishna are one and the same—both embodying the supreme Earth-bearing power. (Verse 60)

These two mighty lion-hearted beings, Balarama and Krishna, are endowed with divine forms and supreme prowess. They wield the plow and the discus, respectively. You should seek their vision and offer them due reverence. (Verse 61)

O ascetics! Out of grace, I have revealed the sacred majesty of Lord Krishna so that you may diligently worship Him, the illustrious jewel of the Yadu dynasty.

स हि देववरः साक्षाद् देवनाथः परंतपः ।
सर्वज्ञः सर्वसंश्लिष्टः सर्वगः सर्वतोमुखः ॥ ७ ॥

वे देवताओंमें श्रेष्ठ, देवताओंके रक्षक, शत्रुओंको संताप देनेवाले, सर्वज्ञ, सबमें ओतप्रोत, सर्वव्यापक तथा सब ओर मुखवाले हैं ॥ ७ ॥

परमात्मा हृषीकेशः सर्वव्यापी महेश्वरः ।
न तस्मात् परमं भूतं त्रिषु लोकेषु किंचन ॥ ८ ॥

वे ही परमात्मा, इन्द्रियोंके प्रेरक और सर्वव्यापी महेश्वर हैं। तीनों लोकोंमें उनसे बढ़कर दूसरा कोई नहीं है ॥ ८ ॥

सनातनो वै मधुहा गोविन्द इति विश्रुतः ।
स सर्वान् पार्थिवान् संख्ये घातयिष्यति मानदः ॥ ९ ॥

वे ही सनातन, मधुसूदन और गोविन्द आदि नामोंसे प्रसिद्ध हैं। सज्जनोंको आदर देनेवाले वे भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण महाभारत-युद्धमें समस्त राजाओंका संहार करायेंगे ॥ ९ ॥

सुरकार्यार्थमुत्पन्नो मानुषं वपुरास्थितः ।
न हि देवगणाः सक्तास्त्रिविक्रमविनाकृताः ॥ १० ॥

वे देवताओंका कार्य सिद्ध करनेके लिये पृथ्वीपर मानव-शरीर धारण करके प्रकट हुए हैं। उन भगवान् त्रिविक्रमकी शक्ति और सहायताके बिना सम्पूर्ण देवता भी कोई कार्य नहीं कर सकते ॥ १० ॥

भुवने देवकार्याणि कर्तुं नायकवर्जिताः ।
नायकः सर्वभूतानां सर्वदेवनमस्कृतः ॥ ११ ॥

संसारमें नेताके बिना देवता अपना कोई भी कार्य करनेमें असमर्थ हैं और वे भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण सब प्राणियोंके नेता हैं। इसलिये समस्त देवता उनके चरणोंमें मस्तक झुकाते हैं ॥ ११ ॥

एतस्य देवनाथस्य देवकार्यपरस्य च ।
ब्रह्मभूतस्य सततं ब्रह्मर्षिशरणस्य च ॥ १२ ॥
ब्रह्मा वसति गर्भस्थः शरीरे सुखसंस्थितः ।
शर्वः सुखं संश्रितश्च शरीरे सुखसंस्थितः ॥ १३ ॥

देवताओंकी रक्षा और उनके कार्यसाधनमें संलग्न रहनेवाले वे भगवान् वासुदेव ब्रह्मस्वरूप हैं। वे ही ब्रह्मर्षियोंको सदा शरण देते हैं। ब्रह्माजी उनके शरीरके भीतर अर्थात् उनके गर्भमें बड़े सुखके साथ रहते हैं। सदा सुखी रहनेवाला मैं शिव भी उनके श्रीविग्रहके भीतर सुखपूर्वक निवास करता हूँ ॥ १२-१३ ॥

सम्पूर्ण देवता उनके श्रीविग्रहमें सुखपूर्वक निवास करते हैं। वे कमलनयन श्रीहरि अपने गर्भ (वक्षःस्थल)-में लक्ष्मीको निवास देते हैं। लक्ष्मीके साथ ही वे रहते हैं ॥ १४ ॥

शार्ङ्गचक्रायुधः खड्गी सर्वनागरिपुध्वजः ।
उत्तमेन स शीलेन दमेन च शमेन च ॥ १५ ॥
पराक्रमेण वीर्येण वपुषा दर्शनेन च ।

आनृशंस्येन रूपेण बलेन च समन्वितः ।
अस्त्रैः समुदितः सर्वैर्दिव्यैरद्भुतदर्शनैः ॥ १७ ॥

शार्ङ्गधनुष, सुदर्शनचक्र और नन्दक नामक खड्ग—उनके आयुध हैं। उनकी ध्वजामें सम्पूर्ण नागोंके शत्रु गरुड़का चिह्न सुशोभित है। वे उत्तम शील, शम, दम, पराक्रम, वीर्य, सुन्दर शरीर, उत्तम दर्शन, सुडौल आकृति, धैर्य, सरलता, कोमलता, रूप और बल आदि सद्गुणोंसे सम्पन्न हैं। सब प्रकारके दिव्य और अद्भुत अस्त्र-शस्त्र उनके पास सदा मौजूद रहते हैं ॥ १५—१७ ॥

योगमायः सहस्राक्षो निरपायो महामनाः ।
वीरो मित्रजनश्लाघी ज्ञातिबन्धुजनप्रियः ॥ १८ ॥
क्षमावांश्चानहंवादी ब्रह्मण्यो ब्रह्मनायकः ।
भयहर्ता भयार्तानां मित्राणां नन्दिवर्धनः ॥ १९ ॥

वे योगमायासे सम्पन्न और हजारों नेत्रोंवाले हैं। उनका हृदय विशाल है। वे अविनाशी, वीर, मित्रजनोंके प्रशंसक, ज्ञाति एवं बन्धु-बान्धवोंके प्रिय, क्षमाशील, अहंकाररहित, ब्राह्मणभक्त, वेदोंका उद्धार करनेवाले, भयातुर पुरुषोंका भय दूर करनेवाले और मित्रोंका आनन्द बढ़ानेवाले हैं ॥ १८-१९ ॥

शरण्यः सर्वभूतानां दीनानां पालने रतः ।
श्रुतवानर्थसम्पन्नः सर्वभूतनमस्कृतः ॥ २० ॥
समाश्रितानां वरदः शत्रूणामपि धर्मवित् ।
नीतिज्ञो नीतिसम्पन्नो ब्रह्मवादी जितेन्द्रियः ॥ २१ ॥

वे समस्त प्राणियोंको शरण देनेवाले, दीन-दुखियोंके पालनमें तत्पर, शास्त्रज्ञानसम्पन्न, धनवान्, सर्वभूतवन्दित, शरणमें आये हुए शत्रुओंको भी वर देनेवाले, धर्मज्ञ, नीतिज्ञ, नीतिमान्, ब्रह्मवादी और जितेन्द्रिय हैं ॥ २०-२१ ॥

भवार्थमिह देवानां बुद्ध्या परमया युतः ।
प्राजापत्ये शुभे मार्गे मानवे धर्मसंस्कृते ।। २२ ।।
समुत्पत्स्यति गोविन्दो मनोर्वंशे महात्मनः ।
अङ्गो नाम मनोः पुत्रो अन्तर्धामा ततः परः ।। २३ ।।

परम बुद्धिसे सम्पन्न भगवान् गोविन्द यहाँ देवताओंकी उत्पत्तिके लिये प्रजापतिके शुभमार्गपर स्थित हो मनुके धर्म-संस्कृत कुलमें अवतार लेंगे। महात्मा मनुके वंशमें मनुपुत्र अंग नामक राजा होंगे। उनसे अन्तर्धामा नामवाले पुत्रका जन्म होगा ।। २२-२३ ।।

तस्य त्ववरजः पुत्रः शूरो नाम भविष्यति ।
तेषां विख्यातवीर्याणां चरित्रगुणशालिनाम् ।। ३० ।।
यज्वनां सुविशुद्धानां वंशे ब्राह्मणसम्मते ।
स शूरः क्षत्रियश्रेष्ठो महावीर्यो महायशाः ।
स्ववंशविस्तरकरं जनयिष्यति मानदः ।। ३१ ।।

वसुदेव इति ख्यातं पुत्रमानकदुन्दुभिम् ।
तस्य पुत्रश्चतुर्बाहुर्वासुदेवो भविष्यति ।। ३२ ।।

उसका छोटा पुत्र शूर नामसे विख्यात होगा। वे सभी यदुवंशी विख्यात पराक्रमी, सदाचार और सद्गुणसे सुशोभित, यज्ञशील और विशुद्ध आचार-विचारवाले होंगे। उनका कुल ब्राह्मणोंद्वारा सम्मानित होगा। उस कुलमें महापराक्रमी, महायशस्वी और दूसरोंको सम्मान देनेवाले क्षत्रिय-शिरोमणि शूर अपने वंशका विस्तार करनेवाले वसुदेव नामक पुत्रको जन्म देंगे, जिसका दूसरा नाम आनकदुन्दुभि होगा। उन्हींके पुत्र चार भुजाधारी भगवान् वासुदेव होंगे ।। ३०—३२ ।।

दाता ब्राह्मणसत्कर्ता ब्रह्मभूतो द्विजप्रियः ।
राज्ञो मागधसंरुद्धान् मोक्षयिष्यति यादवः ।। ३३ ।।

भगवान् वासुदेव दानी, ब्राह्मणोंका सत्कार करनेवाले, ब्रह्मभूत और ब्राह्मणप्रिय होंगे। वे यदुकुलतिलक श्रीकृष्ण मगधराज जरासंधकी कैदमें पड़े हुए राजाओंको बन्धनसे छुड़ायेंगे ।। ३३ ।।

जरासंधं तु राजानं निर्जित्य गिरिगह्वरे ।
सर्वपार्थिवरत्नाढ्यो भविष्यति स वीर्यवान् ।। ३४ ।।

वे पराक्रमी श्रीहरि पर्वतकी कन्दरा (राजगृह)-में राजा जरासंधको जीतकर समस्त राजाओंके द्वारा उपहृत रत्नोंसे सम्पन्न होंगे ।। ३४ ।।

पृथिव्यामप्रतिहतो वीर्येण च भविष्यति ।
विक्रमेण च सम्पन्नः सर्वपार्थिवपार्थिवः ।। ३५ ।।

वे इस भूमण्डलमें अपने बल-पराक्रमद्वारा अजेय होंगे। विक्रमसे सम्पन्न तथा समस्त राजाओंके भी राजा होंगे ।। ३५ ।।

शूरसेनेषु भूत्वा स द्वारकायां वसन् प्रभुः ।
पालयिष्यति गां देवीं विजित्य नयवित् सदा ।। ३६ ।।

नीतिवेत्ता भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण शूरसेन देश (मथुरा-मण्डल)-में अवतीर्ण होकर वहाँसे द्वारकापुरीमें जाकर रहेंगे और समस्त राजाओंको जीतकर सदा इस पृथ्वीदेवीका पालन करेंगे ।। ३६ ।।

तं भवन्तः समासाद्य वाङ्माल्यैरर्हणैर्वरैः ।
अर्चयन्तु यथान्यायं ब्रह्माणमिव शाश्वतम् ।। ३७ ।।

आपलोग उन्हीं भगवान्‌की शरण लेकर अपनी वाङ्मयी मालाओं तथा श्रेष्ठ पूजनोपचारोंसे सनातन ब्रह्माकी भाँति उनका यथोचित पूजन करें ।। ३७ ।।

यो हि मां द्रष्टुमिच्छेत ब्रह्माणं च पितामहम् ।
द्रष्टव्यस्तेन भगवान् वासुदेवः प्रतापवान् ।। ३८ ।।

जो मेरा और पितामह ब्रह्माजीका दर्शन करना चाहता हो, उसे प्रतापी भगवान् वासुदेवका दर्शन करना चाहिये ।। ३८ ।।

दृष्टे तस्मिन्नहं दृष्टो न मेऽत्रास्ति विचारणा ।
पितामहो वा देवेश इति वित्त तपोधनाः ।। ३९ ।।

तपोधनो! उनका दर्शन हो जानेपर मेरा ही दर्शन हो गया, अथवा उनके दर्शनसे देवेश्वर ब्रह्माजीका दर्शन हो गया ऐसे समझो, इस विषयमें मुझे कोई विचार नहीं करना है अर्थात् सन्देह नहीं है ।। ३९ ।।

स यस्य पुण्डरीकाक्षः प्रीतियुक्तो भविष्यति ।
तस्य देवगणः प्रीतो ब्रह्मपूर्वो भविष्यति ।। ४० ।।

जिसपर कमलनयन भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण प्रसन्न होंगे, उसके ऊपर ब्रह्मा आदि देवताओंका समुदाय प्रसन्न हो जायगा ।। ४० ।।

यश्च तं मानवे लोके संश्रयिष्यति केशवम् ।
तस्य कीर्तिर्जयश्चैव स्वर्गश्चैव भविष्यति ।। ४१ ।।

मानवलोकमें जो भगवान् श्रीकृष्णकी शरण लेगा, उसे कीर्ति, विजय तथा उत्तम स्वर्गकी प्राप्ति होगी ।। ४१ ।।

धर्माणां देशिकः साक्षात् स भविष्यति धर्मभाक् ।
धर्मविद्भिः स देवेशो नमस्कार्यः सदोद्यतैः ।। ४२ ।।

इतना ही नहीं, वह धर्मोंका उपदेश देनेवाला साक्षात् धर्माचार्य एवं धर्मफलका भागी होगा। अतः धर्मात्मा पुरुषोंको चाहिये कि वे सदा उत्साहित रहकर देवेश्वर भगवान् वासुदेवको नमस्कार करें ।। ४२ ।।

धर्म एव परो हि स्यात् तस्मिन्नभ्यर्चिते विभौ ।
स हि देवो महातेजाः प्रजाहितचिकीर्षया ॥ ४३ ॥
धर्मार्थं पुरुषव्याघ्र ऋषिकोटीः ससर्ज ह ।
ताः सृष्टास्तेन विभुना पर्वते गन्धमादने ॥ ४४ ॥
सनत्कुमारप्रमुखास्तिष्ठन्ति तपसान्विताः ।
तस्मात् स वाग्मी धर्मज्ञो नमस्यो द्विजपुङ्गवाः ॥ ४५ ॥

उन सर्वव्यापी परमेश्वरकी पूजा करनेसे परम धर्मकी सिद्धि होगी। वे महान् तेजस्वी देवता हैं। उन पुरुषसिंह श्रीकृष्णने प्रजाका हित करनेकी इच्छासे धर्मका अनुष्ठान करनेके लिये करोड़ों ऋषियोंकी सृष्टि की है। भगवान्‌के उत्पन्न किये हुए वे सनत्कुमार आदि ऋषि, गन्धमादन पर्वतपर सदा तपस्यामें संलग्न रहते हैं। अतः द्विजवरो! उन प्रवचन-कुशल, धर्मज्ञ वासुदेवको सदा प्रणाम करना चाहिये ॥ ४३—४५ ॥

भुवनेऽभ्यर्चितो नित्यं देवैरपि सनातनः ।
अभयेनानुरूपेण युज्यन्ते तमनुव्रताः ॥ ४९ ॥

वे सनातन देवता हैं, अतः इस त्रिभुवनमें देवता भी सदा उन्हींकी पूजा करते हैं। जो उनके अनन्य भक्त हैं, वे अपने भजनके अनुरूप ही निर्भय पद प्राप्त करते हैं ॥ ४९ ॥

कर्मणा मनसा वाचा स नमस्यो द्विजैः सदा ।
यत्नवद्भिरुपस्थाय द्रष्टव्यो देवकीसुतः ॥ ५० ॥

द्विजोंको चाहिये कि वे मन, वाणी और कर्मसे सदा उन भगवान्‌को प्रणाम करें और यत्नपूर्वक उपासना करके उन देवकीनन्दनका दर्शन करें ॥ ५० ॥

एष वोऽभिहितो मार्गो मया वै मुनिसत्तमाः ।
तं दृष्ट्वा सर्वशो देवं दृष्टाः स्युः सुरसत्तमाः ॥ ५१ ॥

मुनिवरो! यह मैंने आपलोगोंको उत्तम मार्ग बता दिया है। उन भगवान् वासुदेवका सब प्रकारसे दर्शन कर लेनेपर सम्पूर्ण श्रेष्ठ देवताओंका दर्शन करना हो जायगा ॥ ५१ ॥

महावराहं तं देवं सर्वलोकपितामहम् ।
अहं चैव नमस्यामि नित्यमेव जगत्पतिम् ॥ ५२ ॥

मैं भी महावराहरूप धारण करनेवाले उन सर्वलोक-पितामह जगदीश्वरको नित्य प्रणाम करता हूँ ॥ ५२ ॥

तत्र च त्रितयं दृष्टं भविष्यति न संशयः ।
समस्ता हि वयं देवास्तस्य देहे वसामहे ॥ ५३ ॥

हम सब देवता उनके श्रीविग्रहमें निवास करते हैं। अतः उनका दर्शन करनेसे तीनों देवताओं (ब्रह्मा, विष्णु और शिव)-का दर्शन हो जाता है, इसमें संशय नहीं है ॥ ५३ ॥

तस्य चैवाग्रजो भ्राता सिताद्रिनिचयप्रभः ।
हली बल इति ख्यातो भविष्यति धराधरः ॥ ५४ ॥

उनके बड़े भाई कैलासकी पर्वतमालाओंके समान श्वेत कान्तिसे प्रकाशित होनेवाले हलधर और बलरामके नामसे विख्यात होंगे। पृथ्वीको धारण करनेवाले शेषनाग ही बलरामके रूपमें अवतीर्ण होंगे ॥ ५४ ॥

त्रिशिरास्तस्य दिव्यश्च शातकुम्भमयो द्रुमः ।
ध्वजस्तृणेन्द्रो देवस्य भविष्यति रथाश्रितः ॥ ५५ ॥

बलदेवजीके रथपर तीन शिखाओंसे युक्त दिव्य सुवर्णमय तालवृक्ष ध्वजके रूपमें सुशोभित होगा ॥ ५५ ॥

शिरो नागैर्महाभोगैः परिकीर्णं महात्मभिः ।
भविष्यति महाबाहोः सर्वलोकेश्वरस्य च ॥ ५६ ॥

सर्वलोकेश्वर महाबाहु बलरामजीका मस्तक बड़े-बड़े फनवाले विशालकाय सर्पोंसे घिरा हुआ होगा ॥ ५६ ॥

चिन्तितानि समेष्यन्ति शस्त्राण्यस्त्राणि चैव ह ।
अनन्तश्च स एवोक्तो भगवान् हरिरव्ययः ॥ ५७ ॥

उनके चिन्तन करते ही सम्पूर्ण दिव्य अस्त्र-शस्त्र उन्हें प्राप्त हो जायँगे। अविनाशी भगवान् श्रीहरि ही अनन्त शेषनाग कहे गये हैं ॥ ५७ ॥

समादिष्टश्च विबुधैर्दर्शय त्वमिति प्रभो ।
सुपर्णो यस्य वीर्येण कश्यपस्यात्मजो बली ।
अन्तं नैवाशकद् द्रष्टुं देवस्य परमात्मनः ॥ ५८ ॥

पूर्वकालमें देवताओंने गरुड़जीसे यह अनुरोध किया कि 'आप हमें भगवान् शेषका अन्त दिखा दीजिये।' तब कश्यपके बलवान् पुत्र गरुड़ अपनी सारी शक्ति लगाकर भी उन परमात्मदेव अनन्तका अन्त न देख सके ॥ ५८ ॥

स च शेषो विचरते परया वै मुदा युतः ।
अन्तर्वसति भोगेन परिरभ्य वसुन्धराम् ॥ ५९ ॥

वे भगवान् शेष बड़े आनन्दके साथ सर्वत्र विचरते हैं और अपने विशाल शरीरसे पृथिवीको आलिंगनपाशमें बाँधकर पाताललोकमें निवास करते हैं ॥ ५९ ॥

य एव विष्णुः सोऽनन्तो भगवान् वसुधाधरः ।
यो रामः स हृषीकेशो योऽच्युतः स धराधरः ॥ ६० ॥

जो भगवान् विष्णु हैं, वे ही इस पृथ्वीको धारण करनेवाले भगवान् अनन्त हैं। जो बलराम हैं वे ही श्रीकृष्ण हैं, जो श्रीकृष्ण हैं वे ही भूमिधर बलराम हैं ॥ ६० ॥

तावुभौ पुरुषव्याघ्रौ दिव्यौ दिव्यपराक्रमौ ।
द्रष्टव्यौ माननीयौ च चक्रलाङ्गलधारिणौ ।। ६१ ।।

ये दोनों दिव्य रूप और दिव्य पराक्रमसे सम्पन्न पुरुषसिंह बलराम और श्रीकृष्ण क्रमशः चक्र एवं हल धारण करनेवाले हैं। तुम्हें उन दोनोंका दर्शन एवं सम्मान करना चाहिये ।। ६१ ।।

एष वोऽनुग्रहः प्रोक्तो मया पुण्यस्तपोधनाः ।
यद् भवन्तो यदुश्रेष्ठं पूजयेयुः प्रयत्नतः ।। ६२ ।।

तपोधनो! आपलोगोंपर अनुग्रह करके मैंने भगवान्‌का पवित्र माहात्म्य इसलिये बताया है कि आप प्रयत्नपूर्वक उन यदुकुलतिलक श्रीकृष्णकी पूजा करें ।। ६२ ।।

Mahabharat Anushashan Parva Adhaya 148 Shri Krishna Stuti by Bhisma Pitamah

नरेश्वर ! जो सम्पूर्ण प्राणियोंके मानसिक संकल्पमें व्याप्त रहनेवाला है और देवताओं तथा असुरोंके भी अन्तःकरणमें सदा विचरता रहता है, वह कामदेव ही भगवान् श्रीकृष्णका वंशधर है ।। २१ ।।

वे ही ये चार भुजाधारी घनश्याम पुरुषसिंह श्रीकृष्ण प्रेमपूर्वक तुम पाण्डवोंके आश्रित हैं और तुमलोग भी इनके शरणागत हो ।। २२

ये त्रिविक्रम विष्णुदेव जहाँ विद्यमान हैं, वहीं कीर्ति, लक्ष्मी, धृति तथा स्वर्गका मार्ग है ।। २३ ।।

इन्द्र आदि तैंतीस देवता इन्हींके स्वरूप हैं, इसमें कोई अन्यथा विचार नहीं करना चाहिये। ये ही सम्पूर्ण प्राणियोंको आश्रय देनेवाले आदिदेव महादेव हैं ।। २४ ।।

इनका न आदि है न अन्त। ये अव्यक्तस्वरूप, महातेजस्वी महात्मा मधुसूदन देवताओंका कार्य सिद्ध करनेके लिये यदुकुलमें उत्पन्न हुए हैं ।। २५ ।।

ये माधव दुर्बोध तत्त्वके वक्ता और कर्ता हैं। कुन्तीनन्दन ! तुम्हारी सम्पूर्ण विजय, अनुपम कीर्ति और अखिल भूमण्डलका राज्य- ये सब भगवान् नारायणका आश्रय लेनेसे ही तुम्हें प्राप्त हुए हैं। ये अचिन्त्यस्वरूप नारायण ही तुम्हारे रक्षक और परमगति हैं ।। २६-२७ ।।

तुमने स्वयं होता बनकर प्रलयकालीन अग्निके समान तेजस्वी श्रीकृष्णरूपी विशाल सुवाके द्वारा समराग्निकी ज्वालामें सम्पूर्ण राजाओंकी आहुति दे डाली है ।। २८ ।।

आज वह दुर्योधन अपने पुत्र, भाई और सम्बन्धियोंसहित शोकका विषय हो गया है; क्योंकि उस मूर्खने क्रोधके आवेशमें आकर श्रीकृष्ण और अर्जुनसे युद्ध ठाना था ।। २९ ।।

कितने ही विशाल शरीरवाले महाबली दैत्य और दानव दावानलमें दग्ध होनेवाले पतंगोंकी तरह श्रीकृष्णकी चक्राग्निमें स्वाहा हो चुके हैं ।। ३० ।।

पुरुषसिंह ! सत्त्व (धैर्य), शक्ति और बल आदिसे स्वभावतः हीन मनुष्य युद्धमें इन श्रीकृष्णका सामना नहीं कर सकते ।। ३१ ।।

अर्जुन भी योगशक्तिसे सम्पन्न और युगान्तकालकी अग्निके समान तेजस्वी हैं। ये बायें हाथसे भी बाण चलाते हैं और रणभूमिमें सबसे आगे रहते हैं। नरेश्वर! इन्होंने अपने तेजसे दुर्योधनकी सारी सेनाका संहार कर डाला है ।। ३२ ।।

वृषभध्वज भगवान् शंकरने हिमालयके शिखरपर मुनियोंसे जो पुरातन रहस्य बताया था , वह मेरे मुँहसे सुनो ।। ३३ ।।

विभो ! अर्जुनमें जैसी पुष्टि है, जैसा तेज, दीप्ति, पराक्रम, प्रभाव, विनय और जन्मकी उत्तमता है, वह सब कुछ श्रीकृष्णमें अर्जुनसे तिगुना है ।। ३४ ।।

संसारमें कौन ऐसा है जो मेरे इस कथनको अन्यथा सिद्ध कर सके। श्रीकृष्णका जैसा प्रभाव है, उसे सुनो – जहाँ भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण हैं, वहाँ सर्वोत्तम पुष्टि विद्यमान है ।। ३५ ।।

जो कालके स्वरूपको जानता है, वह कालके थपेड़े खाकर भी शोक नहीं करता। श्रीकृष्ण ही लाल नेत्रोंवाले दण्डधारी सनातन काल हैं ।। ४० ।।

O King! The divine essence that permeates the minds of all beings and constantly moves within the hearts of both gods and demons—that very Kamadeva is a descendant of Lord Krishna. (Verse 21)

That same four-armed, dark-hued lion among men, Lord Krishna, lovingly protects you Pandavas, and you all have taken refuge in Him. (Verse 22)

Wherever the supreme Lord Trivikrama Vishnu is present, there lies fame, prosperity, patience, and the path to heaven. (Verse 23)

The thirty-three gods, including Indra, are all forms of His divinity—this truth must never be doubted. He is the eternal deity, the great Lord who provides shelter to all beings. (Verse 24)

He has neither a beginning nor an end. He is unmanifest, radiant, and immensely powerful. The great Lord Madhusudana has taken birth in the Yadu dynasty to fulfill the purpose of the gods. (Verse 25)

He, Madhava, is both the revealer and executor of deep, unfathomable truths. O son of Kunti! Your complete victory, unmatched glory, and dominion over the entire earth—all these have been bestowed upon you only because you have taken refuge in the Supreme Lord Narayana. He, the inconceivable Narayana, is your protector and ultimate sanctuary. (Verses 26-27)

Acting as the sacrificial priest, you have offered all the kings as oblations into the blazing battlefield fire through the mighty weapon of Lord Krishna, who burns like the cosmic fire of destruction. (Verse 28)

Today, Duryodhana has become a figure of sorrow, along with his sons, brothers, and kin—because, in his ignorance, he dared to wage war against Lord Krishna and Arjuna in the grip of wrath. (Verse 29)

Many powerful demons and gigantic warriors have perished like moths in the consuming flames of Lord Krishna's Sudarshana chakra. (Verse 30)

O lion among men! Those who lack natural courage, strength, and vigor cannot stand against Lord Krishna in battle. (Verse 31)

Arjuna is endowed with the power of Yoga and blazes like the fire of cosmic dissolution. He can shoot arrows even with his left hand and always leads the charge in battle. O King! Through his sheer prowess, he has annihilated Duryodhana's entire army. (Verse 32)

Lord Shiva, the bearer of the bull emblem, once revealed an ancient divine secret to sages on the peaks of the Himalayas—listen now as I speak those words. (Verse 33)

O Supreme One! Whatever strength, radiance, valor, glory, umility, and noble birth Arjuna possesses—Lord Krishna possesses these virtues threefold compared to Arjuna. (Verse 34)

Who in this world can possibly refute my statement? Now hear of Lord Krishna's influence—wherever He resides, supreme prosperity prevails. (Verse 35)

The one who understands the essence of Time never mourns, even under its harsh blows. Lord Krishna Himself is the eternal Time—the red-eyed wielder of the cosmic rod of justice. (Verse 40)

स कामः सर्वभूतानां सर्वभावगतो नृप ।

अर्जुन भी योगशक्तिसे सम्पन्न और युगान्तकालकी अग्निके समान तेजस्वी हैं। वे बायें हाथसे भी बाण चलाते हैं और रणभूमिमें सबसे आगे रहते हैं। नरेश्वर! इन्होंने अपने तेजसे दुर्योधनकी सारी सेनाका संहार कर डाला है ।। ३२ ।।

यत् तु गोवृषभाङ्केन मुनिभ्यः समुदाहृतम् ।
पुराणं हिमवत्पृष्ठे तन्मे निगदतः शृणु ।। ३३ ।।

वृषभध्वज भगवान् शंकरने हिमालयके शिखरपर मुनियोंसे जो पुरातन रहस्य बताया था, वह मेरे मुँहसे सुनो ।। ३३ ।।

यावत् तस्य भवेत् पुष्टिस्तेजो दीप्तिः पराक्रमः ।
प्रभावः संनतिर्जन्म कृष्णे तत्त्रिगुणं विभो ।। ३४ ।।

विभो! अर्जुनमें जैसी पुष्टि है, जैसा तेज, दीप्ति, पराक्रम, प्रभाव, विनय और जन्मकी उत्तमता है, वह सब कुछ श्रीकृष्णमें अर्जुनसे तिगुना है ।। ३४ ।।

कः शक्नोत्यन्यथाकर्तुं तद् यदि स्यात् तथा शृणु ।
यत्र कृष्णो हि भगवांस्तत्र पुष्टिरनुत्तमा ।। ३५ ।।

संसारमें कौन ऐसा है जो मेरे इस कथनको अन्यथा सिद्ध कर सके। श्रीकृष्णका जैसा प्रभाव है, उसे सुनो—जहाँ भगवान् श्रीकृष्ण हैं, वहाँ सर्वोत्तम पुष्टि विद्यमान है ।। ३५ ।।

न हि कालेन कालज्ञः स्पृष्टः शोचितुमर्हसि ।
कालो लोहितरक्ताक्षः कृष्णो दण्डी सनातनः ।। ४० ।।

जो कालके स्वरूपको जानता है, वह कालके थपेड़े खाकर भी शोक नहीं करता। श्रीकृष्ण ही लाल नेत्रोंवाले दण्डधारी सनातन काल हैं ।। ४० ।।

Mahabharat Anushashan Parva Adhaya 149

भीष्मजीने कहा- बेटा! स्थावर-जंगमरूप संसारके स्वामी, ब्रह्मादि देवोंके देव, देश-काल और वस्तुसे अपरिच्छिन्न, क्षर-अक्षरसे श्रेष्ठ पुरुषोत्तमका सहस्रनामोंके द्वारा निरन्तर तत्पर रहकर गुण-संकीर्तन करनेसे पुरुष सब दुःखोंसे पार हो जाता है ।। ४ ।।
